BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXVI. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 2, 1901. NO. 11.

During last year 22,000 persons took advantage of the bankruptcy law.

It is believed that lead, silver and coper ores abound in paying quantities in Shelby county, Indiana.

In Chicago thirty-six cranks, have assembled for the purpose of awaiting the Coming of Christ to earth to-morrow.

That Ann Arbor speech of Mr. Harrison, is a subject of much criticism on the part of some of the members of his party.

It is said that the greater portion of emigration to Cuba is from Spain. One would snppose the rush would be from this country.

It is said that Ex-President Harrison has received a fee of $100,000 for his services as counsel for Venezuela in the British boundary dispute.

The report that the Senate will turn down Senator Hanna on the ship subsidy bill probably originated where the report did that he would resign the Chairmanship of the National Committee.—Detroit Journal.

An agent of the Postal Department has visited Owenton, Owen county, for the purpose of investigating the matter of free mail delivery from that point. If the route is established it will embrace quite a number of small towns.

It takes a vast amount of turkey for Uncle Sam's Christmas dinner. Some inquisitive fellow has investigated the matter and reports that for that purpose it requires 50,000,000pounds. To this amount should be added at least $500,000 for cranberries to go with the turkey.

An attempt is being made to enforce that part of the Indiana election law that disfranchises the voter who sells his vote. If the accusation made against the Indiana voters on one or two occasions in the century just closed is true, a strict enforcement of the law against vote selling might destroy a quorum in that State.

The Erlanger city council has granted the Covington Street Railway Company the right of way over the steets in Erlanger, but have fixed a time by which the work of construction is to begin, as well as the time by which the road is to be completed. Erlanger will make all ressonable concessions to encourage the construction of the road.

The two sets of would be Democratic bosses in Covington, gave their troubles another airing last week. The row now on in Campbell and Kenton counties will seriously injure the Democratic party in this Congressional district unless a reconciliation is brought about, which does not seem likely to result. Party interests are above personal matters, and each of the warring elements should be willing to make concessions that a settlement of the troubles may be reached.

The Hungarian minister of commerce is preparing a law for the regulation of trusts in that country. An important feature of the law is a provision that when a trust materially raises the price of an article the government may suspend the import duties on that article, thus bringing in foreign competition. It is also provided that in an extreme emergency the government may confiscate the trust, compensate the individual members and then conduct the business as a state department.

In this issue will be found the announcement of Charles W. Waller, of Verona, as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Assessor. Mr. Waller is a Democrat in whom there has been no waivering, and has been an earnest party worker in his precinct. He is a clever gentleman and thoroughly competent to perform the duties of the office to which he aspires. If the Democrats give him the office he is asking at their hands, he will never give them any cause to regret having done so.

[Ky. Post, Dec 31.]

Very quietly and without any fuss and feathers, Judge James P. Tarvin took action Monday morning at 11 o'clock in the Kenton Circuit Court in what promises to be a famous case in Kentucky. A rule was issued against Theodore F. Hallam returnable Monday, to show cause why he should not be disbarred from court, and in the meantime he is suspended from practise.

The action is the result of Hallam's sensational utterances in the court of Judge Spiegel, in Cincinnati, which were fully reported in The Post Saturday. In this case Hallam stated that he brought the suit to Cincinnati because the defendant, Harvey Myers, another Covington attorney, had claimed that he spent money to influence Kentucky Judges. He named $1300 as the sum claimed to have been expended. Hallam went on to disclaim any belief in the statement, but said he mentioned it so as to show why he tried the case in that particular court.

When court convened Monday Judge Tarvin read an affidavit by John E. Bruce, a Cincinnati attorney, who was in Judge Spiegel's court at the time Hallam created a sensation. The affidavit merely recited what The Post has already printed.

Upon concluding the reading of the affidavit Judge Tarvin said: "Mr. Clerk, enter a rule against Theodore Hallam, returnable next Monday, to show cause why he should not be disbarred from practise at this court, and in the meantime let him be suspended from practise. The Commonwealth is also interested in this case, and I presume the Commonwealth's Attorney will take steps to investigate it. If there is any evidence brought out justifying such a step a similar rule may be issued against Harvey Myers."

Commonwealth's Attorney Glenn said he would take steps to investigate the matter. Judge Tarvin then adjourned court until Wednesday, when Attorney Gregory will act as Judge and dismiss the jury until Monday, when Judge Tarvin will be back on the bench.

Ulie J. Howard, who is a clerk of Harvey Myres, was requested by Judge Tarvin to send a telegram to Myres, summoning him home. Myers is at present out in California, and will not be able to return to the city before next Monday at the earliest.

There was a very small crowd in the courtroom at the time Judge Tarvin took action, as matters had been kept very quiet. Only a few curious lawyers were on hand, having judged that some action would be taken.

Dr. J. N. McCormack Secretary of the State Board of Health, who has been investigating the smallpox situation in Eastern Kentucky, is of the opinion that unless immediate steps are taken by the civil and health officers to stamp out the disease smallpox will spread to every county in the State. He says:

"We now have smallpox in the widely separated counties of Calloway, McCracken, Christian, Kenton, Bracken, Lewis, Greenup, Boyd, Lawrence, Elliott, Morgan, Rowan, Wolf, Powell, Magoffin, Breathitt, Lee, Fayette, Fleming and Woodford. This wide prevalence in the beginning of the cold season threatens the health, lives and business interests of every unvaccinated community and individual in Kentucky."

The tobacco trust has come to the front with another advance in the price of its production, being the fourth advance made during last year. This last advance, it is said, will cause the small retail dealer to sell the goods without a profit if not at a loss. The trust is giving the dealers and the consumers the hot end of the poker.

Disquieting news has been received from Venezuela, and the Navy Department has ordered the crack gunboat Scorpion there to protect American interests. There are signs of a rebellious outbreak, and the controversy over the asphalt concessions is reaching an acute stage. The protest from Washington has been ignored.

Mr. Cleveland demands a chance for the rank and file. If the rank and file hasn't been managing the Democratic party for the past five years, we should like to know who has. And there were half a million more of them who voted for Bryan on both occasions than ever voted for Grover.

Pretty nearly all the foreign papers seem to have an idea that the canal treaty was amended for the express and sole purpose of spiting Great Britain. It never seems to occur to them that the United States amended the treaty because it didn't like it in its unamended form and that Great Britain cut mighty little ice in the matter.

The Carlisle Mercury says: "Some of our citizens are agitating the question of securing the re-union of the Seventh Kentucky Regiment (Federal) for Carlisle next year. The 18th Kentucky also holds its annual meeting at the same time and place and together they'd drawa large crowd. Major John W. Campbell is a member of the Committee of Location and if our people will give him to understand that his efforts will be seconded, he will undertake to get the re-union held here. The gathering holds two days, and is worth having. This re-union was held at Falmouth last year and drew one of the largest crowds ever assembled in the town. The occasion was a great one in all respects.

Fire and Fatal Accident.

[Williamstown Courier.]

Wednesday evening December 19, one of the oldest residences in the county was burned, and singularly enough this catastrophe came in the few day's interim between its occupancy by the heirs of the original holder, and its first proposed tenancy by an outsider.

The building was the old Ashcraft homestead, located near Grassy Creek, about two miles northeast of Williamstown, and on the ridge beyond the creek; and back of the Hume brothers' place. It was built before the war of 1812 for its then owner and occupant, James Ashcraft, was a soldier in that war, and returned to the old place when his enlistment expired, and it has been owned and occupied continuously since his death, by his children and grandchildren until a day or two before it burned.

The heirs of Richard Ashcraft had just sold the place to the widow Frakes, who lived in the toll gate house just north of town on the Covington & Lexington turnpike, and she was to move into it at once.

The fire occurred just after dark Wednesday, and among the neighbors who gathered at the fire was young Morgan Simpson, who, in running around the house during the excitement, in an effort to extinguish the flames, fell into an old cistern on the premises and broke his neck.

It is said the house was nearly 100 years old and that the above day was the first time it had been unoccupied. The origin of the fire is a mystery, and the fatal accident is greatly regretted.

Bowling Green, Ky., December 29.—A Christmas Day tragedy, with more than the usual sensational details, occurred at Sunny Lane, a remote section in Butler County. Thomas Chapman did the shooting and Charles Chyle was the victim. Both men were respectable and well-to-do farmers of Butler County and were near neighbors. Each was about 30 years old, and Chapman has a young wife and one child, while Chyle had a wife and three small children. Until quite recently the men had been good friends, in fact, especial friends, but not long ago an enmity sprang up between them and they had been at dagger's points. While in Bowling Green it so happened that the men ate dinner at the same table, but neither had anything to say to the other, and they went home. As ill luck would have it they met the next day in Ragland Bros. store at Sunny Lane. There were several men sitting around the stove in the store, among them Chyle and Chapman and a young brother of the latter. This brother pitched a poker at Chyle, whether maliciously or not does not appear, but the feeling between Chyle and the Chapmans was so intense that the least affront would provoke anger.

When the younger brother pitched the poker at Chyle, the latter made some bitter remark, and Thomas Chapman, who had theretofore been a silent spectator of it all, jumped up, and drawing his pistol, fired at close range over the head of a man who sat near him, at Chyle. The bullet struck Chyle in the arm, and ranged up toward the wrist. Instantly, when he found he was attacked he jumped up and made a rush for a rear room of the store in an effort to escape, but Chapman fired the second shot into his back, and he fell mortally wounded. He died in about 15 minutes. Chapman left the store after the shooting. The Butler County Sheriff and deputies went to his home to arrest him, but he came out with a gun and defied tham all, and refused to submit to arrest. Later he went into a cave near his home with one of his friends, where they remain, both heavily armed and defying the officers.

When Chyle was buried the funeral procession had to pass near the mouth of the cave in which Chapman is in hiding, and when it passed Chapman and his friend, with their Winchesters, stepped outside the cave and stood watching the procession until it passed and turned out of sight down the road.

When the cortege reached a point nearly opposite the cave, Chapman reverently bared his head and gazed fixedly at the hearse through eyes streaming with tears. No attempt was made to molest him by the mourners.

Raising Calves.

It is something of a task for even one who has had considerable experience to select a calf that will make a good dairy cow. We should be shy of one that was not from good milking stock on the part of its mother and both its grandmothers, but if its pedigree was as long as a page in the herd book, and it did not suit us in showing what we call the marks of a good dairy cow in well-formed udder and teats, and its general form, we should be quite as unwilling to raise it. But many a good calf is spoiled by the feeding and care afterward. These are the two extremes to be avoided, in feeding so as to favor the increase of fat, or so deficient a food in amount or duality as to check its growth. Good early cut hay and a little bran or oats every day during the winter is the best treatment, and a few roots or a little ensilage are the cheapest feeds because they produce the best results. Then a warm and comfortable stable, and no exposure to cold storms, or even to cold winds, and never allowing it to be tyrannized over by older animals, with a little petting every day, may make a good heifer if the calf is right in the fall.—Exchange.

Sunday afternoon, Dr. George F. Gaines was tantalizing James Harve Hoggins at the livery stable, when the old man suddenly whipped out a knife and stabbed Doctor Gaines in the left side, penetrating the lung, making an ugly wound. Dr. J. T. Robinson was called after the wounded man was taken home, and dressed his wound and he is now getting along very nicely. Dr. Gaines confesses that it was his own fault, and that he had no business plagueing the old man, who has been greatly annoyed by various persons who continually pester him.—Warsaw Independent.

The following is what the Warsaw Independent has to say of James W. Connley, who was honored by the Democrats of Gallatin County, at the primary election, Dec. 15th, with the nomination for Sheriff:

"Mr. Connley was born in Boone county, Ky., Oct. 5th, 1874, and is the son of John T. and Mary (Ryle) Connley, who moved to this county from Boone in 1879, where they have since made their home, Mr. Connley, sr., having been the magistrate of the Napoleon district for several years. The subject of this sketch is a handsome, manly fellow, and won his race for Sheriff on his merits. He is a genial, polite and companionable gentleman and in every way qualified for the office. When Gov. Bradley stated that no one from Gallatin County had taken service in the late Spanish-American war, young Connley unhitched his horses from the plow and at once responded, stating that Gallatin County could at least show that she had one patriotic son who was willing to serve his country. Mr. Connley became a member of Co. E 1st Ky. Regt. (Louisville Legion) May 29th, 1898, and served as a valiant soldier throughout. He is a member of Napoleon Lodge, F. & A. M., as is his father, and the Connley family are all Baptists. Our young friend is one of a family of nine children, all but one (Bernice) living, and he felt it his duty to help his father, and his success in his race for Sheriff will enable him to do it. His late opponents do him the credit to say that he made a fair, square race, and all have extended him their congratulations and promised him their support at the election in November 1901. No one could appreciate the honor more than Mr. Connley and the office could not be conferred on a more deserving young man.

The first show of hands in the Pennsylvania legislature indicates that ex-Senator Quay has control of that body and that Wannamaker is nowhere.

Baker, who was inside asleep, but in another part of the house, did not wake up, and when found was supposed to be under the influence of some drug. GOOD FOR COMBINES.

Republican Measures Which Favor the Rich at the Expense of the Poor.

A correspondent asks whether the Standard Oil company would be entitled to subsidies on account of the tank ships in which it transports petroleum to Europe if the shipping subsidy bill were to pass in its present shape.

The company has a number of such ships, which it runs under a foreign flag. If the bill were to pass the company could not get the benefit of the subsidy for any of the ships it has in commission now until it had built new American ships. Were it to do that it would get only 50 per cent. of the subsidy on the ships it is running now, and the full subsidy on the newly constructed vessels. As these tank ships have a cargo only one way and return in ballast, they would earn a subsidy on the outward trip only. Hence, if the bill were to pass and the Standard Oil company did not need in its business any more ships than it is using now, there would be little, if anything, to be gained by building new ships merely to earn the subsidy.

As fast as the ships which the Standard Oil company is now operating went out of commission it would have new ships built for it in this country, and these ships would be entitled to the full subsidy. Ships built during the next ten years are to be entitled to subsidies for 20 years thereafter. Should the bill pass the Standard Oil company would take advantage of the law to a considerable extent during that period. It would draw from the treasury for 20 years a large bounty which it does not need.

Other interests which stand in need of no government aid are also specially favored by the shipping subsidy measure. It would be profitable for the great meat packing concerns to run their own ships filled with their own products. As their ships would be heavily subsidized they would have a special advantage over the small exporters, who would have to pay higher freight rates. A coal combine owning its colliers would be beyond reach of the competition of smaller concerns which were unable to own vessels and draw subsidies on account of them.

Bitter and just complaint has been made of the favoritism shown by railroads to some large shippers, a favoritism which has often made it possible for them to crush out their competitors utterly. It is proposed now that the national government shall imitate in foreign commerce the policy of the railroads in domestic commerce and give to trusts and combines which are large exporters of their products a great advantage in foreign markets over their American rivals. Why should the powerful be aided at the expense of the weak?—Chicago Tribune (Rep.).

OPINIONS AND POINTERS.

—It seems that Mark Hanna did not receive the consent of the governed to tamper with the Monroe doctrine.—Chicago Record (Ind.).

—It is significant that the first formal speech made by Mark Hanna in the United States senate should be in defense of a syndicate subsidy grab.

—Democracy must be more than a mere opposition. It must have a positive faith and it must have organization on a basis that will bring into complete fellowship not only all Democrats, but all republicans who agree with democratic convictions on the vital questions of our bungling colonial policy and of the extortionate trust system that is to-day running riot in the robbery of consumers.—Philadelphia Times.

—Mark Hanna's old lake yacht, Comanche, that he sold to the government for $125,000 two years ago, has been fitted up as a gunboat under the name of Frolic, and is going to the Philippines as a member of the mosquito fleet. Mark got an elephantine price for that mosquito out of the United States treasury. He is not running the republican party, and incidentally the government, for his health.—Kansas City Times.

—Whatever the administration may think of the action of the senate with reference to the Hay-Pauncefote treaty, it is quite certain that its Americanism appeals to the citizens of the United States. The sentiment of the country as voiced by the independent press is absolutely against the new treaty. If the canal is built and paid for by the United States, the people naturally want its management to rest with us.—Denver Post.

—The subsidy bill is a great measure. It means the transference of $90,000,000 of government money into the worthy pockets of a dozen of our most honored and influential multimillionaires. In a large and splendid way they may be greedy and grasping, but they are generously aware that "you cannot make an omelet without breaking some eggs," and that ten per cent. of such a golden total is not too much to erect in the interests of success. — Washington Times.

—"No man can read that schedule of rights which the president gave to the Philippine commission, in an inverse order, without horror. Did you ever read one of the treaties made by the United States with an old world power? On one side they speak of the 'subjects of her majesty,' and on the other the citizens of the United States.' Now if these provisions guaranteed to citizens of the United States do not apply to citizens of the Philippine islands, it is time for us to amend these treaties by adding: 'and subjects' after the words 'citizens of the United States.'"—Benj. Harrison.

WHAT GEN. HARRISON SAYS.

Imperialism in a Republic as Viewed by a Former Republican President.

The address of ex-President Harrison at the University of Michigan is in some respects the ablest and most conclusive argument yet made against the paradox of imperialism in a republic. It will tend to convince even Mr. McKinley that this question was not settled by his election, and that, as the World said on the morning of November 7,

"The fight against imperialism will not stop. It will go on unconfused hereafter with the now dead and everlastingly buried free-silver fallacy. The Philippines must be as free as Cuba. The eternal vitality of the declaration of independence must be acknowledged. The supremacy of the constitution wherever the flag flies in sovereignty must be admitted."

Gen. Harrison bases his argument upon the rights of man, divinely ordained, and upon the nature and requirements of our constitution. He reminds us that:

"Our fathers worshiped very profoundly their beliefs as to the rights of man. It was their faith, based upon a liberty derived from God. It was a divine gift to be claimed for our people only upon the condition of allowing it to apply to all men."

And with his mind's eye on the president's policy of "benevolent assimilation" he declares that "the man whose protection from wrongs rests wholly upon the benevolence of another is a slave, a man without rights."

Attacking the assumption that Porto Rico and the Philippines can be governed outside the constitution, Gen. Harrison says: "If the act of annexation does not carry the constitution I can think of nothing that does." And he declares that "a government of unlimited executive powers is not an American government." Going directly to the root of the matter, Gen. Harrison affirms that the United States "cannot take over or continue to hold territory whose people are hostile to our own government."

It is not, however, he well says, merely a constitutional question; it is "a question of the moral law, of conscience; we have no right to judge the capacity for self-government of the people of another nation, or to take and annex their land." And the ex-president mentions the "graver peril hanging over us," to which the World called attention when this imperial policy was first disclosed—the danger to ourselves. "Are the rights of the people upon the mainland secure," he asks, "when we exercise arbitrary power over other people from whom we demand entire obedience?"

Touching inconclusion upon the commercial reason for military expansion, Gen. Harrison uttered this noble and truly American sentiment: "God forbid that the day should ever come when the thought of man as a consumer should absorb that grand old doctrine that man is a creation of God endowed with unalienable rights!"—N. Y. World (Dem.).

THE SHIP SUBSIDY SCHEME.

A Plan to Mulct the Producers to Benefit the Wealthy Ship Owners.

More light is thrown on the proposition to pay the ship owners $9,000,000 bounty out of the pockets of the tax payers every year for 20 years by the Portland Oregonian, which thus describes the situation at the Portland docks:

"There are 20 ships in this port today, all loading wheat and flour for Europe, Africa and the orient. These 20 ships are owned by 17 different individuals or firms. They will carry away about 2,500,000 bushels of wheat, grown by at least 1,500 farmers, who receive no subsidy for growing wheat in competition with the pauper labor of India, Russia and the Argentine. Having no protection whatever in their business, these 1,500 farmers should not be forced to pay a subsidy tax to increase the already large profits of the 17 ship owners, who are carrying their produce to market—not from any patriotic motive, but because there is money in the business. With the exception of a couple of French vessels none of the fleet now in the river draws a subsidy from any government. They sail the world over, taking cargo wherever it can be found, and successfully competing with other ships."

This is the whole case against the subsidy in a nutshell. It is proposed that 1,500 producers shall pay 17 shipowners for transporting the product to market a price sufficient to yield a reasonable profit; and that, in addition, the producers shall join with the rest of us in paying a bounty to the shipowners, in recognition of their kindness, we presume, in consenting to make a living instead of running for office.

The thing is so preposterous it is incredible that any political leader with the slightest regard for his reputation should be willing to appear as its apologist and advocate.

If it goes through congress and becomes a law, the ship-subsidy bill will prove to be the deadliest blight to public men's careers the country has known since the infamous "salary grab." Senators and representatives who have any ambition to continue in the services of the nation, to say nothing of rising in it, should take warning in time.—Chicago Journal (Rep.).

—A little of the recklessness of Mark Hanna in pushing the ship-subsidy bill may be attributed to the fact that he well understands that he has made his last political fight. When McKinley retires from office the power of Hanna will go with him, and nobody understands that better than Hanna himself.—Indianapolis Press.

—President McKinley's sermon on economy has made a deep impression on the republican majority in congress. Already there is a disposition to economize in the use of economy.—Albany Argus.

LIFE OF USEFULNESS.

Dr. Talmage Points the Way to It in a Sermon.

The Power of One Word—Destiny May Be Changed by a Fitly Spoken Sentence — Sympathy for the Troubled.

[Copyright, 1900, by Louis Klopsch, N. Y.]

In this discourse Dr. Talmage shows an open door for anyone who desires to be useful, and illustrates how a little thing may decide one's destiny. The text is Proverbs 25:11 (revised version): "A word fitly spoken is like apples of gold in baskets of silver."

A filigree basket loaded with fruit is put before us in the text. What is ordinarily translated "pictures" ought to be "baskets." Here is a silver network basket containing ripe and golden apples, pippins or rennets. You know how such apples glow through the openings of a basket of silver network. You have seen such a basket of fruit on many a table. It whets the appetite as well as regales the vision. Solomon was evidently fond of apples, because he so often speaks of them. While he writes in glowing terms of pomgranates and figs and grapes and mandrakes, he seems to find solace as well as lusciousness in apples, calling out for a supply of them when he says in another place: "Comfort me with apples." Now you see the meaning of my text, "A word fitly spoken is like apples of gold in baskets of silver."

You see the wise man eulogizes just one word. Plenty of recognition has there been for great orations. Cicero's arraignment of Cataline, the philippics of Demosthenes, the five days' argument of Edmund Burke against Warren Hastings, Edward Irving's discourses on the Bible, and libraries full of prolonged utterance, but my text controls the power of one word when it refers to "a word fitly spoken."

This may mean a single word or a small collection of words—something you can utter in one breath, something that you can compact into one sentence. "A word fitly spoken"—an encouraging word, a kind word, a timely word, a sympathetic word, an appropriate word. I can pass right down the aisle of any church and find between pulpit and front door men whose temporal and eternal destinies have been decided by a word.

I tell you what is a great crisis in every man's history. It is the time when he is entering an occupation or profession. He is opposed by men in middle life, because they do not want any more rivals, and by some of the aged, because they fear being crowded off and their places being taken by younger men. Hear the often severe and unfair examinations of young lawyers by old lawyers, of young doctors by old doctors, of young ministers by old ministers. Hear some of the old merchants talk about the young merchants. Trowels and hammers and scales often are jealous of new trowels and new hammers and new scales. Then it is so difficult to get introduced. How long a time has many a physician had his sign out before he had got a call for his services, and the nttorney before he got a case? Who wants to risk the life of his family to a young physician, who got his diploma only last spring, and who may not know measles from scarletina, or to risk the obtaining of a verdict for $20,000 to an attorney who only three years ago read the first page of Blackstone?

How is the young merchant to compete with his next door bargain maker, who can afford to undersell some things because he can more than make it up by the profit on other things, or has failed three times and had more money after each failure? How is that mechanic to make a livelihood when there are twice as many men in that trade as can in hard times find occupation? There are this very moment thousands of men who are just starting life for themselves, and they need encouragement. Not long harangue, not quotation from profound book, not a page, not a paragraph, but a word, one word fitly spoken.

Why does not that old merchant, who has been 40 years in business, go into that young merchant's store and say: "Courage!" He needs only that one word, although, of course, you will illustrate it by telling your own experience, and how long you waited for customers, and how the first two years you lost money, and how the next year, though you did better, illness in your household swamped the surplus with doctor's bills. Why does not that old lawyer go into that young lawyer's office just after he has broken down in making his first plea before a jury and say that word with only two syllables: "Courage!" He needs only that one word, although, of course, you will illustrate it by telling him how you broke down in one of your first cases and got laughed at by court and bar and jury, and how Disraeli broke down at the start, and how hundreds of the most successful lawyers at the start broke down. Why do not the successful men go right away and tell those who are starting what they went through and how their notes got protested, and what unfortunate purchases they made, and how they were swindled, but kept right on until they reached the golden milestone? Even some who pretend to favor the new beginner and say they wish him well put obstacles in his way.

There are so many men who have all the elements of usefulness and power except one—courage. If you can only under God give them that you give them everything. In illustrating that one word show them that every man that ever amounted to anything had terrific struggle. Show him what ships Decatur had to fight, and what a mountain Hannibal had to climb, and what a lame foot Walter Scott had to walk on, and that the greatest poet who ever lived—Milton—was blind, that one of the grandest musicians of all the ages—Beethoven—was deaf, and that Stewart, in some respects the greatest merchant that America ever saw, began in his small store, dining on bread and cheese behind the counter in a snatched interregnum between customers, he opening the store and closing it, sweeping it out with his own broom and being his own errand boy. Show them that within ten minutes' walk there are stores, shops, and factories, and homes where as brave deeds have been done as those of Leonidas at Thermopylae, as that of Horatius at the bridge, as that of Colin Campbell at Balaklava. Tell them what Napoleon said to his staff officer when that officer declared a certain military attempt to be impossible. "Impossible!" said the great commander. "Impossible is the adjective of fools."

Show them also that what is true in worldly directions is more true in spiritual directions. Call the roll of prophets, apostles and martyrs and private Christians from the time the world began and ask them to mention one man or woman greatly good or useful who was not depreciated and flalled and made a laughing stock. Racks and prisons and whips and shipwrecks and axes of beheadment did their worst, yet the heroes were more than conquerors. With such things you will illustrate that word "courage," and they will go out from your presence to start anew and right, challenging all earth and hell to the combat.

There are four or five words which fitly spoken, might soothe and emancipate and rescue. Go to those from whose homes Christ has taken to Himself a loved one, and try the word "reunion"—not under wintry sky, but in everlasting springtide; not a land where they can be struck with disease, but where the inhabitant never says: "I am sick;" not a reunion that can be followed by separation, but in a place "from which they shall go no more out forever." For emaciation and sighing, immortal health. Reunion, or, if you like the word better, anticipation. There is nothing left for them in this world. Try them with Heaven. With a chapter from the great book open one of the 12 gates. Give them one note of seraphic harp, one flash from the sea of glass, one clatter of the hoofs of the horses on which victors ride. That word reunion, or anticipation, fitly spoken—well, no fruit heaped up in silver baskets could equal it. Of the 2,000 kinds of apples that have blessed the world, not one is so mellow or so rich or so aromatic, but we take the suggestion of the text, and compare that word of comfort, fitly spoken, to apples of gold in baskets of silver.

There must be no impatience in the warning we give others. We must realize that but for the kindness of God to us we would have been in the same rapids. That man going wrong may be struggling with a tide of evil inherited from father and grandfather and great-grandfather. The present temptation may be the accumulated force of generations and centuries. "No," you say, "his father was a good man. I knew him." But did you know his grandfather? Evil habit is apt to skip one generation, a fact recognized in the Ten Commandments, which speak of the third and fourth generations, but say nothing of the second generation.

Or the man astray may have an unhappy home, and that is enough to wreck anyone. We often speak of men who destroy their homes, but do not say anything about the fact that there are thousands of wives in America who by petulance and fretting and inconaidernlion and lack of economy and all manner of disagreenbieness drive their husbands into dissipation. The reason that thousands of men spend their evenings in clubhouses and taverns is because they cannot stand it at home. I know men who for 30-year martyrs in the fact that they are awfully married. That marriage was not made in Heaven. Without asking Divine guidance they entered into an alliance which ought never to have been made. That is what is the matter with many men you and I know. They may be very brave and heroic and say nothing about it but all the neighbors know. Now, if the man going wrong has such domestic misfortune, be very lenient and excusatory in your word of warning. The difference between you and him may be that you would have gone down faster than he is going down if you had the same kind of conjugal wretchedness.

In mentioning fine arts people are apt to speak of music and painting and sculpture and architecture, but they forget to mention the finest of all the fine arts the art of doing good, the art of helping others, the art of saving men. An art to be studied as you study music, for it is music in the fact that it drives out moral discord and substitutes eternal harmony; an art to be studied like sculpture, for it is sculpture in the fact that it builds a man, not in the cold statue, but in immortal shape, that will last long after pentelican marble has crumbled; an art to be studied as you study architecture, for it is architecture in the fact that it builds for him a house of God, eternal in the heavens, but an art that we cannot fully learn unless God helps us. Ourselves saved by grace Divine, we can go forth to save others, and with a tenderness and compassion and a pity that we could not otherwise exercise we can pronounce the warning word with magnificent result. The Lord said to the prophet Amos: "Amos, what seest thou?" And he answered: "A basket of summer fruit." But I do not think Amos saw in that basket of summer fruit anything more inviting and luscious than many a saved man has seen in the warning word of some nearly, common sense Christian adviser, for a word fitly spoken is like apples of gold in baskets of silver."

So also is a word of invitation potent and beautiful. Who can describe the drawing power of that word, so small and yet so tremendous, "Come!" It is a short word, but its influence is as long as eternity. Not a sesquipedalian word, spreading its energy over many syllables, but monosyllabic. Whether calling in wrong direction or right direction, many have found it irresistible. That one word has filled all the places of dissipation and dissoluteness. It is responsible for the abominations that curse the earth. Inquire at the door of prisons what brought the offender there, and at the door of almshouses what brought the pauper there, and at the door of the lost world what was the cause of the incarceration, and if the inmates speak the truth they will say: "The word 'Come!' brought us here." Come and drink. Come and gamble. Come and sin. Come and die. Pronounce that word with one kind of inflection and you can hear in it the tolling of all the bells of conflagration and woe.

The chief baker in prison in Pharaoh's time saw in dream something quite different from apples of gold in baskets of silver, for he said to Joseph: "I also was in a dream, and, behold, I had three white baskets on my head, and in the uppermost basket there was all manner of baked meats for Phnraoh, and the birds did eat them out of the baskets upon my head." Joseph interpreted the dream and said it meant that the chief baker should be beheaded and the birds would eat his flesh.

But, oh, the power of that word "Come" when aright utteredi We do well when we send young men into schools and colleges and theological seminaries and by nine years of instruction and drill hope to prepare them to sound aright thnt sweet and enrapturing and Heaven descended word "Come. The Gospel we believe in is a Gospel of "Come." That word speak all the churches. That word is now building thrones for conquerors and burnished coronets for kings and queens. That word is to sound so clearly and impressively and divinely that the day is advancing when all nations shall respond: "We come!" "We come!"

And while the upper steeps toward God and Heaven will be thronged with redeemed souls ascending there will not be one solitary traveler on the road of sin and death.

In the Kremlin at Moscow, Russia, is what is called the "king of bells," but it is a ruined bell, and it has rung no sound for near 200 years. It is 67 feet in circumference, and in height it is more than ten times the height of the average man, and it took a score of men to swing its brazen tongue. It weighs 200 tons. On the 19th of June, 1706, in a great fire it fell and broke. It broke at the part which was weakened by the jewels which the ladies of Moscow threw into the liquid metal at the casting. The voices of that bell are forever hushed. It will never ring again, either at wedding or obsequy or coronation. What majestic and overpowering silence! Enthroned and everlasting quietude! One walks around it full of wonder and historical reminiscence and solemnity. On it are figures in relief representing czar and empress and Christ and Mary and the evangelists. But as I stood before it last summer I bethought myself of a greater bell and one still ringing. It is the Gospel bell, ages ago hung on the beam of the cross. It has vnster circumference and with mightier tongue sounds across seas and continents and awakens echoes amid Alpine and Himalayan and Sierra Nevadan ranges. The jewels of affection thrown into it at its casting by ransomed souls of earth and Heaven have not weakened it, but made it stronger and more glorious. Evangelists and apostles ring it, and martyrs lifted their hands through the flames to give it another sounding. It will ring on until all nations hear it and accept its invitation: "Come! Come!" It will not fail, as did that of Moscow. No storm can stop it. No earthquake can rock it down. When the fires of the last day blaze into the heavens, amid the crash of mountains and the groan of dying seas, its clear, resounding voice will be heard calling to the last inhabitant of the burning planet: "Come! Come!"

But it requires now no great strength to ring the bell. With this weak hnnd, yesterday formed and tomorrow turned to dust, I lay hold that Gospel bell in invitation to all to whom these words shall come, on whatever land or whatever sea, in high places or low. I ring out the word: "Come, come!" Come and have your sorrows solaced. Come and have your wounds healed. Come and have your blindness illumined. Come and have your fatigues rested. Come and have your soul saved. Do you not hear the very last proclamation from the heavens which the seer of Patmos was commissioned to make: "The Spirit and the bride say come, and let him that heareth say come, and let him that is athirst come. And whosoever will, let him take the water of life freely?" Aye, hear you not the chime of many Gospel bells in the invitation this moment sounding from the heavens: "Come out from among them and be ye separate," saith the Lord. "And touch not the unclean thing, and I will receive you and will be a Father unto you, and ye shall be my sons and daughters," saith the Lord Almighty. Come and sit down at the King's banquet. Was there ever such a brilliant feast or so many royal guests? Here are the chalices filled not from the breweries of earth, but with the "new wine of the kingdom." And here are the ripe, purple clusters of Eschol, and pass them around to all the banqueters—"apples of gold in baskets of silver."

The Oracular Passenger Gives the Conductor a Tip and Gets Left Himself.

"The man who gave me that," said the conductor to the only passenger in the car, "must have thought I was a chump."

The passenger examined the lead five-cent piece with a smile, says Puck.

"You're stuck," he said, oracularly. "Unless," he added, unscrupulously, "you can pass it off."

"I wouldn't do that," returned the conductor, polishing the bogus coin on his coat sleeve. "Besides, no one would take it."

"Not alone, but you might slip it in among two or three good ones," suggested the passenger.

The conductor shook his head virtuously, as the car began to fill up.

An hour later the ex-passenger fished up some small change to buy a cigar, and the first thing he saw was a lead five-cent piece.

"I gave him a quarter," he mused, "and he gave me four nickels in change. The man," he added, still musing, "who gave me that, must have thought I was a chump."

The Twentieth Century.

We now stand at the threshold of the twentieth century, and the nineteenth is a thing of the past. It will, however, be known as a century of invention and discovery, and among some of the greatest of these, we can truthfully mention Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the celebrated remedy for all ailments arising from a weak or disordered stomach, such as dyspepsia, indigestion, flatulency, constipation and biliousness.

Perils of Civilization.

If we are driven to the hard labor of opening oysters for the sake of avoiding preservaline and to milking cows to keep clear of formaldehyde it is evident that the highest civilization has not lightened our burdens, but rather added to them. THE ROBT. W. JONES GROCERY,

WALTON, KY.

A FARMER'S EXPERIENCE.

A man, thinking "Best Flour" meant the same,
Wherever he would find it,
Bought one barrel here; another there;

Although the price was lower,
The bread was then so light, and white,
That he buys elsewhere; no more.

Charles Portwood, of Locust Grove neighborhood, was in town Saturday, exhibiting a lot of relics taken from Indian graves he has opened in the last few months. Among the relics exhibited here, Saturday, were four large, copper ear-rings, each of which was about the size of a silver dollar, rather thin, and had a hole in the center; a piece of copper several inches long, not very large, square and sharp pointed; a lot of teeth and fragments of bones. He had some other relicks which he would not exhibit.

At the last term of the circuit court the attorneys joined in a requst of the fiscal court to have the bar in the circuit court room enlarged—made three or for feet wider, and extended across the room east and west. It has long since been apparent that the bar is entirely too small to accommodate attorneys, litigants and jurors, and the change suggested is proper. At the time the court house was being completed, Judge Montfort then on the bench, used his best endeavors to have the bar made the size it will be if the desired change is made.

Mr. Abraham Clore, aged 70, died at his home, near Hebron, at 9 o'clock, last Friday night, after about two weeks illness of paralysis. Death of Col. W. H. Nelson.

The following obituary notice of W. H. Nelson, for many years a citizen of this county, is copied from the Lawrenceburg, Ind., Register:

"William Henry Nelson died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. S. S. McWethy, on West Center street in this city, Saturday last at 3:30 a. m. Mr. Nelson had been in failing health for two or three years, and for several months previous to his death his mind gradually weakened.

"Mr. Nelson was born in Orange county, Virginia, April 28, 1823; moved to Kentucky when 16 years of age; was married to Susan Terrill, Dec. 25, 1849. To this union six children were born, three of whom are living—Miss Ella Nelson, of Petersburg, and Mrs. S. S. McWethy and Mr. R. P. Nelson, of Lawrenceburg. His wife died Jan. 14, 1865. Mr. Nelson married again in 18— to Frances Carlton, and to them were born five children, four of whom are living—Prof. J. C. Nelson and B. W. Nelson, of Rabbit Hash, Ky., and Mrs. John W. Palmer and Mrs. Will Ryle, of Hamilton, O. His second wife died Nov. 26, 1893.

"Mr. Nelson was very intelligent, his life an exceedingly active one for many years, and he was possessed of many and varied accomplishments.—He served in the Union army during the war, was clerk of Boone county, Ky., one term, taught school, edited at different times newspapers at Burlington, Ky., and Aurora, Ind., was on the Cincinnati Enquirer staff for several years, and was also local editor of a little daily paper published by J. E. Larimer during its brief existence; was engaged for quite a while in mercantile business in Missouri; served two terms as a member of the Legislature from Grundy county, Mo

"Mr. Nelson was finely educated, a vigorous and interesting writer, and a gentleman with whom it was a pleasure to be acquainted. On account of failing health, and until recently, he passed his declining years at Rabbit Hash, Ky., engaged occasionally in writing for the papers, and some of his valuable contributions were published in the Register.

"The following lines were written by him in his daughter's album in 1881:

"What e're your future lot may be,
Revere your mother's memory;
Like her, be always good and pure,
Like her, be patient to endure;
Like her, be kind in word and deed,
Like her, from envious thoughts be freed;
And being thus, may no dark cloud
Enfold upon its gloomy shroud,
But may your future, calm and bright,
Serenely glow with roseal light.

"The funeral of Mr. Nelson occurred Sunday at 1 p. m. at the residence of his daughter on Center street, services being conducted by Rev. W. G. Loucks, after which the remains were taken to the Terrill cemetery in Kentucky, just below Aurora, for burial."

The writer of the above obituary is evidently mistaken about Mr. Nelson serving in the union army, as he was a soldier in the confederate army, neither was he ever the clerk of the county.

A Serious Accident.

Last Thursday, while —— Mahoney, aged about 20, and who lives near Geo. Youell and W. S. Walton, in the Constance neighborhood, was out hunting with a colored man he met with an accident that will make a cripple of the young man for life. Mahoney and the negro came upon a wire fence, in their travel, through which Mahoney passed, but in his efforts to get through the fence, the negro got tangled in the wire, accidentally discharging one barrel of his shot gun, the entire contents of which lodged in Mahoney's right knee, he being not more than eight feet from the muzzle of the fire-arm. The accident happened back of W. T. Aylor's, and the unfortunate young man was taken by Keene Souther, in a buggy to Hebron, and placed in charge of Dr. Sayer, who at once saw that amputation of the wounded and shattered limb was absolutely necessary. Dr. Sayre summoned Drs. Hays and Clore, of Bullittsville, and, upon their arrival the operation, which required about an hour, was begun. Two amputations were made, the first disclosing the fact that the bone was shattered above the knee further than the surgeons had anticipated, and rendered a second amputation necessary, in order to get beyond the injury. The entire load of shot entered the leg below the knee, ranging upward, carrying with it a portion of the clothing. The young man stood the operation well, and after its conclusion he was sent to the hospital in Covington, and at last accounts he was doing well.

A Prominent Chicago Woman Speaks

Prof. Roxa Tyler, of Chicago, Vice-President Illinois Woman's Alliance, in speaking of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, says: "I suffered with a severe cold this winter which threatened to run into pneumonia. I tried different remedies but I seemed to grow worse and the medicine upset my stomach. A friend advised me to try Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and I found it was pleasant to take and it relieved me at once. I am now entirely recovered, saved a doctor's bill, time and suffering, and I will never be without this splendid medicine again." For sale by McKim, Burlington; Berkshire & McWethy, Petersburg; O. Mrs. Lysira Aylor, of Hebron, died Sunday night about 8 o'clock, in her 67th year. She was in her usual health and had attended the funeral of her neighbor, Abraham Clore, that after noon at 2 o'clock. She ate her supper as usual, some time after which she was stricken and died in less than two hours, and in a few minutes after the doctor arrived. The funeral took place yesterday at 2 p. m.

The town was pretty throughly shaken up by the advent of the new century, Monday night, and about every thing that was not nailed down was displaced. In their enthusiasm the boys went entirely too far at the public school house. The destruction of public or private property is a serious matter in the eyes of the law.

Mrs. Elizabeth Hogan, an aged lady, wife of the late David Hogan, died at her home here in Burlington, Thursday morning, Dec. 27th at 10:30 o'clock, of paralysis. The remains were placed in the vault at 2 p. m. Friday. Mrs. Hogan leaves three daughters to mourn her death—Miss Annie Hogan, Mrs. Ann Cason and Mrs. John J. Rice, the latter of Kansas.

Beat Out of An Increase of his Pension.

A Mexican war veteran and prominent editor writes: "Seeing the advertisement of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, I am reminded that as a soldier in Mexico in '47 and '48, I contracted Mexican diarrhoea and this remedy has kept me from getting an increase in my pension for on every renewal a dose of it restores me." Two tramps, one a white man, the other a negro boy, stole a lap robe that was in a buggy in Florence, last Saturday, and brought it with them to Burlington, where the white man offered to sell it for $1 50. Failing to find a purchaser on the street the fellow asked if there was a livery stable in town, when he was directed to W. C. Brown's. At the livery stable he proposed selling the robe to Mr. Brown, who thought he identified it as the property of Arthur Rouse, whose horse and buggy he keeps at his stable, and which were that morning driven by J. M. Lassing to Florence. Mr. Brown said to the tramphe did not wish to buy, but he would take the robe across the street, where he thought he could sell it for him. To this the stranger agreed, and the lap-robe was taken to Mr. Rouse's store, where the identification of the property was complete. In the mean time a telephone message was received from Florence, announcing the theft and saying the two thieves were coming this way. Deputy Seriff Eddins was called, and he took the two strangers into custody and lodged them in hotel Adams to await the return of County Judge Roberts to try them. They were taken before County Roberts, Monday, and he gave them 30 days in jail.

A committee has been appointed to revise the French signal book, as well as the system of tactics for light squadrons. A similar revision was made in 1891 by a committee under the presidency of Adm. Duperre. The present revision is due to the fact that when the squadrons met for maneuvers in the summer some discrepancies were found in their practice.

The city of Birmingham, Ala., has already begun to make preparations for a "metallic exposition," to be opened there November 15, 1904, and continue until May 15, 1905. Its charter name is to be the International Metallic and Industrial exposition. The state is expected to contribute $100,000 toward the expense and congress is to be asked to give $500,000.

Divers who have been at work in the sea between Cape Matapan and the island of Corgo, the ancient Kythera, report that they have seen statues and other archaeological objects. They have brought to the surface a hand which must have belonged to a great bronze statue. The Grecian government has undertaken the supervision of the further researches which will be made.

The Danish ship yards which turned out the yacht Standard for the czar are now engaged in the construction of another yacht for the Muscovite emperor, which, while smaller, is to far surpass everything as yet known in comfort and luxury. It is to be used in the semi-inland waters of the Russian gulf and especially on the great rivers which traverse the empire in every direction.

Thomas Gaither, of Hancock Station, Md., killed four big porkers that had been fed on the refuse from a dining car. While making the sausage a hard substance stopped the grinder. When removed it proved to be a beautiful solitaire diamond ring. It was sent to Baltimore for inspection, and came back with the information that the diamond alone was worth $600. The ring was mutilated, but the stone was unharmed.

There is one man in the world who is learning Dutch just now with all his might, for he has wooed and won a queen whose native tongue it is. Nobody would learn Dutch for the mere sake of learning it, and it is not surprising that Duke Henry does not know it; but, says the "king," anybody would learn it to sit beside a queen on her throne, and it is not surprising that Duke Henry is learning it as fast as he can.

The adjutant general's department has on file many applications for retirement of officers who have served thirty years. Under existing law the president can, at his discretion, retire such officers, but unless there is a most excellent reason why an officer should not be required to remain in active service all such applications are being refused. It is said to be surprising how many officers of thirty years' service are anxious to leave the active list.

Apropos of the late death of Thomas Arnold, the father of Mrs. Humphry Ward, it may be of interest to know, what does not seem to be generally known, that the Arnold family was of Hebraic extraction, and that its name in Germany, whence it came to this country, was Aaron. Aaron in English is generally transformed into Arnold just as Solomon finds easy and natural transition into Sullivan and Hirsch into Harris, etc.

The annual report of the board of ordnance and fortification, which has just been received by the senate, contains a list of curious offers made by inventors during the year. These are classified under the head of "subjects considered," and the ingenuity of the American is strangely displayed. Not less than nine airships were offered to the board during the year. All of these were rejected. Among those with aerial machines are Carl Browne, Philo T. Rood, Cercrac Paul, John H. Crozier and others of less fame.

It is the habit of those who are addicted to any form of abstinence or intemperance to quote instances of extreme longevity, as they arise, in support of their practice. Henry Richter, of Worthenbury, who attained recently his 102d birthday, will be quoted by smokers as a remarkable example of the healthful effects of tobacco. Mr Richards smokes regularly four ounces of tobacco a week, takes no other liquor, and yet he was a strong anti-corn law reform bill and actually fought the battle of Waterloo.

SAYS WOMAN SHOT HIM

Indiana Masonic Grand Lodge Secretary Badly Wounded.

No Trace of the Shootist Can Be Found, and the Theory Is Advanced That Smythe Attempted Suicide.

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 28.—William H. Smythe, secretary of the grand Masonic lodge of the state, was shot in the head in his office in the Masonic building shortly after noon Thursday. Mr. Smythe claims that a woman did the shooting, but the police have so far been unable to locate her.

Lewis A. Coleman, an attorney, found Mr. Smythe shortly after he was shot. He went to Mr. Smythe's office in the Masonic building shortly after noon for the purpose of transacting business, and found Mr. Smythe lying in a pool of blood on the floor. Immediately after finding Mr. Smythe Mr. Coleman ran from the building and telephoned the police department.

The wounded man was in a semi-conscious condition, but was able at intervals to utter a few coherent words. The police asked Mr. Smythe to tell who did the shooting, and he told them his son would give them the information. He was able to say, however, that he was seated at his desk when a blonde woman entered his office and asked to use the telephone. He said she had been in several times before and that the last call irritated him and he refused her request. He claimed that after he refused her the use of the telephone she drew a revolver from the bosom of her dress and fired.

Shortly after the tragedy Dr. Elmer Smythe, the son referred to, came in. When he was told that his father had said that he would give information as to the woman who did the shooting, he replied that he did not know her. He was pressed to give her name by the police, but he insisted that he knew nothing of her. Dr. Hodges was called immediately after the shooting, and when he arrived he at once began probing for the bullet. The wound was directly behind the right ear, and in a short time a piece of the bullet was found and extracted. Another piece, found in the same place, was taken out, and soon afterward a third piece was found.

When search for the woman who is said to have done the shooting failed to reveal any trace of her the theory is advanced that Mr. Smythe had attempted to take his own life. The persons who advanced the theory said it is strengthened by the fact that within the last year Mr. Smythe had threatened to take his life. His son said that while his father had been very despondent at times during the past year, he was unwilling to believe that he had attempted his own life.

Early in the summer Mr. Smythe received a sunstroke, which incapacitated him for work for several months. In fact, he has never recovered from it.

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 29.—The condition of Wm. H. Smythe, grand secretary of the F. and A. Masons of Indiana, who was mysteriously shot Thursday noon, is improved, and the man will live.

The police are still unable to find a single trace of the mysterious blonde woman, who he claims shot him, and have practically abandoned work on the case. The theory of attempted suicide is gaining ground.

The mystery surrounding the shooting seemed as impenetrable as ever.

Negro Lynched.

Montgomery, Ala., Dec. 29.—George Fuller, a negro, was lynched near Marion, Perry county. He was charged with burning the barn of Dennis Cummings, of whom he had been a tenant. While Fuller was being taken to Marion a body of masked men took him from the officers and hanged him to a tree. Fuller had a bad reputation, and was more than once a convict.

The War Revenue Law.

Washington, Dec. 28.—Senator Allison, who is the second member on the senate committee on finance in point of seniority, said Thursday that the house bill amending the war revenue law would be taken up by that committee immediately after the reconvening of congress. Fruithurst, Ala., Dec. 28.—O. L. Olson is preparing to sink a gold mine right in the city, with what he considers the finest prospect in the state for gold, and also an excellent prospect for silver and copper.

MAIL POUCH STOLEN.

It Contained $100,000 in Negotiable Paper and an Unknown Amount of Money.

Detroit, Dec. 29.—A mail pouch, containing $100,000 in negotiable papers and an unknown amount of money was stolen from the Wyandotte, Mich., Michigan Central Railroad passenger station some time Thursday night. The last mail for Wyandotte arrives at 10:28 on the Michigan Central, and, owing to the lateness of the hour, it is left in the station until morning. When the two mail sacks were thrown from the train Night Operator Richart threw the pouches under a seat in the corner of the waiting room. He then went to his home in Detroit. Friday, when Mailcarrier McCleary came to the station for the mail sacks he missed one.

About the same time George Bessy, a driver of an oil wagon, reported at the station that a pouch, ripped open and empty, was behind an oil tank a short distance from the station. The trail of the thief was marked along the railroad track by strewn letters, checks and drafts. Most of the mail was intended for the J. B. Ford Alkali Co., of Wyandotte, and clerks were sent out to collect the letters. J. B. Ford, jr., expected a draft from New York for $10,000. The draft did not come, and it is believed that the robbers took it, with other valuable papers, from the pouch.

RESTORED TO LIFE.

A Cat Apparently Shocked to Death Resuscitated By a Reversed Current of Electricity.

St. Joseph, Mo., Dec. 29.—N. Schellinger, an electrician of Chicago, in the presence of a number of persons interested in the progress of science, shocked a cat apparently to death, and when the heart of the animal had long ceased to beat Mr. Schellinger reversed the current of electricity and the shock restored the heart beats, although they were very feeble at first. Within two hours after the cat had been pronounced dead, it had been restored to the fullness of life and vigor and was as playful as ever.

The current was kept turned on until there was no possibility of doubt of the fatality. Several physicians examined the cat and all agreed in pronouncing it dead.

In five minutes more an alternating current of low power was started and in the course of a few seconds the heart action commenced.

Electrician Schellinger says there is no doubt in his mind that any person who has seemingly been killed by an electric shock can be restored if intelligent action is followed on the lines adopted by him Friday and if the victim can receive such attention within a few minutes after the accident has occurred.

TRAINING SHIP LOST.

The Tsukishima Maru Sinks During a Typhoon—One Hundred and Twenty-one Lives Lost.

Victoria, B. C., Dec. 29.—The steamer Rio Jun Maru brings news that the Japanese training ship Tsukishima Maru has been lost with all hands, numbering 121, near Mamadzu, Japan. She was long missing, and the war ship Midsasha was sent to search for her, without avail. It was not until wreckage from her, together with the body of Capt. Matsumoto, her commander, was washed ashore, that the mystery of her disappearance was cleared up.

She foundered during a terrible storm at the end of November in Sunuaz bay, sinking after striking Sumniwa rocks. Not one of her company escaped.

The steamer Lushima Maru was lost on December 8 by striking a rock in Alaska bay. A man was saved by a passing steamer, but the others were lost.

From Osaka comes news that the bark Katokugawa Maru was lost off Tosa province with all on board on December 9.

The bark Kamija Maru was lost on December 4. The crew of 16 were picked up after being in the boats several days without food.

Charged With Murder.

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 29.—A young man named Maphin is under arrest at Pittsfield, suspected of killing Michael Corcoran, a wealthy farmer of Griggsville, who was found dead in a field near Griggsville several days ago with two bullet holes through the head and one through the body. Maphin denies his guilt.

Military Reservation at Nome.

Washington, Dec. 28.—The president has ordered that the military reservation at Nome, Alaska, be made a public reservation under the control of the war department, and that the military reservation previously set aside near the east side of the mouth of the Nome river be known as the Ft. Davis military reservation.

Children Burned to Death.

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 29.—The Missouri circuit judges will recommend to the legislature at the coming session that guilty parties in divorce suits be barred from remarrying for three years.

THE PROPOSED PEACE

The Emperor Kwang Su Objects to Some of the Terms.

At a Conference It Was Decided to Hold Further Communication With the Court Before Seeing the Ministers.

Peking, Dec. 28.—Li Hung Chang and Prince Ching, the Chinese peace commissioners, have heard from the emperor, Kwang Su. Prince Ching called on the former for consultation, remaining over an hour. The court objects strenuously to reducing the forts and also to allowing permanent legation guards, which, it seems to think, could be made sufficiently large at any time it was desired to menace the court itself. After the conference it was decided to hold further communication with the court before seeing the ministers.

Shanghai, Dec. 28.—The Chinese newspapers here object to the proposed peace terms. The Universal Gazette considers that the princes and officials who are to be punished should be named. It is questionable whether Gen. Tung Fu Hsiang is included among those punishable, and so far as Prince Tuan is concerned, it is well known that the Chinese peace commissioners have been instructed not to consent to any punishment of any person of royal blood exceeding imprisonment.

Some of the native journals hold that the presence of permanent legation guards will render the emperor's return impossible, because these would be a menace to the court. "China," says one of them, "would be powerless to suppress risings because prohibited from increasing her military strength, and the powers, therefore, would renew hostilities again and the people would be mowed down like hemp."

London, Dec. 29.—"Private advices from the province of Shan Si say," wires the Shanghai correspondent of the Standard, "that, while the court was sojourning at Tai Yuen Fu, the empress dowager secretly appointed a new emperor with the title Tung Hsu. He is a 15-year-old boy who was taken to Sian Fu in the imperial yellow chair. This explains the permission given to Emperor Kwang Su to return to Peking.

"Emperor Kwang Su has notified the reform party that he is returning to the capital and will need their assistance."

THE DYNAMITE EXPLODED.

As a Result Six Men Are Dead and Several Others Are Not Expected to Live.

Keyser, W. Va., Dec. 29.—One of the most disastrous accidents in the history of railroad building in this section happened at Baker camp, near Durbin, Pocahontas county, on the line of the Coal & Iron railroad now building out from Elkins. As the result of a dynamite explosion six men are dead and several others are not expected to live. The accident happened while the men were at dinner. Some dynamite had been placed about the stove to thaw out, and shortly after a terrific explosion wrecked the camp, killed three men outright and injured eight others, three of whom have since died. The dead men were blown into atoms. Physicians hurried from Green Bank and worked all night with the wounded, some of whom begged the doctors to shoot them instead of helping them to live to be blinded or maimed for life. On account of indirect connections with the camp it is impossible to secure the complete details.

DISORDERLY PLACES.

Keepers of Fourteen "Dives" and Gambling Houses Indicted by Chicago Grand Jury.

Chicago, Dec. 29.—Keepers of 14 "dives" and gambling houses were indicted by the grand jury as the result of the inquiry into crime and vice in Chicago. The work will be continued. Of the 14 indictments four were against alleged keepers of gambling houses and ten against proprietors of basements and other resorts on the charge of conducting disorderly places. One state senator and David Lewiasohn, ex-city detective, were among those hit by this first batch of indictments.

Bequests to Hebrew Charities.

Des Moines, Ia., Dec. 29.—The will of N. L. Goldstone was opened. He bequeathed $14,000 to Hebrew charities as follows: Hebrew orphan asylum, Cleveland, O., $5,000; Home for Aged Hebrews, Cleveland, O., $5,000; Home for Aged Hebrews, Albany, N. Y., $1,500; Hebrew union college, Cincinnati, O., $2,500. Various relatives received a total of $51,000, and the rest of the estate, $250,000, goes to Samuel Redstone, a nephew.

A Barge Canal.

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 29.—A barge canal, costing $62,008,000, following very closely the present line of the Erie canal, except that while touching the large cities it may not bisect them, is what State Engineer Bond will recommend to the legislature on about February 12.

Mayor of Bismarck Arrested.

Bismarck, N. D., Dec. 28.—Mayor Edward G. Patterson has been arrested, charged with keeping a gambling house and with permitting one to be kept on his premises.

CLOSENESS PERSONIFIED.

Dreamed He Had to Pay a Dollar for a Cab and Was Afraid to Go to Sleep Again.

There's a good story told of a young fellow here noted for his closeness. He went to spend the night with a friend. During the entire night he betrayed much restlessness, which kept the host wide awake, and finally the slumberer betrayed signs of violent emotion. "He's going to have a nightmare," said the friend, "but he always grumbles so when you wake him up that I hate to disturb him." He waited awhile longer, sitting up in bed staring at the miserable sleeper, and, finally becoming alarmed, he roused him. He sprang up in bed, glared wildly around and said: "Where am I? I don't see the storm."

"Why, here in my room," said his host, soothingly; "you remember you stayed all night with me? I beg your pardon for waking you up, but you carried on so I had to."

"Beg your pardon," gasped the guest. "I shall never be grateful enough to you. I dreamed I was out with Miss Bud and a terrible storm came up, and my shoes were new, and I was just ordering a coupe for two when you roused me. Old boy, you have saved me a dollar."

And the host says he was actually afraid to go to sleep again that night for fear the coupe would come, says the Louisville Times.

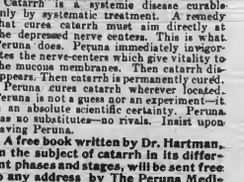
MEDICAL EXAMINER

Of the U. S. Treasury Recommends Peruna.

Dr. Llewellyn Jordan

Dr. Llewellyn Jordan, Medical Examiner of U. S. Treasury Department, graduate of Columbia College, and who served three years at West Point, has the following to say of Peruna:



"Allow me to express my gratitude to you for the benefit derived from your wondertul remedy. One short month has brought forth a vast change and I now consider myself a well man after months of suffering. Fellow sufferers, Peruna will cure you."

Catarrh is a systemic disease curable only by systematic treatment. A remedy that cures catarrh must aim directly at the depressed nerve centers. This is what Peruna does. Peruna immediately invigorates the nerve-centers which give vitality to the mucous membranes. Then catarrh disappears. Then catarrh is permanently cured.

Peruna cures catarrh wherever located. Peruna is not a guess nor an experiment—it is an absolute scientific certainty. Peruna has no substitutes—no rivals. Insist upon having Peruna.

A free book written by Dr. Hartman, on the subject of catarrh in its different phases and stages, will be sent free to any address by The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio.

KIDNAPED HER CHILD.

Mrs. Samuel Miller Gets Possession of Her Seven-Year-Old Boy.

Not a Trace of the Mother and Son Can Be Found, and It Is Believed That They Are on Their Way East.

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 27.—A sensational kidnaping, involving the family of ex-United States Attorney General Miller, occurred Wednesday afternoon and led to a hot chase a few minutes later across the state to overtake the wife of Samuel D. Miller, son of W. H. H. Miller, who was supposed to be fleeing to New York with her stolen son.

Samuel Miller and wife have lived in New York for several years, and last summer he came west to go into his father's office. His wife stayed in New York. Last Friday she came here to demand possession of her 7-year-old son, whom the father had brought west with him, and was living with him at the grandfather's house, W. H. H. Miller.

The husband and wife had a consultation at the wife's apartments in the Denison, and she agreed, if the boy was allowed to be sent to her daily with the nurse, she would not attempt to kidnap him.

Wednesday afternoon the boy and nurse called on Mrs. Miller at the Denison. She sent the nurse out to get a check cashed, and while the governess was gone ordered a carriage and made arrangements to leave. When the governess returned Mrs. Miller announced that they were going for a drive. They started in a closed carriage down South Meridian street toward the depot. The German governess, suspecting foul play, jumped out of the carriage while it was on a run, ran to a telephone and notified the father and grandfather.

Mrs. Miller immediately ordered the carriage driven to Brightwood, and when the two Millers arrived at the Union station there was no trace of the woman and boy. Two hours later they learned from the hackman where he had gone, and it was believed she intended to take the Big Four accommodation train at Brightwood and then take the Knickerbocker train at Anderson or Muncie. At 6:20 the two Millers started on the Knickerbocker to run her down before she got out of the state.

Mrs. Miller was Helen Karcher, of Pottstown, Pa., and Samuel Miller met her nine years ago at Washington when his father was United States attorney general. They were married a year later, and the boy, Sidney, is now 7 years old.

The action of the nurse in hurling herself from the rapidly moving vehicle caused a commotion in the wholesale district Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock. She was so excited she does not remember where she telephoned from to notify W. H. H. Miller and his son that Mrs. Miller had started with the boy. She later was joined by W. H. H. and Samuel Miller, and the former sent her home to announce that the two had gone in pursuit and would return later with Sidney, the boy.

When she left the hotel Mrs. Miller announced that she was going to Union City for the night and would return Thursday.

W. H. H. Miller said: "She has always said she would never under any circumstances live in Indianapolis. Sam tried to have her come here many times, and I have wanted him to come with me as my partner here for years. It is a clear case of kidnaping. I have nothing to say as to the future."

W. H. H. Miller and son returned at 10:40 Wednesday night from points along the Big Four. No trace of Mrs. Miller and the stolen boy could be secured. From the ticket agent at Brightwood it has been learned that the woman and boy did not buy a ticket or take a train there.

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 28.—Sidney Miller, grandson of ex-Attorney General Miller, kidnaped Wednesday afternoon by his mother, Mrs. Samuel Miller, of New York, was found by his father and police just at daybreak Thursday morning in the home of a family named Marshall, at Lawrence, Ind. His mother was with him. Lawrence is on the Big Four line to Cleveland, and a few miles northeast of this city. Mrs. Miller and the boy were driven there from Brightwood Wednesday night in an effort to catch trains east. Had they not been overtaken they would have got a train Thursday morning.

The father took the child from the mother, and, though she pleaded for a conference, his ears were deaf to her. The party took the child back to Indianapolis. Mrs. Miller, with the scant baggage she had, took a local train for Anderson, and after staying there the larger part of the day took a through train for New York.

A VIOLENT HURRICANE

Vessels Destroyed and Many Lives Lost on the English Coast.

Steamer Primrose Hill Went on the Rocks, and Thirty-Four Sailors Were Drowned—The Vessel Was Wrecked.

London, Dec. 29.—There has been a recurrence of storms and violent gales in the channel, and considerable damage has been done ashore. Telegraph lines are down in many places. The British bark Pegasus, which sailed from Queenstown December 26 for Sharpness, has foundered off Penarth roads. One man of the crew was landed at Cardiff. The fate of the rest is unknown.

Incessant reports of innumerable shipping casualties show that the gale was one of the worst known in many years. Probably several days will elapse before the full extent of the damage becomes known.

In addition, some vessels, not yet identified, which have been wrecked or placed in great danger, the fate of some of the cross channel mail steamers is in doubt.

It would be impossible to enumerate the minor casualties.

In response to rockets from Edystone Light, Plymouth, sent dock yard, with a life boat, to assist what was reported to be a large steamer in distress in the channel.

A terrible accident took place near Taunton. The breakwater at Wachet harbor has yielded to the force of the gale and become a wreck, permitting a tremendous sea to have full play against the shipping in the harbor.

Several vessels broke adrift; two foundered, and five others were driven into a hopeless tangle in a corner between a pier and a wharf, where they are grinding each other. Their masts and bulwarks speedily went overboard and their hulls were greatly battered. The damage will reach many thousands of pounds.

The Austrian bark Capricorn was driven ashore near Bude Cornwall. Nine of the crew were drowned, one was saved and four are still on board with little liklihood of being rescued, as they are unable to avail themselves of the rocket apparatus.

H. M. S. Black Prince at Queenstown and H. M. S. Teeser at Portsmouth were both badly damaged.

Wales appears to have suffered the worst effects of the gale both on land and sea; but everwhere the telegraph lines are much disorganized and reports therefore incomplete.

Considerable damage to propery inland is certain to be reported. Some fifty barges and sailing craft broke from their moorings in the Theries alone. At Oswestry a theater was destroyed.

The Primrose Hill went on the Penrhos Rocks, three miles off Southstack (not far from Holy Head). She broke in two and went to pieces in a few minutes. One man out of the crew of 45 men was saved by a life boat.

Some time before she struck the Primrose Hill dropped her anchors, but mountainous seas were running. No sooner had the ill-fated ship touched the rocks than the three after-masts went overboard and she broke in twain, leaving only the foremast standing. Three minutes later this went also. The vessel was soon smashed up.

The Hibernia stood by throughout but was powerless to aid. The Holy Head steam life boat made three vain attempts to reach the Primrose Hill, until the latter's crew was huddled on the poop when a huge sea dashed over the vessel, washing all away save one sailor, who was finally hurled against the rocks, sustaining terrible injuries.

The Enucuri is endangered. She has sought shelter in Portland Roads. Twenty-two of the crew managed to reach the breakwater but five are still on board. It is feared that the Enucuri will list and fill.

The hurricane is increasing at Queenstown, where the observers say it is the fiercest storm in years. The Maria, laden with coal, sank at her anchorage. The mails are delayed.

Mrs. Carrie Nation Threatens to Clean Out Every Saloon in Kansas.

Wichita, Kan., Dec. 28.—Mrs. Carrie Nation, who with scraps of iron, rocks and billiard balls wrecked the Carey hotel bar, including a $300 picture of "Cleopatra at the Bath," Thursday sent two demands to the sick bed of Gov. Stanley, for him as governor of the state to come to the city jail, whither she was taken after her assault on the bar fixtures, and take charge of her defense. On Stanley's refusal she telegraphed for Jerry Simpson, her old neighbor, at Medicine Lodge. With a hatchet Mrs. Nation recently smashed all the bar fixtures at Kiowa and Medicine Lodge. She is said to have arrived here Wednesday night.

Mrs. Nation is well dressed and about 60 years of age. Her husband is a lawyer at Medicine Lodge, an intimate friend of Jerry Simpson and a politician. Mrs. Nation practices osteopathy, and was on her way to Missourl to visit an osteopathic school. Before she left home, however, she stated that she intended to raid every saloon in Kansas and rid the state of them.

DUPLEX TELEPHONING.

A System By Which Two Persons Can Converse Simultaneously Over the Same Wire.

Chicago, Dec. 28.—A practical system of duplexing telephone wires, by which, using an auxiliary telephone, conversations with two persons may be held simultaneously on the same wire, has been adopted by the Chicago Telephone Co., and instruments for its operation will be put in immediately at many of the big stores and in offices where the use of the telephone is heavy. The auxiliary telephones will, as a rule, be used for incoming messages, but they are so arranged that the calls may be made at the same time that the main telephone is in use. Superintendent Hibbard said Thursday that the plan had been thoroughly tested and proved a success. By its use a heavy saving in the running of wires will be made, besides more than doubling the capacity of the telephone service by firms using it heavily.

The German Reichstag Will Pass a Bill to Protect Agrarian and Commercial Interests.

He says that the manufacturing interests of Germany surely will demand the passage of a protective tariff during the present session of the reichstag. Three of the strongest industrial societies of Germany recently convened to organize a national industrial council. The imperial government apparently was in sympathy with the movement, and, while the efforts so far have failed, they are not to be abandoned.

WEAVING THE WEB.

Evidence Points to Pat Crowe as One of the Abductors of Young Eddie Cudahy.

Omaha, Dec. 29.—Daniel Burris positively identified at Pacific Junction, Iowa, the poney left there mysteriously in the barn of Mrs. Mack, the day following the Cudahy abduction, as one he sold to a man answering the description of Pat Crowe a few days before the abduction.

Mrs. Thomas B. Cooper, a married daughter of Burris, was shown a collection of 25 photographs taken from the rogues gallery and asked to select, if she could, one or more which resembled the "Light" man who called to buy the pony. She picked out two photographs of Crowe.

Mrs. Cooper is the fifth person who saw this "light" man who has identified him with a likeness of Crowe and the police now feel sure that he is one of the men wanted. They have not been able, however, to get a clue to the identity of the "dark" man. The detectives want to locate Lizzie Burns, who is alleged to have been an intimate friend of Crowe. She was employed at hotels in South Omaha up to the time of the abduction, since which time she has not been seen.

RIOT IN A JAIL.

Twenty Female Prisoners Attack the Matron and Warden in the Women's Department.

New York, Dec. 28.—Twenty maddened female prisoners in the Raymond street jail, Brooklyn, rioted Thursday and fiercely assaulted Matron Fanale Handy and Warden McGrath. There was no attempt to escape. The riot was the consequence of nothing but ill feeling. Miss Handy was transferring the prisoners from one corridor to another in the woman's section when she was attacked by Nellie Jones, a powerfully built woman who had been sentenced to 15 days for intoxication. Miss Handy was felled. Nineteen other prisoners then assaulted her. While the blows rained thick upon her head and body she managed to reach a push button that rang a bell in the warden's office.

Warden McGrath rushed to the woman's department without waiting to call for assistance. As he entered the corridor he diverted the attention of the infuriated women and they jumped on him. The blows were fast and furious, and McGrath went to the floor. Hat pins were brought into play, and his face, head and neck were gouged.

Miss Handy made her way through the crowd and again rang the alarm. The sheriff, under sheriff and five deputies replied. They had much trouble in subduing the women, but succeeded, and two of them were placed in straight jackets. The others were put in separate cells, and then the prison physician was called to attend the wounded warden and the matron.

AN OCEAN FREIGHTER.

The First One Ever Built in Chicago Will Be Launched Saturday.

Chicago, Dec. 28.—The first ocean freighter ever built in Chicago will be launched Saturday afternoon in the yards of the Chicago Shipbuilding Co., on the Calumet river. The new boat is 342 feet long and has a capacity of 2,500 tons. Its first cruise will be to Hamburg, Ger., laden with grain. The launching of the Northwestern, as the new boat will be named, will complete the first installment of the largest contract ever entered into by the Chicago Shipbuilding Co. This contract calls for the building of eight boats—four for the ocean, and a like number to ply between the harbors of the Great Lakes—and stands for an expenditure of over $2,000,000.

Fee System Abolished.

CHRISTMAS.

It has been my custom of late years to report at the close of each year how I spent the Christmas. This will be an especially delightful report, as my pleasures have been varied and somewhat scattered. In the noon mail of Dec. 24, I received a Christmas gift in the form of a check from a dear relative, wishing me a Merry Christmas and a request to spend same in seeking pleasure. Being so constituted that I am incapable of denying any request within my ability to grant, I have endeavored to studiously avoid any conflict with my nature in this particular case. Failing to fulfill the request to the farthing, at present writing, I have decided to complete its fulfillment in a trip to the city on Saturday. I shall dine with the donor and requestor; attend the matinee in the afternoon at the Grand in which Richard Mansfield promises the most brilliant dramatic event of the season, in his presentation of King Henry V, and the evening I shall spend on the hill tops with friends.

The evening of the 24th I attended a most enjoyable entertainment given by Mr. and Mrs. James T. Gaines in honor of their cousin, Miss Ada Early, of Lexington, who is the guest of their beautiful and accomplished daughter, Miss Beulah. Their home is one of the handsomest and most conveniently arranged houses for entertaining a large number of guests, in the county. Its capacity was fully tested on this occasion with about sixty of Miss Beulah's young friends present. Mr. and Mrs. Gaines are fond of society and make delightful host and hostess. Their genial and cordial dispositions make their guests feel that they are welcome and permit them to enjoy to the fullest extent the social events in their home. Misses Zayda and Beulah Gaines, Miss Nellie Duncan and Miss Lizzie Walton contributed to the enjoyment of the evening in beautiful and artistically rendered music on the piano. Each of these young ladies possess a very evident talent for music.

Miss Early has one of the most beautiful homes in Central Kentucky, a portion of our State that has attained a world wide fame for its luxuriant blue grass, handsome women and fine horses. She does honor to the historic country she represents in possessing a handsome personage, bright, inteligent face, cultured mind, is a brilliant conversationalist, easily approached and possesses that charming faculty of making one feel comfortable in her presence.

Miss Birdie Holton, the beautiful daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elijah Holton, was in attendance with her schoolmate and guest, Miss Beulah Hockersmyth, of Catlettsburg, Ky. Miss Hockersmyth is attending college at Shelbyville. She is a very charming young lady, has a lovely voice and sings well.

At 10 o'clock an elaborate supper was served and every one left singing the praises of their host and hostess.

On the morning of the 25th I returned to Burlington to enjoy a Christmas dinner with mine host and hostess at the Boone House. This was one of the most sumptuous and enjoyable dinners of the week. A 26 lb. turkey graced the table, with all the necessary adjuncts, such as celery, salads, pickles, oysters, grapes, oranges, bananas, apples and a half dozen different kinds of cakes. Everything was cooked to a Queen's taste.

On the morning of the 26th I drove over to Bullittsville and enjoyed a very delightful dinner at the hospitable home of Mr. Alvin Corn; attended the sale of Mr. J. C. Clore that afternoon, and spent a quite but pleasant night with Mr. and Mrs. Mentor Graves.

On the morning of the 27th I called at the home of Mr. Clinton Gaines and spent an hour very pleasantly; from there I drove to my daughter's, Mrs. Courtney Walton, and spent the remainder of the day with about 30 of my old neighbors and friends. I remained here for the night and returned to Burlington the next morning.

On the 29th I returned to the old Bullittsburg neighborhood and joined about 40 of my young friends in a Christmas dinner with Mr. and Mrs. N. S. Walton. I returned that evening to Burlington to attend the opening of the festive season in the quiet old democratic town. Friday evening Johnnie Lassing, the J. B. Ator, of Burlington's four hundred, returned after an absence of several days. After discovering on the next morning the gloom that had settled over the social life of the town, he threw open the doors of his hospitable home, and told his wife to go forth in the town and extend a welcome to all who desired to come to his home that night. About twenty responded to the generous welcome and a more delightful evening was not surpassed by those who attended. About 10 o'clock a most apetising lunch was served, consisting of cold turkey, scalloped oysters, the lightest of light rolls, coffee, oranges, bananas, cakes, candies and nuts.

The population of Burlington, after ten months' sojourn, is that it is one of the most quiet, most democratic, most moral, most self-contented, most charming and most delightful havens for those who have grown tired of the stir and bustle of the outside world, anywhere within the scope of my observation. When once you join the charmed circle you are loath to sever the connection. ***

Walton.

There has been quite a number of socials, receptions and all kinds of merry makings, incident to the holiday season. The opening one of these innocent festivities was held at the home of Waiter Marsh, Ike Kohn's popular clerk, just east of the town, and was more largely attended than any that succeeded it, there being over 80 persons in attendance.

Then came the lively social at Kirtley Roberts' on Wednesday night, where the votaries of Terpsichore, "tripped the light fantastic toe" to the enlivening strains of Noell's band. Gray morning was rising in the east, when the youths and maidens sought repose at their homes. On the same evening the jollification at Mr. Green Fields', Richwood, required Diers' band wagon to convey the happy load to the festal scene. It comes to us that such a joyous time they never had before. "Soft eyes looked love to eyes, which spake again, and all went merry as a marriage bell."

At James Sturgeon's there was another gleeful gathering of joyful youths and maidens fair on the same night. They all report having the best time they ever had in their lives. And yet some of our young people were found mid other gayscenes farther from home.

Miss Katie Green and Nellie Cleek, of Beaver, who were being entertained by Mrs. S. M. Adams, attended the social given by Miss Martha Lassing at her beautiful home near Union. Some Walton people accompanied them, and are rapturous over the delightful reception given them by the lovely and accomplished hostess.

On Friday Evening the Misses Lermond, of high, Street, were at home to their friends and a very pleasant time they all had up to that hour called "the witching hour of night," etc., when they dispersed to their homes.

Mr. John C. Welt, of Covington, paid his friend Mr Harry Eskew a visit last week.

Dr. Tafel, of Cincinnati, was the guest of Dr. Jacob Cleek, last week, and attended the social given by the Misses Lermon on Friday night.

H. C. Diers and J. J. Richards visited Harrison Ohio and Indiana, last week, where the former has an extensive acquaintance, having formerly lived there. Richards was amazed at the business and the business prospects of the town. He reports that very flattering inducements were held out to Mr. Diers to come back and locate in his old home again.

H. T. Larimore, of the Kentucky Tobacco House, and E. J. Hobdey, a noted dealer, were guests at the Phoenix Hotel, one day last week.

Mr. A. Kahn and Mrs. P. Kahn, of Cincinnati, and Mr. M. Kahn, of Morrow, Ohio, were visiting their brother, Mr. Ike Kohn, and wife, during the past week. They were much pleased with their brother's success and his future prospects.

W. N. Holder, of Covington was out on his native heath again, Sunday. Being asked what brought him ont, he announced, "Oh, it's Christmas. I had some little business, but mainly, I wanted a subscriber for the Recorder, (which he did) so I can hear the news from my old home, and my daughter said it gives the county news so correctly."

Walton Lodge, F. and A. M. held its annual election on the 27th, with the following result: J. R. Craven, W. M.; Jas. Rogers, S. W.; B. F. Metcalfe, J. W.; H. L. Eskew, S. D.; M. Rouse, J. D.; C. C. Metcalfe, Secretary; R. Rouse, Treasurer; L. Rouse, Tyler; Wm. Metcalfe and N. B. Rich, Stewards.

Noah Glasscock received last week, 5 crops of tobacco—about 13,000 pounds—costing here, 4½, 4½, 5, 5½ and 6 cents crop prices. He will prize and put on the market for John Dempsey and J. M. Lassing, a partnership crop, destined, as are all of his purchases, for the Louisville market. Glasscock is an independent buyer, and will fight the trusts and combines as gamely as he did all last season.

Miss Grace Eskew, a charming young lady of Covington, is the guest of her brother, H. L. Eskew, at the Phoenix Hotel.

Miss Maud Crumpton, room and classmate of Miss Mabel Bagby, attended the social at the Misses Lermoud's on Friday night. It is to be hope our visitors have so enjoyed the Christmas festivities that they will come again.

Dr. and Mrs Bagby gave a sumptuous birthday dinner in honor of their daughter, Mabel, and, also, of their guest, Miss Caudia Crumpton, of Alabama, who was also born Dec. 29th. The curious may want to know why the year was not mentioned. Even if it was known it would not be published in a newspaper correspondence, as ladies, generally, are not partial to notices so entirely personal. Some are very secretive on this subject, and this individual imitates them in that particular.

Idlewild.

Little Tommie, son of Lee Masters, is quite sick.

Mrs. Carder, of Lawrenceburg, is visiting relatives here.

Mrs. Geo. Wenke, of Lawrenceburg, has been spending the holidays with her sister, Mrs. Finlagraf, here.

Mr. McIntosh's family will occupy the Shotwell house. Then there will not be a vacant house in town.

J. C. Clore gave a birthday dining Tuesday, and left his old Kentucky home to become a Hoosier.

The Cooking Club meets Thursday at Mr. Clinton Gaines'. The club is now just a year old and has been a success from the beginning.

Mrs. George Walton spent the holidays with her sister, Mrs. Zeke Rice, of Bellevue, where she was taken ill and was not able to return home for a week or more.

There was a delightful party at Clay Duncan's, Wednesday night, and at Elbert Utley's, Friday night, and a Christmas dining at N. S. Walton's, Saturday, and a party at Dr. Hay's Tuesday night.

Limaburg.

Joe Myers, of Richwood, was at S. J. Rouses, Monday.

Miss Ora Rouse has been on the sick list with a throat trouble.

Mr. Michael Wilbolt had an attack of heart trouble, last Manday.

S. J. Rouse and wife spent last Friday and Saturday with Joseph Myers and wife, of Richwood.

W. R. Rouse gave a party on Wednesday night of last week, in honor of Misses Blauch and Ethel Hicks. All had a delightful time.

James Conner, of Covington, passed through here Saturday, on his way from a fox hunt. He was minus two dogs, and the others were going on three legs. He said he had been having fine sport.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXVI. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 9, 1901. NO. 12.

Secretary Root has declined to submit the Lawshe report on the Cuban frauds to the scrutiny of the Senate. The Lawshe report is understood to involve a number of high government officers in the Rathbone and other derelictions of duty in Cuba and it would not do to publish it.

T. J. Adams, the incumbent, is announced as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for the office of jailer. Mr. Adams is now serving his first term and has made a faithful officer, and will continue his efficient service if relected. His party fealty is beyond question.

John R. Whitson, of Florence, as will be seen by his announcement, has entered the race for jailer. Mr. Whitson is a local political leader, and has grown gray in the service of his party, and has never before asked to be honored with an office. Mr. Whitson will make a faithful official if nominated and elected.

Claude Chinn, who was elected clerk of the Fayette county court, and for whom his sureties has had to make good to the State a shortage of $10,000, has turned Republican, and is a canddtate for re-election. Chinn says he has all the assurance one could have in political matters, that he will receive the Republican nomination.

If newspaper reports are true, and they always are when not otherwise, a citizen of Milton, Trimble county, very unexpectedly found himself worth a small fortune the other day. This man, who is R. G. Lemon, bought for $30 the dam of Silk Gown before the colt had made its record, which placed the value of the dam at $5,000. Mr. Lemon did not know he owned the dam of the famous colt until a few days ago.

S. E. Hampton, of Milton, Trimble county, is proposing a farmers' tobacco trust on a very large scale. His plan is to secure $100 from each of 2,500 growers, $50 from each of twice that number and $10 each from 10,000 other growers and establish a factory where all will ship their leaf to be graded by men of their own choosing at a certain price. He also proposes to make each contributor a stockholder in the concern to share in the profits.

The Recorder this week carries the announcement of W. T. Evans, of Petersburg, as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Assessor. Mr. Evans is one whose Democracy can not be questioned. He is 58 years old, was never before a candidate for office, although he has always taken an active interest in party affairs. He is a careful, conscientious man, and should the party favor him with the nomination and election, he will discharge the duties of the office in a manner that will be an honor to himself and a credit to his party.

Boone county has no citizen who has lived in three centuries, at least no one has made any such claim. In the State, though, there are quite a number. Mrs. Polly Cloud Graves, of Lexington, who will be 104 years old if she lives until the 17th day of next month, was given an ovation on the arrival of the new century. James Irland of Hancock county has lived in three centuries, and will be 104 years old if he lives until June 4th. These people have been here a long while, and the changes wrought by time makes this appear like a world other than that in which they began life.

M. F. Wingate, of Petersburg, is announced in this issue as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Sheriff of this county. Mr. Wingate's democracy is all wool and a yard wide, and he has been a ceaseless worker for his party ever since he has been a voter. There is no cleverer a man than Fillmore Wingate, and he is thoroughly equipped for the duties of the office, which will be faithfully administered should he become Sheriff. Mr. Wingate's friends have repeatedly solicited him to make a race for office in the past, but this is the first time he has yielded to their solicitations in that respect.

[Indianapolis Journal.]

A year ago in November the Court of Appeals of Kentucky unanimously rendered an opinion in the case of Meyler vs. Wedding, holding that Kentucky had exclusive jurisdiction on the Ohio river, and that no Indiana court had any jurisdiction whatever below low water mark, either in criminal or civil matters; that no summons could be served in a civil case, nor any arrest made in a criminal case on the Ohio river.

It was not known to Attorney General Taylor that such a case was pending at all until after the decision had been rendered. He then obtained leave of the Kentucky attorneys to appear for them and file petition for rehearing, and the Court of Appeals permitted him to appear and have a reargument of the case.

That court now divides and two of the Judges, is very strong and vigorous dissenting opinions, find in favor of the doctrine of concurrent jurisdiction in both civil and criminal cases on the river between the State, of Indiana and Kentucky. The majority of the court, however refused to change their opinion and the case will be certified back to Bowling Green, Ky., where proper records will be made, permitting the case to be taken to the Supreme Court of the United States.

Attorney General Taylor has already taken steps to perfect an appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States. It is a question of too great importance to Indiana to suffer such a decision to stand. He says:

"Indiana for seventy years has maintained concurrent jurisdiction. Men have been tried and convicted of murder in the first degree; have suffered life sentences; the rights of property have been disposed of in Indiana, where arrests were made and service of summons had on the Ohio river below low water mark. Indiana will not surrender jurisdiction now at this late day. In fact the concurrent jurisdiction was maintained by Indiana before she was a State, during her territorial life.

"If the case was one of first impression with the court of Kentucky, it would be different, but the Kentucky Court of Appeals again and again have held that Indiana and Kentucky have concurrent jurisdiction on the Ohio river, and this is the first break from the long line of decisions of her Supreme Court. It is without reason and against all the authorities."

Colorado has a new leaf to turn this winter in her Senatorial election. For the first time since she entered the Union in 1876, Colorado is to elect a Democrat to the Senate. All her Senators thus far have been Republican, although Senator Teller, three times chosen as a Republican, was, in 1897, elected as an Independent Silver Republican. This year the Legislature is Democratic. Gov. Thomas, the tallest man in the Rocky Mountains, and the temporary chairman of the Kansas City Convention, is the leading candidate, and Tom Patterson, once a Representative in Congress, Ex-Gov. Alva Adams and one or two others are in the race. The seat they are after is that of Senator Wolcott, who retires after serving two terms.

In the proper column appears the announcement of Deputy Sheriff B. B. Allphin as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Sheriff. Mr. Allphin is serving his fourth year as deputy, and he has made an efficient officer, and is thoroughly conversant with the duties of the position. He is a Democrat of the old school, a clever gentleman, and if he is made Sheriff of the county, he will make a good officer, performing his official duties without fear or favor. Mr. Allphin has been active in party affairs since before he was a voter.

After fifteen months of fighting, the Boers are not measurably worse off than they were at the beginning of the war. Expert observers say that they can keep up this sort of thing indefinitely. The question is how much longer will it be before Great Britain is tired out.

Kentucky's financial condition is certainly very satisfactory when the unusual expenses of the State during 1900 are considered. In discussing the work of the year Auditor Conlter says:

"This departmet is enabled to report a cash balance in the State Treasury of $815,711.76 after having paid the school deficit left over by the Republican administration from 1899, of $130,820.25, and after having paid the expenses of two sessions of the General Assembly, the regular session costing $86,945.10 and the special session $55,513.30, and after having borne the loss of $32,272.83, money misappropriated by the Taylor administration for active militia in the months of January and Febuary, 1900. Taking into consideration that the rate of taxation for 1900 was only forty-seven and one half cents as against the former rate of fifty-two and one half cents and having been forced to defray all of these extraordinary expenses the condition of the treasury at this time is very satisfactory. There are no outstanding warrants of any kind against the treasury."

[Williamstown Courier.]

The quickest settlement of a large estate in Grant county is that of the late J. B. Rennecker. Mr. Rennecker when he died about one month ago was confessedly the richest man in Grant county. He left an estate estimated at from $100,000 to $150,000 dollars. The latter figure being possibly nearer the true mark. His wife who survived him and his only daughter, Mrs. Kate Conrad, a resident of Williamstown, were his only heirs at law. No administrator has or will be appointed, the two heirs having settled the estate among themselves. An agreement was filed in the office of the Clerk of the Grant county Court last week, duly signed and sealed and put to record, by the terms of which the widow of the deceased, Mrs. Martha Rennecker, takes 100 acres of land, valued at $70 per acre, and $5,000 in notes, and $500 in cash, two horses, two cows, twenty head of sheep, the household and kitchen furniture and farming implements and all the remainder of the estate goes to and belongs in fee to Mrs. Kate Conrad, her only child and heir at law. It is also provided that after the death of Martha Rennecker that all of her property shall go to her daughter, Mrs. Kate Conrad. By the terms of this agreement Mrs. Conrad becomes the richest woman that ever lived in Grant county and her estate is probably worth $150,000, that includes what she had in her own right before her father's death. She is worthy of her good fortune. A truly christian lady bringing her four children up in the best schools and the best society and all of her friends, and they are many congratulate her on her good fortune.

The Constance people who caught a large lot of saw logs during the recent high water in the river, are in a fair way to have trouble with the owners of the timber, and a large number have employed attorneys to protect their interests in the matter. The law fixes the pay for landing and making fast a saw log at 25 cents, but in this case the drifters claim that an agent of the logs directed them to beech them, which they did. The log men are now demanding that the logs be put back into the water, and are not willing to pay those who caught them to exceed 25 cents per log for all their services. This proportion is not satisfactory to those who have possession of the timber, and they are determined to hold it until they are properly compensated for their labor. The Kenton county drifters were paid 50 cents per log for their services, and the Boone county people think they should be treated as well as their neighbors.

Since the above was put in type the trouble has been settled, those who caught the logs carrying their point.

[Western Horseman.]

The carelessness or indifference in regard to breeding the more valuable kinds of horses that has been manifest throughout the West during the past six or seven years may be attributed to two causes. First, the low prices offered by buyers when really first-class animals were offered for sale. In too many cases the buyer expected too large profits and would not purchase unless he was certain of the same. The writer can recall many cases wherein buyers made a profit of $200 on an animal that cost them less than $60. Farmers soon learned of such transactions and gave the business the "horse laugh." A second cause is this: Low prices led owners of mares to patronize cheap stallions, forcing the high-class horses out of the country. In many Kansas counties not a single standard bred stallion can be found, or if found it is not worthy of patronage, while ten years ago there could be found in the same counties numbers of really first-class sires. In this county of Mitchell the trotting bred stallions have decreased from over forty in 1893 to barely two at the present writing. Owners of mares want to get something for nothing, and in trying to save a penny in service lost several pounds in the value of the foal. At present buyers are more willing to pay something near what an animal is worth, or at least will usually give the price asked by the owner. This fact should encourage owners of brood mares and induce them to patronize a stallion that can be depended upon to produce valuable foals. No owner of a stallion can long afford to do business for his health. If his horse is not making him some money and the opportunity presents itself, the horse is sold, and taken out of the country. It is no more than just that an owner should ask a fair service fee for his stallion, as such animals are only a source of profit during a brief period of the year, and then only when liberally patronized.

Serve on the shells, brushing again with melted butter and sprinkling with salt before sending to the table.

In this impression is the announcement of D. M. Snyder as a candidate for County Superintendent of Public Schools. Mr. Snyder has been identified with the Public schools of this county as a Teacher for the last twenty-five years, and has been a member of the board of examiners of this county, for several years. He is an energetic man, well qualified for the office, and if elected he will give his office the benefit of his long experience in educational matters. His Democracy is the genuine article.

THE NEW CENTURY.

Dr. Talmage Tells of the Wonders to Be Achieved.

He Preaches a Timely Sermon from the Text, "A Morning Without Clouds"—Hopeful Outlook for the Future.

(Copyright, 1901, by Louis Klopsch, N. Y.)

In this discourse Dr. Talmage tells something of what he expects the next hundred years will achieve, and declares that the outlook is not inspiring; text, II Samuel, 23:4: "A morning without clouds."

"What do you expect from this new century?" is the question often asked of me, and many others have been plied with the same inquiry. In the realm of invention I expect somethings as startling as the telegraph and the telephone and the X ray. In the realm of poetry, I expect as great poets as Longfellow and Tennyson. In the realm of medicine, I expect the cure of cancer and consumption. In the realm of religion, I expect more than one Pentecost like that of 1857, when 500,000 souls professed to have been converted. I expect that universal peace will reign, and that before the two thousandth year gunpowder will be out of use, except for blasting rocks or pyrotechnic entertainment. I expect that before this new century has expired the millennium will be fully inaugurated. The twentieth century will be as much an improvement over the nineteenth century as the nineteenth century was an improvement over the eighteenth. But the conventional length of sermonic discourse will allow us only time for one hopeful consideration, and that will be the redemption of the cities.

Pulpit and printing press for the most part in our day are busy in discussing the condition of the cities at this time, but would it not be healthfully encouraging to all Christian workers and to all who are toiling to make the world better if we should this morning for a little while look forward to the time when our cities shall be revolutionized by the Gospel of the Son of God and all the darkness of sin and trouble and crime and suffering shall be gone from the sky, and it shall be "a morning without clouds?"

Every man has pride in the city of his nativity or residence, if it be a city distinguished for any dignity or prowess. Caesar boasted of his native Rome, Virgil of Mantua, Lycurgus of Sparta, Demosthenes of Athens, Archimedes of Syracuse and Paul of Tarsus. I should have suspicion of base heartedness in a man who had no especial interest in the city of his birth or residence—no exhilaration at the evidence of its prosperity or its artistic embellishments or its scientific advancement.

I have noticed that a man never likes a city where he has not behaved well. People who have a free ride in the prison van never like the city that furnishes the vehicle. When I find Argos and Rhodes and Smyrna trying to prove themselves the birthplace of Homer, I conclude right away that Homer behaved well. He liked them, and they liked him. We must not war on laudible city pride or with the idea of building ourselves up at any time to try to pull others down. Boston must continue to point to its Faneuil hall and to its superior educational advantages. Philadelphia must continue to point to its Independence hall and its mint and its Girard college. New York must continue to exult in its matchless harbor and its vast population and its institutions of mercy and its ever widening commerce. Washington must continue to rejoice in the fact that it is the most beautiful city under the sun.

If I should find a man coming from any city having no pride in that city, that city having been the place of his nativity or now being the place of his residence, I would feel like asking him right away: "What mean thing have you been doing there? What outrageous thing have you been guilty of that you do not like the place?"

Every city is influenced by the character of the men who founded it. Romulus impressed his life upon Rome. The pilgrim fathers will never relax their grasp from New England. William Penn left a legacy of fair dealing and integrity to Philadelphia, and you can now any day, on the streets of that city, see his customs, his manners, his morals, his hat, his wife's bonnet and his meeting house. So the Hollanders, founding New York, left their impression on all the following generations. So this capital of the nation is a perpetuaut eulogy upon the Washington who founded it.

I thank God for the place of our residence, and while there are a thousand things that ought to be corrected and many wrongs that ought to be overthrown, while I thank God for the past, I look forward this morning to a glorious future. I think we ought—and I take it for granted you are all interested in this great work of evangelizing the cities and saving the world—we ought to fall with the sunlight in our faces. We are not fighting in a miserable Bull Run of defeat. We are on the way to final victory. We are not following the rider on the black horse, leading us down to death and darkness and doom, but the rider on the white horse, with the moon under His feet and the stars of Heaven for His tiara. Hail, Conqueror, hail!

I know there are sorrows and there are trials, and there are sufferings all around about us, but as in some bitter winter day, when we are [illegible] around us to keep us from freezing, we think of the warm spring day that will come, or in the dark winter night we look up and we see the northern lights, the windows of Heaven lit lumined by some great victory, just so we look up from the night of suffering and sorrow and wretchedness in our cities, and we see a light streaming through from the other side, and we know we are on the way to morning—more than that, on the way to "a morning without clouds."

I want you to understand, all you who are toiling for Christ, that the castles of sin are all going to be captured. The victory for Christ in these great towns is going to be so complete that not a man on earth or an angel in Heaven or a devil in hell will dispute it. How do I know? I know it just as certainly as God lives and that this is holy truth. The old Bible is full of it. The nation is to be saved. It makes a great difference with you and with me whether we are toiling on toward a defeat or toiling on toward a victory.

Now, in this municipal elevation of which I speak, I have to remark there will be greater financial prosperity than our cities have ever seen. Some people seem to have a morbid idea of the millennium, and they think when the better time comes to our cities and the world people will give their time up to psalm singing and the relating of their religious experience, and as all social life will be purified there will be no hilarity, and as all business will be purified there will be no enterprise. There is no ground for such an absurd anticipation. In the time of which I speak, where now one fortune is made there will be a hundred fortunes made. We all know business prosperity depends upon confidence between man and man. Now, when that time comes of which I speak, and all double dealing, all dishonesty and all fraud are gone out of commercial circles, thorough confidence will be established, and there will be better business done and larger fortunes gathered and mightier successes achieved.

The great business disasters of this country have come from the work of godless speculators and infamous stock gamblers. The great foe to business is crime. When the right shall have hurled back the wrong, and shall have purified the commercial code, and shall have thundered down fraudulent establishments, and shall have put into the hands of honest men the keys of business, blessed time for the bargain makers. I am not making a guess. I am telling you God's eternal truth.

In that better time also coming to these cities the churches of Christ will be more numerous, and they will be larger, and they will be more devoted to the service of Jesus Christ, and they will accomplish greater influences for good. Now it is often the case that churches are envious of each other, and denominations collide with each other, and even ministers of Christ sometimes forget the bond of brotherhood, but in the time of which I speak, while there will be just as many differences of opinion as there are now, there will be no acerbity, no hypercriticism, no exclusiveness.

In our great cities the churches are not to-day large enough to hold more than a fourth of the population. The churches that are built—comparatively few of them are fully occupied. The average attendance in the churches of the United States to-day is not 400. Now, in the glorious time of which I speak, there are going to be vast churches, and they are going to be all thronged with worshipers. Oh, what rousing songs they will sing! Oh, what earnest sermons they will preach! Oh, what fervent prayers they will offer! Now, in our time, what is called a fashionable church is a place where a few people having attended very carefully to their toilet, come and sit down—they do not want to be crowded, they like a whole seat to themselves—and then, if they have any time left from thinking of their store, and from examining the style of the hat in front of them, they sit and listen to a sermon warranted to hit no man's sins, and lisen to music which is rendered by a choir warranted to sing tunes that nobody knows! And then after an hour and a half of indolent yawning they go home refreshed. Every man feels better that he has had a sleep!

In many of the churches of Christ in our day the music is simply a mockery. I have not a cultivated ear nor a cultivated voice yet no man can do my singing for me. I have nothing to say against artistic music. The two dollars or five dollars I pay to hear one of the great queens of song is a good investment. But when the people assemble in religious convocation, and the hymn is read, and the angels of God step from their throne to catch the music on their wings, do not let us drive them away by our indifference.

Mr. Eesler, of England, had a theory that if the natural forces of the wind and tide and sunshine and wave were rightly applied and rightly developed it would make this whole earth a paradise. In a book of great genius and which rushed from edition to edition he said: "Fellow men, I promise to show the means of creating a Paradise within ten years, where everything desirable for human life may be had by every man in superabundance without labor and without any—where the whole face of nature shall be changed into the most beautiful forms, and man may live in the most magnificent palaces, in all imaginable refinements of luxury, and in the most delightful gardens—where he may accomplish without labor in one year more than hitherto could be done in thousands of years, and may level a continent, sink valleys, create lakes, drain ponds and swamps and intersect the land everywhere with beautiful canals and roads for transporting heavy loads of many thousand tons and for traveling a thousand miles in 24 hours.

"From the houses to be built will be afforded the most cultured views to be hauded. From the galleries, from the roof and from the turrets may be seen gardens as far as the eye can see, full of fruits and flowers, arranged in the most beautiful order, with walks, colonnades, aqueducts, canals, ponds, plains, amphitheaters, terraces, fountains, sculptured works, pavilions, gondolas, places of popular amusement to tire the eye and fancy.

He goes on and gives plates of the machinery by which this work is to be done, and he says he only needs at the start a company in which the shares shall be $20 each, and a hundred or two hundred thousand shall be raised just to make a specimen community, and then, this being formed, the world will see its practicability, and very soon $2,000,000 or $3,000,000 can be obtained, and in ten years the whole earth will be emancipated. The plan is not so preposterous as some I have heard of, but I will take no stock in that company. I do not believe it will ever be done in that way by any mechanical force or by any machinery that the human mind can put into play. It is to be done by the Gospel of the Son of God—the Omnipotent machinery of love and grace and pardon and salvation. Archimedes destroyed a fleet of ships coming up the harbor. You know how he did it? He lifted a great sunglass, history tells us, and when the fleet of ships came up the harbor of Syracuse he brought to bear his sunglass, and he converged the sun's rays upon those ships. Now, the sails are wings of fire, the masts fall, the vessels sink. Oh, my friends, by the sunglass of the Gospel converging the rays of the Sun of Righteousness upon the sins, the wickedness of the world, we will make them blaze and expire!

In that day of which I speak, do you believe that there will be any midnight carousal? Will there be any kicking off from marble steps of shivering mendicants? Will there be any unwashed, unfed, uncombed children? Will there be an blasphemies in the street? Will there be any inebriates staggering past? No. No wine stores, no lager beer saloons, no breweries where they make the three X's, no bloodshot eye, no bloated cheek, no instruments of ruin and destruction, no fist pounded forehead. The grandchildren of that woman who goes down the street with a curse, stoned by the boys that follow her, will be the reformers and the philanthropists and the Christian men and the honest merchants of our great cities.

God's love will yet bring back this ruined world to holiness and happiness. An Infinite Father bends over it in sympathy. And to the orphan He will be a Father, and to the widow He will be a husband, and to the outcast He will be a home, and to the poorest wretch that to-day crawls out of the ditch of his abominations, crying for mercy, He will be an all-pardoning Redeemer. The rocks will turn gray with age, the forests will be unmoored in the hurricane, the sun will shut its fiery eyelid, the stars will drop like blasted figs, the sea will heave its last groan and lash itself in expiring agony, the continents will drop like anchors in the deep, the world will wrap itself in sheet of flame and leap on the funeral pyre of the judgment day, but God's love will never die. It shall kindle its suns after all other lights have gone out. It will be a blinding sea after all other oceans have wept themselves away. It will warm itself by the blaze of a consuming world. It will sing while the archangel's trumpet peals, and the air is filled with the crash of breaking sepulchers, and the rush of the wings of the rising dead. Oh, commend that love to all the cities, and the morning without clouds will come!

I know that sometimes it seems a hopeless task. You toil on in different spheres, sometimes with great discouragement. People have no faith, and say: "It does not amount to anything. You might as well quit that." Why, when Moses stretched his hand over the Red sea, it did not seem to mean anything especially. People came out, I suppose, and said: "Aha!" Some of them found out what he wanted to do. He wanted the sea parted. It did not amount to anything, this stretching out of his hand over the sea. But after awhile the wind blew all night from the east, and the waters were gathered into a glittering palisade on either side, and the billows reared as God pulled back on their crystal bits. Wheel into line, O Israeli March, march! Pearls crushed under feet. Flying spray gathers into rainbow arch of victory for the conquerors to march under. Shout of hosts in the beach answering the shout of hosts amid sea. And when the last line of the Israelites reach the beach the cymbals clnp, and the shields clang, and the waters rush over the pursuers, and the swift fingered winds on the white keys of the foam play the grand march of Israel delivered and the awful dirge of Egyptian overthrow.

So you and I go forth, and all the people of God go forth, and they stretch their hand over the sea, the boiling sea of crime and sin and wretchedness. "It doesn't amount to anything," people say. Doesn't it? God's winds of help will after awhile begin to blow. A path will be cleared for the army of Christian philanthropists. The path will be lined with the treasures of Christian benevolence and we will be greeted to the other beach by the clapping of all Heaven's cymbals, while those who pursued us and derided us and tried to destroy us will go down under the sea, and all that will be left of them will be cast high and dry upon the beach, the splintered wheel of a chariot or thrust out from the foam, the breathless nostril of a riderless charger.

PRIDE OF NOBLE BLOOD.

How the Haughty Heroine of a Novel Discouraged All Attempts at Familiarity.

"Say," said the big-jowled man on the rear platform of the Georgetown car to the heavy-jawed man on his right, "d'je ever read a book called 'Hapless Ermyntrude; or, How She Won and Wed Him?'"

"Naw," replied the other. "Whatchoo handing us? What d'ye think I am?"

"Well, I read that book all last Sunday," went on the big-jowled man, relates the Washington Star. "And it was great. Y' ought to get it. It's what they call the limmick over in Bloodfields. Greatest stuff I ever sloshed into in my life. Just saw it kicking around—I think my wife picked it up somewhere or another—and when I'd finished reading the Sunday papers I got hold of it, and, say, I could hardly drop it to eat my dinner. Say, it was a winner with me. Y' ought to get it."

"On your way," replied the heavy-jawed man. "What d'ye s'pose I want t' read a book with a name like that for?"

"Because," answered the big-jowled man, "it'll give you a line on where ordinary, onnery, cheap, hoi-polloi, bourgeoise—have I got that right?—canaille, plebeian people like you and me stand in this game. You'll never know what a big figure blood-lines out of the breeding book cut in the United States until you read this book. Tell you why. The main squeeze in 'Hapless Ermyntrude'—I mean the heroine—is Ermyntrude herself. Ermyntrude's paw goes broke on Wall street trying to corner the hot-air market, and then he ups and croaks. Ermyntrude's maw has died when Ermyntrude was a babe—not a baby, y'understand, but a babe—there are no babies in modern novels or plays—and, of course, Ermyntrude has to hunt for work, all of her folks having died off before the book was started. Well, she can't do anything except play Monastery Bells on the piano and fool around with Honiton lace work, and so she has to take a job in a cotton mill in a little Massachusetts burg. Here's where Ermyntrude begins to exhibit her blood lines. Her last name's Darrell, you see, and it seems that the Darrells were the whole thing, more or less, when it came to the herd book. The Darrells traced 'emselves back to Hugh of Hastings, or some duck with a name like that, and Ermyntrude just can't get away from that fact to save her life. She's so haughty with the rest of the mill girls that she don't make a hit at all, and, naturally enough, they give her the jibe a whole heap. Well, every time one of the mill girls takes a verbal crack at Ermyntrude, Ermyntrude just draws herself up to her full height and bites her under lip and looks haughty, and says: 'I am a Darrell!' Good thing, ain't it? The landlady of her boarding house tells Ermyntrude that she'd like to have her keep her room a bit tidier and make up her bed before going to work in the morning, and Ermyntrude does the full height stunt and exclaims: 'I am a Darrell!' The young woman at the department store presumes to remark to Ermyntrude when Ermyntrude is making some little purchase, that it is a fine day, and Ermyntrude elongates herself as usual and says: 'I am a Darrell.' The cheery postman hands her a letter at the same time voicing his opinion that it looks something like rain, and Ermyntrude gazes down at him from a great height, vouchsafing the following information: 'I am a Darrell!'

A prosperous young butcher of the township brushes up a little to Ermyntrude and has the horrible gall to invite her, properly chaperoned, to accompany him for a little ride in his fine new T-cart, and she gains the usual number of inches, bites her under lip ferociously, and makes use of the phrase here affixed: 'I am a Darrell!' Say, it was just fascinating to read that book, that's all! I never knew before what a dub I was in the matter of breeding until I read it. The farthest I can get back is to my great-granddad, and, I give it to you on the level, I don't know any more about him than I ought to, and, I tell you what, it was a delight to me to find out that there are such warm propositions in this country as Ermyntrude in the matter of breeding. 'I'm a Darrell!' she goes right along saying from cover to cover—I counted the phrase, and it's in the book exactly 1,087 times—and the expression of pique and chagrin and surprise and hauteur that shines in her eyes when this 'I am a Darrell!' crap fails to shrivel 'em up and throw 'em into salaaming fits must have been sad to see. I sure would like to have been around to pipe off Ermyntrude when she was saying 'I am a Darrell!' and then looking for them to quake and fall down where they stood, and if ever I happen to meet up with anybody by the name o' Darrell—"

"Well, that's my name," solemnly remarked the heavy-jawed man, and then the big-jowled man turned pale and fell backward off the platform.

Sleep Themselves to Death.

Explorer Jacques Dabon, lecturing before the Geographical society, described a strange city in the French Senegal colony, once busily prosperous, but now almost abandoned. Some gradual change in the climate or soil has caused increasing drowsiness. Most of the inhabitants slept 20 hours daily. Some even fall asleep while walking, and many have slept to death, their friends finding it impossible to arouse them even after several days of uninterrupted lethargy. The explorer says that neither himself nor any of the colonial doctors was able to discover the real cause of the phenomenon.—Chicago Tribune.

BLUNDERS OF McKINLEY.

How the Administration Is Betraying the Interests of the People.

An administration is to be judged quite as much by what it attempts to do as by what it actually does.

The success of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty and of the ship subsidy bill is not necessary to show where the McKinley administration stands. It has attempted to "dish" the Monroe doctrine and it has attempted to open the doors of the treasury to a raid as inexcusable as it is dishonest.

The suspicion existing for some time that there is a secret understanding of some description between the American and British governments is immensely strengthened by the circumstances under which the Hay-Pauncefote treaty was negotiated and has been pressed upon the senate.

In one sense it is not important whether the Nicaragua canal be fortified or not. The nation with the most powerful navy will probably control the use of it in case of war. It is of importance, however, whether the United States shall recognize the right of any European nation to interfere in a matter concerning American interests so closely as the Nicaragua canal does.

It has been known and admitted for 50 years that the Clayton-Bulwer treaty, in which British claims to rights on the isthmus are recognized, was a mistake of great magnitude, to call it by no harsher name, and, in view of the fact that the treaty has been violated, and by one American administration has been denounced, it has been held by some of the ablest of American lawyers that it is no longer in force.

The present administration has acted on the theory that the treaty was still of binding force, and that in negotiating a new convention it was necessary to renew the recognition of British claims which made the earlier treaty so offensive to most Americans.

There was one excuse for Mr. Clayton which Mr. Hay cannot urge. In Mr. Clayton's day it was proposed to construct the canal with British capital. In Mr. Hay's day it is the intention to employ American money, and the people's money at that. What might have been urged as a concession of necessity in 1850 becomes, under the changed conditions in 1900, a surrender without palliation and without a purpose, except as there may be a secret understanding of some kind between the two governments.

If the right of any European power to interfere in the matter of an isthmian canal in America be admitted we shall prepare a world of trouble for ourselves. While the Monroe doctrine does not specifically cover this question, the importance of the canal in a military sense is so great that the nation in Europe which has anything to say about the canal will be in a position also to say a great deal about the matters with which the Monroe doctrine does deal with much particularity.

Whether there be fortifications at the entrance of the canal or not is a question which should be settled by the United States and by no other nation. The canal is to be built, if built at all, with American money. It will necessarily become an important factor in the coast defense of the republic. To complete this great enterprise with American money and then to relinquish American sovereignty over it would make the canal a source of weakness rather than of strength. It were better that there were no canal than that hundreds of millions of American money should be expended in an undertaking so vital to our own interests and which on completion would pass beyond our control.

It has been held for half a century that Mr. Clayton was hoodwinked in his negotiations with Bulwer. With his example before us, after all these years and with the knowledge of his mistake impressed upon all his successors, as it has been, what shall be said of Mr. John Hay, who enters deliberately into such another trap, baited, in all probability, in exactly the same manner? The apparent unwillingness of the United States senate to become a party to his folly is very creditable to it.

Mr. Hanna's intense personal interest in the proposed ship subsidy bill furnishes stronger evidence of the administration's attitude on this subject than anything which has appeared in the written or spoken utterances of the president.

The subsidy scheme is an administration measure. It is intended to enrich men who have commended themselves to the administration. It is unnecessary. It is extravagant. It is undoubtedly corrupt. It certainly will take millions of money wrung from the people by taxation and bestow it upon interests which have no claim whatever upon the generosity of the public. In its best aspect it is a lavish gift of public money under false pretenses to men already rich. In its worst aspect it is an unparalleled robbery of the people, involving personal dishonesty on the part of some of its promoters.

In both of these matters Mr. McKinley's administration has already made its record and must be judged accordingly. It has done its best in both cases to betray the interests of the people. Whether congress shall assent or not, the administration has committed itself beyond the power of anybody or anything to extricate it or to find excuse in wisdom and honesty for its course.—Chicago Chronicle.

——There is no more wool used in this country to-day than there was ten years ago. The Dingley tariff is responsible for this.—Kansas City Times.

AS TO THE PHILIPPINES.

Still an Unsettled Subject That May Yet Rend the Republican Party.

If President McKinley supposed that the election would end opposition to his Philippine policy, he is finding out his mistake. Even in a republican congress, and among the republican members, the question is regarded as still extremely debatable, and it is evident that the discussion has only just begun. In a running debate in the house of representatives a few days ago one of the most vigorous and sensational speeches made was that of Mr. McCall, a Massachusetts republican, in opposition to President McKinley's policy. Mr. McCall had previously distinguished himself by the vigor of his opposition to the Porto Rico tariff bill; he had assailed the whole Philippine policy of the administration, and handled it without gloves. The government, Mr. McCall said, should have declared at the outset a policy in the Philippines similar to that which we declared in Cuba. Our system of government was manifestly unfit for a colonial policy. There was no community of interest between the people of these islands and the United States. No advocate of retaining the Philippines had been daring enough to maintain that they should be a part of our political system. In fact, the great argument in favor of the principle of the Porto Rican tariff was that if we could not apply that principle to Porto Rico we could not retain the Philippines. Upon what theory, he asked, are we to remain in that country? The motive that had been most widely put forth was that it was for our advantage, and especially our pecuniary advantage. In conclusion Mr. McCall said:

"The time has come when we can frankly declare our purposes. Let us give those people those assurances which our history inspires. Let us tell them that we will aid them for one year, or for five, if need be, in setting up a government of their own, symbolized by their own flag, and we will leave them all that is most glorious in the meaning of another flag—liberty, independence and self-government."

This might be an extract from some democratic speaker's utterances during the campaign, in opposition to the policy and tendencies of imperialism; but election is past, and we shall hear what the administration press and spokesmen have to say to such comments from one of their own men. So far from being settled, the Philippine question is likely to rend the republican party asunder before they are done with it. Already comes the announcement that the promises made before election, to bring home the soldiers in the Philippines at once, will not be kept; it is said that they are likely to be retained there until the last day of their enlistment. All hope of securing reenlistments has been practically abandoned. In addition to all this, there is the probability that the supreme court may knock down President McKinley's house of cards by a decision that the constitution follows the flag.—Albany Argus.

PARAGRAPHIC POINTERS.

——Doubtless some of the opposition to the ship subsidy bill comes from persons who, by defeating the measure, hope to show that some things can be done without the aid or consent of Mr. Hanna.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

——Marcus Aurelius Hanna frets because he finds there are senatorial limitations. Marcus would like to incorporate the upper house, fund its revenues, issue bonds and then officiate as president and general manager.—Minneapolis Times.

——The subsidies which the Hanna-Payne crowd are asking the United States taxpayers to donate to a few ship owners are greater than those paid by any other nation in the world. Of course. When we go a-begging or a-robbing let us go on horseback.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

——The fallacy of protection has been naturally weakened by the tremendously increased demand for American goods abroad, and it has received a more deadly blow still through the new issue of expansion. It is, as a matter of abstract reason, as effete as the fugitive slave law.—Kansas City Times.

——Mr. Hanna's false logic was exemplified in his citation of the splendid increase in the traffic on the lakes. If he could have shown that the lake-carrying trade had been built up by subsidies or other legislative aid he might have made a formidable point, but this trade has been built up without any aid of this kind. The very citation he made was therefore an argument against him.—Toledo Bee.

——It is said that Hon. William McKinley boosted Russell Harrison out of the army because he—the president—was mad at ex-President Harrison. Maybe that is true. If so it is earnestly to be hoped that Mr. McKinley will get mad at a lot more prominent citizens whose mush-headed offspring are wearing shoulder straps. Nothing could be better for the army than a general clearing out of the papas' sons.—Chicago Chronicle.

——Preparations are making to railroad the ship bounty bill through congress at this session. Possibly Hanna might have forced it last winter if it was worth while, but that astute political manager saw, what everyone else saw, that the enactment of such a notorious job would have been a millstone about the neck of the republican candidate for president in the approaching campaign, and he let it go for a more propitious time. That time, in Hanna's opinion, has now arrived. He is safe in control for four years more of McKinley, and it does not matter what people may say or what protest may be made.—Boston Post.

SCHOOL AND CHURCH.

There are nearly 14,000,000 Catholics in the British empire, and about as many in the United States.

The big Stanford stock farm at Palo Alto is now arranged on a basis where it can be run almost forever, the entire revenue going to the university. At the time of Senator Stanford's death there were 1,403 horses on the farm. That number has been systematically reduced till now there are about 300 horses.

The pastors of the churches in three large wards of Brooklyn have voted to adopt the cooperative parish system recommended by the Federation of Churches. This is the nearest approach to combination in church work that has been attained and the results wherever tried are said to have been gratifying.

Rev. John Hampton Thomas, D. D., was installed president of Oxford college, Oxford, O., on November 30. The college was founded in 1847, and Dr. Thomas is the fourth president. Dr. Thomas is a graduate of Yale, by which institution he was given the degree of master of arts last summer. He has been prominent in educational work for many years.

A judge at Norristown, Pa., has decided that while a pupil is in school he or she is in the teacher's care and may be punished, within reason, in such manner as the latter may see fit. Miss Paul, a teacher in the Spring Mill school, flogged a boy for making an offensive drawing. She was arrested, charged with assault, but the judge charged the jury as above, and the teacher was acquitted.

Few men are or can be more charitable than was the late Thomas K. Beecher, D. D., of Elmira. His salary was $3,500 per annum, and by far the greater part of this he gave away every year. On one occasion some members of his congregation, ashamed of his shabby appearance, sent him a new overcoat. Dr. Beecher promptly gave it to a poor man and repeated when his friends sent him a second garment. Then they gave him a third, but made him promise that he would keep it. The reverend gentleman reluctantly agreed.

THE STREETS OF JERUSALEM.

A Word Picture of the Everyday Life of the Modern Holy City.

These cafe groups, and the passing throng before them, you will study with wonder and will put to your dragoman endless questions about them, says the author of an entertaining article on Jerusalem, in Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly. And his knowledge will be at once your admiration and despair. He will tell you at a glance all about anyone you point out. This man is a peasant from Siloam; he is a Christian, and has just sold a load of barley. The man behind him comes from Ramleh, eight hours distant; he walked in this morning with his wife; there she is across the street buying nuts, that woman in blue. These three by the door are from a village beyond Bethlehem; two are Christians and the third a Moslem. They are concluding a bargain, see them slap their hands together and bind it. The old man in the white turban and blind in one eye (see the lemon leaf jump in his water bottle) is a Moslem from El Bireh, with grain to sell. There is the camel kneeling. Those comes Bedouins with a donkey train; they live in black tents down Jericho way. The two girls passing them are gypsies from the Damascus Gate; see their faces are uncovered; they are begging. Those fat men in pearl robes are rich Jews from Persia—there, coming out of the shop with the umbrellas. Those purple-shrouded women going in the carriage are Moslems; the one in white, with a red-flowered veil and leading the little girl, is a Jewess; the one with a baby strapped on her back is an Ain-Karim peasant come to meet her husband, who is at the mosque.

And so on until you wonder if the dragoman is not imposing on your credulity, for what he does seems no whit easier than to walk up Broadway and pick men out by callings and towns—an insurance agent from Bridgeport; a butcher from Poughkeepsie; a reporter hurrying to a fire. You ask anyone else if what he says is true; ask the people themselves and you will get the same information. It is absolutely true, though perhaps he had never set eyes on one of these people. He simply reads for you certain signs of face and dress that are plain as print to those orientals born and bred to an infinite curiosity about their neighbor's business and an amazing power of minute observation. They ought to make great detectives.

Uses of Steel Wool.

"Although steel wool has only been used as a substitute for sandpaper during the last six years, it is now very extensively utilized for polishing purposes by metal workers, carpenters, cabinetmakers, house painters, sign painters and graniers throughout the United States," says a wholesale dealer. "Steel wool is an article of regular manufacture, and it is put up in one-pound packages very much resembling rolls of cotton batting. It is composed of sharp-edged threads of steel, which curl up like wool or the familiar wood fiber known as excelsior, but it is much finer in texture than the latter material, the finest quality being not much coarser than the coarsest of natural wools."—Washington Star.

Mrs. Fadd—Are you sure that this pure food is a standard article?

Grocer—Yes, ma'am! You'll notice that it's high-priced, looks like dog-biscuit and tastes like excelsior.—Puck.

HUGE WHITEFISH HATCHERY.

Fisheries on Detroit River and Put-in-Bay to Provide Immense Stock in the Spring.

During the whitefish spawning season just closed the fisheries on the Detroit river caught about 20,000 whitefish, which yielded over 200,000,000 eggs. These eggs have been placed in the hatcheries in Detroit and at Put-in-Bay islands, where, by the Case jar system, they will yield about 85 per cent. in the spring.

In the nets with the whitefish a large variety of the fish of the great lakes has been caught. Many of these have been penned in the river at Belle Isle, in the Detroit river, for the purpose of sending them in February to the aquarium exhibit of the first annual exposition of the International Forest, Fish and Game association, to be held in Chicago, February 9 to 24.

The following are the varieties which will be sent to the exhibit: German cod, lawyers, moone-eyes, perch,, wall-eyed pike, saugers, mullet, suckers or red sides, rock bass, blue pike, grass pike, sturgeon, whitefish, gar pike, muskalonge, sheepshead and dogfish. They will be kept in the pens at Belle Isle until February and then shipped in tanks to Chicago.

Nine land-locked salmon have been received from Lake St. John and added to the collection. These fish have already had quite a trip in tanks, as Lake St. John is about 200 miles north of Quebec, in Canada, but seem to be no worse for the trip.

The land-locked salmon no doubt came originally from the Atlantic ocean, as they are only found in the fresh waters of Canada and northern Maine, and they still bear some of the characteristics of the salt water salmon.

STARR TO STUDY INDIANS.

Chicago Anthropologist Has Left to Investigate Mexican Tribe.

Prof. Frederick Starr, of the University of Chicago, has left for a six months' trip among some of the wild and unknown tribes of Mexico. The Lacandones, one of the tribes he expects to visit, are one of the least known peoples in the western hemisphere. They lend wandering lives and use crude stone implements and are as timid as rabbits, leaving their homes at the approach of strangers. A village is to be studied where in 1869 all the whites and half-breeds were killed and old pagan religion re-established. The people crucified a boy in order that they might have an Indian Christ. A priestess led the outbreak.

While in the state of Chiapas pinto, a peculiar and little understood skin disease, will be investigated. The skin becomes covered with permanent red, white or purple spots. Pinto is but slightly contagious and is not painful. Nearly 90 per cent. of some of the towns are affected.

Prof. Starr will have the aid of three assistants, a photographer, plaster-worker and a guide. Much of the traveling will be through dense tropical forests and 800 miles of horseback riding will be necessary. One hundred and twenty-five women of each tribe are to be measured and five plaster busts made. The present is Prof. Starr's twelfth trip to Mexico and the last, as he expects to complete his studies of the south Mexican Indian.

His Welcome.

Whenever the emperor of China makes up his mind to return to Peking the powers will see to it that a fire is built in his room and the furniture dusted, says the Omaha Bee, if he only notify them of his coming.

Trick of the Trade.

"I—I think I would like to look at a diamond ring," said the young man as the jeweler came forward.

"Exactly, sir. A diamond ring for a lady?"

"Yes."

"A young lady?"

"Yes."

"A young lady to whom you are engaged?"

"What's the difference whether I'm engaged to her or not?" asked the customer, with considerable tartness.

"A great deal, sir. You intend this ring for a Christmas present, probably?"

"I probably do."

"Very well. We have diamond rings for $25 and diamond rings for $50, $75 and $100. If not actually engaged to the girl, take a $25 ring, and when she brings it in here to find out the cost we'll tie $50 worth for your benefit. If really engaged, take a higher price, and you can pawn it for two-thirds of its value after marriage. Now then, make your selection."—Washington Post.

Where Physicians Failed.

When I. W. Kesler was a general news agent at 524 Front Street, Cincinnati, Ohio, he wrote: "Palmer's Lotion has cured a very distressing and unsightly eruption on my face of over two years' standing after the best physicians I could find failed in affording me any relief. The first application removed much of the soreness and pain, and very soon a complete cure was effected." In all such cases Palmer's Lotion Soap should be used in preference to any other. If your druggist does not have them, send to Solon Palmer, 374 Pearl Street, New York, for samples of Palmer's Lotion and Lotion Soap.

Grade Doors by Rank.

One Marshal Le Febvre fell ill of an ague, and his servant, an old soldier, caught the malady at the same time. The servant was quickly cured, but the fever clung to the marshal until it occurred to his energetic duchess that the doctor had blundered by giving the marshal the same doses as to a private soldier. She rapidly counted upon her fingers the different rings of the military ladder. "Here, drink this; this is suited to your grade," she said, putting a tumbler to her husband's lips. And the duke, having swallowed a dozen doses at one gulp, was soon on his legs again. "You've a great deal to learn, my boy," was the lady's subsequent remark to the astonished doctor.—Chicago Chronicle.

The New Cup Defender.

Now being built, is confidently expected to be the fastest sailing vessel ever built. Its construction is being kept a secret, but it is whispered that it will easily hold the cup. America is rapidly coming to the front. A good example of this is in that famous household remedy, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which has defended health for half a century past. It holds the record for the cure of dyspepsia, indigestion, constipation, nervousness, biliousness and la grippe.

THE CHANGE OF LIFE

Is the most important period in a woman's existence. Owing to modern methods of living, not one woman in a thousand approaches this perfectly natural change without experiencing a train of very annoying and sometimes painful symptoms.

Those dreadful hot flashes, sending the blood surging to the heart until it seems ready to burst, and the faint feeling that follows, sometimes with chills, as if the heart were going to stop for good, are symptoms of a dangerous, nervous trouble. Those hot flashes are just so many calls from nature for help. The nerves are crying out for assistance. The cry should be heeded in time. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was prepared to meet the needs of woman's system at this trying period of her life.

It builds up the weakened nervous system, and enables a woman to pass that grand change triumphantly.

"I was a very sick woman, caused by Change of Life. I suffered with hot flushes, and fainting spells. I was afraid to go on the street, my head and back troubled me so. I was entirely cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."— MRS. JENNIE NOBLE, 5010 Keyser St., Germantown, Pa.

The Question of Dessert

Is easily and simply solved with a package of Burnham's Hasty Jellycon. It is only necessary to dissolve a package of it in boiling water and set away to cool. The result is a delightfully pure jelly, and an ideal dessert. The flavors are orange, lemon, strawberry, raspberry, peach, wild cherry and the unflavored "calfsfoot" for making wine and coffee jellies. All grocers sell it.

WITHOUT THE FRILLS.

Report of a Church Wedding by an Editor Who Discountenances Frippery.

An editor who was thoroughly tired of the foolishness that goes on at a church wedding finally got even as follows, says the Atchison Globe man: "They were married in great style. All the elite of the town were invited, principally because it was thought that they would be more likely to bring elegant presents for the bride.

"Of course, the ceremony took place in the church, and the church was most beautifully decorated for the occasion. Potted plants were borrowed here and there, wherever they could be secured without making the owner mad enough to fight.

"The bride's young lady friends had the decorations in charge, and when they were not making foreign they were chewing the rag about the trouble and work, and wishing that the bride had sense enough to get up her own wedding. The ushers wore claw-hammer coats, parted their hair in the middle and stepped high when they walked down the aisle. The coats were hired from a costumer, and their white gloves came from an undertaker's, who kept them on hand for funeral occasions.

"It was a ring ceremony. The ring was a monstrous gold band borrowed of the village jeweler. People called the bride lovely, but she was so homely that hollyhocks wouldn't grow in the dooryard where she lived. The bridegroom was dressed in conventional black, and sailed because his father once wore the coat to a democratic convention. The presents were simply elegant. They came from people who couldn't afford to hire the washing done or buy baker's bread. Then after a 'sumptuous wedding supper' the bride and groom went to St. Louis on their wedding tour, where they spent their money in 24 hours than both of them can earn in a month."

WHEELER WAS TOO POLITE.

Embarrassing Dilemma in Which "Fighting Joe" Lately Found Himself.

At Washington the other day it was raining hard, and the street cars were crowded with passengers more or less bedraggled. Among them was Gen. Joe Wheeler. Next to him was a woman wearing a mackintosh, who rose to get off at Fourteenth and F streets. Gen. Wheeler noticed an umbrella leaning against the car seat.

He grabbed the umbrella, ran after the woman, caught her at the door and said: "Pardon me, madam, but you left your umbrella."

The woman looked puzzled, but took the umbrella. Gen. Wheeler resumed his seat. Then a woman on the other side of him gave a little scream and said: "Why, you nasty little man, you gave that woman my umbrella." Then she appealed to the conductor.

Gen. Wheeler apologized, but the woman said: "Now you just get right off the car and get it for me or I'll notify the police."

Meekly the veteran of three wars tumbled off into the rain and ran after the woman with the mackintosh. He made a hurried explanation, got the umbrella and rushed back to the waiting car.

As he handed it back to its owner he said: "I trust you will pardon me, madam. I assure you it was all a mistake."

The woman glared at him. "I don't know about that," she sniffed. "I don't believe you are any better than you ought to be."

Bilious--Got a Cold?

You're bilious, got a cold, you have a throbbing sensation in your head, a bad taste in your mouth, your eyes burn, your skin is yellow with dark rings under your eyes, your lips are parched and you feel ugly and mean, as if you wanted to kick a lame infant or kill a canary bird. Don't continue being a bilious nuisance to yourself and those who love you, but send out at once for a box of CASCARETS and work off the cold while you sleep.

Mr. John W. Thomas has rented for another year of A. M. Edwards the now very popular Phoenix Hotel in thi town. It is hard to part with such a genial couple; but the advantages offered are of such a promising character that their host of friends say, "God speed." Mr. Diers family is one of the oldest in Walton, and Mr. Diers is one of the most enterprising and industrious business men in the town, and it will feel their loss.

There was a very small crowd in town Monday. Several candidates were on the ground and were exceedingly busy.

A man, thinking "Best Flour" meant the same,
Wherever he would find it,
Bought one barrel here; another there;
Of whom, he didn't mind it,
Until he bought a barrel of JONES,
Although the price was lower,
The bread was then so light, and white,
That he buys elsewhere; no more.

To the Voters of Boone County:

Having formerly come before the people by mere verbal announcement for the office of Assessor, and wishing to become more prominently known as a candidate, I have adopted this method of acquainting myself with and presenting my claim to the people of Boone county through the columns of the RECORDER. Being in financial straits, I am necessarily compelled to make this canvass under the most unflattering circumstances.

With a numerous family dependant upon me for support, I am duty bound to appropriate a large portion of my time working by the day to meet their needs. Having been an ardent supporter of the Democratic party for thirty-eight years, I feel that I merit the confidence and support of the people as much as any of my numerous coupetitors.

I am not a Democrat merely for what is in it for personal greed or gain. But I am a Democrat because of the principles embodied in the great economy of Democracy "Equal rights and privileges to all men, with special favors to none."

I have always been true to the colors, and have ever championed the principles advocated by our forefathers in the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States.

I have never supported or voted for any other than the Democratic nominees; I have never scratched a ticket in my life, either under the old or new system of voting. Being unfortunate in a financial sense, I have nothing to spend in this contest, but come before the people upon principle and loyalty. Having been an old veteran in the ranks for years, I now ask the people for the first time to favor me, by giving me the Assessors place, that I may better support my needy family. I believe I am just as competent to execute the duties of the office as any man who has already or may hereafter enter this contest. I promise, if you give me your suffrage, to be faithful in the discharge of every known duty.

Because of the pressure of circumstances, I may not have the opportunity of seeing all the people in the county. But I want to see as many as I possibly can. I trust you will not be too hasty in making pledges, until you have given my claim due and impartial consideration. If after you have considered my case, you conclude to make me the recipient of your confidence and support, you may rest assured you will receive my most profound gratitude and high appreciation for such a generous gift. But whatever may be the result, let us as a unit beyond all considerations of mere personal ambition—unite in that one glorious end to keep alive and triumphant the grand old doctrine of Democracy in Boone county.

Yours fraternally,
W. T. EVANS.

Broek, in Holland, is far famed as the "neatest town in the world." This town is so fastidious that until a few years ago horses were not allowed in the streets, for reasons of cleanliness, and the entire town is as scrupulously kept as a man-of-war. It contains 2,700 inhabitants, and its main industry is the making of Edam cheese.

About all that a Chinese gentleman wants to practice the profession of medicine is to declare himself a doctor, and go to work curing or killing people, as the case may be, at the rate of about two cents per visit. If a patient persists in dying in spite of the drugs and incantations presented by his Celestial physician it is no fault of the doctor.

William Churchill, the English war correspondent, says that after careful study of many nations he has concluded that the distinguishing characteristic of English-speaking people as compared with other white races is that they wash, and wash at regular intervals. "England and America," he says, "are divided by an ocean of salt water, but they are united by a bathtub of soap and fresh water."

After nearly [illegible] years of constant effort, and the expenditure of nearly $500,000, science has succeeded in accurately measuring the earth. They have learned that its diameter through the equator is 7,926 miles; its height from pole to pole 7,899 miles. The earth, therefore, is flattened at the poles. And while this fact has long been asserted, the actual measurement has removed the question from the domain of doubt.

The cross of the Legion of Honor was recently bestowed on Mme. Clemence Royer, a French scientist. Mme. Royer is a Breton and was born in Nantes seventy years ago. She studied for a time in England and afterward founded a school for girls at Lausanne. The cross, studded with brilliants, was the gift of the staff of a French daily paper and was pinned to her corsage by M. Leygues, the minister of public instruction.

In the vicinity of Odessa are what are called "limans," vast sheets of water, which were originally connected with the sea, but through gradual silting up of sand have been isolated and are now extensive salt water lakes. By means of evaporation the waters in these lakes have become concentrated, and have been proved to be of so much therapeutic value that the "liman cure," as it is called, is rapidly growing in popular favor.

Counterfeiters who were preparing to flood San Francisco with false coin during the rush of the Christmas holidays were discovered in a curious way. A workman busied high up on the new post office building noticed two men in a building some distance away, who kept coming to the window to scrutinize carefully some object in their hands. The workingman leaped to the conclusion that they were counterfeiters and the event proved him right.

It is said that any one who is fortunate enough to be the guest of Mme. Christine Nilsson is likely to become deeply interested in one particular room in the house, and that he or she, as the case may be, is frequently to be found closely scanning the wall paper of this apartment. This is entirely composed of the receipted bills of the prima donna, which let in a flood of light on the enormous expense necessarily incurred by great artists.

This winter, for the first time in the history of Dakota state or territory, the Sioux Indians at Rosebud are allowing cattlemen to graze herds on the reservation on payment of a stipulated price. Feed is unprecedently scarce on some parts of the Cheyenne river and other portions of the ceded lands, and hence the arrangement referred to, which has been approved in Washington. It is believed that 25,000 head of cattle are now grazing on Indian lands.

Oahu, Molokai, Maui, Lanai and Hawaii, of the Hawaiian islands, have been linked together by the Marconi wireless telegraphy, the first two islands having been successful in their experiments to establish communication a short time ago. There is no doubt in the minds of those who have been conducting the experiments that the new system is a success, and that there will be no further trouble in communicating between all the islands at any time without the expense of a cable, which would have to [illegible]

PHILIP ARMOUR DEAD.

Multimillionaire Packer Passed Away After Two Years' Illness.

His Death Will Have Little Effect on the Outward Working of the Enterprises of Which He Was the Head.

Chicago, Jan. 7.—Philip D. Armour died at his residence on Prairie avenue, in this city, at 5:45 o'clock Sunday evening. The end came after two years of illness, during which time Mr. Armour visited German baths, passed the cold months in Southern California and devoted himself largely to an attempt to restore his health, which, however, had been broken never to be regained.

For several weeks the dead millionaire had been living at the old family home on Prairie avenue, the usual trip to Southern California not having been taken this winter. He came down to the office in the Home Insurance building but seldom, and as the cold increased he did not come at all. It was understood in the office that he had an incipient attack of pneumonia, but it was given out no later than a week ago that he was on the road to recovery.

For several days death had been feared as the outcome by the close associates of the great captain of industry. They realized that the decline from day to day did not cease, and that there could be but one end. When death came his grand children, who had so close a place in his heart, were at the family residence, as was J. Ogden Armour, the surviving son.

The sudden death of his son and namesake nearly a year ago hung heavily on him during the closing months of his life. In fact, he never recovered from the shock he experienced from that event.

His treadmill of work and his firm grip on affairs were maintained until the spring of 1899. Then the machine began to show signs of breaking. Mr. Armour was reported to be a sick man, and these reports were confirmed when he sailed for Germany to take baths at Bad Naupeim. He spent most of the summer at the baths, and was sufficiently restored in health to take a trip to Switzerland, where he remained a month among the mountains.

When he returned to Chicago that fall he was looking well, and his friends hoped his recovery was complete.

The death of his son, Philip D. Armour, jr., in Southern California, on January 29, 1900, was a great shock to the health-broken man. The son had gone on a visit to his father and was takenly suddenly ill with pneumonia. His death followed with scarcely a day's warning. The son had largely interested the father and had inherited the business ability of the Armours, and was closely following the footsteps of the head when he was stricken down.

After the death of Philip D. Armour, jr., the vast interests of Armour & Co., which had been carried on as a co-partnership, were incorporated under the old name of Armour & Co. This was to provide greater stability in case of death, and made no change in the practical ownership of properties.

The death of Simeon E. Armour at Kansas City in March, 1899, caused no particular change in the Armour interests, as they were operated as a stock company.

So carefully had the plans for the future been made that the death of Mr. Armour will have little effect on the outward working of the great enterprise with which he had been so closely identified. It is believed all the Armour properties will be held intact until the grandchildren come into their own.

Estimates of Mr. Armour's own estate run from $30,000,000 to $50,000,000. This, of course, does not include the $15,000,000 or $20,000,000 owned by the younger members of his family. For years every enterprise he was interested in has been making immense profits. His holdings of stock have all advanced largely during the last three years.

WANTS REINFORCEMENTS.

The News From Cape Town Is Very Unsatisfactory—Danger of an Uprising of the Dutch.

London, Jan. 7.—Monday morning's news from Cape Town is again unsatisfactory. Martial law has been proclaimed at Malmesbury and would have been proclaimed in other districts but that the cabinet meeting called Saturday was unable to agree as to its advisability.

The vagueness of the information concerning the movements and position of the invaders has sent a fresh fit over the colonies; and Cape Town calls loudly for strong reinforcements on the ground that the greater part of Lord Kitchener's available force is employed in protecting the lines of communication and the Rand mines, the latter extending for a distance of 50 miles.

It is asserted by one Cape Town correspondent that, unless the forces in Cape Colony are increased a most undesirable state of affairs may result, as the success in arms of the invaders, however slight, might be the signal for a Dutch rising. As it is, many British residents have had to leave the Dutch villages near Cape Town, their lives being unbearable.

According to a native report, a hundred men, either Boers or local farmers, have just passed through Clanwilliam district in the direction Malmesbury.

The Cape Town correspondent of the Daily Mail, who calls for 40,000 fresh troops, says:

"Prominent Afrikander loyalists declare that the rebellious colonists will construe the colonial call to arms as a challenge and that the ominous silence of the pro-rebels, combined with the fact that members of the pro-Boer junta in Cape Town have been touring in the disaffected districts, emphasizes the necessity for martial law. The necessity was never more acute for dispatching reinforcements. Already there is proof that colonists are leading one commando."

SERIES OF HOLD-UPS.

Great Uneasiness Among the Night Station Men Along the "L" Lines in Chicago.

Chicago, Jan. 7.—A series of holdups along the lines of the Chicago Elevated railroads, four ticket sellers having been robbed in less than a week, has caused a feeling of uneasiness among the night station men [illegible] boldest of these [illegible] took place at 3 o'clock Sunday morning when a lone robber held up the occupants of the Lake street "L" line station at Ashland avenue, robbing the station and four persons who were waiting for a train. After taking about $30 from his victims the robber held them in the station until a train arrived, and then compelled them to board the train, which drew away from the station before the robber's victims could make their predicament known to the trainmen. A passenger who alighted from the train took in the situation and fired seven shots at the robber but the bandit escaped.

EIGHT MEN ARE DEAD

They Were Overcome in a Minneapolis Hotel by Smoke.

Two Men Discovered the Fire and Gave an Alarm—The Loss on the Building and Contents Will Not Exceed $5,000.

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 7.—Eight men lost their lives in a fire at 115 Washington Avenue South at 3 o'clock Sunday morning, which had its origin in the rear of the Standard furniture store. The men were overtaken by an intense volume of smoke in the Harvard hotel, which occupies the second, third and fourth floors of the building, and death in every instance was due to suffocation.

The fire was discovered by Charles Hanson as he was about to go to his room on the second floor. He immediately apprised George O'Connor, the night clerk, and the two men set about to awaken the lodgers.

Hanson devoted his attention to the second floor, while O'Connor rushed upstairs. The men were all sound asleep, and it was with the greatest difficulty that they were aroused. In several instances it was necessary for O'Connor to break in the door. In the meantime he gave the alarm, and the warning soon spread. O'Connor was finally forced to beat a retreat because of the smoke, and, after having done everything in his power, he ran down and outside.

What took place in the dingy rooms and narrow, dark hallways will never be known. It was a case of every man rushing for his own life. Nineteen of the 27 lodgers were successful, but the others were unable to beat their way through the smoke, succumbed and fell in their tracks, where they were found by the firemen. Many of those who escaped came staggering out on the snowy sidewalk like drunken men, barely making their way through the deadly smoke and heat, and only partially clad. Several had narrow escapes. The loss on the building and contents will not exceed $3,000.

THE INAUGURATION.

There Will Be a Large Representation of Colleges and Universities in the Parade.

Washington, Jan. 7.—A distinctive feature of the second inauguration of President McKinley, if plans now under way fulfill their early promise, will be a large representation of the colleges and universities of the United States in the line of parade for the first time. The matter has been put in the hands of an inter-collegiate committee which has addressed invitations to the presidents of more than 400 American institutions of learning, requesting that delegations be sent on to represent their respective institutions in the inaugural parade. It is expected that each college or university will have a distinctive uniform and banner and that the result will be a pleasing addition to the other details of the parade.

PRESBYTERIAN PASTOR PRAISES PE-RU-NA.

First Presbyterian Church of Greensboro, Ga., and Its Pastor and Elder.

THE day was when men of prominence hesitated to give their testimonials to proprietary medicines for publication. This remains true to-day of most proprietary medicines. But Peruna has become so justly famous, its merits are known to so many people of high and low stations, that no one hesitates to see his name in print recommending Peruna.

The highest men in our nation have given Peruna a strong endorsement. Men representing all classes and stations are equally represented.

A dignified representative of the Presbyterian church in the person of Rev. E. G. Smith does not hesitate to state publicly that he has used Peruna in his family and found it cured when other remedies failed. In this statement the Rev. Smith is supported by an elder in his church.

Rev. E. G. Smith, pastor of the Presbyterian church of Greensboro, Ga., writes:

"Having used Peruna in my family for some time it gives me pleasure to testify to its true worth. My little boy seven years of age had been suffering for some time with catarrh of the lower bowels. Other remedies had failed, but after taking two bottles of Peruna the trouble almost entirely disappeared. For this special malady I consider it well nigh a specific. As a tonic for weak and worn out people it has few or no equals."—Rev. E. G. Smith.

Mr. M. J. Rossman, a prominent merchant of Greensboro, Ga., and an elder in the Presbyterian church of that place, has used Peruna, and in a recent letter to The Peruna Medicine Co., of Columbus, Ohio, writes as follows:

"For a long time I was troubled with catarrh of the kidneys and tried many remedies, all of which gave me no relief. Peruna was recommended to me by several friends, and after using a few bottles I am pleased to say that the long looked for relief was found and I am now enjoying better health than I have for years, and can heartily recommend Peruna to all similarly afflicted. It is certainly a grand medicine."—M. J. Rossman.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of the Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

Insomnia Wrecks the Nerves.

Dr. Greene's NERVURA Makes Health.

INSOMNIA is a forerunner of nervous prostration; what organism is strong enough to stand up under the strain of sleepless nights? It is plain that nothing in the world can possibly take the place of restful sleep, yet many try to eke out an existence without this sustaining power. Their nerves are in such a state of tension that sleep is an impossibility, or at best is a series of hideous dreams. It is not strange that physical and mental weakness, amounting soon to complete prostration, follows inability to sleep. There is no let-up to the strain. Vital forces are drawn upon, confirmed invalidism results.

The recuperative power of natural sleep is wonderful. Complete physical and mental exhaustion gives place, after a few hours of quiet slumber, to a full renewal of energy. The fatigue of body and mind disappears entirely while all the muscles are strong and the nerves absolutely calm.

Sleep is the indication given by Nature as a guide to human plans to restore health. It shows that there are inherent in the wonderful human organism powers of recuperation which must have opportunity to assert themselves. Based on this clear demonstration, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy was constructed by Dr. Greene to help Nature combat the ills that attack men and women. What no amount of powerful drugs could possibly accomplish, can be successfully and promptly effected by healthy blood and nerves, the kind of blood which flows in strengthening food to every portion of the body, the condition of nerves which permits awakened Nature to seize its opportunity to restore to perfect health.

Dr. Greene's NERVURA FOR THE BLOOD AND NERVES.

Mrs. FLORENCE TAYLOR, of 4 Courtland Place, Bridgeport, Conn., writes:

"For four years I was troubled with nervous debility and hysteria in a most aggravated form. It caused sleeplessness and mental depression, and for months I was confined to my bed. My constitution wasted and I totally lost my appetite. I had many doctors, but they failed to give me any relief. I was advised to try Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. I was in a terrible condition when I began its use, and almost immediately there was a wonderful change came over me. I regained my appetite, the dizziness in my head departed; it renewed my interest in life and made me feel, in fact, like another person. After taking six bottles I thankfully proclaimed myself strong and well. Those six bottles did for me what hundreds of dollars and numerous physicians failed to do."

Dr. Greene's Nervura is the Remedy that Cures.

Full explanation of these matters given by Dr. Greene on request, without charge. Dr. Greene's address is 35 West 14th Street, New York City. Consultation with him either by call or letter is absolutely free.

MONROE DOCTRINE.

Cuban Constitutional Convention Considering Its Acceptance.

Cuba Will Be Put on a War Footing to Help the United States in Case Such Assistance Is Needed.

Havana, Jan. 3.—The Cuban constitutional convention is considering two promulgations of the future relations between Cuba and the United States. One of these affirms, in the first place, an acceptance of the Monroe doctrine and the establishment of friendly relations with all nations, together with a resolution to proceed in all cases in complete accord with the United States. In the second place it proposes to put at the disposal of the United States a portion of the shore of any bay on the north coast and of two bays on the south coast for naval stations, together with concessions sufficient in extent for the purposes of defense and sanitation.

In the third place, it declares that Cuba will place herself on a war footing to help the United States in case such assistance should be needed; while a fourth proviso is an amplification of the first, second and third.

The other promulgation contemplates:

1. That the convention is vested with authority only to convene.

2. Not having been granted legislative functions, the convention can not arrange the basis of future relations.

3. Nevertheless, should Washington desire such a discussion, the convention is willing to discuss and agree upon an arrangement of mutual relations.

4. The aspirations of the convention are merely to consolidate the country for reconstruction. Its energies are directed toward supporting the avowed policy of the United States to which Cuba is bound by indestructible ties of gratitude, said policy being based upon the unequivocal preservation of liberty and independence throughout the American continent.

The former promulgation embodies the desires of delegates friendly to the United States. The latter is a counter-check to the extremists. It is considered that the former is likely to carry.

Washington, Jan. 4.—The navy department has called upon the superintendent of the naval academy for a report upon a charge submitted by Representative Rixey, of Virginia, to the effect that a marine named Hobart Green, of Virginia, had died at Annapolis from ill treatment while sick. It was alleged that Green was obliged to march while ill from pneumonia and that the decks were washed beneath him while he lay in his hammock on the Santee. The medical record shows that Green died December 14 from quick pneumonia. His father is a special pension examiner credited to Sandusky, O.

IN THE PHILIPPINES.

Many Small Captures, Destruction of Insurgent Camps, Seizure of Supplies, Etc.

Manila, Jan. 3.—Gens. Wheaton and Bates report many small captures, the destruction of insurgent camps, and the seizure of supplies, animals and other necessities. Among the captures in Smith's district was Col. Techon, the insurgent governor of Tarlac.

Gen. Grant is personally in command of a mounted expedition in the mountains of Southern Pampanga, which, he says, is the only locality where the insurgents are in force in his district.

Insurgents entered Gapan and San Isidro, in Gen. Funston's district, during the night and burned a score of houses. Their firing was ineffective.

Gen. MacArthur has commuted several death sentences of military courts to imprisonment.

Judge Taft's written opinion of the San Jose college case was considered and indorsed by the Philippine commission Friday afternoon. It was made public Saturday.

The enactment of the school bill has been deferred on account of the desire of the Filipinos to be heard on the bill as completed. It differs radically from the one prepared by Superintendent Atkinson and indorsed by Gen. MacArthur. The latter appropriated $1,640,000 outright, to be disbursed through Mr. Atkinson under the supervision of Gen. MacArthur.

The completed bill directly appropriates only $40,000 and reserves to the commission authority over plans for school houses, and also requires Mr. Atkinson to report to both Gen. MacArthur and the commission.

The commission has authorized the department of public instruction to proceed with the business intrusted to its administration.

Many inquiries have been received here from the provinces concerning the federal party. The organizers are establishing a daily newspaper and three weeklies, to be published in Spanish and Tagalog, in the province of Pampanga.

DOUBLE LYNCHING.

Two Men Taken From Jail at Madison, Fla., and Hanged—Bodies Riddled With Bullets.

Madison, Fla., Jan. 5.—Two colored men, Jim Denson and his half brother, were taken from the county jail here by persons unknown, led into the woods about a half mile from town and hanged. The bodies were riddled with bullets. The Negroes were charged with killing Frederick Redding, a farmer. They fled to Georgia, where they were arrested and brought back to this state.

While attending an entertainment at the opera house the sheriff was informed that some one wished to see him. When he reached the street the keys to the jail were taken from him by members of the mob. From the number of empty cartridges found at the place of lynching it is estimated that the number of lynchers was 100 or more.

Cold Snap in Europe.

London, Jan. 5.—A cold snap is appearing throughout Europe. There have been severe snow storms in Eastern Galicia and Southern Russia, accompanied by gales. Consuerable property has been destroyed near Odessa, where the trains are delayed by deep snow drifts. Black sea vessels are overdue. The Danube is frozen over at Bucharest and there is skating in North Holland.

The wheel of fortune turns very rapidly in our country. It often happens with us, for instance, that a man becomes rich enough to own a carriage before he has fairly had time to learn how to get into the same without knocking his plug hat.—Detroit Journal.

Native blue grass is one of the very valuable range and meadow grasses of the western slope of the Rockies, which gives promise of great value for cultivation in soils which are too dry to grow Kentucky blue grass successfully.

THE DEED OF A DEMON.

Nellie Morris Fatally Wounded by W. A. Weinstock at Hackney, O.

The Desperate Fiend Was Captured By a Crowd of Men—A Mob Has Been Organized to Hang the Murderer.

Marietta, O., Jan. 5.—Miss Nellie Morris, aged 19, handsome and accomplished, was attacked and killed with a razor at Hackney, Morgan county, by Walter A. Weinstock, aged 18 years, who lived near her home. She was going home across the fields when Weinstock met her and made indecent proposals to her. She immediately started to run. He grabbed her and threw her to the ground. She screamed and fought hard, finally getting to her feet. Weinstock drew a razor from his pocket and cut her across the neck, severing the neck muscles and laying bare the jugular vein.

Miss Morris grabbed the razor with her hands and they were cut to pieces in her mad attempt to rescue herself from the man. Her fingers were cut off and her wrist badly cut, as well as her entire right arm and left arm badly disfigured. Her dress was torn from her in shreds, and when people arrived she was almost naked. She is the daughter of Benjamin Morris, a business man of this city, and was prominent in society in this city and Parkersburg.

Physicians say the young woman can not live many hours, and late Friday night it was reported that she was dead.

Weinstock was grabbed by a crowd of men, who bound him with ropes hand and foot and removed him to a building, where more than 1,500 men watched over him.

A telephone message was sent to McConnellsville for officers to come and get him, but the people were getting ready to start with their man and place him in jail. There is talk of lynching him. The people are forming a mob to hang Weinstock. A tree has been selected and the rope has been provided. Weinstock recently returned from the reformatory, where he served a term for attempting to kill his father, Jacob Weinstock, a rich farmer of Morgan county.

Weinstock confessed. In detail he told the story of his terrible crime. He is bound and held under heavy guard.

CRUISER BALTIMORE.

The Naval Board of Construction Decided to Rehabilitate the Vessel at a Cost of $500,000.

Washington, Jan. 5.—The naval board of construction has decided to almost completely rehabilitate the cruiser Baltimore, now lying at the New York navy yard. Her improvements will involve an expenditure of about $500,000 and take at least a year and a half.

The Baltimore has been in commission ten years. She was built from plans purchased abroad. She took part in the engagement at Manila bay in May, 1898, and last summer brought Adm. Watson home from the Asiatic station upon his relief. Since then she has been docked at New York, awaiting action from the navy department. The board decided to retain her old engines, but to have her boilers removed and renovated and to install an evenly balanced battery of ten or twelve six-inch guns, instead of the four eight-inch and six six-inch breech-loading rifles which now compose her main battery.

BY A NORTHEASTER.

Much Damage to Property Wrought in Anastasia Island—The Tide Was Very High.

St. Augustine, Fla., Jan. 5.—Much damage was done in Anastasia island by a northeaster. The morning tide was very high, and the lower part of the roadbed and track of the South Beach railway was washed away. The carriage drive across the island and around by the lighthouse was also badly damaged. The heavy seas cut away large quantities of the ocean front in the neighborhood of Casa Marina. The Ciquina Sheaf, on which valuable property stands, is almost gone. The encroachment all along is greater than it has been for five years. Owners of property on the island will call the attention of the government officials to the great need of protection from the encroachment of the seas.

FIFTY-SIXTH CONGRESS.

Second Session.

Washington, Jan. 4.—Senate—On Thursday the shipping subsidy bill was displaced from its privileged position as "unfinished business" and the army reorganization bill substituted for it. The latter bill was taken up, with a view to pressing it to an early vote. A bill providing for the extension of the land laws of the United Sates to Hawaii was introduced by Senator Hansbrough. Senator Hansbrough also introduced a bill creating a department of education and giving the head of the department a place in the president's cabinet.

House—The reapportionment bill was taken up. Mr. Olmstead (Pa.) offered, as a matter of privilege, a resolution reciting the alleged abridgment of the suffrage in Louisiana, Mississippi, South Carolina and North Carolina, and directing the committee on census to investigate and report the facts to the house, in order that a constitutional basis of representation could be established for those states. Lost by a vote of 61 to 85.

Washington, Jan. 5.—Senate—For five hours the senate discussed the army reorganization bill. The debate took a wide range, at this, but was confined principally to the question of the necessity for the increase in the regular army provided for in the pending measure. Mr. Hoar advanced a proposition to create a commission, to be composed of all shades of political opinion, to investigate the entire Philippine question and report its findings to congress, in order that a basis might be formed for intelligent action.

House—The Olmstead resolution to investigate the abridgement of the suffrage in certain southern states, with a view to reapportionment upon the actual basis of suffrage was rereferred to the census committee. After the resolution had been thus disposed of the reapportionment bill was taken up and debated by Mr. Hopkins (Ill.) and Mr. Shafroth (Col.). An attempt to agree upon a time for the final vote on the bill failed, although the general impression is that the debate will conclude early next week.

Washington, Jan. 7.—Senate—While the senate was in session for more than three hours Saturday, little in the way of important legislation was accomplished. The senate committee on military affairs Saturday agreed to report favorably the amendment to the army reorganization bill suggested Friday by Senator Proctor, regarding staff positions. The committee decided at the same time to make adverse reports upon all other amendments.

House—No business of importance was transacted Saturday.

AN APPROPRIATION BILL.

The Legislative, Executive and Judicial Measure Was Reported in the Senate.

Washington, Jan. 5.—The legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill was reported to the senate making the first regular appropriation bill to be reported. The only amendment of a legislative character added by the committee is one providing that "temporary clerks who have been in the service of the government for two years and who have demonstrated their efficiency may, in the discretion of the secretary of the department in which they are employed, be appointed to fill vacancies in the classified service whenever such vacancies occur."

WAR REVENUE LAW.

Senator Nelson Will Offer an Amendment in Regard to Bequests or Legacies.

Washington, Jan. 4.—Senator Wilson Thursday gave notice of an amendment he will offer to the bill for the modification of the war revenue law, providing that "all bequests or legacies for uses of a religious, literary, charitable or educational character, including works of art, on which the tax heretofore imposed has not been paid or collected, shall be and are hereby declared to be exempt from the payment of such tax."

Reciprocity Treaties.

Washington, Jan. 5.—The senate committee on foreign relations has agreed to report favorably the reciprocity treaties with Nicaragua, British Guiana and Ecuador, and also a supplementary extradition treaty with Great Britain, making the obtaining of money under false pretenses, the obstruction of railroad trains and the procuring of abortion extraditable offenses.

To Restore Capital Punishment.

Denver, Col., Jan. 5.—Among the bills introduced in the legislature was one for the restoration of capital punishment. This is a result of the recent lynchings in the state. Three men have been summarily executed within a year. Another bill requests congress to call a convention to frame a constitutional amendment making the election of senators by popular vote.

STATE ODDS AND ENDS.

IS NURSING HER.

His Fiancee Had the Smallpox, But He Married Her and Accepted the Quarantine.

Pleasureville, Ky., Jan. 5.—A most remarkable marriage was that of Barbon Sanford and Miss Carrie Hall, of this place. Sanford, who has been in Cuba since he was mustered out of the 1st Kentucky regiment, came to Kentucky for his bride. The wedding was to occur New Year's day. The groom went to Newcastle to get his license, and on his return found his bride broken out with smallpox and guards around the house. Admission was denied him, and the hotels would not lodge him. Sanford finally determined to marry his sweetheart even if she did have the smallpox and to nurse her through her illness. Securing Rev. Mr. Demarcc and two immune witnesses, he entered the house and was married. The house is still guarded by the county board of health, which expects to prevent any spread of the disease. The smallpox-stricken bride is doing well.

STATE TREASURY.

Kentucky Has Funds on Hand to the Amount of $815,711—The Inspector's Annual Report.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 3.—State Inspector Henry B. Hines made his annual report to the governor and auditor Wednesday, showing the condition of the state treasury. The report shows a cash balance on hand of $815,711.

Gov. Beckham Wednesday night said:

"The report of the inspector, showing the splendid condition of the treasury, is a sufficient answer to the question of whether there will be an extra session of the legislature for the purpose of raising money for the state, and, beyond this, I have no statement to make on the extra session talk."

DISTILLERS LOSE.

Crigler & Crigler, of Covington, Get Duplicate Receipts to the Amount of $6,000.

Lexington, Ky., Jan. 3.—The local revenue office has been notified that 76 warehouse receipts for whisky, valued at $6,000, tendered to the manager of the Headley & Peck distillery here by Crigler & Crigler, of Covington, have proved to be duplicates. They bear the signature of W. H. Headley, former secretary and treasurer of the company who fled to Mexico just before an exposure several years ago. Crigler & Crigler will lose the $5,000; as owners of the concern they also lost the tax on whisky paid to the government. They have been victims of previously exposed duplications to the extent of thousands of dollars.

Thinks Noaks Is in Canada.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 5.—Robert Noaks, the star witness, and upon whose testimony ex-Secretary of State Powers was sentenced to life imprisonment in the penitentiary, is supposed to be in Canada. His bondsman, J. C. Maynor, an attorney of Williamsburg, is said to be at Buffalo, N. Y., searching for Noaks, while Canadian detectives in the Dominion are keeping a close lookout for him, but so far without results.

Used a Case Knife.

Princeton, Ky., Jan. 5.—Friday morning at Dry Fork, in this county, an operation for appendicitis was performed on Floyd Oliver, a 19-year-old boy, by a country doctor. As the operation had to be performed at once, and he had no suitable instruments, the doctor used a common case knife. Oliver is improving rapidly, and the chances are that he will recover.

No Extra Session.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 3.—The state officials have been annoyed by persistent publications regarding a probable extra session. Auditor Coulter has issued a statement showing the condition of the state treasury to contradict the story that the state finances need legislation, and all state officers, including Gov. Beckham, unite in the statement that there will be no extra session.

Took Strychnine.

Hutchinson, Kan., Jan. 5.—A young man, aged 30 years, who registered as R. S. Osborn, from Lexington, Ky., committed suicide at the Windsor hotel, in this city, Friday, by taking strychnine.

Lexington, Ky., Jan. 5.—No one could be found here who knows anything of R. S. Osborn, the young man who committed suicide in Hutchinson, Kan.

Smallpox at Somerset.

Somerset, Ky., Jan. 5.—A young son of Milfred Barnet, recently living at Lexington, arrived home a few days ago, and was taken sick with what is now known to be smallpox. Every precaution is being taken to prevent the spread of the disease.

A Kentuckian Fails.

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 5.—J. T. Myles, a tobacco buyer and broker, filed a petition in bankruptcy Friday, with liabilities of $16,938 and assets of $650. Most of his creditors live in Western Kentucky.

DEAD FOR DAYS.

Mother Held Her Child in Her Arms —Loss of Husband and Offspring Unbalanced Her.

Corbin, Ky., Jan. 4.—Mrs. Martha Frye was found at her home in the mountains in a destitute condition, holding in her arms her 5-year-old child that had been dead for days. Mr. and Mrs. Frye came to the mountains not long ago for Mrs. Frye's health. Mr. Frye was killed recently by an accident in Clay county. His death and that of her child, together with poverty and sickness, apparently caused Mrs. Frye's mind to collapse.

Mrs. Frye was the daughter of once wealthy parents living in the south, but they lost their property in a land scheme. Mrs. Frye showed her aristocratic rearing, and, though poverty-stricken, was haughty as a queen. Her brother, who is a farmer in Tennessee, has been communicated with. It is believed that Mrs. Frye will not survive her husband and child long.

THE TRIENNIAL CONCLAVE.

Forty Thousand Dollars Will Be Spent in Decorations and Illuminations in Louisville.

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 5.—The committee on arrangements for the 28th triennial conclave of Knights Templars, to be held in Louisville August 27-30 next, decided Friday night to spend $20,000 on decorations and illuminations. This will be independent of a similar amount to be put into electric designs, etc., by business firms.

A novelty among the decorations will be an immense floral arch built to span one of the widest streets in the city. The structure will consist of a framework covered by tropical plants and growing flowers representing the flora of the south. Two thousand palms alone of various varities will be requested.

The area mapped out for public decoration and illumination will cover about 35 blocks in the business and residence section of the city.

STEMMERS' STRIKE ENDS.

The Employes and the Management of the Continental Tobacco Co. Make Concessions.

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 4.—The big strike of the 1,500 stemmers at the Continental tobacco factory is settled, and practically all hands returned to work Friday morning.

The employes have received the assurance of the managers that all their demands are granted, with the exception of the increase of 25 cents on the $1 in wages. The company agrees to do away with the docking system, which has been in vogue, but any stemmer bringing improperly cleaned leaf will be discharged and have due notice of the fact.

The employes agreed to accept the situation.

Propose to Try Prohibition.

Irvine, Ky., Jan. 3.—A strong movement is now being agitated in Estill county for local prohibition. The county's record for two years past, which is 13, men killed and 14 wounded, has caused an earnest desire to drive whisky out, as it has been the cause of nearly all the killings.

Shot in Self-Defense.

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 4.—Robert Hall was Thursday morning dismissed in the city court on the charge of murder. Hall, who was a steward at the Phoenix hotel, was attacked by William Ellis, a Negro employe. He was forced into a corner and was beaten with a rolling pin over the head, when, to save his life, he fired the fatal shot.

Louisville Tobacco Market.

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 4.—The tobacco market was good Thursday for all grades of burley. Competition was satisfactory. Old burley was strong. Dark was not satisfactory, neither leaf nor lugs being up to recent markets. The total offerings were 973 hhds, of which 831 hhds were burley and 142 hhds dark.

One Killed, Another Wounded.

London, Ky., Jan. 5.—At a primary for the nomination of county officers in Owsley county Lewis Moore was shot and instantly killed, while his brother, James Moore, was mortally wounded. Abe Wilson and App Morrill are in jail, charged with the crime.

Football Player Married.

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 4.—"One of the Van Winkles"—Arthur C., famous as a Centre college footballist, was married to Miss Bessie Monks.

To Defraud Insurance Companies.

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 4.—The grand jury Thursday returned a true bill against W. W. Parrish, John H. DeWitt, W. R. Coe and Sylvester Breeden, charging them with conspiring to defraud insurance companies. The indictment has two sets of charges.

Troops No Longer Needed.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 4.—Gov. Beckham has ordered Company A, 2d regiment, mustered out. It was organized by the democrats during the political war last year, with City Clerk Ben Marshall as captain.

NEW YEAR.

Last week we reported the manner in which we passed the closing week of last year, and as some believe, the last week of the 19th century. We now propose to report the manner in which we spent the first week of the second year of the 20thcentury (as we reckon the christian era.) We adopt this plan of reporting the social events we enjoy, since we trust to sight rather than hearing—the hearing in our case being somewhat defective.

The forenoon of the 1st we spent in Burlington. After enjoying a delightful New Year's dinner with mine host and hostess of the Fowler Hotel, we started for our old neighborhood, where we have spent so many happy years. We spent an hour very pleasantly at the new home of our young married friends, Mr. and Mrs. John Duncan. In our next report we hope to give a description of their home, which we deem one of the cosiest as well as the most idealistic houses we have entered in a long time. From there we drove to the hospitable home of our good friends, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. T. Gaines, where we always expect a hearty welcome. This is one of the homes that we do not hesitate to enter.

After spending a couple of very pleasant hours here, we wended our way to the goal we started out to seek, an entertainment to be given by Dr. Hays, which we now propose to give an account of. The doctor is a tipical host and always gives the most delightful parties of the season. He is especially qualified to do this since he is a gentleman of the highest type—fully conversant with the rules of polite society, attentive to the enjoyment of his guests and always alert that no one will become a wall-flower or get stranded upon a sandbar. On this occasion the Doctor surpassed himself in his studious effort to make his sixty-two guests enjoy to the fullest extent the bliss of the evening. All the lovely daughters and gallant sons who form the old Bullitteville social circle, were present save one, whose absence we noted soon after entering the parlor. She is one of the brightest and prettiest stars in the galaxy which forms this circle and a marked favorite of ours, hence the readiness with which we noted her absence. The Doctor had arranged for dancing in one room, card playing in another and courting in the hall or on the stairway. These arrangements were heartily approved by his numerous guests. The members of the church played cards, those who were not members danced and there were others who preferred the arrangements for the hall and stairway.

The lady guests who are visiting in the country are Miss Ada Early, of Lexington, visiting her cousin, Miss Beulah Gaines; Miss Beulah Hockensmyth, of Catlettsburg, with Miss Birdie Holton; Miss Sarah Colman, of Sanders, with Miss Lutie Gaines; Miss Eleanor Goodin, of Delhi, O., the guest of Mrs. George Walton; Miss Irene Kirtley, of Covington, who has been visiting Miss Bernice Duncan, Miss Zayda Gaines, and Miss Katherine Jewitt, of Eminence, the guest of Miss Fannie Gordon. These ladies were all good dancers and from the following they received, must have possessed many other charming qualities. I wish to congratulate the young men for their gallantry to these ladies.

I hope the other ladies will pardon me for making special mention of one of this number—Miss Katherine Jewitt, after many solicitations, very reluctantly consented to favor the guests with a recitation. She recited "The Watermelon Moral" in a very characteristic style, displaying her high state of culture in the art of elocution, and her talent of personation. Nature has favored her with a pair of bright, bewitching, sparkling eyes, a beautiful face and expressive features. The applause she received was so hearty that she could not refuse the guests another recitation. She recited "Cicily and the Bears," in a style that confirmed her audience in the belief that she possess a wonderful talent in the art of elocution.

The gentlemen of marked distinction present were Mr. Jenkins, of Frankfort, the guest of Miss Fannie Gordon; Dr. Fred Longfield, of Missouri, the guest and nephew of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Gaines; Dr. Sayre, of Hebron; Dr. Carlton Crisler, of Ludlow, the guest of Miss Zayda Gaines; Dr. Alf Chambers, of Idlewild; Dr. Leslie Walton, of Petersburg; Dr. Buddie Cropper, of North Bend, and Dr. J. A. Duncan, of Burlington. About 10 o'clock the Doctor served a delightful lunch, after partaking of which, the guests continued to enjoy the festivities of the evening and at 2 a. m., very reluctantly left for their homes.

We spent the remainder of the night with Mr. Gaines; returned to Burlington to dinner; went to the city in the afternoon and attended the presentation of King Henry V. by Richard Mansfield. This we would not have missed for a ten dollar gold piece.

Next morning we went to Covington with a horse we had bought of Mr. C. W. Riddell for our sister—turned him over to our brother-in-law, and started post haste for the home of Squire Clinton Gaines to attend a session of the far-famed Cooking Club. We arrived in time for dinner and found about seventy-five present. We would like to say something about the royal feast we sat down to, but will have to forego that privilege, for fear the mysterious "Friend of the Cooking Club" might assail us next week and tell us we had no right to be there, and therefore had no right to tell of the delightful time we had. [Western Tobacco Journal.]

The Leaf Tobacco market opened here on Wednesday with all grades selling at about the same prices current at the close of the old year.

The colory sorts in Old were active in the bidding, and showed a shade more firmness in the demand than those of heavier body and red color, with the one exception, viz., Common Smokers, which are certainly in more urgent request at higher prices.

These sorts, we think were almost, if not quite, one cent per pound higher this week than at the close of the old year

For New the market seems a shade stronger on some grades and a little easier on others. Medium Red Leaf and Tips appear stronger in the bidding, while short Trashes and Lugs, and those grades of a nondescript character, appear hardly so stong. From the offerings it would appear that these sorts are being offered more freely than the Fillery sorts. The latter are active in the bidding and are, as a rule, bringing prices fully up to the expectations of those offering the same.

The better grades of Fillers and Twist Wrappers are active and in good demand. Tobacco of this sort reached 14½ cents, the highest price obtained for New Tobacco before Christmas. Tobacco bringing this price is perfect in its class.

The first anti-slavery society was organized in 1775 at Philadelphia.

A new name for voting machines has been invented. They are now called votometers.

Valley Forge is urged upon the attention of congress as a fitting place for another national park.

In 1801 there were only 5,000 Italian-speaking people in the United States; now there are 460,000.

Marking historic places in St. Louis with tablets is a good idea for the world's fair, and also for local educational purposes.

Near the coast of Cuba a fresh-water spring arises from the bottom of the ocean, and for some distance around the water is perfectly fresh. A similar submarine spring is known to exist in the Gulf of Spezzia.

Harry Vardon, the great British golf expert, has decided to make his home in the United States. He will visit England this winter to close up his affairs preparatory to leaving the country for good. He says there is more money to be made here at golf than in Great Britain.

BEAVER LICK.—John Taylor and wife spent Sunday with his sister, Mrs Blankenbaker.

Aunt Eliza Osman is very low.

Nace Conuelly, who has been employed in Covington, has returned home.

Jim Lancaster, who is employed with the Belle Telephone Co., was at home Sunday.

Frank Uell gave the young folks a dance, last Friday night, and they tripped the light fantastic until the wee sma' hours. All report a good time.

T. J. Hughes, our accommodating merchant, met with what might have been quite a serious accident, one day last week. He was coming from Richwood on his bike, when he overtook an old hound, when he took after the dog for a chase, and when they were going so fast that the telephone poles looked like a picket fence, the tire flew off of the front wheel of the bike, giving Mr. Hughes a hard fall. He says he will run no more races with "yaller" dogs.

GASBURG.—Capt. John Klopp has been in charge of the Aurora ferry since January 1st.

A neighbor has a sow with a litter of 10—all females.

Joe Bauer had a fine colt to get so badly hurt that it died.

Bud Moreland and Miss Nannie Louaker will wed, Wednesday.

Jack Cook and family, of Bellevue, visited relatives here several days last week.

Nat Rogers and wife, of the Bellevue vicinity, visited Mrs. Rogers' parents here, Sunday.

Owing to the low prices prevailing, the tobacco crop this year will likely be smaller than usual.

Charles Fitch has moved to the Appleton Farm, and Terry Bondurant has moved into the house vacated by Fitch.

Marshall Terrill has so far recovered from his late indisposition as to be able to return, Sunday, to Louisville to resume his studies in dentistry.

Robt. Nixon, Mrs Davis and W. T. Stott have each had a cow to die lately. Elijah Parker lost two calves. One or both were likely killed by hunters.

Experiments have for some time been made in England with smokeless coal. This peculiar fuel may be burned either in an ordinary grate or in a basin in the middle of the room without developing any perceptible odor or smoke at any time. The fire looks like the finest coal fire, and the flame is white and blue.

An inventor has hit upon a method of putting stone soles on boots and shoes. He mixes a waterproof glue with a suitable quantity of clean quartz sand and spreads it over the leather side used as a foundation. These quartz soles are said to be very flexible and to give the foot a firm hold even on the most slippery surface.

There is a church bell in Salt Lake City, Utah, which seems to have a peculiar effect on dogs. On Sunday morning, as soon as the bell begins to ring, the canines within hearing distance start in a single file for the church, in front of which they keep up a howling chorus until the bell stops ringing. No other bell in the city has the same effect.

Women in China have the privilege of fighting in the wars. In the rebellion of 1850 women did as much fighting as the men. At Nanking in 1853 500,000 women from the various parts of the country were formed into brigades of 13,000 each, under female officers. Of these soldiers 10,000 were picked women, drilled and garrisoned in the city.

Farmers and veterinarians throughout central Missouri are much concerned at present upon the effect which the decayed ends of corn are having upon horses and cattle. It is believed that the ends of the ears contain some parasite which crazes the animals. In Pettis county hardly a day passes that some fine animal is not reported dead from the effects of the corn.

It is asserted that the emperor has decided to signalize his recovery by repealing many of the most oppressive laws and decrees against the Jews, of whom there are more than 5,000,000 in Russia. Both the empress and himself ascribe his preservation from death to the cleverness and care of his principal physician, Dr. Hirsch, who is not only a member of the Hebrew race, but likewise a professing Jew.

Perhaps the oddest suit of furniture in the world is owned by a certain hotel keeper. For many years he has made it his business to collect match boxes, of which he has now a collection of 4,000. He ordered a skilled cabinet maker to equip a room with furniture made of these boxes. The outfit consists of a writing table with smoking apparatus, a fire screen, a cabinet, a chair and other smaller articles.

Burglars are said to seldom receive more than 20 per cent. of the value of their booty from the buyers to whom they dispose of it, if it happens to be in any other form than coin. A fifty-dollar Bank of England note will bring about $10 from a buyer, while $500 worth of plate would be worth only $75 or $100 to the thief, who must risk years of liberty in obtaining it, and so on with all other valuables.

Archduke Otto, the future emperor of Austria, is an artist of great talent. He possesses his own studio in the Academy of Fine Arts in Vienna, and divides his time between the headquarters of the cavalry corps which he commands and his studio. The archduke has frequently exhibited his work anonymously, in order that it might stand on its merits, and not be favorably criticised because of his rank.

The pope's army is but a small force nowadays, and when the whole contingent turned out for a review at the vatican recently there were but 300 all told. There are five divisions—the Guardia Mobile, 50 young aristocrats from stanchly clerical departments; 100 so-called Swiss Guards, some of whom are Italian mountaineers; 100 apiece of the Guardia Palatina, and the Papal Gendarmes and 30 firemen.

There are many curious things about X rays which seem to puzzle even the scientists. Sig. Briguiti, who has been making experiments with them at Rome, says that the visibility of a substance to the eye is no criterion of its visibility to the X rays. The rays can not see through glass which is transparent to the eye, whereas aluminum, which is opaque to the eye, is transparent to the X rays. The rays can see a splinter of glass in the hand, but not a splinter of wood.

Owing to an alteration of name few people are aware that the United States gave birth to such a great soprano singer as Mme. Nordica. Her proper name was Norton and she was born in the state of Maine. Madame's first English appearance was at the Crystal Palace in 1877. The great singer's first husband was Mr. Gower, who, having invented a steering apparatus for balloons, started to cross the English channel to France. He was never heard of again, and in 1886 Mme. Nordica married Mr. Lucas.

HAVE NOT GIVEN IT UP.

Promotors Confident the Jeffries-Ruhlin Fight Will Take Place.

Evangelical Association Attorneys Have a Warrant Ready For the Arrest of Ruhlin, Who Appears in Cincinnati Sunday.

Cincinnati, Jan. 12.—The directors of the Saengerfest Athletic association, of Cincinnati, express the fullest determination that the Jeffries-Ruhlin fight will be pulled off here February 15, but the preponderance of public sentiment, including state, county and city officials, is to the contrary.

Most of the conferences have been between attorneys representing the opposing elements. While the ministers held an enthusiastic meeting with their counsel and the women's clubs and other organizations opposing the fight held meetings and were unusually active, yet the coatest now seems to be between Mayor Fleischmann and the directors of the Saengerfest Athletic association.

After repeated conferences with their attorneys, these two elements finally met. Friday night the directors gave out the following:

"The members of the Saengerfest Athletic association requested of Mayor Fleischmann the immediate issuance of a permit. The mayor declined to issue the permit now, but reaffirmed his promise and assured the committee that he would issue the permit two days before the date of the proposed contest. The directors yet hold that the contest can and will take place in Cincinnati on February 15.

Since Mayor Fleischmann has been advised by the corporation counsel and other attorneys that the proposed fight for the championship of the world does not come within the intention of the Ohio statutes for sparring exhibitions under the auspices of bona fide athletic clubs, it is understood that the only kind of a permit that he would give even two days in advance of the date would be one that would come under the Ohio law. The mayor maintained that no other kind of a permit by him would be legal and, therefore, effective.

While there is much contention among the attorneys and the different elements that have been seeking to promote the contest on the one hand, to prevent it one the other, it is certainly the consensus of opinion here that the official action of the directors in declaring the fight off is only a question of time.

The attorneys of the Evangelical association of this city have a warrant ready for the arrest of Gus Ruhlin, who has an engagement to appear at the Irwin matinee here Sunday and at the performances during the week while he is in training here. The Ohio statute makes it a felony to be in training in the state for a prize fight, and under this section the opponents of the fight propose to begin with the prosecution of Ruhlin, even to the extent of taking his case before the grand jury, which is now in session.

New York, Jan. 12.—Gus Ruhlin has concluded his training in the east and left for Cincinnati, where he will begin final preparations for his fight with Jeffries, which is scheduled for February 15.

DOUBLE TRAGEDY.

Unrequited Love Caused the Attempted Murder of Two Sisters at Galena, Ill.

Galena, Ill., Jan. 12.—Unrequited love was the cause of an attempted murder, as a result of which Amelia and Tillie Bergman, sisters, are at the point of death, and their assailant, George Duerrstein, is being traced with bloodhounds and a posse of 35 citizens, headed by Sheriff Homrich, of Jo Daviess county.

The girls, aged 20 and 17, respectively, are daughters of a widowed mother whom they support, and the capture of their assailant may result in a lynching. Both are probably fatally injured, one being shot in the head, while the other is shot in the abdomen.

Duerrstein is a member of one of Jo Daviess county's most prominent and wealthy families, and had been educated for the ministry.

FILIPINO STRONGHOLDS.

Maj. Case, of the 40th regiment, is operating in the mountainous region of southwest Cagayan. He has destroyed several strongholds and captured some prisoners.

Minor captures and surreaders continue in Luzon.

The civil officers of several towns in Zambales proviace met at San Antonio recently and signed an ultimatum to send to the insurgent leaders, notifying the insurgents that they will be paid 30 pesos apiece for rifles and liberated if they agree to keep quiet, setting forth that since Gen. MacArthur's proclamation it is impossible to any longer contribute assistance, and announcing that if the insurgents do not return to their homes by January 30, they will be considered enemies of their people, who will then assist the Americans to pursue them.

AN IMPORTANT MOVE.

Reported That England Will Cede to Russia Railway From Niu-Chwang to Shan-Hai-Kwan.

London, Jan. 12.—The Daily Chronicle makes the following important statement:

"From a trustworthy source we learn that Lord Salisbury has agreed to cede to Russia the railway from Niu-Chwang to Shan-Hai-Kwan. It is not known what compensation will be received for the concession."

Leading financiers versed in Chinese affairs, who were interviewed by a representative of the Daily Mail, appeared to think that, if the news were correct, it indicated that Lord Salisbury recognized the impossibility of preventing the partition of China, and that Russia would get the north and Great Britain the Yang Tse valley.

The original prospectus of the railway company stipulated that the bondholders, mainly British, could be bought out at any time at the rate of £120 per £100 bond.

The Daily Chronicle, in an editorial on the subject, taunts Lord Salisbury with having made another "graceful concession," because Great Britain's entanglements deprive her of the strength to back up her diplomacy.

For the 12 months the aggregate was $832,864,250, a net increase of $119,000,000.

ONE THOUSAND KILLED

French Force Defeated a Body of Boxers Near Pao Ting Fu.

How Long It Will Take to Reach a Conclusion Regarding the Demands of the Powers It Is Impossible to Predict.

Shanghai, Jan. 14.—The Italian consul at Shanghai, in explaining the presence of Italian warships at San Mun bay, says they went there for target practice.

It is again reported here that the allies are preparing to enter the province of Shan Si.

A French force is reported to have defeated a body of Boxers west of Pao Ting Fu, killing 1,000.

Washington, Jan. 14.—The expectation here is that active negotiations will begin at once. The negotiations will be conducted by the ministers now at Peking, on the part of the allied powers, and by Li Hung Chang and Prince Ching, representing the Chinese. How long it will take to reach any conclusions regarding the demands of the powers, it is impossible to predict, but the Chinese will resort to every effort to obtain the best terms possible for their country. The understanding here is that the note will be signed without qualification on the part of the Chinese, leaving to the negotiators the adjustment of portions to which the court has objected, including the razing of the Taku forts, the continuance of the legation guards in Peking, etc.

Peking, Jan. 14.—The joint note of the powers has finally been signed by the Chinese peace commissioners. Prince Ching signed Saturday and Li Hung Chang, who is better, signed it Sunday.

It is understood that the malady from which Li Hung Chang is suffering is Bright's disease. He was feeling worse Saturday, and therefore postponed the affixing of his signature, but Prince Ching was hopeful that he would be able to sign Sunday, which proved to be the case.

Most of the envoys have received word from their governments that the negotiations must be conducted in Peking, on the ground that, for various reasons, other places suggested would be objectionable. The Russians say they will formally turn over the railroad to the Germans immediately. M. de Giers, the Russian minister, objects to the British attitude in refusing to permit the Russians to distribute rice and wheat to destitute Chinese in the British section.

FARMER MURDERED.

His Aged Mother Was Brutally Assaulted and the House Ransacked From Top to Bottom.

Portland, Me., Jan. 14.—Thos. O. Moshier, a farmer, aged 25, was murdered, and his mother, Mrs. Rufus Moshier, aged 72, was brutally assaulted at their home in Gorham Saturday evening by two men who forced an entrance into the Moshier residence with the evident intention of robbery.

After completing their ghastly work the men ransacked the house, taking what valuables they could find. One of the men was a Negro.

About noon Sunday William Hands, a Negro, was arrested at Scarboro. In his possession were found a blood-stained razor marked with Moshier's name, $40 in money, consisting chiefly of bills which were also stained with blood, and a watch. His hands and clothing were soiled and bloody. The man admits having been at the Moshier farm house and says he left his companion in Portland.

DRIFTING ICE FLOES.

A Blockade of St. Johns is Threatened—They Are Already in Sight of That Port.

St. Johns, N. F., Jan. 14.—Northern ice floes drifting along the Atlantic coast now threaten to blockade St. Johns. They were already within sight of this port. The coast steamer Virginia, bound north with provisions for coast settlements, was compelled to abandon the voyage owing to her inability to penetrate the ice barrier.

Incoming vessels report that the floes are sweeping outward toward the track of the trans-Atlantic steamers and are likely to reach the latitude of Cape Race this week.

Charged With Embezzlement.

Nashville, Tenn., Jan. 14.—Walter S. Rainey, circuit court clerk of this (Davidson) county, was arrested here on a charge of embezzlement in office. The warrant was issued upon application of the Fidelity and Casualty Insurance Co., of Baltimore, Md., which is on Rainey's bond for $10,000 respectively in the First and Second circuit courts. He was admitted to bail in the sum of $10,000.

Over a Hundred Drowned.

Tacoma, Wash., Jan. 14.—Oriental advices say an overcrowded passenger steamer plying on West river lost her rudder and was carried by the current on the rocks near Canton, sinking in a few minutes. Of 500 passengers on board 130 were drowned.

Death of Joseph Yates Paige.

Washington, Jan. 14.—Joseph Yates Paige, for the past six years chief clerk of the controller of the currency, died Sunday morning of pneumonia. He was well known to the banking interests of the country.

BANK ROBBERS SURPRISED.

Officer Goss Engaged a Gang of Four Single-Handed at Cumberland, Md.—Two Were Hit.

Cumberland, Md., Jan. 14.—Officer Charles W. Goss, of the city police force, surprised a gang of men attempting to rob the German Savings bank early Sunday morning. He engaged in a single-handed battle with three of the men, who were already in the bank, and one acting as sentinel on the corner. Goss is sure he hit two as they came out of the bank door, one in the back and one in the arm. He emptied his revolver from a vantage point behind the shadow of a telegraph pole, and all five men shot in his direction a number of times. Five bullet marks were left in the pole.

The gang ran down Baltimore street and made their escape out the West Virginia Central railroad track, terrorizing the few persons they met on the way by indiscriminate firing. They probably numbered six persons, armed with Winchesters and large revolvers. They shot at the operator of the West Virginia railroad as he raised the window at the station, a bullet crashing through the glass. They also shot at another policeman. Nothing was stolen from the bank. Afterward the gang committed two small robberies in South Cumberland. They are still at large. The bank has offered a reward of $250 and voted $50 to Goss.

PANIC IN A HALL.

Five Persons Were Trampled to Death and About Two Score Were Badly Injured.

Chicago, Jan. 14.—Four persons who were reported missing Saturday night after the panic in the Twelfth Street Turner hall, during which five persons were trampled to death, were accounted for Sunday. Though there were more than two score of persons badly hurt, the list of dead was not increased Sunday and it is thought now that none of the injured will die.

In the Jewish quarter it was repeatedly asserted Saturday night and Sunday that the panic was started with malicious intent. Hugo Oldstein, a cripple, has informed the police that just a few minutes before the false cry of fire was raised a young man accosted him at the foot of the stairs leading to the hall and advised him to get out of the way, saying that there "Would be something doing in a minute."

The manager of the hall Sunday declared his belief that the panic Saturday night and a similar, but less serious stampede there a few weeks previous, were started with the latent of injuring his building.

SERIES OF RIOTS.

Street Fights Between Colored and White Men at Wichita, Kan.—Several Persons Wounded.

Wichita, Kan., Jan. 14.—A series of riots, which began in this city early Sunday morning, ended Sunday evening in a street fight between three colored and three white men. More than a dozen shots were exchanged between Wiley Schnell, a Texas Negro, and Cash Johnson, a white trunk maker. Schnell was shot in the head, but will not die. Johnson was shot through the groin and his condition is serious. A man named Herford was slashed with a razor, and a young man from the country had several ribs broken. The principal Negro contestant fled, and a mob of 200 white men pursued and caught him. Policemen hurried him into a wagon and succeeded in escaping from the mob. The result of the day's rioting is 17 arrests.

Several hoodlums who tossed a motorman off a trolley car, breaking his legs and ribs, started all the trouble. A strong force of police has been posted and peace has reigned since last evening.

ROOSEVELT HUNTING.

The Vice President-Elect Killed His First Mountain Lion—Narrow Escape of Dr. Webb.

Chicago, Jan. 14.—A special from Meeker, Col., says: Gov. Roosevelt shot his first mountain lion Saturday after following the animal for more than two miles. The lion, which had been treed, sprang from his perch toward the party and narrowly escaped striking Dr. Webb, one of Gov. Roosevelt's hosts. The governor fired at the animal, hitting him fairly while in the air, and saving Dr. Webb from probable serious injury.

Knoxville, Tenn., Jan. 14.—Thirty-six men left here Sunday for Ecuador to serve as foremen, timekeepers, etc., for the James McDonald Contracting Co. in building 300 miles of railway from Guayaquil to Quito, over the Andes mountains. Mr. McDonald says he now has at work 5,000 Jamaicans and expects to take 5,000 more men, mainly Italians, to work on the contract.

The Mosquito Fleet.

Hamilton, Bermuda, Jan. 14.—The United States war vessels Annapolis, Frolic, Wompatuck and Piscataqua, constituting the mosquito fleet, which arrived here January 2, sailed at 9:30 Sunday. The officers say they were charmed with their visit.

Fishermen Perish in a Storm.

Yokohama, Jan. 14.—It is officially reported that four hundred fishermen are missing and that they are supposed to have perished in a storm on January 10 that occurred off the west coast.

DEFEAT OF THE BOERS

About 1,400 Attacked Zuurfontein and Kaalfontein Stations.

Burghers Cut the Wires Between Irene and Olifantsfontein and Blew Up the Railway Line Beyond Kaalfontein.

London, Jan. 14.—The war office has received the following dispatch from Lord Kitchener:

"Pretoria, Sunday, Jan. 13.—About 1,400 Boers crossed the line, attacking both Zuurfontein and Kaalfontein stations, but were driven off. They are being pursued by a cavalry brigade."

Lord Kitchener reports also several skirmishes at different points, with trifling British losses, and adds:

"Three agents of the peace commissioners were taken as prisoners to De Wet's langer, near Lindley, January 10. One, who was a British subject, was flogged and then shot. The other two, burghers, were flogged by De Wet's orders."

Pretoria, Saturday, Jan. 12.—Last night the Boers cut the wires between Irene and Olifantstein stations. Early this morning 800 Boers under Commandant Beyer, invested Kaalfontein station. A hot rifle fire and shell fire, with two field pieces and a Maxim, was maintained for six hours. An armored train and reinforcements were sent from Pretoria, but before they had arrived upon the scene the garrison had driven off the Boers, who retired unmolested with a transport train half a mile long. The Boers blew up the line beyond Kaalfontein, compelling the mail train to return here. It is supposed their object was to obtain supplies, a great quantity of which is stored at Kaalfontein. The British had no casualties.

TWO PASSENGERS MISSING.

It Is Believed They Either Jumped or Fell Overboard From the Steamship Koeln.

New York, Jan. 14.—It was learned Sunday from the purser of the North German Lloyd steamship Koeln, which had just arrived in port, that two passengers either jumped or fell overboard from the vessel while on her way to this port. It is believed that they committed suicide. Edward Hermann and his wife Freda, 59 and 56 years old respectively, were on the lists of the second cabin when the vessel left Bremerhaven. They said they were on their way to Chicago, where they have relatives. They had appeared despondent and had little to say to their fellow travelers.

They were last seen on deck on January 3. When they were missed some time later a thorough search was made but no trace of them could be found.

THEBIG OIL WELL.

Thousands of People Visited the Gusher Near Beaumont, Tex.—Special Trains Run.

Beaumont, Tex., Jan. 14.—Thousands of people visited the immense oil well near this city Sunday. The Sabine & East Texas railroad ran passengers train to and from the well every two hours during the day, and every train of five coaches was crowded with people. So far the flow of oil has not been got under control. The amount of oil that is going to waste is enormous. The well has been flowing three days, and it is estimated that 60,000 barrels of oil is on the prairie.

There are already several large syndicates for developing oil fields formed, and many others are in process of formation.

DEAD WHEN PICKED UP.

Capt. Dippold, One of the Oldest and Best Known River Captains, Killed By a Train.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 14.—Capt. John Dippold, one of the oldest and best known river captains, was instantly killed Sunday while standing on the railroad track at Baden, his home, watching the coal boats going down the Ohio river. He was so interested in the boats that he failed to hear a train which came along and struck him. He was dead when picked up.

Two Lives Lost in Fire.

FOR GOD'S CHILDREN.

A Warm Welcome Awaits Those Who Faithfully Serve Him.

Dr. Talmage Tells What the True Disciple of Christ May Expect in the Next World—Reward of Self-Sacrifice.

In a very novel way Dr. Talmage in this discourse describes what may be expected in the next world by those who here bend all their energies in the right direction; text, II Peter i, 11: "For so an entrance shall be ministered unto you abundantly."

Different styles of welcome at the gate of Heaven are here suggested. We all hope to enter that supernal capital through the grace that is ready to save even the chief of sinners. But not now. No man healthy of body and mind wants to go now. The man who hurls himself out of this life is either an agnostic or is demented or finds life insufferable and does not care where he lands. This is the best world we ever got into, and we want to stay here as long as God will let us stay. But when the last page of the volume of our earthly life is ended we want enrollment in Heavenly citizenship. We want to get in easily. We do not want to be challenged at the gate and asked to show our passports. We do not want the gatekeeper in doubt as to whether we ought to go in at all. We do not want to be kept in the portico of the temple until consultation is made as to where we came from and who we are and whether it is safe to admit us lest we be a discord in the eternal harmonies or lower the spirit of Heavenly worship. When the apostle Peter in the text addresses the people: "For so an entrance shall be administered unto you abundantly," he implies that some will find admission into Heaven easy, rapturous and acclamatory, while others will have to squeeze through the gate of Heaven, if they get in at all. They will arrive anxious and excited and apprehensive and wondering whether it will be "Come!" or "Go!" The Bible speaks of such persons as "scarcely saved," and in another place as "saved as by fire," and in another place as escaped "by the skin of the teeth."

Carrying out the suggestion of my text, I propose to show you what classes of Christians will get into Heaven with a hard push and those who will bound in amid salutations infinite. In the first class I put that man who gets into the kingdom of God at the close of a life all given to worldliness and sin. Years ago he made the resolution that he would serve himself and serve the world until body, mind and soul were exhausted and then, just before going out of this life, would seek God and prepare to enter Heaven. He carries out his resolution. He genuinely repents the last day or the last hour or the last minute of his life. He takes the last seat in the last car of the last train bound Heavenward. His released and immortal spirit ascends. Not one wing bears down toward him with a welcome. No sign of gladness at his arrival. None there obligated to him for kindness done or alms distributed or spiritual help administered. He will find some place to stay, but I do not envy that man his Heaven. He got in, but it was not an abundant entrance.

Sometimes in our pulpits we give a wrong turn to the story of the dying thief to whom Christ said: "This day shalt thou be with me in Paradise." We ought to admire the mercy of Christ that pardoned him in the last hour, but do not let us admire the dying thief. When he was arrested, I think his pockets were full of stolen coin, and the cost he had on his back was not his own. He stole right on until he was arrested for his crimes. He repented, and through great mercy arose to Paradise, but he was no example to follow. What a gigantic meanness to devote the wondrous equipment of brain and nerve and muscle and bone with which we are endowed, these miracles of sight and hearing and speech, to purposes unworthy or profane, and then, through hasty repentance at the last, enter Heaven! Cheating God all one's lifetime and then taking advantage of a bankrupt law and made free of all abilities. I should think that some men would be ashamed to enter Heaven or would prefer some medium place in the wide universe where the palaces are not so effulgent and the trees bear not more than six instead of twelve manner of fruits and the social life is not so exalted.

Again, the bigot will not have what my text calls an abundant entrance. He has his bedwarfed opinion as to what all must believe and do in order to gain celestial residence. He has his creed in one pocket and his catechism in another pocket, and it may be a good creed and a good catechism, but he uses them as sharp swords against those who will not accept his theories. You must be baptized in his way or come to him through apostolic succession or be foreordained of eternity, or you are in an awful way. He shrivels up and shrivels up and becomes more splenetic until the time of his departure is at hand. He has enough of the salt of grace to save him, but his entrance into Heaven will be something worth watching. What do they want with him in Heaven, where they have all gone into eternal catholicity, one grand commingling of Methodists and Baptists and Episcopalians and Lutherans and Congregationalists and Presbyterians and a score of other denominations just as good as any I have mentioned? They all join in the hallelujah chorus, accompanied by harpers on their harps and trumpeters on their trumpets: "Worthy" the Lamb that was slain to receive blessing and riches and honor and glory and power!"

The bigot accedes with just enough grace to save him. As he comes up to the shining gate he sees standing inside of it some whom he used to meet every Sunday morning on the street going to some other church of some other denomination, and he cries out: "Are you there?" I never expected to see you in such a glorious place. You were all wrong in your religious theories on earth and in your form of church government. How did you get in?" "Saved by grace," is the Heavenly reply. "Saved by grace!" The bigot is embarrassed and feels for his creed and his catechism, and, lo, they were left on the banks of the River Jordan as he passed through, and he cries out: "I think I will have to enter on the same terms. Saved by grace! Saved by grace!"

Again, the penurious Christian will not have an abundant entrance. Perhaps he was not converted until all his habits of tight-fistedness were fixed beyond recovery. The people who are generous were taught to be generous in childhood. You can tell from the way the boy divides the apple what his characteristics for generosity or meanness will be for the next 80 years, if he lives so long. If he eat it all himself while others look wistfully on, he will be a Shylock; if he give half of it to some one who has no apple, he will be an ordinarily generous man; if he give three-fourths of it to another he will be a Baron Hirsch or a George Peabody.

For 30 years this man has been practicing an economy which prided itself on never passing a pin without picking it up, and if he responded at all in church would put on the collection plate so insignificant a coin that he held his hand over it so that no one could discover the smallness of the denomination. Somewhere in the fifties or sixties of his life, during a revival of religion, he became a Christian. He is very much changed in most respects, but his all-absorbing acquisitiveness still influences him. To extract from him a gift for an orphanage or a church or a poor woman who has just been burned out is an achievement. You and I know very good men, their Christian character beyond dispute, and yet they are pronounced by all as penurious, and they know it themselves and pray against it. We all have our bad habits, and yet expect to get to Heaven, and this skinflint has his mighty temptation. The passion of avarice well illustrated its strength when in one of the houses of exhumed Pompeii was found the skeleton of a man who was trying to escape with 60 coins and a silver saucepan. For those valuables he dared the ashes and scoria of Vesuvius which overwhelmed him, and many a good man has been held mightily by avarice.

But that brings me to the other thought of my text, that there are those who will, when they leave this life, bound into Heaven amid salutations infinite. "For so an entrance shall be administered unto you abundantly." Such exultant admission will await those who enter Heaven after on earth living a life for others and without reference to conspicuity. On the banks of the Ohio or the Tuscaloosa or the Androscoggin is a large family, all of whom have been carefully and religiously reared. In the earlier stages of that family there were many privations. The mother of the household never had any amusements. Perhaps once in a year a poor theatrical play was enacted in the neighboring schoolhouse or a squawking concert in the town hall, and that was all the diversion afforded for the winter season. I asked the manager of an insane asylum in Kentucky: "From what class of persons do you get most of your patients?" and he said: "From farmers' wives." I asked the same question of the manager of an insane asylum in Pennsylvania, and the same question of the manager of an insane asylum in Massachusetts, and got the same reply: "We have on our rolls for treatment more farmers' wives than persons coming from any other class." That answer will be a surprise to some; it was no surprise to me. The simple reason is, farmers' wives as a general thing have no diversion. It is breakfast, dinner and supper, sewing, scouring, scrubbing, knitting, mending, year in and year out. That mother is the milliner, the mantua maker, the nurse, the doctor, the accountant of the whole family. She plans the wardrobe of spring, of summer, of autumn, of winter, cutting, fitting, completing garments, out of which the children soon grow and must have something else. The newspaper does not come, or, if coming, there is no time to read it. No selection of good books. The neighbors calling in are full of the same grinding routine. No wonder so many of them go into dementia!

Now, the mother of whom I speak as living on the banks of that river in Ohio or Alabama or Maine has gone through all the drudgery mentioned, and her children have turned out well, good and useful men and women, ornaments of society, pillars in the house of God, and that whole family, after the years have passed by and their work is done, will meet in the Heavenly country. From such a family some will certainly have preceded her, and the time of her expected arrival will be announced to all the members of that family already glorified and to the old earthly neighbors who put down their tolls a little sooner than she did, and she will have the warmest kind of home coming.

There is another kind of spirit who will have radiant admission to the upper dominion. There is a fact which ought to have most emphatic pronouncement. All over the world to-day there are men and women of consecrated wealth. They are multiplying by the day and hour—people who feel themselves the Lord's stewards, and from their opulence they are making a distribution which pleases the Heavens. The check-book in the office drawer of that man has on its stubs a story of benefience clear up into the sublime. In all the round of the world's suffering and ignorance and woe you cannot mention one worthy object to which that prosperous and good man has not made contribution. He is not irritated, as many are, by solicitations for alms. In some poor woman in thin shawl, holding in her arms a child with rheum in its eyes, this good man sees the Christ who said: "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, ye have done it unto me."

Well, this man of consecrated affluence is about to go ont of this world. He feels in brain and nerve the strain of the early struggles by which he won his fortune, and at 69 or 70 years collapses under the exhaustions of the twenties and thirties of his lifetime. When the morning papers announce that he is gone, there is excitement not only on the avenues where the mansions stand, but all through the hospitals and asylums and the homes of those who will henceforth have no helper. But the excitement of sadness on earth is a very tame affair compared with the excitement of gladness in Heaven. The guardian angel of that good man's life swept by his dying pillow the night before, and on swift wing upward announced that in a few hours he would arrive, and there is a mighty stir in Heaven. "He comes!" cries seraph to seraph. The King's heralds are at the gate to say: "Come, ye blessed," and souls who were saved through the churches that good man supported and hundreds who went up after being by him helped in their earthly struggle will come down off their thrones and out of their palaces and through the streets to hail him into the land which they reached some time before through his Christian philanthropy. "Why, that is the man who, when I was a-hungered, gave me bread!" "Why, that is the man," says another, "who encouraged me when I was in the hard struggle of business life!" "Why, that is the man," says another, "who paid my rent when I had nothing with which to pay!" "Why, that is the man through whose missionary spirit I heard the Gospel call in Bombay!" "Why, that is the man," says another, "who helped send the Gospel of Christ to the aborigines of America and caused me to exchange the war whoop of the savage for the song of Christian deliverance!" "Stand back," commands the gatekeeper of Heaven, "all ye throngs redeemed through this man's instrumentalities! Make way for him to the feet of the King, where he will cast his crown, and then make way for him to the throne, where he shall reign forever and ever!" Now, that is what I call an abundant entrance. You see, it is not necessary to be a failure on earth in order to be a success in Heaven.

But I promise that all those who have lived for others and been truly Christian, whether on a large or a small scale, will have illustrious introduction into the imported gateway. Here and there in some large family, you see an attractive daughter who declines marriage that she may take care of father and mother in old days. This is not an abstraction. I have known such. You have probably known such. There are in this world womanly souls as big as that. They cheerfully endure the whimsicalities and querulousness which sometimes characterize the aged, and watch nights when pneumonia is threatened, and are eyes to the blind, and sit in close rooms lest the septugenarian be chilled and count out the right number of drops at the right time. The mother of a little child has her hands full, but the daughter who stays home to take care of an aged father or mother has her hands just as full.

While I thus discourse I am aware that some have not taken the first step toward Heaven, and they feel like Jacob Strawn, who took some ministers of the gospel on the top of his house to show his farms, reaching in every direction as far as eye could see. He was asked how many acres he owned, and he replied 40,000. "How much is it worth per acre?" was asked, and he replied: "Fifty dollars at least." "Then," said the minister, "you are worth $2,000,000." "Yes," said Strawn, "and I made it all myself." Then the minister said: "You have shown me these vast earthly possessions, and now will you look up yonder (pointing to the heavens)—how much do you own up there?" And Strawn answered with tears in his eyes: "Oh, I am afraid I am poor up there." Alas, how many there are who have acquired all earthly prosperities and advantages, but have no treasures in Heaven! They are poor up there.

But I am to-day chiefly addressing those who are started for Heaven and would have them know that while we are apt to speak of a Lanphier, the founder of Fulton street prayer meetings, as having an abundant entrance, and Alfred Cookman, the flaming evangelist, as having an abundant entrance, and Thomas Welch and Fletcher, the glorious preachers of the Gospel, as having an abundant ent., and John Rogers and Latimer and Ridley ascending, like Elijah, in a chariot of fire, as having an abundant entrance, you also, if you love and serve the Lord and fulfill your mission, whether conspicuous or applauded or unknown, will have, when your work on earth is ended and you are called to come up higher, an easy, a blissful, an enrapturing, an abundant entrance.

Though the Hawaiian delegate in congress has no vote in the house, he draws $3,000 mileage as a consolation prize.

FIFTY-SIXTH CONGRESS.

Second Session.

Washington, Jan. 9.—Senate—During the legislative session of Tuesday the senate had under consideration the much mooted canteen question in connection with the army reorganization bill. The senate committee in effect restored the provision for a post exchange, or canteen, which had been stricken out of the bill by the house. For nearly five hours the senate discussed the committee amendment, but a vote upon the proposition is not yet in sight.

House—By a vote of 165 to 102 the house Tuesday accepted the reapportionment plan proposed by the Burleigh bill, which increases the membership of the house during the next decade to 386. Under the bill as passed no state loses a representative and the following make gains: Illinois, New York and Texas, three each; Minnesota, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, two each, and Arkansas, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Florida, Louisiana, Massachusetts, Mississippi, Missouri, North Carolina, North Dakota, Washington, West Virginia and Wisconsin, one each.

Washington, Jan. 10.—Senate—The army canteen is to be abolished, as the senate Wednesday, by a very decisive vote, concurred in the house provision relative to the army canteen. Only 15 votes could be mustered in the senate in favor of the canteen to 34 against it. As the section now stands in the bill it reads as follows: "The sale or dealing in beer, wine or any intoxicating liquors by any person in any post exchange or canteen or army transport, or upon any premises used for military purposes by the United States, is hereby prohibited. The secretary of war is hereby directed to carry the provisions of this section into full force and effect."

House—The river and harbor bill was discussed all day Wednesday, but no action was taken.

Washington, Jan. 11.—Senate—Considerable progress was made by the senate with the army reorganization bill, but the final vote upon the measure still seems far off. Thursday's proceedings were characterized by several sharp colloquies, some of them decidedly personal. The amendment providing for the appointment of Gens. James H. Wilson, Fitzhugh Lee and Shafter to be made major generals of the regular army, and retired, precipitated an extended and, on the part of Mr. Pettigrew, a bitter debate. The amendments prevailed, however, despite the opposition.

House—The general debate on the river and harbor bill continued in the house Thursday until 4 o'clock, when the death of Representative Clarke (N. H.) was announced, and the house adjourned out of respect to his memory.

Washington, Jan. 12.—Senate—Mr. Bacon (Ga.) made a vigorous attack on that portion of the army reorganization bill which confers upon the president discretionary power to increase the strength of the army to the maximum limit fixed by the bill. An amendment opening the way to the appointment of volunteer officers to grades as high as that of captain in the regular establishment was adopted. Just before adjournment Mr. Carter (Mont.) called up the bill apportioning the representatives of the United States among the several states. Without debate it was passed precisely as it came from the house. It now goes to the president for his signature.

House—Not since the 51st congress has the house passed as many private pension bills at a single sitting as it did Friday. In all 170 special pension bills were passed at Friday's session. The most important was one to increase the pension of Gen. Americus V. Rice from $36 to $100. The senate had passed a bill to increase his pension to $60, and the house raised it to $100.

Washington, Jan. 14.—Senate—No legislative business of importance was transacted by the senate Saturday. The session was devoted to services held in memory of the late Senator Cushman K. Davis, of Minnesota. Mrs. Davis, accompanied by some friends, was in the executive gallery of the senate.

House—The house devoted Saturday to a continuation of the debate upon the river and harbor appropriation bill, which was interrupted Friday by private bill day. The main feature was an elaborate speech by Mr. Catchings (Miss.) in defense of the improvement of the Lower Mississippi river. Mr. Boering (Ky.) made an earnest plea for an appropriation for the Upper Cumberland river, which, notwithstanding it had been surveyed and declared navigable, had been ignored by the committee in making up its bill.

STATE NEWS HAPPENINGS.

IN LARUE COUNTY.

The Marriage Record Shows When Abraham Lincoln's Father and Mother Were Married.

Hodgenville, Ky., Jan. 11.—It can not be doubted that this (La Rue) county is the birthplace of Abraham Lincoln, but Washington county, adjoining La Rue, is entitled to some distinction. Lincoln's father and mother were married in that county on June 12, 1806, as the following certificate, filed in the county clerk's office, shows:

"I do hereby certify that the following is a list of marriages solemnized by me, the subscriber, since the 25th of April, 1806, with the date thereof: Thomas Lincoln and Nancy Hanks, June 12, 1806. Given under my hand this 23d day of April 1807.

"Jesse Head, D. M. E. Church."

The record is given with about 20 others. Jesse Head was one of the pioneer Methodist ministers of Kentucky. A number of historians state that the marriage of Thomas Lincoln to Nancy Hanks occurred on June 12, 1809.

FATALLY SHOT.

The Old Quarrel Was Renewed, and the Lock Tender Received a Mortal Wound.

Nicholasville, Ky., Jan. 12.—Mark Spence, master lock tender of Kentucky river lock No. 7, at Hillsbridge, was shot and mortally wounded Friday afternoon, about 5 o'clock, by Joe Noel. The shooting was the result of an old quarrel, which occurred last spring, Spence having, it is claimed, at that time, abused Noel's wife. Last week Spence came to Nicholasville, and after getting drunk, went back to the lock, renewed the quarrel, and threatened to kill Noel. Friday afternoon when they met Spence started for his gun when Noel shot him, the ball passing through the abdomen.

Great excitement prevails, and several other companies are also here trying to get leases near the Knox Gem Coal Co.'s land.

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 12.—The board of directors of the new Louisville jockey club will hold a meeting on January 26. The purpose of the meeting is said to be the reconstruction of the dates already claimed. It is generally believed that the date of the spring meeting will be changed from April 29, as originally set, to May 2, while the length of the meeting will be extended from 15 to 18 days.

PYTHIAN ORPHANS.

An Effort Being Made By the Members of the Order to Raise Funds to Build an Asylum.

Lexington, Ky., Jan. 11.—At the meeting of Phantom lodge, No. 15, Knights of Pythias, it was decided to make an effort to have the Pythian orphan asylum located here.

About a year ago Past Grand Chancellor A. C. Green, at Henderson, began the movement for an endowment fund for the establishment of such an asylum. It is estimated that by the end of the present year the 6,700 members of the order in Kentucky will have raised a fund of $500,000. There are about 300 Pythian orphans in the state, and the need for a home for them is great. Past Grand Chancellor W. C. Quinby, of Dayton, Ky., is chairman of the board of control, which has charge of the movement. Winchester has offered $10,000 and ten acres of land. Just what Lexington will offer has not been determined.

THE TENTH TRAGEDY.

Policeman Fired on the Man Who Wanted to Release a Prisoner—The Shot Was Fatal.

Whitesburg, Ky., Jan. 12.—Marion Grixley, aged 50, a policeman, of Stonega, killed George Cooper, 31, a laborer. Grixley had arrested a colored man on a minor charge, and started to the "lock-up" with him when he met Cooper on the street. Cooper demanded the release of the prisoner, which Grixley failed to heed. Cooper said, "Release him or I'll kill you." Pulling his revolver quicker than a flash, Grixley fired a ball through Cooper's heart. During the fight Grixley made his escape, but Grixley later arrested him a mile from town. This is the tenth tragedy at Stonega within 30 days.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXVI. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 16, 1901. NO. 13.

In presenting D. M. Snyder as a candidate for Superintendent, last week, the RECORDER failed to state that he served one term as School Commissioner under the old dispensation, being elected by the justices of the peace, and made a good officer.

ANOTHER candidate has entered the race for Sheriff, M. C. Carroll, of Beaver. He made a good race for the nomination four years ago, and being a faithful Democrat, and a clever and competent gentleman, he goes into the fight with a strong following.

THE indications are there will be quite a number of Democratic candidates for United States Senator when the Kentucky Legislature meets next winter, and matters will be considerably complicated. McCreary and Cantrill are the favorites in this part of the State, but which will be the most popular time will develop.

JAMES SETTERS, a clever man and a good Democrat, of the Bellevue precinct, comes beforc the Democrats of the county, this week, seeking the nomination for Assessor. He is qualified to make a good official, and should he become the Assessor, his friends will have no cause to regret having given him their hearty support and landing him a winner.

The Postmaster-General has recently concluded parcels post arrangements with four more foreign countries, whereby packages weighing eleven pounds can be sent through the ordinary mails —as they can in every European country. After a while the people here will find out how much cheaper and better Government service is, and the express trust will go under.

In this issue appears the announcement of R. Lee Huey, of Big Bone, as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Assessor. Mr. Huey is a died-in-the-wool Democrat, a successful farmer, and a thoroughly reliable man, well qualified for the duties of the office to which he aspires. He is in the prime of life, a son of the late Geo. W. Huey many of whose sterling qualities he inherited. He would make a very acceptable officer.

W. T. STOTT, of Petersburg, known the county over as the Jacksonian "war hoss" of Boone county, has his announcement as a candidate for Assessor in the proper column, this week. Mr. Stott is an intense Democrat, and has never before come before the public in the role of a candidate for office. He has served his party well in the trenches, and he will serve the public equally as well in the capacity of Assessor. He is capable, honest and reliable from all stand-points.

The alleged "confession of Robert Noakes seems to have fallen flat. Noakes wrote to the lawyers for the defense in the Powers case stating that he would meet them at Danville, and sign a recantation of his testimony at Georgetown. Max Louis, a Louisville lawyer, was sent to Danville to get the statement. He was under the impression that Noakes was to give the statement voluntarily. When it was drawn up, however, and ready for Noaks to sign it and swear to it. Mr. Noakes wanted money. Finding that the attorney was not prepared for this demand, Noakes skipped out leaving an unsigned statement or "confession."—New Era.

DAVE CASTLEMAN, as you will learn by consulting the announcement column, is a candidate for the nomination for County Attorney. He was chairman of the County Democratic Executive Committee for several years, and having taken a very active part in every political campaign, both national and State, since he came to this county, he is pretty thoroughly acquainted with the people. Mr. Castleman has an experience at the bar covering many years, and is well qualified for the office to which he aspires, and should he pull down the plum, he will be prompt in the discharge of his official duties, ever looking closely to the county's interest in each transaction involving the people's rights.

GOV. MOUNT, of Indiana, being a rank Republican, renders remarkable the following extracts from his message to the Indiana legislature, which convened a few days since:

"The corruption of the ballot, through the purchase of votes, is a menace to free government. This dangerous evil is growing, and has already reached alarming conditions. Success in a campaign is becoming more and more contingent upon boodle instead of principle and merit. The number of men who put their votes on the market is increasing. What is the fruitage of this deplorable tendency? Men of wealth, instead of men of ability, have the preference. Syndicates, monopolies, trusts, corporations are solicited for large campaign contributions, thus placing the parties their debtor. Wealth has undue influence in molding laws. Hence the tendency of legislation is not so much in the interest of the man who holds the plow or wields the hammer, who works in the mine or factory, as in the interest of the men who furnished the boodle in the campaign. The present dangerous and disreputable methods must be stopped. Both the seller and the buyer of votes should be punished by disfranchisement, by fine and imprisonment."

Turning his attention to trusts he pointed out their danger, and said:

"I hope the present General Assembly will wisely and courageously meet the grave questions which the greed of monopoly has forced to the front. The line of demarcation between the legitimate functions of large investments of capital, independently controlled, and the combination of industries into a gigantic monopoly, for the purpose of influencing markets and the gratification of the spirit of avarice is so plain that the good may not be placed under ban with the evil. During the past two years monopolistic tendency has been the rule. Small industries have been absorbed and dismantled, healthy competition, in many instances, destroyed, large industries closed, prices forced upward by arbitary methods, all of which constitute dangerous conspiracies against the public good."

This week P. E. Cason is publicly announced as a candidate for County Judge. Mr. Cason was born and raised in this county, a farmer's boy and was educated in the county schools. Choosing the practice of law as his profession, he entered the Louisville Law School. On April 22, 1891, he was licensed to practice law by the Court of Appeals, and in a few days thereafter he graduated from the law school. In May, 1891, he was admitted to practice in the United States Court. Having had an experience of nine years in the practice of law Mr. Cason is well equipped to look after all the legal problems that present themselves in the office, and would take a pride in the admiuistration of the affairs of County Judge. He comes from a Democratic family none of whom ever asked to be elected to an office. Besides his legal qualifications Mr. Cason is a man of excellent morals, and of the highest integrity, and would keep a close watch on county affairs.

AMONG the several announcements this week is that of S. Gaines as a candidate for County Attorney. Having completed a course at the Louisville Law School, Mr. Gaines at once located in Burlington, six years ago, where he has since continued to attend to a growing practice. He has at all times taken an active interest in political affairs, and stumpped the county for the Democratic nominee for President in 1896 and again in 1900. Whatever Mr. Gaines undertakes he gives his best efforts, and if he should become County Attorney he will be a safe advisor in all matters in which the county may be interested. His qualifications for the office are excellent.

CANDIATES were as thick in Burlington Monday before noon, as fleas on a dog's back. [After 12 o'clock they radiated in every direction.

Room for more announcements.

HOUSE HEIRS' FORTUNE.

[Williamstown Courier.]

On last Tuesday morning a remarkable meeting gathered at the Courthouse in Williamstown. It was a meeting of the House heirs. The House heirs claim to be the rightful owners of property in Maryland, valued at $625,000,000.

Whether the House heirs ever receive anything from this immense estate, or whether it remains a chimerical dream, or a jack'o the lantern, remains to be seen, but each and every person who can trace his ancestry to Andrew House, who lived during the seventeenth century, has some chance to become a millionaire at no distant date.

The story for the grounds upon which the heirs of the House estate base their hopes of owning a big share of the State of Maryland as told to the Courier reporter by the national secretary, Mrs. L. R. Adams, of Richmond, Ind., is about as follows:

About the year 1715 Andrew House, then a young man, inherited from Prince Frederick, a near relative, a tract of land in Maryland, containing 64,000 acres, and lying in what is now the counties of Frederick and Washington, and including in its domain the towns of Sharpsburg, Antietam, Frederick and a half a dozen others. He continued in possession of this land until his death when it went to his son, Andrew, who held it till the year 1785, when the United States Government had declared itself free and independent of the mother country. Large deposits of iron had been discovered on the land, and the government being anxious to acquire this mineral, had tried to buy it. Andrew House refused to grant their demands, but the government issued condemnation proceedings and leased the land for the term of 99 years. The lease expired some fifteen or sixteen years ago, and the estate should then have reverted to the heirs of Andrew House, but the government had disposed of it. Five years ago legal procedings were instituted by the heirs, and now according to Mrs. Adams, they have been offered the handsome sum of $300,000,000 to compromise, but the attorneys refuse to do so claiming that it will be an easy matter to obtain the entire sum of $625,000,000.

Heirs to the number of fifty or sixty were here Monday, and they were put in posession of all the facts that it was possible for Mrs. Adams to furnish. About three hundred heirs have been discovered to the estate, and this is believed to be all of them. Possibly a score live in Grant county, while Boone, Pendleton and Gallatin also have their share, while a number are scattered over the country from Maine to California.

Even if they get $300,000,000 each heir will have a tidy little sum of $1,000,000, which is a great deal more than some of us will have, even if we live to be a hundred.

By reference to the announcement column there will no longer be any question as to Supt. Voshell's attitude in the race for County Superintendent of Schools. He is a candidate for renomination. Mr. Voshell's second term in that office is drawing to a close, and it goes without saying he has made a careful, pains-taking, officient official. His long experience as a teacher especially adapted him for the duties of the office, and his incumbency has been a credit to him and an incalculable benefit to the common school interest in this county.

Farm Cattle.

It is not true that the cattle business to be profitable must be conducted on the broad ranges of the Western plains. That is one profitable system of cattle raising, but there is another which yields fully as great profits for the capital invested. Raising cattle on the farm has in all countries and all ages been found profitable, and more so now than ever. By raising cattle on the farm the farmer has a good market for all the feed he can raise, saves labor and expense of transportation and avoids much loss from waste and the bocus pocus of commerce. And one of the main features of stock farming is that it can be made to continually improve the fertility and value of the farm.—Texas Farm and Ranch.

The prize ass of the year made his appearance in Nebraska recently—or rather he refused to appear at a reception because Fitzhugh Lee, a "rebel" general, was to be present. And this is the 20th century.

If army officers continue to receive bribes the country will soon begin to question the honesty of the army as a class. But if Captain King's case is held up as long as Captain Carter's, Neeley's and Rathbone's have been, the country will begin to question the honesty of the administration itself.

It is somewhat disgraceful that a government officer, Solicitor General Richards, should feel called upon to cast reflections on the personal honesty of Ex-President Harrison in his argument before the Supreme Court. Whatever Harrison may or may not be, no one has ever questioned his sincerity.

The fact is now generally admitted that Great Britain intends to accept the amended canal treaty practically as submitted to it, despite Mr. Hay's tremendous efforts to excite prejudice against it on that side of the water. Great Britain is thoroughly satisfied that half a loaf is better than no bread, and doesn't care much for Mr. Hay's mortified feelings.

It is not generally known that there are a dozen London comic papers which regularly steal all their jokes from the American papers, although they never give credit for them. Punch is the only alleged humorous paper over there that is original and it had to be because it couldn't find such hopelessly dull matter anywhere else.

A writer in the Farmers Home Journal, in speaking of the tobacco trust says: "I would call attention to the fact that the price of leaf tobacco of the white burley variety has been on the decline for two years and this season it will not average more than 7 cents, while the price of the manufactured goods has been advancing and now averages more than 50 cents a pound. With the large per cent of sugar and figs and prunes and other ingredients added to the leaf in the plug goods, I venture the statement that every pound of leaf tobacco brings a net profit of 25 cents to the manufacturer."

The sales of leaf tobacco at Louisville last year, amounted to 142,339 hogsheads.

A correspondent asks a question which is of sufficient interest to have special notice. It is: Can the fleece of a sheep be changed in character by any special kind of feeding? This question is sufficiently definite to receive a distinctly positive answer in the negative. Thus the fleece of Lincolns could by no possible length of feeding or of other environment outside of breeding to some distinctly different kind of sheep, be changed into the shorter staple of a Southdown or the finer crimped and closely planted fleece of a Merino.

Feeding may have some effect on the quality of the fleece but not on the general character of it due to its specific formation. The wool may be improved in length or in density on the skin in some degree by improved feeding inside of any breed, but the special characteristics of the various wools as differing with the breed, are as permanently fixed as the difference that exists between related animals belonging to the sheep genus—as the goat for instance.

Crossing is the only method by which new varieties of wools may be produced, and even then the breeder may figure in his mind very much as to the differences he may produce on the wool of a cross-bred sheep. This is shown very distinctly in Stewart's Domestic Sheep in the chapter on wools, and as may there be studied, it is shown very clearly that almost any kind of wool desired by the manufacturer may be produced by crossing one breed with another.

In such cross-bred wools there is a distinct indication of the quality and appearance of each kind belonging to the different parents.

It is, of course, possible that the fleece may be changed in quality and quantity within any breed by improving the condition of the sheep. This is shown distinctly in the present highly bred flocks of the Rambouillet Merinos, in which the short fiber of the original Spanish Merinos of over a hundred years ago has been lengthened to twice that of the original flocks, and we see a somewhat related change in the finest kinds of the short fleece of the Silesiad and Saxony Merinos.

Even the deteriorated wool of the common Mexican sheep, the degraded descendants of the ancient Spanish Merinos, taken across the Atlantic by the Spaniards 400 years ago, has preserved its ancient special Merino character, and in this case we have good reason to know that the fleece may be brought back to somewhat of the original quality by improvement within the race itself. But this is only retracing backward steps to the original starting point along a continuous line of blood. It is a process of regaining a lost quality, still inherent in the race. This has been shown by improving within itself the old Texan and Florida races descended without foreign blood from the old importations. — American Sheep Breeder.

Secretary of Agriculture Wilson says: "I must confess that I do not favor the raising of grain to sell. The prosperous farmer is he who raises grain as a raw material and feeds it to domestic animals. They make their farm a factory by adding skill to raw material and putting it into a finished form before offering it for sale. Fine horses are wanted; fine cattle and sheep. Hog products are in great demand, and so is poultry. The farmer should turn raw material on the farm into high-selling products. The man who is depending on the ground selling the grain that he grows, may as well make up his mind that the longer he does it the smaller will be his return, because he is continually selling the plant food of his farm.

They had been giving gay old reynard close races for many moons, and, last Saturday night, succeeded in putting himup a tree on the old Huey farm.

The turnpike anydicate, owning the road running from Big Bone to Beaver, met last Saturday, and elected the following officers for the ensuing year. John L. Jones, Pres.; John C. Miller, Sec'y and Treas., and T. J. Hughes, Late Baker and J. L. Jones, board of directors. The 'pike is almost completed and a toll-house will be built near the Springs at an early day.

On Thursday night, January 10th, while the folks were peacefully sleeping, the newly erected, pretty brick residence of Mr. Chas. C. Sleet caught fire, it is supposed from the heating apparatus situated in the cellar of the building, and, they were warned by the dense smoke in the rooms in imminent danger of their lives. They all succeeded in escaping from the building, but failed to save any of the contents which were all new and valuable. This model country home, furnished with all the modern conveniences, was erected at a cost of $4,000, about one year ago, on the foundation of the famous old home of the late J. C. Hughes which was destroyed by fire two years ago last September. Mrs. Amanda Hughes and her two single daughters occupied the house with Mr. Sleet and wife, and newly furnished the building with beautiful and costly furniture, which was consumed by the angry flames in one short hour. The family have the sympathy of the entire community in their terrible loss and sad misfortune. The house was insured for $2,500. This is a remarkable circumstance—the burning of two costly buildings with all their contents on the same foundation within a period of three years, and, the origin of both fires, so far as knowledge is concerned, a great mystery.

MOUND FIELD FARM.—We wish you all, a long and prosperous century.

An alarming amount of sickness is prevailing in our vicinity, mostly la grippe.

Edgar Markland, living at Francesville, is reported dangerously ill of heart trouble.

Mrs. J. W. Davis is spending the winter with her niece, Mrs. Lila Paddock, at Hartwell, Ohio.

The bottom of the mud roads fell out last week, leaving nothing in sight but a few wheelbarrow loads of mortar.

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Dye had the misfortune to lose their youngest child aged six weeks. It died on the 13th.

The remains of Mrs. Harriet Hafer and those of her grandson, Henry Hafer, were buried in the cemetery at Hebron, last Wednesday.

Ollie VanBlaricum, a cow trader, of Mack, Ohio, spent the day with us last Monday. He purchased a cow and a calf from Wash Watts—price, $35.

Oliver Dye, in cleaning out Harrison Clore's ice house, preparatory to refilling, found 11 dead rabbits. They had undoubtedly committed suicide to avoid being shot at by the Nimrods.

We were surprised to see jeweler Duhme, of Cincinnati, on our streets, the other day. On inquiry we ascertained he was on the hunt for Mike Clore from whom to secure the correct time by which to set his time pieces.

As a guest of Uncle Frank Smith, of Union, we shared the genuine hospitality of his sons, Richard and William and their families, two days last week. We certainly enjoyed our visit very much, and must say these people enterta in their friends in royal style.

We dropped in at Henry Quick's cabinet shop a few minutes, one day last week, and found him putting the finishing touches on a handsome rosewood wardrobe. Henry is developing great mechanical skill, and he said he expected to build a piano, this week.

We would like very much that all who may read this article, and are suffering with rheumatism, neuralgia, lumbago, heart weakness, hay fever, bronchitis, catarrh of the stomach, and are not feeling well themselves, would call at our labratory and procure a bottle of Swanson's Great Blood Purifyer and Rhematic Cure. It will certainly relieve you.

Our public school, taught by Miss Lucy Clayton, is superb beyond a doubt. Miss Lucy has sixty scholars in attendance, and with the assistance of her accomplished sister, is giving general satisfaction in the way she is conducting the school. Miss Lucy deserves great credit for reconciling the troubles that have heretofore existed among the patrons of the school.

Dick Tanner had a close call for his life, one day last week. He broke through the ice on Mr. Winston's pond, and went in up to his armpits, when he caught, and it was with the greatest effort that he extricated himself from his perilous position. He was amply paid, however, for the ducking he received, as he says when he changed his cloths he found his pockets full of fine fish.

The holiday season just passed—generally celebrated with festivities, mirth and pleasure—was one of sorrowing and mourning in many families in this vicinity. The grim monster, Death, has claimed an alarming number of victims among our friends and neighbors, among them the young, the middle aged and the feble have succumbed to the destroyer. 'Tis well said that "In the midst of life we are in death."

Doc Mannin has been experiencing some trouble feeding the corn he raised the past season. Last Spring he sent to a party in Indianapolis for the seed of a new variety, and planting it in strong land it made a wonderful growth, the ears growing so large that his cattle could not masticate them. To overcome this difficulty he conceived the idea of stretching their mouths by inserting a wooden wedge or glut, similar to a shomaker's last, expanding them sufficiently to chamber the ears of corn. He reports his scheme a success, and parties desiring seed of this wonderful variety of corn, can procure it at Mr. Mannin's residence—price, $1 per bushel with stretcher thrown in.

The Mother's Favorite.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the mother's favorite. It is pleasant and safe for children to take and always cures. It is intended especially for coughs, colds, croup and whooping cough, and is the best medicine made for these diseases. There is not the least danger in giving it to children for it contains no opium or other injurious drug and may be given as confidently to a babe as to an adult. For sale by McKim, Burlington; Berkshire & McWethy, Petersburg; O. N. Grant, Bellevue; C. S. Baisly, Bullittsville.

Jerry Delph, who lives about a mile out of town, went hunting a few days ago, and his dog made a rabbit take refuge in a hollow log. Jerry chopped a hole in the log and captured the cotton-tail, which he held up by the hind legs, giving it two severe blows with his hand across the neck back of the ears, putting the animal to sleep if not disjointing its neck. Jerry chucked the rabbit into his game sack where it remained about twenty-four hours, hanging in the kitchen, showing no signs of life that anyone noticed. Needing the sack, Jerry took it down and shook the rabbit out, which, to his astonishment, struck the ground running, and he believes yet that that rabbit is going about with a broken neck.

Adjourned to meet again January 18, 1901.

To the Editor of the Recorder:

Since an inquiry in the last issue of the Recorder from J. E. Proctor, of Louisville, in regard to the House estate, I thought perhaps some items taken while attending a meeting of a large number of the claimants of said estate, with Mrs. L. R. Adams, Secretary of the National Association of the House heirs, might be of interest, not only to Mr. Proctor, but to many other readers of the Recorder. This meeting was held at the home of Mr. J. J. Tanner, of Richwood, Ky., January 9th, 1901. Mrs. Adams had read a report of a meeting of the National Association, held at Chicago, May 12th, 1900. She gave an account of the steps taken at that meeting to prosecute the claim. They employed an attorney, who agreed to take the case for 5 per cent. of what he might gain. Mrs. Adams then gave a detailed account of her search for, and of her finding of the grant. The grant is recorded in the old Colonial office in London, England. The other papers are on record in Maryland. Mrs. Adams made the second trip to Maryland before she found any trace of the record, but she at last found it stored away in an old vault, and secured copies of them. She reported that she had submitted these papers to some of the best lawyers in the United States, and, that they had all pronounced the claim to be good, and one that can be collected. The grant is for 52,000 acres of land in Maryland. This land was leased for mining and milling purposes ninety-nine years. Said lease expired about fourteen years since. The rent was paid for 40 years, leaving balance unpaid. I am sorry that I can not give dates and figures, owing to having lost some notes taken at this meeting, but, Mr. J. J. Tanner, who was appointed corresponding secretary of this meeting, will, I know, be glad to answer any question that may be asked of him. Mr. Tanner is certainly the best informed man in Boone county in regard to this claim, as he has made several trips to National Headquarters and has been working constantly on the case for the past two months. Mr. Spencer Smith, of Gunpowder, Ky., Chairman of this meeting, will also, I think, kindly answer any inquiries that may be made of him. The address of Mrs. L. R. Adams is 110 South Third St., Richmond, Ind., and she will answer all questions asked of her pertaining to the case.

Beat Out of An Increase of his Pension.

A Mexican war veteran and prominent editor writes: "Seeing the advertisement of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, I am reminded that as a soldier in Mexico in '47 and '48, I contracted Mexican diarrhoea and this remedy has kept me from getting an increase in my pension for on every renewal a dose of it restores me." It is unequalled as a quick cure for diarrhoea and is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by McKim, Burlington; Berkshire & McWethy, Petersburg; O. N. Grant, Bellevue; C. S. Baisly, Bullittsville.

A CARD.

To the Voters of Boone County:—You will see my announcement in this week's issue of the Recorder as a candidate for the office of Sheriff of Boone County. Having been seriously ill for the past three months, I dem it just to myself and the voters to employ this medium of imforming them that I am rapidly gaining health and strength and desire to make a thorough canvass of the county at an early date, which I feel assured at the present time I will be able to do, and in the meantime earnestly beg the indulgent consideration of the voters of my claim.

Death of Mrs. Frances Tolin.

Mrs. Frances Tolin, widow of J. A. Tolin, deceased, died last Saturday, January 12th, at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. W. H. Hensley, in Petersburg. Her illness began about the first of last August, when she was taken with a hemorrhage of the lungs, superinduced by an attack of la grippe. From that time her illness grew worse until death came. The most diligent and thorough efforts were powerless to save her life. Mrs. Tolin's maiden name was Hensley. She was born near Petersburg, February 12th, 1825, and therefore she lacked one month of being 76 years of age. She united with the Methodist church when 25 years of age, remaining a consistent member the remainder of her life. She was married to Mr. Tolin in the spring of 1847, and lived in the county within four miles of where she was born, all her life. Mr. Tolin died in 1897. Five children were born to them, all of whom are still living, viz: S. W. Tolin, the well known lawyer, of Burlington; Mrs. Effie Hensley, J. B. Tolin and Mrs. Laura Sebree, of Petersburg, and W. M. Tolin, of Horace, Indiana. The funeral took place at the house, Monday, Rev. L. N. Early officiating. Mrs. Tolin was an unassuming, energetic, self-sacrificing and industrious woman, caring more for loved ones than for self. She shrank from public view, content to do her duty. Her remains were interred by the side of her husband in the family lot in the Petersburg cemetery.

A Prominent Chicago Woman Speaks

Prof. Roxa Tyler, of Chicago, Vice-President Illinois Woman's Alliance, in speaking of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, says: "I suffered with a severe cold this winter which threatened to run into pneumonia. I tried different remedies but I seemed to grow worse and the medicine upset my stomach. A friend advised me to try Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and I found it was pleasant to take and it relieved me at once. I am now entirely recovered, saved a doctor's bill, time and suffering, and I will never be without this splendid medicine again." For sale by McKim, Burlington; Berkshire & McWethy, Petersburg; O. N. Grant, Bellevue; C. S. Baisly, Bullittsville.

BRYAN'S DEPARTURE.

Late Presidential Candidate Now a Private Citizen.

In Parting, Lauds Democratic Principles and Denounces Policies of the Republicans—Mission of Democracy.

The Jackson day banquet of the Bryan league of Chicago was an affair highly edifying and enjoyable to over 500 leading democrats of that city. Elaborate preparations were made at the Sherman house for the reception of the late candidate for the presidency, and upon his arrival he was greeted with a tremendous ovation. Mayor Harrison was toastmaster, and in introducing Mr. Bryan he said:

"We meet on Jackson's day because it is the proper day on which to empty a bumper in memory of our party's founder, Thomas Jefferson, to pledge a renewal of our faith in the wisdom and the patriotism of our patron saint, Andrew Jackson, to grasp by the hand in token of our affection and esteem the gallant leader who, without fear and without reproach, without excuse to friend or apology to foe, has borne the party standard in the last two national campaigns.

"Our party lives as strong to-day, as unbroken in rank and alignment, as unswerving in purpose, as devoted to the cause of free institutions, as in the days when it had just received the indorsement of a majority of the citizens of the nation. Defeat means little to a party if it stands for the truth, for the triumph of justice, for correct principles of government. The democracy represents the government as established by the fathers. If the time has come when there is no further purpose for the party to serve, the time is here when the form of government outlined by the declaration of independence and formulated by the constitution has outlived its usefulness.

"Shame be it to American manhood that the confession must be made, but there are those to-day who waver in their devotion to the old-time principles of government. For six generations the American youth was taught to believe in the righteousness of the ideas laid down in the declaration of independence, in the exact justice of the limitations outlined in the constitution. And yet but a few days ago the attorney general of the United States declared, without a blush—yes, with all the bravado of a New Jersey trust lawyer—that if the constitution had become a barrier to the expansion of the republic, as the despotisms of Europe expand, it was high time to cast it aside as so much worn out rubbish.

"In all the history of our land there was never a greater need of a people's party than there is to-day. The republican party is in control of all the branches of the federal government. Supreme in its absolute dominion of the government, it is in turn controlled by the most corrupting forces that have ever swayed a great national party. Great measures introduced in the upper and lower houses of congress bear upon them all the earmarks of infamy.

"For whatever ostensible purpose they may be introduced, scratch beneath the surface and you will find the true cause—the wish to plunder on the largest scale and lust that are to-day preying upon the great mass of our citizenship. Whether it be tariff duty or subsidy, in either case it is proposed to pour riches into the lap of those already gorged with wealth, to exact tribute from those groaning under too heavy a burden of taxation.

"The purest-hearted and the wisest-minded in the ranks of the republican statesmanship protest with vigor, but their protests go all unheeded; the most influential of the republican newspapers thunder editorially, but their opposition brings no result. Campaign debts are to be paid, campaign obligations are to be honored, luscious melons are to be cut and the mouths of the leaders who held the knife are watering in advance. It is far cry from the government of a Hanna to the governmental ideas of a Washington, a Jefferson and a Madison.

"What nobler purpose could we democrats proclaim in this dawn of the twentieth century than the upholding of the conjured belief in the justice and the righteousness of the theories of government upon which this nation was founded, we consecrate our party and its untiring efforts to the redeclaration of the principles enunciated by our fathers in Independence half a century and a quarter ago, and to a reaffirmation of the constitution of the United States, a redeclaration and a reaffirmation which shall not be mere words, but which shall finally restore those ideas in the executive chamber and in the council halls of our nation?"

Mr. Bryan's Speech.

When Mr. Bryan was presented every man in the hall jumped to his feet, waved his napkin aloft and yelled till he was red in the face. As soon as order was restored the famous Nebraskan said:

"This is the fifth consecutive Jackson day banquet which I have celebrated with this club, and I appreciate the honor which the members have done me in giving my name to the club, and am grateful for the support which they have given to my candidacy in two campaigns. I take this opportunity, however, to express the hope that this club and others which have borne my name will substitute for my name the name of some democratic saint or a name descriptive of principles rather than men.

"I am now a private citizen, with excellent prospects of remaining such. I intend to continue actively in the discussion of public questions, and do not desire to be embarrassed by being placed in the attitude of a candidate for any office. In selecting journalism as the best field for usefulness, I am aware that I am placing myself in a position where I can give more aid to others than to myself, but the field is chosen deliberately, because I am more interested in the promulgation of democratic principles than I am in enjoying any honors which my countrymen can bestow.

Still Full of Fight.

"The democratic party was never in better fighting condition than it is to-day, and I rejoice that in the course of nature I have many years in which to participate in the unending struggle between human rights and the usurpations of greed. Our party stands for well-defined and positive policies, and is prepared to wage an aggressive warfare against the plutocratic tendencies of the republican party, for the republican party to-day is reproducing the evils against which Jefferson contended a century ago and against which Jackson fought 30 years later.

"It is not necessary to discuss the subject of reorganization further than to say that reorganization is an internal remedy and that it cannot be applied externally. A person must be inside of the party before he can participate in the party management. Some seem to think that they can be outside for voting purposes and inside for purposes of reorganization. If a man allows his vote to procure a divorce from him on the ground of failure to support, desertion or infidelity, he must be weary her before the public will pay any attention to his expressions of solicitude for her welfare, and so those who have lost their party standing because of their desertion of the party candidates and unfaithfulness to democratic doctrines, as defined by legitimate authority, must reunite with the party before any attention will be paid to their pretenses of interest.

Rights of Party Management.

"Those who are within the party lines have a right to a voice in the making of the platform, and are entitled to make such change in the organization or machinery of the party as they please, but honesty and good faith require that any desired change shall be openly proposed and fairly presented. Party organizations are framed for party governments and derive their just powers from the consent of the governed. Party platforms are of no value unless they reflect the purpose of and the policy desired by a majority of those who belong to the party. Those who are really devoted to democratic principles will neither practice deception themselves or permit others to practice deception in writing a platform or in securing control of the party machinery.

"I hope that in this and other states the party may be able to avoid these fierce factional contentions which sometimes distract attention from party principles and waste in personal fights the energy that should be directed against the common enemy.

Undismayed by Defeat.

"The defeat which the party recently suffered ought not to discourage anyone who believes in the principles set forth in the Kansas City platform, for if those principles were right when the platform was written and when they were indorsed by nearly 6,500,000 of voters, they are right still. The democratic party has been defeated before, but defeat has neither destroyed its hope nor its tenets. In 1872 the defeat was overwhelming and yet we won in 1876. In 1890 we thought that the people would rebuke the counting out of Tilden four years before, but we were doomed to disappointment.

"We won in 1884 and lost in 1888. We won in 1892 and lost in 1896 and 1900. If anyone is inclined to attribute recent defeats to the platforms adopted or to the organizations in charge of fights, let him remember that the defeat of 1896 came at the close of an administration entirely satisfactory to those who are most anxious to reorganize the party and that the defeat of 1894, which occurred under a similar administration, was more disastrous than any that has taken place since.

"No one can foresee the conditions which our party must meet, but we can face the future with the determination to apply democratic principles to every emergency and to make the party a faithful exponent of the views of those who believe in equal rights to all and special privileges to none.

Future of Financial Question.

"Whether the money question will figure prominently in future campaigns will depend upon circumstances which no one can measure with certainty. What is desired is a sufficient quantity of money to keep pace with the demand for money. If an unexpected and unpromised increase in the output of gold restores the level of prices and protects the producers of wealth from the evils of an appreciating dollar, those who have labored for bimetallism will rejoice more heartily than the financiers who advocated the gold standard at a time when gold was scarcer and the dollar was becoming dearer.

"Monopolies will ultimately become so hurtful that the republicans will no longer be able to defend them. Even to-day their defense is more secret than open. A colonial policy when put into full operation will prove so pronounced a departure from American principles that it must finally be repudiated by the American people. If in the cases now pending the supreme court holds that the constitution follows a flag, a large portion of the republican party will oppose the retention of the Philippine islands. If, on the contrary, the court holds that a president and congress can govern colonies without regard to the restrictions of the constitution, many republicans will be able to realize what imperialism means.

Fight Not in Vain.

"But if fate decres a change in the ideas and ideals of our nation, and we are to witness a return to the brute force doctrines upon which empires rest, our struggle will still have answered a purpose and the work of our party will live in history and inspire the lovers of liberty in future years, when mankind again takes up the fight for the principles of self-government. We are advocating truths that cannot die, and we can afford to share in temporary reverses that may come to them. The love of freedom will live while the human race endures, and those who suffer for the right will receive their reward in history even if their eyes do not behold the victory.

"In defeat those who support the principles set forth in the declaration of independence can take courage from the heroism manifested by those in South Africa, who are giving their lives in defense of the same doctrines. Cronje suffers in loneliness on St. Helena, but his name will live in poetry and song when the name of Roberts is forgotten and Kruger will wear a crown of deathless fame when kings and emperors are known no more."

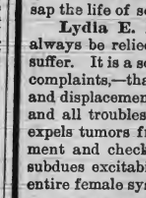
Reciprocity Treaties.

And now it is said that the reciprocity treaties, some 12 or 14 in number, which Mr. Kasson has painfully negotiated are doomed. The republicans themselves will kill those treaties in the senate, because almost every senator has some personal "interest" which would be unfavorably affected by reelprocity. The failure of these treaties will probably mark the end of the late Mr. Blaine's project for the next half century. If the republicans continue in power they will maintain high protection. If the democrats are in control they will enact a revenue tariff. In either case reciprocity will have no chance.—Chicago Chronicle.

A Snag for Hanna.

A threat from Mark Hanna of an extra session of congress if the ship subsidy bill should not be passed before March 4 next would scarcely shake the resolution of the senators whose constituents, although republicans in politics, are unalterably opposed to squandering public money upon a few urgent and rapacious transportation companies. Does the chief engineer of the administration think that the federal senate—the greatest legislative body in the world—is a party caucus, to be swayed at will by personal interests?—Philadelphia Record.

——Here is a specimen of Hanna's classic eloquence: "A man who ascribes the purposes of our standing army that have been ascribed in this campaign, knows that he lies when he says it." Such is the vulgar ignoramus who is directing our pious administration in the civilization and Christianization of the benighted Filipinos.—Columbus Press-Post.



——Mark Hanna is sending to the newspapers copies of his speech on the ship subsidy bill. He cites the remarkable development of the lake marine as an example of what might be done by our ocean-going vessels with proper encouragement. But Mr. Hanna should remember that the lake ship owners have not been subsidized.—Duluth Herald.

This picture tells its own story of sisterly affection. The older girl, just budding into womanhood, has suffered greatly with those irregularities and menstrual difficulties which sap the life of so many young women.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound can always be relied upon to restore health to women who thus suffer. It is a sovereign cure for the worst forms of female complaints,—that bearing-down feeling, weak back, falling and displacement of the womb, inflammation of the ovaries, and all troubles of the uterus or womb. It dissolves and expels tumors from the uterus in the early stage of development and checks any tendency to cancerous humors. It subdues excitability, nervous prostration, and tones up the entire female system.

Could anything prove more clearly the efficiency of Mrs. Pinkham's Medicine than the following strong statement of Grace Stansbury?

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I was a sufferer from female weakness for about a year and a half. I have tried doctors and patent medicines, but nothing helped me. My ailment was pronounced ulceration of the womb. I underwent the horrors of local treatment, but received no benefit. I suffered from intense pains in the womb and ovaries, and the backache was dreadful. I had leucorrhœa in its worst form. Finally, I grew so weak I had to keep my bed. The pains were so hard as to almost cause spasms. When I could endure the pains no longer, I was given morphine. My memory grew short and I gave up all hope of getting well. Thus I dragged along. To please my sister I wrote to Mrs. Pinkham for advice. Her answer came, but meantime I was taken worse and was under the doctor's care for a while.

"After reading Mrs. Pinkham's letter, I concluded to try her medicine. After taking two bottles I felt much better; but after using six bottles I was cured. All of my friends think my cure almost miraculous. I thank you very much for your timely advice and wish you prosperity in your noble work, for surely it is a blessing to broken-down women. I have full and complete faith in the Lydia E. Pinkham Vegetable Compound."—GRACE B. STANSBURY, Herington, Kansas.

SICK OF BLOODSHED.

Even Some Leading Republicans Are Tiring of McKinley's Philippine Policy.

Hon. Wayne MacVeagh, who was attorney general in the cabinet of President Garfield, who surrounded himself with a particularly able cabinet, does not agree with the present attorney, Mr. Griggs, of New Jersey, that congress or the administration has authority not conferred by the constitution, and that the flag may be separated from the constitution at the sweet will of either. Mr. MacVeagh is not a carping critic, but he is sick of the bloodshed, slaughter and devastation of territory in the Philippines. He believes that the president is doing what he believes to be his duty, but it is time that persistence in a colossal blunder should cease. He says that the "attempt at suppression has now been going on for nearly three years, and has inflicted a vast amount of slaughter, disease and misery on our own sons as well as on those who resist our authority, and I cannot understand why anybody, whether an imperialist or an anti-imperialist, should not rejoice at seeing a stop put to further slaughter, a general amnesty proclaimed and the Philippine islands, for the present, at least, granted the same form of territorial government as we have just established in the Sandwich islands and as our territories have always enjoyed."

No one doubts that the war could have been avoided had there not been the most unwise course on the part of the president in the days when he tried to bring about the ratification of the treaty of Paris. Even Gen. Otis recognized the inflammatory character of the president's proclamation announcing that the United States would demand complete recognition of sovereignty first, after which would come the beneficent policy of benevolent assimilation. Otis tried to avert the trouble by editing the proclamation, but Admiral Walker had in the meantime issued the proclamation just as he received it, with the fatal words in it, demanding a surrender of sovereignty, and the war began in a few days.

Gen. MacArthur, in his report, issued on November 10 last, declared that, in spite of all appearances of pacification, the people have been "maddened the past five years by a rhetorical sophistry and stimulants applied to national pride until power of discriminating in matters of public concern or private interest has been almost entirely suspended. As a substitute for all considerations, the people seem to be actuated by the idea that in all doubtful matters of politics or war men are never nearer right than when going with their own kith and kin, regardless of correctness."

This guarded view is confirmed by an unofficial report, written by Col. B. L. Bullard, of the Thirty-ninth United States infantry, to Capt. Scott, of Montgomery, Ala., that the conditions of the country practically forbid the successful pursuit of the small bands into which the armies of Aguinaldo have been broken up, and that the presence of the American troops is an encouragement to outlawry. He says:

"In addition, the strain of outlawry in the Filipino blood has been fostered, swollen and strengthened by five years of unrest and rebellion, since the year 1896. Piracy is the white man first the Spaniard, now the American, who has always been the agent that has forced unwelcome law, order and civilization upon the yellow man. Consequently, whether law-abiding or lawless, robber, murderer or rapist, the Filipino who opposes the white man's system is hailed by all the people as their champion. He is fed, concealed, protected and encouraged. If punished, it is always by the white man, and he becomes a martyr in the eyes of his race.

"These are the conditions in these islands to-day. It is useless to say they will soon change, for they have not changed in the past five years, two of them under American dominion at that. Is it, therefore, any wonder that the authorities here are scratching their heads and asking each other 'what in the world are we going to do when we begin to lose troops, when the volunteers start to go home?'"

It is no wonder at all. Nor is it a wonder that men in this country, of the president's own party, like ex-President Harrison, ex-Speaker Reed, ex-Senator Edmunds, ex-Attorney General MacVeagh and a host of other men of conviction and courage, should demand a change of policy that will produce different results than those we see now prevailing with no likelihood of improving. Persistency in following up a blunder once made isn't going to make the blunder right in the end. It will only lead to a continual demand for more men for the army.—Utica Observer.

——Prosperity does not appear to be quite so widely diffused among the mill hands as they were led to expect before the election. So many mills are shutting down just now as to leave something to be explained. Of course we shall be told of temporary trade conditions that necessitate this action. But, then, we were told last fall that it was not trade conditions, but McKinley, that made prosperity, and that if we reelected him we should all have good wages for at least four years more. The full dinner pail it would seem was for campaign uses only.—Philadelphia Times.

——That English trick of concealing the cost of war by spreading it out thin over a long period is doubtless being appreciatively studied by Mr. McKinley and his fellow-imperialists.—St. Louis Republic.

——President McKinley's selection of a span of horses for his inaugural coach is a modest reminder of the easy grace with which he "drove a coach-and-four" through the constitution.—N. Y. World.

TRUSTS STILL FLOURISHING.

Combines and Monopolies Waxing Fat Under the Protection of Republicans.

The republican national platform contained a plank asserting that "we condemn all conspiracies and combinations intended to restrict business, to create monopolies, to limit production, or to control prices; and favor such legislation as will effectively restrain and prevent all such abuses, protect and promote competition and secure the rights of producers, laborers, and all who are engaged in industry and commerce." Upon the platform containing the plank the republican party was continued in full control of the government in all its departments.

The plate glass trust, under the protection of the Dingley tariff, arbitrarily raised prices to a point far above the rates existing before it went into effect; to so high a point, it seems, that some dealers found it profitable to import certain grades of foreign glass, even with the heavy duty of the present tariff. The trust promptly took steps to stop this. An order was recently issued to all dealers in window glass that they must cease importing on their own account, or buying any imported glass unless from agents belonging to the trust. Any customer of the trust violating this order is to be boycotted, and the rebate of five per cent. paid to the customers of the trust on their purchases for a year is to be cut off.

Here would seem to be a clear case of combination to "restrict business," "create monopolies" and "control prices," calling for such "legislation as will effectively restrain and prevent all such abuses." That is the way the Philadelphia members of the paints, oils, and window glass trade, regarded it, and when the federal industrial commission began its sittings in Philadelphia some days ago they went before it with their grievances and asked relief.

They told the commission among other things, that whereas a 12x60-inch light formerly cost 75 cents, it now costs $1.88; the 24x80 size was $2.40 a light, and now it is $5; the 24x84 size, which cost $4.55 about three years ago, now costs $11 a light. These are the prices charged by the trust, and enforced by a complete boycott on any purchaser who buys outside of the trust. The paint men thought this a legitimate case for interference by legislation, and what they asked was that the tariff on foreign glass be so reduced as to make open competition on all grades possible. They claimed that duties under the Dingley tariff enabled the trust to fleece the domestic trade, and that the only way to correct the injustice is by modifying the tariff. The industrial commission was asked to recommend this action to congress.

The chairman of the commission promptly dissipated any hopes of relief from that source. He told the paint men they "cannot go into congress and ask for a revision of this particular tariff without entailing grave danger of causing a general attack on the existing tariff, and of injuring the prevailing prosperity of the country." The Philadelphia Public Ledger, republican as it is, feels compelled to comment that "if this be a sample of the character of the inquiry the industrial commission is pursuing, it might as well suspend its hearings, since it is plain it committed to the preservation of all the trust promoting and sustaining provisions of the existing tariff, no matter how glaring may be the abuses perpetrated under cover of its schedules."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A FITTING REBUKE.

Administered by a Morals Messenger Boy to a Cowardly and Stinky Man.

There was a trifling fire in a west side street the other day which caused a good deal of excitement and incidentally gave a fat man a lesson in courtesy. The fire started in the apartments where the man and his mother lived. The man started about the time the fire did and got down four flights of stairs to the street before his mother knew what was up. When she discovered the fire she promptly fainted, says the New York Mail and Express.

Meanwhile the fat man stood in the street yelling: "Save my mother! Save my mother!" A messenger boy who was passing stopped, saw the smoke, ran up the stairs, aroused the woman and brought her out in safety. The neighbors cheered and the fat man looked uncomfortable.

"Here, boy," he whispered. "Here's a quarter for you."

The boy's face expressed his disgust.

"Aw, save it," he said, "and buy yourself some nerve food."

The crowd laughed, the fat man blushed and the boy went whistling down the street. He didn't know that he had been a hero, and the fat man felt himself a coward.

Puzzling.

Dickerman—"There's one thing that puzzles me."

To Abolish the Whipping Post.

The law makers are wrangling over the abolition of the whipping post. The man who succeeds in passing such a bill, will prove as great a benefactor to the breaker of man's laws as Hostetter's Stomach Bitters has to the breaker of nature's laws. If you've neglected your stomach until indigestion, constipation, biliousness, liver and kidney troubles are upon you, there's but one cure, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Mrs~ Frances M.Anderson

MISS FRANCES M. ANDERSON, daughter of HON. JUDGE ANDERSON, of Virginia, is at present in Washington, D. C., as Corresponding Secretary of the Higher Educational League, of that city. Cured of la grippe by Peruna.

MISS FRANCES M. ANDERSON, Corresponding Secretary of the Higher Educational League, writes from the "Astoria," Washington, D. C., the following:

"About two months ago I was taken very ill with la grippe and was obliged to go to bed. I took three bottles of Peruna with very beneficial results, and was able to leave my bed in a week and regained my usual strength very soon.

"I have nothing but praise for Peruna and recommend it to those similarly afflicted whenever I can."—Frances M. Anderson.

La grippe is, strictly speaking, epidemic catarrh—that is to say, a variety of acute catarrh which is so contagious and runs a course more or less definite, the same as scarlet fever, whooping cough, etc.

During the acute stages of la grippe it is not a very fatal disease, but the condition in which it leaves the system has caused the death of a countless number.

Indeed nearly every person who has had la grippe within the last three years finds himself more or less deranged by the pernicious effects of this disease. The majority of those who have escaped death find life scarcely worth living.

If this vast multitude of people could only know with what certainty Peruna would relieve them of all the bad effects which la grippe has brought upon them, what an untold amount of suffering could be averted!

Thousands have already heard how quickly this remedy will cure in these cases and have been saved; but tens of thousands have not yet heard, and continue to suffer on, dropping into the grave one by one.

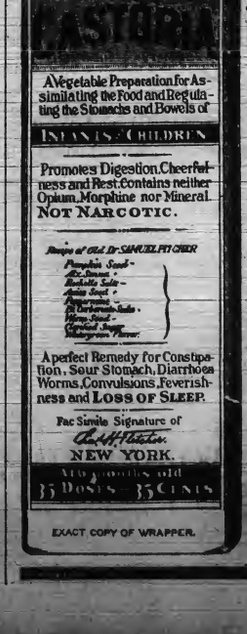
Peruna cures catarrh in all stages and varieties, whether acute or chronic, and is therefore the most effective remedy ever devised for removing all the derangements which follow la grippe.

Samuel M. York writes from Union Grove, Ala., the following letter:

Dear Sir:—"Last week I was taken with la grippe and catarrhal deafness. I wrote you for advice and followed your directions. After taking two bottles of Peruna I found myself well of la grippe, and my hearing was fully restored. My health is better than it has been in five years.

"My wife improved in health very much after taking Peruna."—Samuel M. York.

Miss Caroline J. Kahl, Otisco, Ind., writes as follows:



"Three years I had la grippe and pulmonary trouble. I was very sick. I had hemorrhages of the lungs nearly every day for a year, and three bottles of your Peruna cured me. The doctor said I had consumption. I am now in better health than I have been for many years.

"I highly recommend Peruna to all my neighbors and friends. Peruna is my favorite medicine. I shall always have Peruna in the house."—Miss Caroline J. Kahl.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

A CALL.

We, the undersigned, citizens of Boone county, having every confidence in the ability and integrity of Mr. C. W. Porter, our valued citizen, to perform the duties of the office, we hereby urge and request him to become a candidate for the office of Assessor for Boone county, Mr. Porter having always been a citizen of our county, unassuming, and always a staunch Democrat, who has ever labored unceasingly for the welfare of our party. Hoping he will give this call due consideration and conclude to become a candidate for said office. We hereby subscribe our names and pledge our support:

A writer in the Farmers' Home Journal, in speaking of the tobacco trust says: I would call attention to the fact that the price of leaf tobacco of the white burly variety has been on the decline for two years and this season it will not average more than 7 cents while the price of the manufactured goods has been advancing and now averages more than 50 cents a pound. With the large per cent of sugar and figs and prunes and other ingredients added to the leaf in the plug goods, I venture the statement that every pound of leaf tobacco brings a net profit of 25 cents to the manufacturer.

Every tobacco journal with whom we exchange advises people in the white burley district to hold their tobacco for good prices. The farmers should take this advice and stand squarely on the ground. If you need money and have a good crop, you can easily get it, and it will be but a short time until the price will come to you. One or two weak-kneed fellows may do much harm by selling too cheaply. If your tobacco is good, demand a good price and hold for it, but if bad, sell in winter order. Farmers must stand together or starve. It is a thousand pities that the tobacco growers are not well organized.—Farmers' Friend.

Live Stock Notes.

If the sheep on the farm must be sold, sell them fat.

Do not make the slops from the kitchen answer for water.

It will help maintain health if the hogs have pure, fresh water every day.

It is the steady, quiet horse that can usually be depended upon to do the biggest day's work.

The farmer ought to be a good judge of live stock and know how to buy and sell to the best advantage.

When the sheep are sheared is one of the best times to determine what sheep should be kept and what sold.

In the end nothing pays so well as thoroughness in all of the details of farm management and in the care of the stock.

According to the official report of the Board of Agriculture of Great Britain the past year shows an increase of 396,538 head of cattle, and decreases of 680,233 sheep and 391,777 hogs. Added to these figures are others showing a considerable decrease in the number of cows, ewes, and brood sows, retained for breeding purposes. Foreign competition and an unfavorable season may be credited with the loses reported.

Poultry Notes.

When fowls are judiciously fed, made to take exercise, and their quarters kept clean and free from lice, there is comparatively no trouble with sickness except in cases of contagion.

Poultry raisers should learn the cause of diseases, how to prevent them, and there will be no need of medicines in the poultry yard.

When the comb and wattles of fowls are of a bright red color it indicates a condition of health.

When the fowls are busy scratching, the hens laying and singing, and the cocks crowing, are signs of health.

When you can enter the hennery after dark and hear no wheesing, it proves there are not any roup fowls in the flock.

When the manure is hard and a portion of it is white, it indicates a healthy condition of the digestive organs.

When the edges of the comb and wattles are of a purplish red and the movements are sluggish, there is something wrong.

When fowls lie around, indifferent to their surroundings, they are too fat, and death from apoplexy, indigestion or liver complaint will result unless the trouble is corrected.

When the fowls are restless and constantly picking their feathers they are infested with vermin.

The Care of Sheep.

Sheep should have a little corn daily.

Breeding ewes ought to be kept by themselves so that they may not be under any unnecessary excitement.

It pays to keep feeding pens clean, even if necessary to scrub off occasionally, as filth especially with the feed, induces disease.

When lambs are expected any time from now until settled weather in the spring, care should be taken to provide warm, dry quarters for them, or serious loss may result.

Some one may have non-breeding sows. Give them daily a gill of fine ground hempseed, in dry meal or corn and shorts or ground feed.

If you can fit up an apparatus easily for doing the work, it will pay to cook the small potatoes before feeding them to the hogs; the hogs will thrive better, and the potatoes go further.

It is reported that some bold cattle thieves have succeeded in stealing 265 head of cattle from the farmers of White and Jasper counties, Ind., the plan being to have cars stationed on sidings along the Monon railway and to load the cattle and ship them into Chicago before the loss was discovered.

Skim milk cannot be too highly indorsed as a food for swine. Fed in connection with corn it proves a very economical and effective ration. But it should not be fed to excess. Two to three pounds of skim milk to one of meal is the proportion. The milk being deficient in fat, and the corn in protein, their combination proves most satisfactory.

Cream will not rise as well, nor make as good butter, after the milk has been exposed to a low temperature for any length of time.

A kicking cow is never cured by harsh treatment. If kindness will not break them of the habit the best plan is to fatten and sell.

$307,000 to Licking.

[Falmouth Pendletonian.]

Congressman Albert S. Berry's unflagging efforts as a member of the Rivers and Harbor Committee to secure recognition for Licking River have at last been successful, and an appropriation of $307,000 for the improvement of Licking goes with the River and Harbor bill to be passed by Congress before adjournment for the holidays. This first appropriation is to be expended for cleaning out a long riffle two miles from the mouth of the river anq the building of a lock and dam about six miles from its mouth. This will give 16 or 18 miles of navigation up the river from its mouth towards Falmouth. In addition to this Col. Berry has secured $1,050,000 for a lock and dam on the Ohio at Cullom's Riffle, about six miles below Cincinnati, O, which will make good water up the Licking to first lock and dam.

Our alert retiring Congressman has also secured an appropriation to restore the river road between Covington and Ludlow.

Col. Berry has worked with might and main for the improvement of Licking, against insurmountable conditions as many supposed, from the time of his first entrance in Congress, and that he has at last been successful in getting the work started is almost as great a satisfaction to him as it is to the citizens to be benefited thereby, and that our illustrious Congressman has succeeded in this matter certainly augurs well for his ability and influence in Codgress and particularly as a member of the Rivers and Harbor Committee.

Now that a start is made on this much needed improvement, we trust that Hon. D. Linn Gooch our new Congressman will be able to push the work to a speedy completion, and that he will give his best efforts to that end is foregone conclusion.

The fat hogs should be put into the pork barrel, or in bank, before they eat more value of corn than they are worth.

The persistent milker that gives a fair quanity of medium test and calves in the fall, is the cow that makes happy figures on the books. Keep your eye open for her.

The hogs must be supplied with some bulky food during the winter. Clover hay cut early, and secured so as to save the leaves and heads is the most desirable for this purpose. This can be cut fine, and then steamed or soaked and fed with meal mixed into a thick slop. Where no special provision has been made, the clover leaves can be gathered from the barn floor where the hay is thrown down.—Farm Journal.

J. B. Downing, who resides about six miles from the city on the Nicholasville road, has a turkey gobbler which weighs forty-two pounds. The gobbler pipped last April. Mr. Downing says that he intends to send the feathered monster to the Louisville turkey show in January, and hopes by that time to have him weighing fifty pounds.—Lex. Democrat.

Mrs. Mitchell's experience ought to commend Wine of Cardui to suffering women in words of burning eloquence.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXVI. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 23, 1901. NO. 14.

THE candidates are working as hard as if the primary election was set for the last Saturday in this month.

MR. QUAY'S return to the United States Senate from Pennsylvania, is not at all pleasing to Senator Hanna.

IT should be remembered that a candidate for the Legislature is also to be nominated at the primary election in April.

THE appropriation of $300,000 for the improvement of the Licking river has passed the House, and it is not apt to have any trouble in the Senate.

IT is thought that the burning of the negro murderer at Leavenworth, last week, will interfere with the business of a heretofore favored class in Kansas—the murderers.

The lamb crob promises to be a fine one. Reuben Offutt has forty-odd and Hon. J. C. Cantrill about thirty-five. They are said to be excellent for early lambs.—Georgetown News.

IT seems that Chicago will not permit herself surpassed at any thing by anyother city in the country. In the matter of La Grippe she exceeded her nearest rival by fifty thousand cases.

THE call for the primary election covers all the offices to be filled at the election in November 1901—constable, justice of the peace, representative and all other county offices except circuit clerk.

THE State Democratic Committee met last Thursday and adjourned without taking any action in the Covington muddle, hoping that the warring factions may come to some understanding by which an amicable settlement can be reached. Let both factions step down and out, and a new deal be instituted.

UNDER the rules of the United States Senate by which any Senator, who is elected to fill an unexpired term, draws the entire salary for the period when the seat was vacant, Mr. Quay waltzed up to the captain's desk, last Thursday, and drew $10,000 salary which he never earned. In many respects Uncle Sam is liberal to a fault with the people's money.

GOV. BECKHAM had to send a company of State guards and a gattling gun to Corbin, Whitley county, last week, to assist the civil authorities in the execution of the law. Whitley polls about four thousand Republican and about one thousand Democratic votes, and was largely represented at Frankfort during the exciting scenes enacted there last year.

A marriage law is to be presented at the next session of the Wisconsin Legislature providing among other things that a board of medical examiners be organized and maintained by the State and that no license shall be granted to persons contemplating marriage, unless they shall have received a certificate from the board stating that they are free from insanity, consumption and tainted blood.

Here is a boy on his father's entrance into politics: "Dad has took the stump. I dunno who run him up it, but he's on it just the same. He is after office. One paper says he's a born liar; another one says he stole a horse; another one that he run off with a grass widder. When Maw heard all them things she said she thought she knew him pretty well before, but is glad she found him out at last. Jest wait till after the election and she has a dance at him."

IN the Kansas penitentiary are forty four prisoners who have been sentenced to death, but, owing to failure on the part of the Chief Executive to sign the death warrants they are being allowed to live and are supported by the State. In a State in which the Executive has been as derelict in his duty as appears has been the case in Kansas, such scenes as those enacted at Leavenworth, last week may be expected as they are a natural result of a failure to enforce the penal laws.

Home Supply of Sheep Required.

An authority on the requirements of the United States for sheep and wool is suggestive of the great field before the sheep breeders of this country. He says: "A total of 60,000 sheep producing 360,000,000 pounds of fleece and 60,000,000 pounds of butchers' wool, would have furnished very close to the supply for manufacture during the last ten years, without considering shoddy or substitutes. Should we reach a grand total of 80,000,000 sheep in a decade or two, a volume of 550,000,000 pounds of wool would be produced—more real wool than any nation in the world, except possibly France, has ever manufactured in a single year. When we reach 100,000,000, if we should with 700,000,000 pounds of wool, fleece and pulled, with the substitutes that must be counted in manufacture, there would be a liberal and ample supply for a population of 100,000,000. This does not make allowance for a considerable quantity of carpet wools that are quite certain to be imported, and any other imports that manufacturers might fancy in their quest for novelties or preferences in wools, which must always reduce domestic requirements.

Carlisle Growing Rich.

[Washington Cor. Chicago Record.]

Ex-Secretary Carlisle is said to be making $50,000 a year in fees from his practice in New York, which is tempting other retired statesmen to follow his example. Before Mr. Carlisle came to Congress he barely earned a living at the bar at Covington, Ky., and it is said that even then he did not collect half his fees. But now his time of prosperity has come and he has no cause to regret his reputation he made in Congress and the acquaintances he formed while he was Secretary of the Treasury.

IN this impression Henry Bannister is announced as a candidate for county judge. Mr Bannister is 68 years old and served as justice of the peace in the Union precinct from 1873 until the last election of justices, and only one judgment rendered by him in all that time was reviewed by a higher court. Mr. Bannister's long connection with the fiscal affairs of the county makes him especially qualified for county judge, and should he be nominated and elected he will go into office at once familar with the duties incumbent upon him. He is a conservative man in all things, and should the county's business be entrusted to his supervision it will be attended to in a manner satisfactory to all. Mr. Bannister is as good a Democrat as Boone county affords, and has been honorable and upright in every walk of life.

In the Henry County Circuit Court at New Castle last week Garnett D. Ripley was fined $50 for illegally, as was charged, organizing a company of State Guards last January during the exciting times at Frankfort. The point made by the Commonwealth was that "the license of the Governor," as required by statute, had not been obtained. It was also shown that no record of the application of the company and its approval by Gov. Taylor was on file in the Adjutant General's office. The question as to the Governorship did not enter into the case, as Taylor was at that time the acknowledged acting Executive. Several others who were indicted with Ripley was fined $10 each. The case will probably go to the Court of Appeals.

IN this issue C. W. Porter, who received a very flattering call to become a candidate for Assessor, is announced as a candidate for that office. Mr. Porter is a young man possessed of all the qualifications to make a good officer, and is deservedly popular among those with whom he has lived. If elected the office will be in good hands.

AN article in a Paris journal to the effect that the United States was ready to pay $10,000 to any man who would marry a squaw was followed by the receipt of many letters by the President from Frenchmen anxious to marry an Indian squaw and gain a bonus of $10,000 from the Government.

Farm, Stock and Crop.

The Stanford Journal notes the sales of several lots of hogs at 4 to 4½ cts.; 15 fat shoats at $4 13; a lot of hay at $40 per ton; 75 export cattle, weight 1450 lbs., at $4 90; 14 yearling cattle at 4c.

Jas. Ware, of Sharpsburg, has sold a crop of 6,000 pounds of tobacco to the Continental Company for 8½ cents. The same company has bought a number of crops in the same section of Bath for 8c.

J. Farris bought of B. F. Slavin thirty-two extra heavy feeders at 4½ cents. He bought of Miss Annie Yeiser a lot of shoats at 4 cents. Also bought of Chas. Gray 100 barrels of corn at $2 per barrel.—Danville News.

The highest price ever paid for a harness horse was $3,000, delivered here to Mode Nicholas by J. W. Wagner, of Philadelphia, for a bay gelding of unknown breeding. The horse is said to be the finest that ever left the State.—Lexington Democrat.

Clarence Lebus bought of J. W. Bently, of Robertson county, his entire crop of fancy tobacco at 9 cents all around. He also bought the crop of David Doan, of Harrison county, at 8 cents. These are the highest prices of the season.—Cynthiana Democrat.

Simon Weil, of Lexington, has purchased forty-six head of fine export cattle of N. I. Buster for $4 90 per hundred. Their average weight was 1,500 pounds. Mr. Weil said it was the finest bunch he has purchased in several months.—Danville News.

S. M. Warner has bought the Mark Furguson place, containing 28 acres, on the Grassy Lick pike, for $3,000. James C. Lems has sold his farm of 360 acres, on Lulbegrud, to A. B. Hampton for $50 an acre cash. Mr. Lems will buy a farm nearer town.—Mt. Sterling notes.

There are at present in winter quarters at or adjoining the Lexington track not less than three hundred head of horses that will be trained as soon as the season of 1901 opens. These do not include about sixty or seventy head in the barn of Frank Gentry and Tattersall's, where the "Coxey Army" holds forth.—Stock Farm.

Of Richmond court-day the Register says: The mule trade was brisk, all good ones being taken at prices ranging over $125.00; smaller animals ranged at about $75. Common horses $66 to $85; good ones $100 to $150. At the pens were about 1,400 cattle. We note the sale of thirty 800-pound steers at 4½c; 500 to 600-lb. heifers at 3¼c, plain steers, running about 600 lbs. at 3½c.

B. G. Fox has returned from Atlanta. He says the mule market is a little glutted, but prices fairly good. There were 1,800 mules at the Brady-Miller stables alone.... J. A. Shuttleworth has bought the old Crit Davis place from Josiah Smith at $100 per acre. It contains 155 acres and will be added to the Glenworth Farm, which it joins. This makes Glenworth one of the finest places in the land.

Agents for the English army have this week bought three car loads of horses from parties in Bourbon. The horses were shipped over the L. & N. Wednesday night. Capt. Heygate, of the British army, is now in Kansas City purchasing 50,000 horses and mules for the use of the English forces in South Africa. It is believed that this authoritative announcement will still further stiffen the prices of horses and mules.—Bourbon News.

Recent sales of blooded cattle in Texas show that the demand for high class cattle in that State never was better. The average price of 141 head of registered Herefords sold at Fort Worth in December, was 206 77 cents. This is a pretty good average for any dispesion sale, and a strong indication that Texas stockmen are after the best they can get. Young cattle are greatly preferred, and there are not enough of the pure-bred kind in Texas to supply 75 per cent of the demand.—Chicago Drovers' Journal.

Once more Mathew S. Quay has triumphed over all opposition in Pennsylvania and has been elected to the Senate. With potential and wealthy men against him he has beaten them in a hand-to-hand battle. The enterprising editors of Collier's Weekly, realizing the dangerous possibilities of the difficulties now pending in Venezuela, have sent a special correspondent and artist to that country, to be prepared for any emergency. Some bright letters and graphic pictures may be expected as a result.

If it took so many allies so long to make the Chinese accept the treaty, how long will it take to make them live up to it?

People who are rejoicing in the pleasant winter weather, should look out for squalls about the time the peach crop comes along.

A year or so ago, a man who stole a Belgian hare was guilty of petty larceny; nowadays, he is guilty of grand larceny; if he can postpone his trial for a year or two more, he will again only be guilty of petty larceny.

o o o

We have followed the arguments in the colonial cases before the Supreme Court with considerable care but we have not yet discovered how the Constitution can give anyone power to govern any country to which it does not apply.

o o o

The objection to the army bill is that it puts the size of the forces, within certain limits, at the absolute disposal of the president—who may or may not be a man who can be trusted with such enormous power. In all our past history, nothing of the kind has ever been proposed.

A constitutional amendment has been offered in the House to postpone inauguration day until April 30th, when the weather will presumably be less conducive to pneumonia. Unfortunately, similar amendments have been offered every year in the last century without coming to anything.

As a legislative factor, the House of Representatives is nonexistent, having surrendered its functions into the hands of the Speaker. In fact, the only signs of life it shows is when the members rise in their wrath and demand to be flattered up in connection with some celebration or other.

Kansas has burned a negro at a stake. Now that the north is beginning to realize that it has no exemption from such acts of savagery, will it not stop its foolish attacks on the south and co-operate with that section to find some way to prevent the crimes that bring this punishment?

The South American War has reached such a condition that British soldiers are being killed or sent home invalided faster than fresh ones can be raised and sent to take their places. Meanwhile, the Boers are invading Cape Colony and have penetrated almost to Cape Town. The Republic of all South Africa may yet become a fact.

South Carolina has a law that makes counties where lynchings occur liable for heavy damages. The result has been to stop the crime absolutely. Kansas, Indiana, Ohio, New York, Colorado, and other States ought to try this method and see if they cannot put an end to the disgraceful condition of affairs that exists within their borders.

General Roy Stone, of the Agricultural Department, in speaking before a House Committee on the subject of Porto Rico, with which he is well acquainted, drew a pitiful picture of the distress and starvation that exists there. If the Porto Ricans were able to send their products freely to our markets, their industries would soon revive.

We should like to inquire who is supplying the thousands of dollars now being expended by the Washington Bureau and lobby that is pushing the shipping bill. Senator Hanna says that the only people who oppose the bill are the agents of foreign steamship companies. Can it be that the money for pushing the bill to endow certain steamship companies, is furnished by an overwhelming popular uprising in its favor.

AMONG the probable Republican candidates for the United States Senate is Mr. Leslie Combs, Pension Agent for Kentucky and recently chairman of the Republican State Campaign Committee.

PORTER ACCEPTS.

Beaver Lick, Ky., Jan. 21, 1901.

Messrs. J. O. Potinger, Arthur Pitcher, G. M. Moore and many other voters: Gentlemen:—I have noted in the Recorder your cordial request to become a candidate for the office of Assessor of our county. I had not even thought of ever becoming a candidate for any office until my friends in the last few days have urged me to become a candidate for said office, and, I deem it would be ungrateful on my part if I should do otherwise than accept your most cordial invitation to become a candidate for Assessor of Boone county. Therefore, gentlemen, I accept your call and will endeavor to make a thorough canvass, and see all the voters of the county, in so far as I can. Thanking my many friends for the interest they have taken in my behalf, and humbly asking the support of the voters of the county, I am

Yours respectfully,
C. W. PORTER.

There are so many men of the name of Hill. Of course, the Kentucky editor did not refer to David B. when he asked that seemingly sarcastic question, "Who is Hill?" David B. Hill is the man who got the most notice, next to Mr. Bryan, in the Democratic National Convention at Kansas City; who could have had the nomination for Vice President "hands down," and who was not so almighty far from the first place had there been concert of action among a considerable number of leading Democrats who believed that the nomination of Mr. Bryan on a free silver platform would be a mistake. David B. is also the man who entered vigorously into the campaign, stumping a number of states for the ticket, and atoning in large part for his retiring disposition in 1896. There are a good many worse Democrats than David B. Hill, and a great many that are not half so well known, though they talk more.—Enquirer.

J. F. BLYTH'S announcement as a candidated for Assessor, appears today. Mr. Bylth is well known in the county, and is recognized as one of the hardest party workers in the State, contributing of his money and time whenever party interests demands them. His record as a Democrat is spotless. If called to the office to which he aspires, he will discharge the duties thereof in a manner satisfactory all concerned. Besides being a good Democrat Mr. Blyth is as clever a gentleman as can be found in a day's journey.

Among the announcements for Assessor this week, you will find that of James A. Riddell, a fearless Democrat of the Constance precinct. He has always been in the thickest of the fight when a political campaign was on, using his every effort to bring victory to the Democratic banner. This is his first appearance before his party as a candidate, and should he came under the wire a winner, he will discharge the duties of the office honestly, faithfully and properly.

Senator Deboe has notified several of his close friends in Kentucky that he will recommend the name of ex-Gov. W. O. Bradley to President McKinley for Federal Judge of the Eastern judicial district, providing the bill now pending in Congress becomes a law. Deboe is determined to do this, and he is said to have sent several persons to ask Gov. Bradley if he will accept the judgeship.

THE canvass for the nomination for county offices has made a nice, quiet beginning, and there are good reasons to believe that it will be so conducted. The candidates are all gentlemen in whom the public have perfect confidence, and it is hoped they will do nothing during the canvass that will serve to lower them in the estimation of their friends.

QUEEN VICTORIA, of England, died yesterday of paralysis, superinduced, it is claimed, by worry over the war in South Africa. She was in her 81st year, and had reigned since she was eighteen years of age.

THE RECORDER

W. L. RIDDELL, Publisher.

BURLINGTON, : KENTUCKY.

There were 111 deer killed in Vermont during the open season, which ended November 1. Last year 90 were reported killed in the brief ten days' season allowed, and in 1898, when the open season extended throughout October, 130 were killed.

A petrified forest, covering an area of 100 square miles, has existed for centuries in Arizona. Thousands and thousands of petrified logs strew the ground, and represent beautiful shades of pink, purple, red, grey, blue and yellow. One of the stone trees spans a gulf 40 feet wide.

One of the sights in Washington these days in Mme. Wu, wife of the Chinese minister, as she speeds along in her gasoline auto. She has almost abandoned her carriage, the colored driver having been converted into an engineer. My Chung, her secretary, a graduate of Yale, delivers madame's cards.

When American armies were in Cuba the island was almost depleted of cattle, a vast number of the animals having been killed for food. Now the ranchmen and farmers are busy stocking up again and have made heavy drafts on Florida, which, as a consequence, has about been stripped of its better grades of cattle.

The greatest depth at which mining operations are carried on in Great Britain is 3,500 feet—at the Pendleton colliery. In the Lake Superior district this depth has been greatly exceeded, the Calumet and Hecla copper mine having a depth of 4,900 feet. At Mons, in Belgium, a colliery is being worked at a depth of nearly 4,000 feet.

The national airs of great countries are short, while those of little countries are long. "God Save the Queen" is 14 bars, the Russian hymn is 16 bars and "Hail Columbia" has 28 bars. Siam's national hymn has 76 bars and that of Uruguay 70, Chile 46, and so on. San Marino has the longest national hymn, except China, which is so long that people take half a day off to listen to it.

An idea of the great increase of the cost of diamonds imparted by the labor of polishing and mounting, as well as by the profits of traders, may be obtained by comparing their price at the mines in South Africa with the prices in the jewelry shops. A diamond weighing one carat, mounted in a ring, may cost the buyer $100 or more, but at Kimberley the average value of diamonds is only about $6.25 per carat.

The seals of office, which half a dozen of English rulers recently surrendered to or received from the queen, are small metal stamps in velvet cases. They are mere emblems, never used unless the handing of them by the queen to new ministers, and the return of them to her majesty at the end of office, may be called used. It is said that frequently ministers do not see their seals from the day of receiving to the time of relinquishing them.

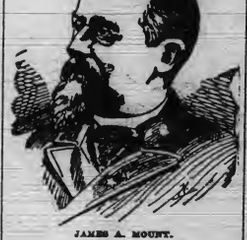
The citizens of the village of Sing Sing are to take action at a public meeting in regard to petitioning the legislature to change its present name of Sing Sing to that of Ossining. Ossining is the name of the township in which Sing Sing is situated. Both names are of Indian origin, Sing Sing being taken from the name of a tribe of Mohegan Indians known as "Sint-Sinchs," who lived there in the early part of the seventeenth century.

The census of 1900 shows that only two classes of American cities have made especial progress—those on the inland lakes and those possessing great and diversified manufacturing enterprises. The river cities are growing more slowly; the coast cities south of Norfolk are making little progress; but between that point and Portland, Me., they are attracting large populations. The railroad cities, especially those of comparatively high altitudes, are also making considerable progress.

Most of the big liners that carry the mails now have floating post offices on board, where all letters and postal packets are dealt with while the vessel is plowing her way through the waves. The sorters have by no means an easy time on board, for they are often at work for 12 hours a day during the entire voyage. One sorter on the Kaiser Wilhelm stated the other day that during five months an average of 58,368 letters, 220 sacks of papers, and 847 registered articles were handled by four men or an individual average of 14,592 letters, 50 odd sacks of papers and 212 registered articles.

Charles T. Yerkes, multi-millionaire, by the purchase for $220,000 of the Simon Borg dwelling at No. 4 East Sixty-eighth street, deeds for which were recorded, has taken the first step toward erecting a $5,000,000 palace in Millionaires' Row. The 28 by 100.5 plot he has purchased adjoins a plot fronting 99.5 feet on Fifth avenue and 125 feet on Sixty-eighth street, on which Mr. Yerkes in 1894 erected a four-story stone house at a cost of $1,500,000. The original plot, purchased for $400,000 is now valued at $1,000,000.

DEATH OF GOV. MOUNT



Died Suddenly at His Apartments After Returning From a Walk.

A Few Minutes Later He Said to His Wife: "I Am Sick; It's My Heart. Send For a Doctor at Once."

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 17.—James A. Mount, who retired Monday at noon from the office of governor of the state of Indiana, died very suddenly at 6:45 o'clock Wednesday night in his apartments at the Denison hotel.

He had attended a reception tendered by Mrs. Mount to a number of prominent ladies of the city during the afternoon, and shortly after the guests departed he started out for a walk. Upon his return he said nothing about being ill, and after removing his hat and overcoat sat down to read. In a few minutes he turned to his wife and niece, who were in the room, and said: "I am sick; it's my heart. Send for a doctor at once."

After taking off his collar and tie and assisting her husband to reach his bed, Mrs. Mount went out into the corridor, where she met Senator and Mrs. Charles C. Binckley, of Richmond. She was wringing her hands, and said: "Mr. Mount is very ill. Please get a doctor as quickly as possible." Dr. O. S. Runnells was called, and found those in attendance at Mr. Mount's bedside chafing his feet and hands in an effort to revive him. He knelt down and listened for a heartbeat, and, rising on his feet, said: "You can do nothing more for him; he is dead."

JAMES A. MOUNT.

In the lobby of the Denison at the time of the announcement of the death were gathered a number of prominent politicians of the state, and at once many kindly offers of assistance were sent to Mrs. Mount.

During the forenoon Mr. Mount visited the office of his former private secretary and was in consultation with him for several hours. In the afternoon he made a speech before the Indiana State Wool Growers' association and was elected president of the association.

Word was at once sent to Gov. Durbin, who was at Anderson, and instructions were issued at once ordering the issuing of a proclamation. Three children besides Mrs. Mount are the surviving members of the family. The eldest child is Mrs. Chas. Butler, who lives on a farm in Montgomery county adjoining that of her father. Mrs. John W. Nicely, who is now at Beirut, Syria, and Rev. Harry M. Mount, pastor of the Presbyterian church at Connersville, are the other children.

During his term of office Gov. Mount was attacked several times by fainting spells but none of them was serious. Col. Wilson, who was in the office with him during his term of office, said Wednesday night:

"Gov. Mount was worked to death. His close application to the duties of his office impaired his health, and until some of the burden is removed from the shoulders of the governors of Indiana the exaction of the office will kill anybody."

Sketch of His Life.

James Atwell Mount, ex-governor of Indiana, was a native of the state, having been born in Montgomery county, March 23, 1843. His father, Atwell Mount, was a native of Virginia, and moved to Indiana in 1828. Ex-Gov. Mount was one of 12 children. His parents were poor and the family led a life of pioneer simplicity.

At the breaking out of the civil war he enlisted in the 72d regiment, Indiana volunteers, and later was a member of the renowned Wilder brigade. At the close of the war he settled on a farm in Montgomery county, Indiana, was married to Miss Kate A. Boyd in 1867.

Gov. Mount was a republican and one of the most distinguished men of the party in the state. His statesmanship in purpose was practical.

Several times he proved himself a popular candidate. In 1888, in a democratic district, he was elected state senator by a majority of 600 votes, and in 1896 he was elected governor by the largest plurality ever given in Indiana to a candidate for governor or president.

Besides Mrs. Mount, three children survive him. Rev. Harry M. Mount, a Presbyterian minister, and Mrs. Helen Mount Nicely, now in Beirut, Syria, and Mrs. Chas. E. Butler, living on the Mount homestead in Montgomery county, this state.

PEACE AT CORBIN.

Shotwells and Their Followers Arrested, and a Threatened Feudist War Is Averted.

Corbin, Ky., Jan. 17.—Intense excitement prevailed in Corbin Wednesday night. About 8 o'clock Wednesday afternoon James Shotwell and Rollie White met in front of Hagan's drug store and began quarreling. Few words were spoken when White drew a pistol and fired three shots into the body of Shotwell. Shotwell was carried to his room, and is not expected to survive more than a few hours. White took refuge in his brother's grocery, and submitted to arrest.

John Shotwell, a son of the dying man, was in Williamsburg attending circuit court. A hasty summons brought him to Corbin at 4 o'clock. He at once swore vengeance on his father's murderer.

At 6:30 a terrific explosion occurred under the grocery of E. R. White, where his brother was being guarded. So severe was the shock that it tore the building literally to pieces.

There were about a dozen persons in the building at the time. Several escaped with slight injuries, while several remain in the debris.

The trouble between Shotwell and White grew out of the fact that White had been paying attentions to Shotwell's daughter, much against the will of the entire Shotwell family.

Wednesday afternoon when the two met Shotwell told White he must not visit his house again, as he did not wish such a man in his family. From this the quarrel began. Shotwell is about 50 years of age and a well respected citizen. White is a young man about 22 years old.

Lexington, Ky., Jan. 18.—Col. Roger D. Williams, of the 2d Kentucky state guard regiment, with 80 picked men from the Lexington battalion of infantry, under Lieut. Henry Hutchison, and ten men of the first section of Battery A, commanded by Lieut. McNamara, with one Gatling gun, left here at 8:45 in a special car attached to the regular C. & O. train for Corbin, the scene of the rioting and bloodshed of Wednesday and Wednesday night.

Telephone advices are to the effect that a large body of men has been assembled at Gray's Station, under Tom Shotwell, a brother of the dead man, and that it is intended to lynch White at Whitesburg.

A late special from Corbin says that the Whites are at Whitesburg with their friends, and if a lynching is attempted trouble will ensue. Everything is quiet in Corbin.

Corbin, Ky., Jan. 18.—A third death has been added to Corbin's terrible feud of Wednesday. "Jim" Shotwell, father of the Shotwell boys, and leader of the clan, who was shot through the body, is dead, and his sons and followers have said his death shall be avenged. The other two are Susan Cox, a notorious woman, shot through the head by a stray bullet, and Sutton Farris, a painter, also shot through the head.

Corbin, Ky., Jan. 19.—The presence of a large Gatlin gun stationed at a commanding point and nearly 100 soldiers scattered about over the town and its immediate vicinity had a quieting effect on the blood-thirsty citizens of this place Friday, and Friday night the troops, being no longer needed, were withdrawn.

When the citizens awoke Friday morning they found a Gatlin gun covering all important points of the town and the soldiers patrolling the streets. There was no place for the militiamen to take shelter, and they consequently went to work to patch up the trouble without delay.

First the Shotwell boys, Charles, James and Robert, sons of the murdered man, and their allies, Wes and Richard McHague, were placed under arrest. Then the police judge was asked to investigate the dynamiting of the White store and the killing of the Cox woman and Sutton Farris. Judge Wilder, acting coroner, took up the matter, and had before him several witnesses, including Roach White, proprietor of the store which was wrecked and in which he and Bill White were guarding their brother, who had killed old man Shotwell.

White did not know the names of any of the participants in the rioting, and the investigation was not completed.

Helena, Mont., Jan. 17.—W. A. Clark was on Wednesday afternoon elected United States senator to succeed Thomas H. Carter. Mr. Clark in joint session received 47 votes out of 93 cast on the first ballot, and was declared elected. No one was elected for the short term.

Plague Suspected.

Burnham Denies Marriage.

SHE DECLINED.

Gave the Suitor to Understand That She Was Not in the Patching Business.

Few American youth have careers made for them. Those who deplore this fact and shun the shoals of self-effort may find tonic in the reply of a western girl to an offer of marriage, says Youth's Companion.

A young man of more book-learning than force of character lost the young wife who had failed to support him, returned to his native town for consolation, and found it. Some months later she, too, passed away, and the sad youth soon appealed to a well-known clergyman for assistance in finding a helpmate.

The minister introduced him to a western girl of health and energy, who the next day received a plaintive note from the widower. He declared that the Lord had made great inroads upon his marital affections, and it now seemed to be His will that she should repair the breaches of his life.

The reply, which the clergyman keeps today as one of the choicest specimens of a varied collection, reads simply:

"Mend your own breeches."

SHARES PUBLIC SCHOOLS' HONORS.

Excellent Geographical Exhibit at Paris Largely Due to Union Pacific.

The Passenger Department of the Union Pacific Railway is in receipt of a letter from Superintendent C. G. Pearse inviting it to share in the honors bestowed upon the Omaha public schools at the Paris exposition. As is well known, the Omaha schools were awarded a gold medal for the excellence of the showing made by their methods of teaching geography. The most important part of the exhibit consisted of a set of illustrated publications and maps showing the sources from which geographical material and information are obtained. Superintendent Pearse acknowledges that great credit is due to the Union Pacific Passenger Department, which furnished many of the publications and maps for the Paris exhibit.—Omaha "Bee," Dec. 11th, 1900.

EPIDEMIC OF GRIP WORST EVER KNOWN.

GRIP BACILLUS EVERYWHERE—IN THE AIR WE BREATHE, IN THE WATER WE DRINK, IN THE FOOD WE EAT.

Bacillus of Grip.

Magnified 16,000 times.

Hundreds of car loads of Peruna are shipped in all directions to meet the extraordinary demand of the grip epidemic.

Every body laying in a stock of this valuable remedy in time to meet the terrible enemy, the Grip.

The extensive facilities of the manufacturers taxed to their utmost to meet the urgent demand for Peruna.

Almost every body has the grip. Almost every body must have Peruna.

Taken at the appearance of the first symptoms of the grip, not only is Peruna a prompt cure for the grip but it prevents those disastrous after-effects so characteristic of this dread disease.

Peruna not only cures the grip but prevents it.

Taken in time thousands of lives will be saved in this present epidemic.

Every family should take the precaution to secure a supply of Peruna at once, for the retail and wholesale stock of the remedy may be exhausted by the enormous demand for it.

It is wisdom to have Peruna in the house even before the grip attacks the household.

It has been ascertained by a reporter that the following people of national reputation have given public endorsement and testimonials to Peruna as a remedy for la grippe:

Congressman Howard, of Alabama, says: "I have taken Peruna for the grip and recommend it as an excellent remedy to all fellow-sufferers."

Congressman White, of North Carolina, says: "I find Peruna to be an excellent remedy for the grip. I have used it in my family and they all join me in recommending it."

Miss Frances M. Anderson, of Washington, D. C., daughter of Judge Anderson, of Virginia, says: "I was taken very ill with the grip. I took Peruna and was able to leave my bed in a week."

Mrs. Harriette A. S. Marsh, President of the Woman's Benevolent Association, of Chicago, writes: "I suffered with grip seven weeks. Nothing helped me. Tried Peruna and within three weeks I was fully restored. Shall never be without it again."

At the appearance of the first symptoms of grip people should stay indoors and take Peruna in small doses (teaspoonful every hour) until the symptoms disappear. This will prevent a long, disastrous sickness and perhaps fatal results.

Not Afraid of Kidnapers.

"Geordie," said the motherly old soul, "aren't you afraid to be so far from home at as late an hour as this?"

"Afraid of what?"

"Of kidnapers."

"Naw!" exclaimed Geordie. "I'm a good little boy, and the Lord will take care of me. "Sides," he added, contemptuously, "my papa ain't got any money."—Chicago Tribune.

DESPERADO CAPTURED

Marvin Kuhns, Who Has Terrorized Northern Indiana, in Jail.

Kuhns' Brother, Who Was Defending Him, Was Also Arrested—Prisoners Were Positively Identified.

Logansport, Ind., Jan. 18.—Marvin Kuhns, who has terrorized Northern Indiana for weeks and boldly defied the officers of two states, by a singular fatality finds himself in the Cass county jail in the very town in which he made such a desperate battle for life and liberty on the afternoon of December 10. Kuhns and his brother, who was released from the Columbus prison shortly after Marvin escaped, were taken after a desperate fight at Green Hill, a little town five miles south of Otterbein, west of Lafayette. Before the outlaw was overpowered he shot two men and was himself shot in the head.

Emboldened by immunity from officers, Kuhns and his brother and a confederate stole a team at Plymouth Sunday night and started south. Ex-Sheriff J. E. Marshall and Marshal T. J. Chaney traced them to Lafayette Wednesday evening, and by telephoning neighboring towns located the men at Green Hill, a small village near Otterbein. An Otterbein posse surrounded the house and rushed in at midnight. Marvin was awake, and seized a revolver at his bedside. Before he could fire Elmer Switzer shot him in the face and the posse closed in. One man jumped from the second-story window and escaped, but the brothers were overpowered after a struggle in which shots were exchanged.

Wounded as he was, Marvin partially shook off the attacking party and shot H. Volt in the back and Lewis Hawkins in the arm. Neither was fatally injured. The prisoners were brought to Logansport. Here Marvin was positively identified by the policeman who battled with him in December. His measurements and physical marks tally to a dot with the Bertillion description from the Columbus officials. He says if he had been given a fair show he would have cleaned out the posse. The wound in his face is not serious. The Plymouth authorities will likely prosecute him instead of returning him to Columbus.

Plymouth, Ind., Jan. 19.—The two men in jail here were recognized as Marvin Kuhns, the desperado and escaped life convict from the Ohio penitentiary at Columbus, O., and his brother John. Kuhns was taken to the penitentiary Saturday. The Ohio officials came here for him. A reward of $1,000 offered by the Ohio officials will be paid. He was recognized Friday by former neighbors at Albion. John Kuhns, the brother, will be held here and tried. A dispatch from Albion says Kuhns, his brother John and a cousin named Griffin left their home near Albion in a westerly direction Saturday evening after giving an oyster supper. Kuhns is a life convict for the murder of his partner 12 years ago, and for weeks has stalked abroad in this state defying the authorities.

TERRIBLY TORTURED.

Burglars Compelled an Old Man to Tell Where His Money Was By Use of Red-Hot Pokers.

Shamokin, Pa., Jan. 18.—Martin Reich, aged 82 years, who lived alone at his home here, was the victim of a brutal assault by masked burglars early Thursday morning, who also subjected Reich to frightful torture to induce him to tell them where his earnings were hidden. The burglars, five in number, overpowered the old man and applied red-hot pokers to his body and feet until he finally told them where the money could be found. This amounted to $133.60. After dividing the money among them the burglars pounced upon Reich and kicked him until he was almost dead. They then made their escape.

Killed By a Policeman.

Kansas City, Mo., Jan. 19.—Frank Kester, aged 40 years, was shot and killed at his home here by Policeman Silas Shumate. Kester was intoxicated and was taken home by the policeman. He got a weapon, declaring that he was going to kill Shumate, and the officer, thinking his life was in danger, shot Kester. The dead man leaves a widow and three children.

To Amend Immigration Law.

Washington, Jan. 18.—Senator Lodge introduced a bill Thursday providing for the amendment of the immigration law so as to exclude insane, idiotic and epileptic persons.

ACTIVE RECRUITING.

It Is In Progress in All the Principal Cities—Enlistments Are For Three Years.

Washington, Jan. 19.—Active recruiting for the army is in progress in all the principal cities of the country. The authorized strength of the regular army at present is 65,000 men, and it is the intention to maintain it at that strength after the discharge of the 35,000 volunteers on June 30, next. All enlistments are for three years, and the number of recruits averages about 2,000 a month. Owing to the delay in action on the army bill, the impression prevails in the war department that it will be almost impossible to get all the volunteers to this country in time to permit their discharge here by June 30. In that case it will be necessary to discharge a number of them in the Philippines on that date, in order to keep them there until replaced by regular troops now being recruited. Otherwise it would not be possible to keep the Philippine army up to the limit of 40,000 men, regarded as essential to the enforcement of the president's policy, while the proposed reorganization of the army is in progress. It is said at the war department that, while it is settled that all the volunteers will be discharged June 30, the course of events in the near future will determine to a considerable extent whether the discharges shall take place in the Philippines or in the United States. Every effort will be made to get as many of them home as possible before their discharge.

THE BOSSCHIETER CASE.

Jury Returns Verdict of Murder in Second Degree Against McAlister, Death and Campbell.

New York, Jan. 19.—Walter C. McAlister, Andrew J. Campbell and William Heath, three of the four persons indicted for the murder of Jennie Bosschieter, a mill girl at Paterson, N. J., who was murdered on the night of October 18, last, were adjudged guilty of murder in the second degree, for which, according to the New Jersey law, the maximum penalty is 30 years' imprisonment. The jury took 14 ballots. When they filed into the court room the prisoners appeared very nervous. McAlister seemed more excited than any of the others. He sat biting his lips while waiting. Campbell thrust his hands into his trousers pockets and clinched his fists in them. Death looked anxiously about the court room for a moment and then assumed the same attitude as Campbell. When the verdict was announced the prisoners evinced neither elation nor relief.

Judge Dixon thanked the jury and said he believed the verdict a just one. He then dismissed the jurors until Monday morning. The court then rose and the prisoners were taken back to jail.

A DYING SOVEREIGN.

Queen Victoria Is Still Alive, But Her Majesty's Death Is Momentarily Expected.

PRINCE OF WALES ALSO INDISPOSED.

Aged British Ruler Had a Paralytic Stroke and Remains Mostly in a Comatose State.

Emperor William, Her Grandson, Arrived in London Sunday Night, and Early Monday Morning Started For Osborne House.

Cowes, Isle of Wight, Jan. 21.—Monday morning found Queen Victoria still alive, but all hope is gone, and her death is only a question of hours. Sunday evening her case became decidedly worse, and the aged sovereign lay most of the time in a comatose state during Sunday and Sunday night.

London, Jan. 21.—The Exchange Telegraph Co. Monday morning says the queen was reported to be unconscious and was thought to be sinking by the royal family, who arrived at Osborne house from London by train Monday morning.

So far as her immediate safety is concerned, the queen's extreme weakness caused almost more alarm than the paralysis. Much difficulty was experienced in administering nourishment, for she appeared quite unable to masticate. To this weakness are probably due the long spells of unconsciousness through which she has passed, although it was almost impossible to distinguish these from the insidious encroachments of paralysis.

Emperor William, the prince of Wales and the duke of York arrived at Osborne house Monday. The only additional royal personage who arrived Sunday was the Princess Victoria of Schleswig-Holstein, who arrived during the afternoon.

The departure of the prince of Wales for London shortly after 12 o'clock to meet Emperor William was quietly accomplished. The queen had been informed of the kaiser's coming and had signified her desire that the prince should go to meet him.

Rather against his will the man who for the moment was practically the king of England obeyed his mother's wishes. It was rumored that the queen wanted the emperor to postpone his visit to Osborne house, as she did not wish to receive him in her present condition.

London, Jan. 24.—Throughout the United Kingdom there was a Sunday of anxiety and suspense. No one in England outside the circle of the court knew the real condition of the queen or the nature of her disease. The bulletins threw but little light on the universal question whether death was imminent. The London newspapers had not learned that her majesty had suffered a shock of paralysis. Extra editions of the Sunday papers contained no information, but there were many of the official bulletins, and they were eagerly bought.

Crowds assembled to witness the arrival of Emperor William. Apart from such incidents, however, the customary [illegible] of a London Sunday was not disturbed.

The most alarming reports of the day came in the form of telegrams from the princesses at Osborne house. The coming of Emperor William and the news that King Leopold was about starting for London inspired fears that death was at hand. On the other hand, the fact that the prince of Wales was able to leave Osborne house had an encouraging effect. When the prince arrived at Victoria station, London, at 4 o'clock, with Sir Francis Knollys attending, several hundred people were there to greet him.

But there was no demonstration beyond a respectful raising of hats. The earl of Clarendon and the earl of Pembroke received the prince. When they inquired regarding the queen's condition he replied, "You see they have let me come away."

The prince of Wales arrived just before the train entered the station, which was 6:20 p. m. The duke of York, Prince Christian, Prince Albert of Schleswig-Holstein and Prince Arthur of Connaught completed the group of royal personages. Emperor William stepped out of a saloon car wearing a traveling suit. He saluted the prince of Wales by kissing him on both cheeks, and the prince returned a similar salutation. He then embraced the duke of York and shook hands with the others.

The people who looked on as the carriages drove off uncovered their heads, and Emperor William and the prince of Wales acknowledged the courtesy by raising their hats. No cheers broke the mournful silence. The crowd in the vicinity of Buckingham palace maintained the same demeanor when the emperor and the prince of Wales entered the grounds.

At 10 p. m. the prince of Wales began a conversation with Osborne house which lasted nearly an hour. As a result of this the emperor and the prince started for Osborne Monday morning. Orders were given that a royal yacht should convey them to the isle of Wight.

London, Jan. 21.—In the closing moments of Queen Victoria's life another grave portent arises, namely, the serious indisposition of the prince of Wales. So worried, tired and exhausted was he Sunday evening that he could not respond immediately to the summons from Osborne house. The most he could do was to promise that he would leave London at 8 o'clock Monday morning, if possible. It is worthy of note that even Monday the London papers did not mention by even the most veiled allusion the fact that the queen has had a paralytic stroke.

Pages are devoted to the mournful scenes at Osborne house and to descriptions of occurrences there, as well as to telegrams from the colonies and foreign countries testifying to the sympathy everywhere evoked.

According to the Daily Telegraph, Emperor William, who has expressed a desire to be received at Osborne house, not as emperor but as grandson, said, on hearing of the queen's illness: "I am my grandmother's oldest grandson, and my mother is unable from illness to hasten to her bedside."

Brussels, Jan. 21.—King Leopold, who is kept fully informed regarding the condition of Queen Victoria, will proceed to Osborne house immediately. The royal yacht is waiting with steam up. His majesty will be accompanied by Count d'Oultremont, grand marshal of the court, and Count d'Alsche, master of ceremonies.

Cape Town, Jan. 21.—The news of Queen Victoria's illness caused consternation in Cape Town. Sir Alfred Milner and his staff attended services in the cathedral, where prayers were offered for her majesty's recovery.

Locke's Mills, Me., Jan. 19.—A head-end collision took place on the Grand Trunk railway here, resulting in the death of five men, the injury of many others.

THE PRUSSIAN EMPIRE

Bicentenary of the Establishment of the Government Celebrated.

Luncheon Given in the Gorgeous White Hall to Over 1,200 Persons—Foreign Ambassadors and Ministers Were Present.

Berlin, Jan. 19.—Emperor William banqueted the visiting princes, the ambassadors and great nobilities of the empire in honor of the bicentenary of the Prussian empire. His majesty drank the health of the newly created knights and carried on a lively conversation with those sitting near him. The emperor repeatedly pledged the ambassadors.

Mr. White, when delivering President McKinley's congratulations to the emperor, emphasized the fact that it was Hohenzollern who first recognized the independence of the United States, and also that the first commercial treaty negotiated by the United States was made with Prussia. He mentioned appreciatively Germany's liberal policy in opening her universities and technical schools to foreigners.

Emperor William, who replied pleasantly, pointed out that nations of German blood must hold together in the great controversies of the world.

The luncheon began at 2 o'clock and lasted until 4 o'clock. It was given in the gorgeous white hall and over 1,200 persons were present. The chief table was in the form of a hollow square, and there were tables also in the galleries. The emperor made only a few remarks, proposing the health of the new knights.

This was the first time foreign ambassadors and ministers had attended an ordensfest, a function given every January 18 for the members of the Prussian orders, the reason being that this year the ordensfest coincided with the bicentenary celebration.

The bill of fare was rather simple, including broth, sole, pot roast with vegetables, truffles, game pie, jellied lobster, capon, fruit, salad, orange ice, cheese, desert and exquisite wines from the royal cellars. During the luncheon musical selections from Meyerber, Weber, Handel, Wagner and Strauss were played. Hundreds of soldiers were specially detailed to assist outside, bringing the dishes to the lackeys.

The imperial chancellor, Count Von Buelow, sat opposite the emperor. On the chancellor's right were the ambassadors of Italy, Russia, France and the United States. On his left were the ambassadors of Austria, Great Britain, Turkey and Spain.

The city was brilliantly illuminated. The kaiser ordered the German minister to The Netherlands, Count Von Puntales, to deposit in Delft, South Holland, upon the tomb of Prince Frederick Henry of Orange, father of the wife of the great elector, a wreath showing the Prussian colors and bearing the inscription—"In Memory of the Grandfather of the First Prussian King."

Fifteen new peers for the Prussian herrenhaus, or house of lords, were appointed by the emperor, the list including Rev. Dr. Dryander and Prof. Fielder, of the Charlottenburg technical high school, as well as a number of mayors.

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 21.—N. H. Fraser, of Union Springs, Ala., whose son Bass was kidnaped several weeks ago while a student at the technological school here, has apparently lost $500 by a decoy letter sent him. Mr. Fraser received a letter stating that if he would place $500 in gold, the amount he offered for his son, in a sack with a peck of potatoes, and proceed along the road near the United States federal prison, several miles from this city, he would be met by a Negro who would ask: "Massa, has you got dem potatoes?"

He was to deliver the sack and its contents to the Negro and his son would appear at a hotel in this city looking for his father at an early hour Sunday morning.

The letter was signed "Packer," mailed in Atlanta, dated January 16, and the instructions were minute and specific.

Mr. Frazer's son, a brother of the kidnaped boy, carried out the plan of the letter, met the Negro as arranged and gave him the money and potatoes Saturday night.

Sunday morning he was at the hotel mentioned and remained there all day, but Bass Frazer did not appear, and no trace of him or the person who received the $500 can be found.

FOUGHT A DUEL.

Count de Lubersac Wounded in the Arm By Baron Robert de Rothschild.

Paris, Jan. 21.—The long-expected duel between the Count de Lubersac and Baron Robert de Rothschild was fought with swords at 11 o'clock Sunday morning on Baron Edmond de Rothschild's estate at Boulogne Sur Seine. Count de Lubersac's seconds were M. Schege and Count de Laborde, and those of Baron de Rothschild were Baron Leonino and Vicecount de Bondy. The duel began at 11 and lasted ten minutes, when Count de Lubersac received a lunge, perforating his arm at the elbow to the armpit. The duel was then stopped. Both the count and baron fought most determinedly; neither flinched and neither showed the slightest desire to spare the other. Sixteen engagements took place, all of a desperate character.

The combatants attacked each other furiously. The sleeves of their shirts were literally torn to pieces by the points of their swords as the duelists repeatedly lunged at each other. Several times they came to close quarters and their seconds were obliged to separate them.

It is noted with pleasure that Robt. Byland was able to return to his studies after a severe attack of malaria.

The common form of salutation, "How are you?" is answered now in Walton by the one word—grippped.

The Odd Fellows' Lodge of Walton, has purchased of Mrs. King for $675, the lot fronting her hotel. It is thought that a handsome building will be erected on the same in the near future.

W. A. Murphy is putting up a front to the building opposite High Street, to which Watson & Bro. on its completion will remove their meat store.

Miss Flora Price, an interesting young lady, of Dry Ridge, delighted Mrs. E. P. Holder with a visit, Thursday. They had not seen each other for years, and their meeting was most pleasant and agreeable.

John L. Vest has fully recovered and has gone to Independence again. John has plenty of grit, but as the grippe is going the rounds, he had better take good care of himself, or a very promising young lawyer may break down before fully developed.

Attention has been called to a disease of the eye that very few persons have even dreamed of in the case of the bright little daughter of Marshal Bianco, Willella, (that's her name) could read printed matter the full length distance of a ball and then suffer with the most terrible headaches imaginable. He took her to an oculist in the city who had glasses fitted to her eyes which she wears continually. These bring her vision to a normal condition and she has not had a headache since. We learn something new every day.

Misses Hattie Edwards and Clara Diers had a nice time visiting Misses Lucy and Lizzie Fields on January 19th, and a little social reception was given in their honor at the home of Mr. Green Fields, at which were present Misses Hattie Edwards, Clara Diers, Margaret and Nellie Clements, Nannie Dickerson, Robert Byland, Pat Norman, Volney Dickerson, Jos. Huey, Earl Clements, Mr. and Mrs. David Hicks.—Mr. Pat Norman, who came on horseback, and while he was deepiy interested in a fair maiden, some one turned his saddle, and wheu he started for home his back was turned to the horse's head.

Candidates galore have thronged the streets and the highways in and about the town during the past week, and have explained to the people their qualifications and eminent fitness of their being nominated for the position sought. There would be an absence of candor on the part of a correspondent if he should fail to state that very generally, the party to whom the candidate's attention had been given, commenced making inquiries whether the aforesaid had been afflicted with the contagion known hereabout as Brownleism. This is mentioned in order that the candidates coming here may know what to expect. It may be only idle curiosity on the part of the voter.

The Graded School is still a drawing card for Walton. During the past week two representatives of ventilating and heating apparatus companies have had a hearing before the school board in regard to the special merits of their particular plans. The urbane chairman, T. F. Curley, promptly calls a meeting whenever any one appears who has anything new, novel or useful, which he thinks will make the school house healthful and agreeable to the scholars. The truth of the matter is the Squire has set his heart on a model school and is going to have one, if possible, and all the members are fired with the same desire. Teachers and scholars are working as they never did before, and all to make the school the foremost one in the country.

Saturday evening a merry group of youths and maidens gathered at the home of Mrs. J. C. Clements, where the hours from 7 to 11 were devoted to the many different games so dear to the young, glided rapidly away to be remembered in after years as those of unalloyed pleasure, as the first party given by Miss Margaret Clements. There were present John Adams, Robt. Byland, Charles Chambers, Raymond Byland, Volney Dickerson, John Kennedy, Claud Gord, Claud Rice, Henry Conner, C. C. Metcalfe, and Dr. Jacob Cleek; Misses Jeanette Chambers, Gertrude Curley, Sallie Hicks, Mary Jones, Lucie Gaines, Lucy and Lizzie Fields. Misses Hattie Edwards and Gertrude Curley spent the succeeding Sunday afternoon with Lucy and Lizzie Fields, as did also Robt. Byland, Volney Dickerson, Joseph Huey and Harry Riley.

As an illustration of what is to be expected from the Trusts when they become so powerful that they shall control the management of all industries of the country, (they are almost in that condition now.) An incident occuring in Ecq. Curley's store not long ago, plainly outlines what they will do if they get the full upper hand of the people. A representative of one of the Tobacco Companies, big with his personal importance, looked around the store (as if the company already owned it and Curley also), suddenly opened his throttle, and burst forth with indignant tones, "Why you are out of our goods, you must have some." Curley, who had been watching him, much as his big cat, Jim, does a rat, saw his chance and countered heavily. "No, I don't intend to buy any more of your goods." "By g—d" said the trust man "you will have to buy them." "Not while I can buy better goods, as I have been doing at a less price," said the veteran merchant, whose temperature was getting up to the danger line. As the Trust's man was leaving Curley gave him as a parting shot, "The people wont buy trust goods, neither will I."

Another independent buyer (of tobacco), Noah Glasscock, is buying crop after crop, and the farmers are more than satisfied with him. Since the 25th of December he has received up to date 150,000 pounds, and has 50,000 more bought. He has also prized and put on the market a crop of 40,000 for which the owner was offered 5 cents at home, which was sold at the Kentucky House for 7 cents gross, netting 6 cents clear of all expenses. Tobacco seems 50 cents to $1 per hundred higher in Louisville than in Cincinnati. Glasscock sells all his tobacco at the Kentucky House.

The country merchant and the farmer have necessarily very close connection, and, as a general thing, when the farmer has set his crop, and is not overburdened with money, he depends on the merchant to credit him for supplies until the crop is sold. Then if he sells the tobacco to the trust buyers and thus helps them on the way to obtain the absolute control of the market and enable them to fix their own price on the article, the natural consequence will be the farmer must suffer a heavy loss, and the merchant will also lose. It therefore behoves the merchants to counsel together and devise methods of counteracting the machinations of the trust.

Mr. Curley has shown the way. Let other country merchants handle in their stores only independent makes of chewing and smoking tobaccos, and where it can be done, trade only with independent dealers in other lines of goods, and buy as little as possible of all other kinds of goods. Mr. Curley finds that the independent makes of tobacco give entire satisfaction.

Mr. Glasscock, as an independent buyer and shipper to an independent house in Louisville, gained the confidence of the farmers by buying their crops at fair prices, and they are showing their esteem for him by selling to him all he can handle. The tobacco he has prized and put on the market for others has been highly satisfactory to the owners.

The team that Mr. Stephens was driving got frightened on the street as a man screening sand and they made a dash that caused them to be unmanageable, throwing Mr. Stephens against the sidewalk, rendering him unconscious for some time. The team started down Main Street and run to Seventh where they were stopped. In the runaway they collided with a Brewery wagon, smashing one wheel of the tobacco wagon and breaking the tongue. Mr. Stephens has recovered somewhat from the accident, but is in a bad condition yet.

Grim death has invaded this neighborhood and removed an old and esteemed citizen, Mr. Johnson Mason. He died at his home near Big Bone, last Thursday evening at 1 p. m. Mr. Mason was born in this county February 21, 1812. When 22 years of age he was married to Miss Connie Riley, to this union four children were born—three of whom are living—J. H. Mason, Lorwina Smith and Cynthia Mason. His wife died July 9th, 1900. Mr. Mason was one of the oldest citizens in this part of the county. He was a devoted christian, being a member of Big Bone church for fifty years; a kind and loving father. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. O. M. Huey at the church, last Saturday, at ... which the remains were interred in the old cemetery. The family have the sympathy of their friends and neighbors in their sad bereavement.

Several persons here in town saw the light from the fire that destroyed H. C. Duncan's tenant house, near his residence, Sunday night about eight o'clock, and very few had the location anything like correct. Some thought the fire was in Aurora; some, in Petersburg, and others, in Lawrenceburg.

J. G. Tomlin, of Boone county, (Ky.) sold some very nice old tobacco of his own growing at the Farmers' and Shippers' House, Thursday. He has long been known as one of Boone county's most prosperous shippers, but is now confining his interests more to growing his own tobacco.—Western Tobacco Journal.

There is not the usual winter crop of tobacco being produced in this county. The prices at which tobacco has been selling have failed to create any enthusiasm on the part of the growers, and the indications are that the 1901 crop will be considerably smaller than that of last year. A great many of the growers are inclined to hold the tobacco they have on hand for better prices.

The tenant house occupied by Henry Buchanan, colored, on H. Clay Duncan's farm, was destroyed by fire, last Sunday night about 8 o'clock. The fire was caused by a defective flue or by a spark falling on the roof, and was not discovered until the kitchen had begun to fall in. Very little of the contents of the building was saved. The building was insured in the Boone county company for $160.

FOR SALE.—A good farm of 200 acres, being the W. H. Grant 200 acre blue grass farm, on the Horsley Ferry road, one-half mile from the Woolper pike. On this farm is a two story frame house of six rooms, 3 good cisterns, an orchard of all kinds of fruit, is well watered and is under good fence, is near a good school house, and is only three miles from Petersburg. Call on or address W. H. GRANT, Petersburg, Boone county, Kentucky.

DIED.—On the 22d inst.. Mrs. Elizabeth Henderson.

The deceased was born on the 6 day of Dec. 1824, and was married to John M. Henderson in 1868, who now survives her. She has for many years been a devoted christian, being a member of the Belleview Baptist Church. She leaves only one brother, Mr Sanford Botts, of Petersburg. The funeral was conducted by Rev. Atwood on Tuesday the 23rd, at 10 o'clock, at the house, after which the remains were taken to Petersburg and put in the vault. The husband and brother have the sympathy of the entire community.

The supervisors of tax met, as per adjournment, last Friday, to hear from those whose tax lists they had increased.

The Coney Island Co. were present by letter, and the statements therein contained induced the board to relieve the Company of $500 of the $850 proposed increase.

Capt. Chas. Kotmeyer, of Constance, appeared before the board to convince it of the error of its way in increasing his property, but his speech availed naught and the increase reported last week, was nailed down, and another of the aggrieved was called in.

J. F. Blyth appeared for L. N. Crigler and succeeded in satisfying the board that the proposed increase of $500 was unjust, and the same was taken off and the list remains as revised by the assessor.

Atty. G. G. Hughes appeared for The T. A. Snyder Preserves Co., and made a strong effort to induce the board to reconsider its action of last week, increasing the valuation of the Company's property at Walton, $2,000, but the board was obdurate and refused to take off the increase. In this matter an appeal to the county court was asked.

None of the other parties whose lists were increased, appeared before the supervisors, asking to be relieved from the proposed increase.

R. C. Greene was assessed with $5,488 omitted.

Cyrus W. Hawkins was assessed with one lot—value, $20.

James Aheran assessed with one lot—value, $150.

The Farmers Grange of Boone county met at the Mt. Pleasant Grange Hall, Saturday, January 19, 1901, the W. M., Oscar Gaines, presiding.

This was the third regular meeting, and 30 old members were present; fifteen applicants were obligated in the fifth degree, making a membership of 70 in the County Grange. Owing to sickness several officers and a number of members were absent.

Report from Greenwood Grange 288, of Hebron, was made by Bro. James H. Walton, M., and while this is a new Grange should be one of the leading Granges in the county.

The Mt. Pleasant Grange report was made by E. L. Riley, M., and showed that this Grange is enjoying a steady growth in its members since last meeting of Pomona Grange, having conferred the degrees on several candidates, obligated a number of old members and received four petitions at the last meeting. Preliminary steps have been taken towards starting a library, and the members feel much encouraged.

At 12 o'clock the meeting was adjourned for dinner. The ladies had prepared a lunch sufficient for a much larger number than was present, and the long table fairly groaned under the load of good things. Several visitors came in and seemed to enjoy that part of the program.

The regular business being finished, the members enjoyed interesting talks from Bros. F. P. Wolcott, W. D., N. S. Walton, J. H. Walton and others.

The Grange closed to meet at Greenwood Grange 288, Hebron, on February 16th, at 10 o'clock a. m.

There Is Not Monopoly in the Christian Religion.

Dr. Talmage's Timely Discourse on Occasion of the Twentieth Anniversary of the Bowery Mission in New York.

[Copyright, 1901, by Louis Klopsch.]

On the occasion of the twentieth anniversary of the Bowery mission, January 13, Dr. Talmage preached to a vast audience at the New York Academy of Music. Ministers of all denominations were present. The text was John 10:16: "Other sheep I have which are not of this fold."

There is no monopoly in religion. The grace of God is not a little property that we can fence off and have all to ourselves. It is not a king's park, at which we look through a barred gateway, wishing that we might go in and see the statuary and the deer and the royal conservatory. No; it is a Father's orchard, and everywhere there are bars that we may let down and gates that we may swing open.

In my boyhood, next to the country schoolhouse there was an orchard of apples owned by a very lame man, who, although there were apples in the place perpetually decaying and by scores and scores of bushels, never would allow any of us to touch the fruit. Sometimes the lads of the school in the sinfulness of a nature inherited from our first parents, who were ruined by the same temptation, invaded that orchard, but they soon retreated, for the man came after them at a speed reckless of making his lameness worse and cried out: "Boys, drop those apples, or I will set the dog on you."

Well, my friends, there are Christian men who have the church under severe guard. There is fruit in this orchard for the whole world, but they have a rough and unsympathetic way of accosting outsiders, as though they had no business there, though the Lord wants to come and take the choicest and the ripest fruit on the premises. Have you an idea that because you were baptized at eight months of age, and because you have all your life been under hallowed influences, you therefore have a right to one whole side of the Lord's table, spreading yourself out and taking up the entire room? I tell you no. You will have to haul in your elbows, for we will place on either side of you those whom you never expected would sit there, for, as Christ said to His people long ago, so He says to you and to me: "Other sheep I have which are not of this fold."

McDonald, the Scotchman, has thousands of head of sheep. Some of them are browsing on the heather, some of them are lying down under the trees, some are strolling over the mountains, some of them are in his yard. They are scattered all around in many places. Cameron, his neighbor, comes over and says: "I see you have 36 sheep. I have just counted them." "No," says McDonald, "I have a great many more sheep than you found in this yard. Some are here, and some are elsewhere. I have 4,000 or 5,000 in my flocks. 'Other sheep I have which are not of this fold.'" So Christ says to us. "Here is a knot of Christians and there a knot of Christians, but they make up a small part of the flock. Here is the Episcopal fold, the Methodist fold, the Lutheran fold, the Congregational fold, the Presbyterian fold, the Baptist and the Pedo-Baptist fold, the only difference between these last two being the way in which they wash the sheep, and so they are scattered all over. And we come with our statistics and say there are so many thousand of the Lord's sheep, but Christ responds: "No, no; you have not seen more than one out of a thousand of my flock. They are scattered all over the earth. 'Other sheep I have which are not of this fold.'"

Of all the merciful institutions which bless this city not one more thoroughly enters into the spirit of the text than does the Bowery mission, whose twentieth anniversary we to-day celebrate. During the past year 3,000 souls have been saved through its instrumentality, and during its existence it has put its temporal and spiritual benediction upon hundreds of thousands of the poor and suffering and lost. With the bread of this life in one hand and the bread of eternal life in the other it is doing a stupendous work, and to all of its patrons Christ is saying: "I was hungry, and ye fed me, naked, and ye clothed me, sick and in prison, and ye visited me. Inasmuch as ye did it unto one of the least of these, ye did it to me." It is through this Gospel that New York is to be taken for God, and America for God, and the world for God. There are two classes of hearers in this audience whom I especially address, the friends of this institution who have come out to show their interest in the work, and the other class made up of those who are astray, but want to get back, have fallen, but want to rise.

We need as churches to get into sympathy with the great outside world and let them know that none are so broken-hearted or hard beset that they will not be welcomed. "No," says some fastidious Christian, "I do not like to be crowded in church. Do not put anyone in my pew." My brother, what will you do in Heaven when a great multitude that no man can number assembles? They will put so in your pew. What are the people assembled in Christian churches compared with the mightier millions outside? Some churches are like a hospital, that should advertise that its patients must have nothing worse than toothache or sun-wounds, but no broken heads, no crushed ankles or fractured limbs, for they are treated at medician who has cured more blind eyes, and bound up more broken hearts, and healed more ghastly wounds than all the doctors since the time of Esculapius. Be obliging and just make the experiment. If you are not acquainted with the ordinary modes of prayer, say in substance: "O Lord Jesus, this is a strange thing for me to do. I know nothing about the formulas of religion. These Christian people have been talking so long about what thou canst do for me I am ready to do whatever thou commandest me. If there be any power in religion, as these people say, let me have the advantage of it." Will you not try that experiment?

I do not now say there is anything in religion. Do not take my counsel or the counsel of any clergyman, for you may dislike clergymen. Perhaps we may be prejudiced in the matter. Perhaps our advice is not worth taking. Then take the counsel of some very respectable layman, as John Milton, the poet; as William Wilberforce, the emancipator; as Isaac Newton, the astronomer; as Robert Boyle, the philosopher; as Locke, the metaphysician; as Morse, the telegrapher; as Washington, the statesman. They never preached or pretended to preach, yet, putting down one his telescope and another his parliamentarian's scroll and another his electrician's wire, came forth and commended the religion of Christ as the best thing for the cure of the world's woes. If you will not take the recommendation of ministers of the Gospel, take the recommendation of highly respectable laymen.

Oh, men, skeptical and struck through with unrest! I beg you to come off that great Sahara desert of doubt into the bright and luxuriant land of Gospel hope and peace. You do not want your children to come up in that skepticism. If you do not believe in anything else, you believe in love, a father's love, a mother's love, a wife's love, a child's love. Then let me tell you that God loves you more than all these together. The great heart of Christ aches to have you come in, and He looks into your eyes this moment, saying: "Other sheep I have which are not of this fold."

Again, I remark that the Heavenly Shepherd is going to find a great many of the sheep among those who have been full of evil habit. They were all cheated into sin. The spider does not say to the fly: "Come into the web where I kill insects." Oh, no. The spider says: "Dearest fly, come and talk a morning walk with me on this suspension bridge of gossamer glittering with diamonds of dew." Do not be hard on those gone astray. It makes me sad to see Christian people give up a prodigal as lost. There are those who talk as though the grace of God were a chain of 40 or 50 links and that when they had run out there was nothing left to touch a bad case. If they were hunting and got off the track of the deer, they would look longer among the brakes and bushes for the lost game than they would look for that lost soul.

They talk about the catacombs of Naples and the catacombs of Rome and the catacombs of Egypt, the great burial places under the city where is the dust of many generations passed on, but I tell you New York has its catacombs and Washington its catacombs and all our cities their catacombs. They are underground liquor dives, full of dead men's bones and all uncleanliness. There is no need of going into the art gallery to see in skillful sculpture that wonderful representation of a man and his sons wound round with serpents. There are families represented here to-day that are wrapped in the martyrdom of fang and scale and venom, a living Laocoon of ghastliness and horror.

There is only one class of persons about whom I am disheartened, and they are the Gospel hardened. They have been faithful in attendance at churches for 20, 30 and 40 years, yet never have surrendered themselves to God. As Christ says: "Publicans and harlots go into the kingdom of heaven before them." They have resisted all the importunity of divine mercy and have gone through most powerful earthquakes of religious feeling, and they are farther away from God than ever. After awhile they will lie down sick, and some day it will be told that they are dead. No hope!

But I turn to outsiders with an expectation that thrills through me, body and soul. "Other sheep I have, which are not of this fold." You are not Gospel hardened. You have not heard many sermons during the last few years. You feel the Holy Ghost this moment in your heart. You do not weep, but the tear is not far off. You sigh, and you have noticed that there is always a sigh in the wind before the rain falls. There are those here who would give anything if they could find relief in tears. They say: "Oh, my wasted life! Oh, the bitter past! Oh, the graves over which I have stumbled! Whither shall I fly? Alas, for the future! Everything is so dark, so very dark! God help me! God pity me!" Thank the Lord for that last utterance. You have begun to pray, and when [illegible] petition, God steps in and beats back the hounds of temptation to their kennel and round about the poor wounded soul puts the covert of his pardoning mercy. Hark! I hear something fall. What was that? It is the bars of the fence around the sheepfold. The Shepherd lets down the bars, and the hunted sheep of the mountain bound in, some of them their fleece torn with brambles, some of them their feet lamed with the dogs, but bounding in. Thank God! "Other sheep I have, which are not of this fold."

ROOTS IN PROTECTION.

Another Instance of American Absolutism Under McKinley's Management.

It is announced from Washington that the Philippine commission has prepared a new tariff law for the islands and that it has been submitted to the president for approval. This manner of dealing with questions of taxation in our new possessions will commend itself to the beneficiaries of the tariff in this country. They will regard it as scientific and natural and they will presently suggest that the same method be adopted at home.

While we have no particulars concerning the processes by which the commission reached its conclusions relative to the Philippine tariff, it is not difficult to imagine how the thing was done. The commission is composed of five Americans. So small a body should be able to legislate on the tariff, or anything else, with much expedition. The interests which are to be served by the tariff may confine their energies wholly to the commission. There is no party in opposition to overside and there are no representatives of the people who are to be taxed to interpose with protests.

A protective tariff bill framed under such circumstances ought to be a measure wholly after the president's heart. He has had some experience in the line of tariff legislation himself, but, while his achievements resemble that of the Philippine commission to some extent, they were sadly lacking in certain features of absolutism which characterize the new departure in the orient.

Mr. McKinley's tariff bill, like that of Mr. Dingley, was written by the attorneys of the protected interests themselves. He began with blank paper. Each protected interest was asked to write its own section of the bill. All complied with alacrity. The result was a measure having some conflicting sections which had to be reconciled, but which, in the main, was satisfactory to every man who expected to make money out of it.

Under the whip and spur of the caucus, republican opposition to the measure was silenced, but not so with the democrats. On the other side of the house there were men who, although in a minority, were privileged to speak for the intended victims of the measure. These victims found no advocates in the party assuming responsibility for the bill. Like the Filipinos, they were neither heard nor considered. A minority only had to content itself with such opportunities for expostulation as the majority permitted and such explanations of specific injustices contained in the measure as a gratified debate afforded.

From the standpoint of the protectionist the Philippine plan has many advantages over even so high-handed a proceeding as this. It is all in the family. It may be a star chamber, if necessary. It is not to be interrupted by protest. It is concerned only with one side of the question. With not even a minority of conscientious republicans to placate or to gag, it is smooth sailing. With no democratic congressmen, even though in a minority, to point out palpable wrongs and injustices, the bill, once framed, is presented for approval not to a representative body having some constitutional rights, but to a president assuming to govern outside of the constitution and under no restraint save that of his own will.

Thus written and enacted into law, with nobody heard at any stage of the proceedings except the men who are in on the ground floor, so to speak, the Philippine tariff ought to be a model of outrageous oppression and robbery. If it fall short of this in any respect it will be because its authors in Manila and its sponsors in America will have manifested a forbearance hitherto unknown and to which it has been supposed that they were strangers.

This small episode in American absolutism, with which it is to be feared that the people are rapidly becoming familiar, should not escape most serious attention in the United States. We have grown accustomed at home to the principle of inequality underlying just such measures of taxation, but in their preparation and enactment the forms of constitutional government, often a ghastly pretense only, have been observed. We have seen the representatives of a great party silenced, wheedled and bullied when such measures were under consideration, but there has been a semblance of popular assent. In the Philippine case there is not even an apology for the violation of the first principle of American liberty.

Necessity often is pleaded as an excuse for tyranny. Necessity has been offered many times in this country in extenuation of illegal and unjust measures of government. Necessity always has been the refuge of despots who were brought to task for their usurpations. But there can be no such defense in this instance.—Chicago Chronicle.

POINTS AND OPINIONS.

—Now there is a shoe manufacturers' trust. But, bless you, these who are in it do not call it a trust. It is just a "distributing agency." Is the word trust getting unpopular?—Utica Observer.

—There seems to be quite a number of republican members of the United States senate who believe that imperialism is under the McKinley policies an accomplished fact.—St. Louis Republic.

—That was an interesting episode of McKinley prosperity down in the great state of Pennsylvania the other day, when the workmen of the National Steel company, of Sharon, were benevolently assimilated to a ten per cent. reduction of wages.—Albany Argus.

OPPOSED TO SHIP SUBSIDY.

Objections to the Plundering Scheme Which Cannot Be Successfully Met.

Some republican newspapers are fond of saying that democrats oppose the Hanna ship subsidy scheme merely because it is a republican measure; that is to say, that the opposition is partisan, and has nothing to do with the merits or demerits of the bill. This contention is well answered by the report made by the minority members of the committee on merchant marine and fisheries (Messrs. John F. Fitzgerald, Marion De Vries, Thomas Spight and William D. Daly, democrats) and submitted to the house on May 11 last. The amended title of the ship subsidy bill is "A bill to promote the commerce and increase the foreign trade of the United States and to provide for the national defense." Worthy objects, surely, though somewhat at variance with the high protectionist "home market" theory. "With the expressed objects of the bill," says the democratic minority report, "the minority is in entire accord, but does not agree with the majority as to the proposed remedies. The last statistical abstract issued by the treasury department shows that the per capita imports varied but little between 1868 and 1889. They were $9.32 in 1868 and $9.62 in 1890; they have decreased in 31 years but 31 cents per capita. Our exports, however, show a steady increase. In 1868 they were $7.29 and in 1899 $15.74 per capita. The figures of 1899 were equaled only in two years—1881 and 1893. The export trade of the United States per capita has therefore more than doubled during the past 31 years. It may be said that it is not the foreign trade or commerce, but the transportation of that trade or the articles with which it has to do, that needs the special assistance of the government. But the statistical abstract of the treasury department shows that the tonnage of steam vessels has increased since 1886 from 1,199,415 tons to 2,476,011 tons in 1899. The tonnage is the greatest in the history of the United States." The democratic objections to the measure are summarized as follows by Mr. Fitzgerald and his colleagues:

"1. The objects professed in the title are entirely forgotten in the body of the bill.

"2. It is reasonably certain that the most of the subsidy would go to lines already established and prosperous.

"3. Under this bill the ordinary freight steamers, which carry 80 or 90 per cent. of our agricultural exports, will get but a fraction of the amount of subsidy which the passenger steamers would receive, although the latter carry less than ten per cent. of our agricultural exports.

"4. Under this bill a ship can run practically in ballast and draw subsidy. We believe that when freight is not promptly offered it will pay a certain class of ships to run empty rather than to wait for cargo.

"5. This bill would tax all our citizens to provide extra profits for a favored few in this favored industry.

"6. The professions of this bill are insincere and its principles are unsound. We believe that the best interests of this nation do not demand the passage of this or of any similar bill."

These objections have never been successfully met, nor is it possible to defend the bill against them. The points raised in paragraphs numbered 2, 5 and 6 are particularly unanswerable. The opposition to the ship subsidy scheme is based upon the same sound and honest principles which have lain back of the resistance to all previous schemes to filch from the many for the benefit of a few.—Albany Argus.

THE PHILIPPINE WAR.

American Imperialism Is Fast Catching Up with Spanish Barbarism.

Some one was saying not long ago that there was no war in the Philippines. Was it Mr. McKinley, or Gen. Otis, or Secretary Root? At any rate, the Taft commission before election cabled over that if Bryan were "licked" "the remnant of insurrection will disappear within 60 days, by surrender of leaders and fading out of rank and file." The 60 days are nearly up, yet the other day Gen. MacArthur issued in the Philippine islands a proclamation that had no more color of peace in it than the fresh Boer invasion of Cape Colony foreshadows the speedy end of the South African war. Gen. MacArthur, please observe, now warns the Filipinos that "hereafter strict compliance with the laws of war will be required of noncombatants, as well as combatants." Laws of war! Then there is war in the Philippines by admission of Gen. MacArthur. If there is not, what right has he to make noncombatants conform almost at the end of the 60 days' period which was to mark the utter disappearance of the insurrection! Never was the mendacity and hypocrisy of a government more quickly self-confessed than in this instance. Gen. MacArthur's proclamation, as a whole, indicates that our Philippine conquest is about to enter upon a period of harshness and brutality which will rival the British atrocities in South Africa. The election is [illegible] at Washington as a mandate to conquer the Filipinos at any cost. The remark of an Englishman becomes timely: "Already England in the Transvaal, and America in the Philippines, have caught up with at least two-thirds of the atrocities of the Spanish policy of coercion, and why should they not complete the course?"—Springfield (Mass.) Republican.

—Certainly we would call it rank socialism if the government devoted money to wheat growers or blacksmiths or carpenters to make an unprofitable vocation lucrative or add to already assured gains; yet such donations would be no greater perversion of public trust than subsidizing ship builders or ship owners.—Pittsburg Post.

FIFTY-SIXTH CONGRESS.

Second Session.

Washington, Jan. 16.—Senate—Some progress was made Tuesday by the senate in the consideration of the army reorganization bill. Mr. Bacon's amendment striking out of the bill the discretionary authority conferred upon the president to increase the size of the army was laid on the table by the decisive vote of 39 to 20.

House—The house spent another day on the river and harbor bill without completing it. Twenty-six pages were disposed of Tuesday. The senate resolution to appropriate $7,000 to enable the secretary of the senate to pay the expenses of the inauguration of the president and vice president, March 4, was taken up, and precipitated a lively discussion because it did not recognize the house as a participating factor in the inauguration ceremonies. The resolution was recommitted, with instructions to report back a resolution providing for inaugural ceremonies under the auspices of a joint committee of the senate and the house.

Washington, Jan. 17.—Senate—An agreement was reached Wednesday by which a vote will be taken upon the pending army reorganization bill on Friday at 4 p. m. Speeches in opposition to the bill were delivered by Mr. Allen (pop., Neb.), Mr. Teller (silver, Col.) and Mr. Butler (pop., N. C.). Mr. McCumber (rep., N. D.) made an argument in support of the measure. The feature of the debate was the denunciation of the practice of hazing at the West Point military academy.

House—The river and harbor appropriation bill was passed Wednesday by the house. The bill has been under consideration for over a week and has been assailed from many quarters but its friends have stood solidly by it and defeated every amendment to which the river and harbor committee would not agree. The bill passed practically as it came from the committee. It carries slightly less than $50,000,000, of which $23,000,000 is in direct appropriations.

Washington, Jan. 18.—Senate—Hon. Matthew S. Quay took the oath of office Thursday and took his seat at his desk, which was hunked with floral offerings. When the Pennsylvania senator entered the chamber there was a demonstration which amounted to almost an ovation. During the day session the army reorganization bill was discussed at length by Mr. Money (dem., Miss), Mr. McComas (rep., Md.) and Mr. Bate (dem., Tenn.). The Mississippi senator devoted some attention to a practice of hazing at West Point, which he bitterly denounced.

House—Thursday was an exceedingly dull day in the house. The entire day was spent upon the bill to revise and codify the postal laws, which is to be the continuing order, not, however, to interfere with appropriation bills or conference reports, until disposed of. It is a bill of 221 pages and is simply a revision of existing laws.

Washington, Jan. 19.—Senate—Just before 6 o'clock Friday the senate finally disposed of the army reorganization bill. The measure having originated in the senate, the final question was not upon its passage, but upon agreeing to the senate amendments. They were agreed to by a vote of 43 to 33. The following bills were passed: Authorizing the postmaster general to lease premises for the use of the rural free delivery division of the post office department; extending the time for the commencement to January 28, 1902, and the completion to January 28, 1904, of a bridge across the Missouri river at Oacoma, S. D.; authorizing the appointment of J. A. Hutton to a captaincy of infantry in the United States army.

House—The house spent the entire day Friday on the bill to refer to the court of claims the claims of the Wm. Cramp and Sons Ship Building Co., of Philadelphia, for alleged damages due to the delay of the government in furnishing armor plate and material for the battle ships Massachusetts and Indiana and cruisers New York and Columbia. The claims aggregate $1,367,244.

Washington, Jan. 21.—Senate—No business of importance was transacted in the senate Saturday.

House—Representative Lentz (O.) Saturday introduced an amendment to the postal code, which is now being considered in the house, which, if it is adopted, will cancel all contracts the government has with the American District Telegraph Co. to deliver special delivery letters. In several of the cities of Ohio such contracts are in existence, and Mr. Lentz is opposed to it because of the small wages that are paid to messenger boys. He wants the letters delivered by government messengers.

ALLEGED SHORTAGE.

Indictment Against Cashier Luther H. Porter, Charged With Embezzling Bank Funds.

Bowling Green, Ky., Jan. 18.—L. R. Porter, cashier of the Warren Deposit bank of this city, one of the oldest institutions of the kind in Kentucky, is accused of being about $40,000 short in his accounts. Porter says the discount system made him owe the bank that amount.

Bowling Green, Ky., Jan. 19.—The grand jury of this county late Friday afternoon, after an all day investigation of the alleged shortage of Luther R. Porter, cashier of the Warren Deposit bank, returned an indictment against him charging him with embezzlement. The sum of his alleged misappropriation is placed at $40,053.02. Mr. Porter did not wait for a bench warrant to be issued, but accompanied by his father-in-law, Rev. J. S Grider, his brother-in-law, Mr. Rodger Grider, he walked into open court where his attorneys and bondsmen had preceded him. All formalities were waived and Mr. Porter executed bond in the sum of $3,000. The case will be tried at the April term of the criminal court.

Mr. Porter gave out the following signed statement: "So far as being short in my accounts with the Warren Deposite bank, I most emphatically deny the charge. I consider that a very great injustice has been done me and my family. At the proper time, the facts will be clearly demonstrated. I only ask my friends to suspend judgment until the facts are brought out."

WAS NOT DEAD.

Covered the Supposed Corpse With Leaves, But Returned the Next Day to Cut Her Throat.

Paducah, Ky., Jan. 18.—Geo. Smith, who induced his sweetheart, Viola Green, to accompany him to a lonely spot behind a cemetery two weeks ago, when he attempted to murder her, has been found near Wickliffe by the authorities, who have sent officers for him. Smith was jealous because the girl would not marry him, and, securing a rope, tried to hang her, when she broke loose. He then dealt her a blow with a spoke, and beat her terribly, leaving her for dead after covering the body with leaves. Fearing she was not dead, he returned next morning and started to cut her throat with a knife, discovering that life remained in the body. She regained consciousness, and upon promising to say that the injuries were inflicted by falling from a wagon he carried her to the house of a friend, who secured the story and reported to the police.

MAY BE LYNCHED.

Arson Charged Against John A. Walton, Who Led the Column at San Juan Hill.

Bowling Green, Ky., Jan. 19.—John A. Walton, of Simpson county, who has been credited with the distinction of being the first soldier at the summit of San Juan hill, during the memorable battle, has been arrested and placed in jail at Scottsville on the charge of arson. A few night ago the residence of Joe Dotson was fired, and Walton is suspected of the crime.

Walton married a daughter of Dotson some time ago, and Tuesday his wife sued for divorce, and this is believed by the officials to be the motive for the burning of his father-in-law's residence. It is the opinion of the authorities that Walton thought his wife and mother-in-law were at home alone, and it was his desire to burn them alive, the roof having been saturated with coal oil.

There is talk of mobbing Walton, and the latest news received here is that unless he is taken to another place his body will be hanging from a limb soon.

He attacked her with a barlow knife and slashed her throat. The sight of the blood terrified him, and he ran into the next room and severed his own jugular vein, dying in a few moments. The woman will recover.

The benchers of the Law society, however, undertook to deviate the technicality, and appointed one of their number to examine him as to his knowledge of the law.

"Well, Casey," said the examiner, "what do you know about the law, anyway?"

"Well, to tell the truth," said Casey, modestly, "I don't know a single thing."

"I have examined Mr. Casey as to his knowledge of the law," the examiner stated in his affidavit, "and to the best of my knowledge and belief he answered all the questions entirely correctly."—Law Notes.

THE DUTY OF MOTHERS.

What suffering frequently results from a mother's ignorance; or more frequently from a mother's neglect to properly instruct her daughter!

Tradition says "woman must suffer," and young women are so taught. There is a little truth and a great deal of exaggeration in this... If a young woman suffers severely she needs treatment, and her mother should see that she gets it.

Many mothers hesitate to take their daughters to a physician for examination; but no mother need hesitate to write freely about her daughter or herself to Mrs. Pinkham and secure the most efficient advice without charge. Mrs. Pinkham's address is Lynn, Mass.

Mrs. August Pfalzgraf, of South Byron, Wis., mother of the young lady whose portrait we here publish, wrote Mrs. Pinkham in January, 1899, saying her daughter had suffered for two years with irregular menstruation—had headache all the time, and pain in her side, feet swell, and was generally miserable. Mrs. Pinkham promptly replied with advice, and under date of March, 1899, the mother writes again that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cured her daughter of all pains and irregularity.

Nothing in the world equals Mrs. Pinkham's great medicine for regulating woman's peculiar monthly troubles.

The bull at the head of a dairy herd shows which way up or down that herd is moving. Not only this, but the bull indicates the ignorance or intelligence of the owner of the herd. As the lion's tail is by its motions the index of his mind, just so the bull is the index of his owner's mind. No matter how good in working qualities the cows may be, if the bull is a scrub you can "bet your life" the owner is a scrub also.

That owner may be a sharp trader and capable of buying good cows, but, he never will be a good dairy man until he learns to use a thoroughbred bull at the head of his herd. The reason is this: Under average condition no man can keep a herd of fine cows up to standard by purchase, for the reason he has not the time to scour the country looking for bargains, and no man can tell the quality of a cow simply by looking at her nor even by using the scales and Babcock on her for a few days.

Real good paying cows are those who persistently work all the season through making a good yearly average. The cow that gives a large yield when fresh is almost sure to dry up at an early day. Now the cow that most pleases the traveling purchaser is this last named cow, for she makes a big show to the eye and catches your man, who depends on signs every time. He generally carries her home, and after a season's trial breeds her to a scrub bull and turns her off to some other smart buyer.

To get a herd of long and persistent milkers, the cows that pay best in the end and that you learn to love and give the best of care to, are the cows born on the farm. We all have a kindly pride in our ancestors, and that same feeling leads us to love a pedigree, not only in the useful animals on the farm, but even in the dog that stretches his lazy form in the sunshine on the poarch.

Put a well-bred heifer in a bunch of scrubs and walk through the little herd with a nubbin in your hand and which one will you give it to, especially if she looks at you with the dark, liquid eyes of a young Jersey. The chances are that such a heifer will prove the best one in the lot, especially with the better treatment she is sure to get.

The scrub dairyman uses the scrub bull and all his ways are scrub ways. When you see him with a half-bred bull or even a dash of some particular breed in the bull, you may confidently look for some improvement ahead. The trouble is that the average farmer is so mixed up in his ideas about the breeds and methods of breeding that in many cases he introduces to his herd the worst blood he could possibly select. For instance, a milk or butter-making herd would be damaged almost beyond repair by putting at its head the finest bred Shorthorn bull, because he would have strong prepotent powers toward diverting the assimilating powers of the calves from milk-making to fat-forming.

This if persisted it would be a fatal mistake far worse than in the use of the poorest scrub bull to be found, because the bull's influence would be negatived by the better blood of the cows, even though they were of scrub origin.

By all means let the young man who desires to become a dairyman make a deep study of the bull. He is, in fact, from a breeding point of view, one-half of the herd, because each calf he gets carries one-half his blood, though of course not always one-half the bull's influence, or the young often follow the dam for a bad mixture of both parents.

There is no need of arguing about the exceptional experiences of any one in breeding. Queer things will happen, and the best we can do is to stick to the rule. The bull should be the keystone of your dairy arch. A good one will get good calves out of poor cows, and do wonders with good cows to work on. First, settle in your own mind what breed you will handle, then get you a thoroughbred bull of that breed from the best of ancestors and then take care of him. Select the best cows you can get and reserve the bull for them. Keep him in a small lot by himself and keep him only in good working condition—not fat.

The Grange In Illinois is petitioning for the passage of a State law to protect prairie chickens and pusils all the year round from the ravages of the hunters for a period of five years. The value of birds is becoming better understood.

W. W. Estill reports that he has sold more young trotting stock during the past fall and present winter than he ever did at private sale in the same length of time. The best youngsters have been in demand and brought good prices.—Stock Farm.

It should be kept in mind that it is just as easy and cheap to raise a good horse as it is a poor worthless one, and in this connection to remember that blood tells. The pedigree is the most important matter to this connection.

The Poultry Yard.

The food gives flavor and color to the egg.

Useless roosters are like hens that lay no eggs.

Egg eating is apt to be developed by close confinement.

The hens should be kept so warm that their combs will not freeze.

Keep the floor clean and well littered and there will be no foul odor.

Fowls which are not closely related are the best breeders.

Dry picked birds look nicest and usually bring more when sold.

Bumble foot is often produced by flying down from high roosts.

Eggs to hatch well should not be over fifteen or twenty days old, and not chilled.

Birds with small combs and plenty of feathers endure cold best.

It is easiest to dry pick chickens while they are bleeding and almost impossible after they are cold.

The poultry man who economizes on the feed of the fowls never gets many eggs in winter.

Do not try to stimulate egg production with irritating condiments, they do more harm than good.

A sufficient number of poultry should be kept on every farm to pick up what ever would otherwise go to waste,

To keep a hen in a good condition for laying she should be obliged to exercise for at least a portion of her food.

Fowls take cold from roosting in draughts or exposure to cold after being confined in a warm house.

More chickens can be hatched in winter and raised in brooders with less labor than with the hens and at a less cost.

In-breeding should not be tolerated in the poultry yard for more than two years; select the finest specimens for breeding and let them be reasonably matured.

In order to avoid loss during the winter it is very essential that the eggs be gathered with reasonable regularity, two or three times daily and especially so if the weather is extremely cold. A very few hours exposure to severe cold will not only thoroughly chill but in many cases freeze sufficiently hard to crack the shells. When not wanted for hatching chilling does not particularly injure an egg, but freezing does and it will pay to take more care to prevent this, as eggs in cold weather sell at good prices.

I would say to the young ladies of the neighborhood if your young gentlemen friends wear fur gloves, please make them a present of a ribbon or string to tie them together, as it is very annoying to be awakened at midnight by the cries of a young man hunting for his glove.

R. K. Aylor passed his 50th mile stone, January 3d, and he was tendered a pleasant surprise by his wife, she having prepared a turkey dinner and invited his brothers, sisters, nephews and neices to come. Everything is quiet here since the holidays; yet the politicians are not forgetting their work. A glance at the announcement column of the Recorder reveals a long list of aspirants, and half of them have not announced yet. As the primary has been set for April 6th it is needless to say that they are all hustling. We could tell the readers of the Recorder in this issue who the lucky fellows will be, but wont do it for the reason that the people would lose interest, and all the other candidates would draw off, so we will withhold our information.

UNDER the army reorganization act, the President will have over a thousand commissions additional with which to pay political debts. While Congress has intimated that it expects the President to distribute these plums among the men who have volunteered their services to the country, yet there is nothing mandatory on the subject, and he will put them where they will do most good.

JUST what is going to happen to a few lawyers when Judge Tarvin resumes business at the old stand in Covington, February 4th, has the people of that town guessing. A few lawyers down there met, the other day, elected a special judge and tried an important case, and for an attempt at that very kind of a proceedings, Judge Tarvin has been known to call attorneys to an account, and administer a dose of imprisonment.

B. W. ADAMS, the incumbent, is announced as a candidate for renomination and elected to the office of county clerk. When Mr. Adam's present term expires he will have served six years. He has made a careful, attentive, and obliging official, and will continue to give the office his undivided attention if relected. He has always been an uncompromising Democrat, willing and ready at all times to shoulder his share of the burden to carry the party to victory. A more obliging gentleman cannot be found in the county.

LIVERPOOL has just completed the building of a new tobacco warehouse, which, until Chicago carries out its characteristic scheme for a block of commercial buildings a mile long, will be the largest erection of the kind in the world. The new building on the banks of the Mersey is a gigantic affair, constructed by the Dock Board in order to provide central accommodation for the storage, of the tobacco of the port. Within ten years the tobacco stock of Liverpool has doubled itself, and now reaches the figure of 100,046 hogsheads, against only 39,971 hogsheads in London, the center of the universe.

Tribute to Woman.

The following is one of the most beautiful tributes to woman we have ever seen, but we know not the author:

Place her among the flowers, foster her as a tender plant, and she is a thing of fancy, waywardness and folly annoyed by a dewdrop, fretted by the touch of a butterfly's wing, ready to faint at the sound of a beetle or the rattle of a window-pane at night, and overpowered by the perfume of the rosebud. But let real calamity come; rouse her affections, enkindle the fires of her heart and mark her then! How strong is her heart! Give her a child or a bird or anything to protect, and see her in an instant lifting up her white arms as a shield as her own blood crimsons her upturned forehead, praying for her life to protect the helpless. She disputes inch by inch the strides of a stalking pestilence, when men, the strong and brave, pale and affrighted, shrink away. Misfortune daunts her not. She wears away a life of silent endurance, and goes forward with less timidity than to her bridal. In prosperity she is a bud full of odors, waiting but for the wind of adversity to scatter them abroad—pure gold, valuable but untried in the furnace. In short, woman is a miracle, a mystery, the central form which radiates the charm of existence.

One of the oldest landmarks in Crittenden, perhaps in Grant county, was razed to the ground last week. This, in conjunction with the fact, that Crittenden is the oldest town in the county, makes it appear that there is hardly a doubt that the building was one of the first, if not the first, erected in this part of Kentucky.

Joseph Horner is the proud possessor of a small flock or covey of Mongolian pheasants on his 500 acre farm, on the Williamstown & Doudton turnpike, near town. They were sent him when quite young birds from Oregon last spring. He turned them adrift on his farm and they have grown to full maturity and are as large as domestic hens and very beautiful of plumage and color. This bird was originally imported from China to the Pacific slope some twenty years ago. They will do well in this latitude. They are very prolific, laying from twenty to thirty eggs and raising three and four coveys of birds each season. They are very game and more than ordinarily able to take care of themselves. It is almost impossible to get a shot at them until after they make the first fly when they go to the brush and then lay well to the dog. Mr. Horner has posted his place and allows no one to hunt thereon. If these birds are protected for two or three years the hills of Coopertown creek will be full of the beautiful Mongolians.

At the close of the brief unpleasantness of 1898 we paid Spain $20,000,000 for "an option on a war" in the Philipines.

We took up the option; we have the war. By denying to the Filipinos even the promise of freedom in a far future we left them no alternative but to fight to the end or bid farewell to hope of liberty.

Our transports sail west with money and horses and men; they sail east again with the broken, the wounded, the insane. We burn the jungle villages and shoot down their people, and wherever our soldiers venture by twos and threes outside of the armed camps they are tortured and killed. The money cost is vast, the loss of life as lamentable as it is unnecessary.

Yet we have just bought more war. The Senate has ratified a treaty to pay Spain an additional $100,000 for the islands of Cibitu and Cagayan, not included in the original deal—for the absolute ownership of the people of those islands, whose own wish we have not consulted.

We have bought war at wholesale and we have bought it at retail. It is now costing us $100,000,000 or more a year. How long before the country will decide to go out of the melancholy business?

MENDING THE NETS.

Dr. Talmage Preaches a Sermon on the Story of the Fishermen.

Christ's Disciples as Fishers of Men —The Gospel Net and How it Should Be Kept in Repute.

In this discourse Dr. Talmage describes the Gospel net and how it is to be repaired after being damaged; text, Matthew 4:21, "James, the son of Zebedee, and John, his brother, in a ship with Zebedee, their father, mending their nets."

"I go a-fishing!" cried Simon Peter to his comrades, and the most of the apostles had hands hard from fishing tackle. The fisheries of the world have always attracted attention. In the third century the queen of Egypt had for pin money $400,000, received from the fisheries of Lake Moeris. And if the time should ever come when the immensity of the world's population could not be fed by the vegetables and meats of the land, the sea has an amount of animal life that would feed all the population of the earth and fatten them with a food that by its phosphorus would make a generation brainy and intellectual beyond anything that the world has ever imagined. My text takes us among the Galilean fishermen. One day Walter Scott, while hunting in an old drawer, found among some old fishing tackle the manuscript of his immortal book, "Waverley," which he had put away there as of no worth, and who knows but that to-day we may find some unknown wealth of thought while looking at the fishing tackle in the text.

It is not a good day for fishing, and three men are in the boat repairing the broken fishing nets. If you are fishing with a hook and line, and the fish will not bite, it is a good time to put the angler's apparatus into better condition. Perhaps the last fish you hauled in was so large that something snapped, or, if you were fishing with a net, there was a mighty floundering of the scales or an exposed nail on the side of the boat which broke some of the threads and let part or all of the captives of the deep escape into their natural element. And hardly anything is more provoking than to nearly land a score or a hundred trophies from the deep, and when you come to the full glee of hauling in the spotted treasures, through some imperfection of the net they splash back into the wave. That is too much of a trial of patience for most fishermen to endure, and many a man ordinarily correct of speech in such circumstances comes to an intensity of utterance unjustifiable. Therefore no good fisherman considers the time wasted that is spent in mending his net. Now, the Bible again and again represents Christian workers as fishers of men, and we are all sweeping through the sea of humanity some kind of a net. Indeed there have been enough nets out and enough fishermen busy to have landed the whole human race in the kingdom of God long before this. What is the matter? The Gospel is all right, and it has been a good time for catching souls for thousands of years. Why, then, the failures? The trouble is with the nets, and most of them need to be mended. I propose to show you what is the matter with most of the nets and how to mend them. In the text old Zebedee and his two boys, James and John, were doing a good thing when they sat in the boat mending their nets.

The trouble with many of our nets is that the meshes are too large. If a fish can get his gills and half his body through the network, he tears and rends and works his way out, and leaves the place through which he squirmed a tangle of broken threads. In our desire to make everything so easy we relax, we loosen, we widen. We let men after they are once in the Gospel net escape into the world, and go into indulgences and swim all around Galilee, from north side to south side, and from east side to west side, expecting that they will come back again. We ought to make it easy for them to get into the Kingdom of God, and, as far as we can, make it impossible for them to get out. The poor advice nowadays to many is: "Go and do just as you did before you were captured for God and Heaven. The net was not intended to be any restraint or any hindrance. What you did before you were a Christian do now. Go to all styles of amusement, read all the styles of books, engage in all styles of behavior as before you were converted." And so, through these meshes of permission and laxity they wriggle out through this opening and that opening, tearing the net as they go, and soon all the souls that we expected to land in Heaven, before we know it, are back in the deep sea of the world. Oh, when we go a-Gospel fishing, let us make it as easy as possible for souls to get in and as hard as possible to get out.

Is the Bible language an unmeaning verbiage when it talks about self-denial, and keeping the body under and about walking the narrow way and entering the strait gate and about carrying the cross? Is there to be no way of telling whether a man is a Christian except by his taking the communion chalice on sacramental days? May a man be reckless about his thoughts, about his words, about his temper, about his amusements after conversion as before? Alas, the words of Christ are so little heeded when He said: "Whosoever doth not bear his cross and come after me cannot be my disciple." The church is fast becoming as bad as the world, and when it gets as bad as the world it will be worse than the world by so much, as it will add hypocrisy of a most appalling kind to its other defects.

Furthermore, many of our nets are torn to pieces by being entangled with other nets. It is a sad sight to see fishermen fighting about sea room and pulling in opposite directions, each to get his net, both nets damaged by the struggle and losing all the fish. In this land, where there are more than 70,000,000 people, there are at least 30,000,000 not in the Sunday schools and churches. In such an Atlantic ocean of opportunity there is room for all the nets and all the boats and all the fishermen and for millions more. There should be no rivalry between churches. Each one does a work peculiar to itself. But there are cities in this country where there is now going on an awful ripping and rending and tearing of fishing nets. Indeed all over Christendom at this time there is a great war going on between fishermen, ministers against ministers.

Now, I have noticed a man cannot fish and fight at the same time. He either neglects his net or his musket. It is amazing how much time some of the fishermen have to look after other fishermen. It is more than I can do to take care of my own net. You see the wind is just right, and it is such a good time for fishing, and the fish are coming in so rapidly that I have to keep my eyes and hand busy. There are about 200,000,000 souls wanting to get into the kingdom of God, and it will require all the nets and all the fishermen of Christendom to safely land them. Oh, brethren of the ministry, let us spend our time in fishing instead of fighting. But if I angrily jerk my net across your net, and you jerk your net angrily across mine, we will soon have two broken nets and no fish. The French revolution nearly destroyed the French fisheries, and ecclesiastical war is the worst thing possible while hauling souls into the kingdom. My friends, I notice in the text that James, the son of Zebedee, and John, his brother, were busy at mending somebody else's nets, and I rather think that we who are engaged in Christian work in this opening century will require all our spare time to mend our own nets. God help us in the important duty!

In this work of repair we need to put into the nets more threads of common sense. When we can present religion as a great practicality we will catch a hundred souls where now we catch one. Present religion as an intellectuality and we will fail. Out in the fisheries there are set across the waters what are called gill nets, and the fish put their heads through the meshes and then cannot withdraw them because they are caught by the gills. But gill nets cannot be of any service in religious work. Men are never caught for the truth by their heads; it is by the heart or not at all. No argument ever saved a man and no keen analysis ever brought a man into the kingdom of God. Heart work, not head work. Away with your gill nets! Sympathy, helpfulness, consolation, love, are the names of some of the threads that we need to weave in our gospel nets when we are mending them.

When you are mending your net for this wide, deep sea of humanity, take out that wire thread of criticism and that horsehair thread of harshness and put in a soft silken thread of Christian sympathy. Yea, when you are mending your nets tear out those old threads of gruffness and weave in a few threads of politeness and geniality. In the house of God let all Christian faces beam with a look that means welcome. Say "good morning" to the stranger as he enters your pew and at the close shake hands with him and say: "How did you like the music?" Why, you would be to that man a panel of the door of Heaven; you would be to him a note of the doxology that seraphs sing when a new soul enters Heaven. I have in other days entered a pew in church, and the woman at the other end of the pew looked at me as much as to say: "How dare you? This is my pew, and I pay the rent for it!" Well, I crouched in the other corner and made myself as small as possible and felt as though I had been stealing something. So there are people who have a sharp edge to their religion, and they act as though they thought most people had been elected to be damned and they were glad of it. Oh, let us brighten up our manner and appear in gentlemanliness or ladyhood.

Again, in mending our nets we need also to put in the threads of faith and tear out all the tangled meshes of unbelief. Our work is successful according to our faith. The man who believes in only half a Bible or the Bible in spots, the man who thinks he cannot persuade others, the man who halts, doubting about this and doubting about that, will be a failure in Christian work. Show me the man who rather thinks that the garden of Eden may have had an allegory and is not quite certain but that there may be another chance after death and does not know whether or not the Bible is inspired, and I tell you that man for soul saving is a poor stick. Faith in God and in Jesus Christ and the Holy Ghost and the absolute necessity of a regenerated heart in order to see God in peace is one thread you must have in your mended net, or you will never be a successful fisher for men. Why, how can you doubt? The rottenest thread to tear out of your net is unbelief, and the most important thread that you are to put in it is faith—faith in God, triumphant faith, everlasting faith.

Oh, this important work of mending our nets! If we could get our nets right, we would accomplish more in soul saving in the next year than we have in the last 20. But where shall we get them mended? Just where old Zebedee and his two boys mended their nets—where you are. James and John had no time to go ashore. They were not fishing for fun, as you and I do in summer time. It was their livelihood and that of their families. They mended their nets where they were—in the ship. "Oh," says some one, "I mean to get my net mended, and I will go down to the public library and I will see what the scientists say about evolution and about the 'survival of the fittest,' and I will read up what the theologians say about 'advanced thought.' I will leave the ship awhile, and I will go ashore and stay there till my net is mended." Do that, my brother, and you will have no net left. Instead of their helping you mend your net, they will steal the pieces that remain. Better stay in the Gospel boat, where you have all the means for mending your net. What are they? do you ask. I answer, all you need you have where you are—namely, a Bible and a place to pray. The more you study evolution and adopt what is called advanced thought, the more useless you will be. Stay in the ship and mend your net. That is where James, the son of Zebedee, and John, his brother, staid. That is where all who get their nets mended stay.

I notice that all who leave the Gospel boat and go ashore to mend their nets stay there. Or if they try again to fish they do not catch anything. Get out of the Gospel boat and go up into the world to get your net mended, and you will live to see the day when you will feel like the man who, having forsaken Christianity, sighed: "I would give a thousand pounds to feel as I did in 1820." The time will come when you would be willing to give a thousand pounds to feel as you did in 1901. These men who have given up their religion cannot help you a bit.

These dear brethren of all denominations, afflicted with theological fidgets, had better go to mending nets instead of breaking them. Before they break up the old religion and try to foist on us a new religion let them go through some great sacrifice for God that will prove them worthy for such a work, taking the advice of Tallyrand to a man who wanted to upset the religion of Jesus Christ and start a new one when he said: "Go and be crucified and then raise yourself from the grave the third day!" Those who propose to mend their nets by secular and skeptical books are like the man who has just one week for fishing, and six of the days he spends in reading Izaak Walton's "Complete Angler" and Wheatley's "Rod and Line" and Scott's "Fishing in Northern Waters," and Pullman's "Vade Mecum of Fly Fishing for Trout," and then on Saturday morning, his last day out, goes to the river to ply his art. But that day the fish will not bite, and late on Saturday night he goes to his home with empty basket. Alas, alas! If when the Saturday night of our life drops on us it shall be found that we have spent some time in the libraries of worldly philosophy, trying to mend our nets, and we have only a few souls to report as brought to God through our instrumentality, while some humble fisherman, his library made up of a Bible and an almanac, shall come home laden with the results, his trophies all the souls within 15 miles of his log cabin meeting house.

In the time of great disturbance in Naples in 1649 Massaniello, a barefooted fishing boy, dropped his fishing rod and by strange magnetism took command of that city of 600,000 souls. He took off his fishing jacket and put on a robe of gold in the presence of howling mobs. He put his hand on his lip as a signal, and they were silent. He waved his hand away from him, and they retired to their homes. Armies passed in review before him. He became the nation's idol. The rapid rise and complete supremacy of that young fisherman, Massaniello, has no parallel in all history. But something equal to that and better than that is an everyday occurrence in Heaven. God takes some of those who in this world were fishers of men and who toiled very humbly, but because of the way they mended their nets and employed their nets after they were mended He suddenly hoists them and robes them and scepters them and crowns them and makes them rulers over many cities, and He marches armies of saved ones before them in review.

But do not spend your time fishing with hook and line. Why did not James, the son of Zebedee, sit on the wharf at Cana, his feet hanging over the lake, and with a long pole and a worm on the hook dipped into the wave wait for some mullet to swim up and be caught? Why did not Zebedee spend his afternoon trying to catch one eel? No, that work was too slow. These men were not mending a hook and line; they were mending their nets. So let the church of God not be content with having here one soul and next month another soul brought into the kingdom. Sweep all the seas with nets—scoop nets, seine nets, dragnets, all encompassing nets, and take the treasures in by hundreds and thousands and millions, and nations will be born in a day and the hemispheres quake with the tread of a ransoming God. Do you know what will be the two most tremendous hours in our Heavenly existence? Among the quadrillions of ages which shall roll on what two occasions will be to us the greatest? The day of our arrival there will be to us one of the two greatest. The second greatest, I think, will be the day when we shall have put in parallel lines before us what Christ did for us and what we did for Christ, the one so great, the other so little. That will be the only embarrassment in Heaven. My Lord and my God. What will we do and what will we say when on one side are placed the Saviour's great sacrifices for us and our small sacrifices for Him; His exile, His humiliation, His agonies on one hand and our poor, weak, insufficient sacrifices on the other. To make the contrast less overwhelming let us quickly mend our nets, and, like the Galilean fishermen, may we be divinely helped to cast them on the right side of the ship.

IMPERILS THE NATION

Former President Cleveland on Constitutional Limitations.

Deplores Present Policy of the United States Towards Philippines—Dangers of National Greed.

At the sixteenth annual dinner of the Holland Society of New York on the night of January 17 Grover Cleveland expressed in unmistakable terms his opinion of the imperialistic policy of the present administration. The former president was the center of interest among several hundred guests, and in response to a call for a speech said:

"The cordial welcome you extend to me is exceedingly grateful and comforting, for it gives me a grain of satisfaction in the ordeal that confronts me. I am convinced that the art of making an after-dinner speech without distress is for me a sealed book, and as the years pass I am only saved from complete wretchedness in my efforts in that direction by the kindness and toleration of those who are good enough to listen to me. I cannot resent the charge that I am apt to preach a sermon on occasions of this kind, for I am afraid this accusation is justified.

"It has been my lot to be much on the sober side of life, and to feel the pressure of great responsibilities. Besides, I believe it sometimes happens that an excess of light-hearted gayety creates a condition of popular thought and impulse that may profitably be steadied by sedate suggestions and the expression of conservative sentiment—even though it may be called sermonizing. At any rate, I am quite willing to take an humble place among the sermonizers, in this time of headlong national heedlessness, and to invoke the cultivation and saving grace of Dutch conservatism. This is the kind of conservatism that counts the cost, but for the sake of principle and freedom will disregard the cost; that lays out a voyage by chart and compass and follows chart and compass to the end; that loves the liberty and happiness which rest upon tried and sure foundations; that teaches reverence for national traditions and encourages the people's satisfaction with their country's mission.

"It is the kind of conservatism in which our constitution had its birth and which has thus far been the source of our nation's safety and strength—the conservatism of justice, of honor, of honesty, of industry, of frugality and of contented homes.

"In this assemblage of those who know so well the meaning of these things, the question is suggested whether in present conditions this conservatism characterizes the conduct or guides the sentiment of our people. There can be but one answer to this question. Conservatism has in a great degree been jauntily cast aside, or condemned as opposed to our country's welfare and glory.

"War, even with the world's advanced civilization, may still be sometimes necessary and justifiable, but whether necessary and justifiable or not the demoralization that follows in its train can never be evaded. It teaches bloody instructions, which in a country where citizens do the fighting cannot fail to leave their impress for a time at least upon public and private life in time of peace.

"Thirty years after the close of the war for the preservation of the union a treaty of arbitration was formulated between the United States and Great Britain which, if completed, would have gone far toward removing every pretext of war between the two countries. Thus these two great English-speaking nations then assumed leadership in the path of peace and in advocacy of the abolition of war, with the hope and expectation that the example would be followed by other nations, and that a more general adoption of arbitration as a means of settling international disputes would result in a great advance toward the abandonment of war throughout the world.

"This treaty failed of confirmation in the senate of the United States. Less than five years passed and Great Britain—the English-speaking champions of peace and arbitration are still operating on parallel lines—one in the Philippines and the other in South Africa—but no longer for peace and arbitration. Both are killing natives in an effort to possess their lands.

"This indicates a sad relapse, and in our case it is a most serious one. If England succeeds in her attempt in South Africa she will but add another to her list of similar acquisitions; a brave people will have been subjugated. And because of our engagement in a similar venture in another quarter they will miss the expressions of American sympathy which we are accustomed to extend to those who struggle for national life and independence.

"On the other hand, with success in our subjugation effort a new, untried and exceedingly perilous situation will be forced upon us. We can occupy the Philippines, and after conquering them can probably govern them.

"It is in the strain upon our institutions, the degradation of our citizenship, the evasion of our constitutional limitations and the perversion of our national mission that our danger lies. As a distinguished bishop has said: 'The question is not what we shall do with the Philippines, but what the Philippines will do to us.'

"Our country will never be the same again. For weal or woe, we have already irrevocably passed beyond the old lines. The republic will in some sense be saved. Shall it be only in name and semblance, with fair external appearance but with the germs of decay fastened upon its vitals, or shall it, though changed, still survive in such vigor and strength as to remain the hope and pride of free America?

"The problem is a momentous one. Its solution depends upon the extent to which the old patriotism and good sense of our country men can be aroused from impending danger. Thus these are sober days for thoughtful citizens—days for preaching, days for sermonizing.

"If we are to be saved from disaster it must be through the cultivation and enforcement of that sort of conservatism that should find a congenial home in the Holland society. In the midst of reckless tumult and in the confused rage of national greed and bloodiness this conservatism should defiantly stand forth and demand a hearing.

"Let it be known that American freedom and popular rule cannot perish except through the madness of those who have them in their keeping, and by the blood and sacrifices of our fathers, by the lofty achievements of the free institutions they established, by our glorious victories of peace and by our reliance on the promises of God. Let Dutch conservatism enjoin upon our people a faithful discharge of their sacred trust."

CAUGHT BY THE GRIP.

Released by Pe-ru-na---Congressman Howard's Recovery---Congressman Geo. H. White's Case.

La Grippe is epidemic catarrh.—It spares no class or nationality. The cultured and the ignorant, the aristocrat and the pauper. The masses and the classes are alike subject to la grippe. None are exempt—all are liable.

Have you the grip? Or, rather, has the grip got you? Grip is well named. The original French term, la grippe, has been shortened by the busy American to read "grip." Without intending to do so a new word has been coined that exactly describes the case. As if some hideous giant with awful Grip had clutched us in its fatal clasp. Men, women, children, whole towns and cities are caught in the baneful grip of a terrible monster.

Pe-ru-na for Grip.

Mrs. Dr. C. D. Powell, President of Epworth League, also President of Loyal Temperance Legion, writes from Chehalis, Wash.:

"I have used several remedies in cases of severe colds and la grippe, but none I consider of more value than Peruna."—Mrs. Dr. C. D. Powell.

The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus.

After-Effects of La Grippe.

Miss Emma Jouris, President Golden Rod Sewing Circle, writes from 40 Burling street, Chicago, Ill., as follows:

"This spring I suffered severely from the after-effects of la grippe. As the doctors did not help me I bought a bottle of Peruna."—Miss Emma Jouris.

Congressman Howard's Letter.

Fort Payne, Ala.

The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio:

Gentlemen—"I have taken Peruna now for two weeks and find I am very much relieved. I feel that my cure will be permanent. I have also taken it for la grippe and I take pleasure in recommending Peruna as an excellent remedy to all fellow sufferers."—M. W. Howard, Member of Congress.

La Grippe Leaves the System in a Deplorable Condition.

D. L. Wallace, a charter member of the International Barbers' Union, writes from 15 Western Avenue, Minneapolis, Minn.:

"Following a severe attack of la grippe I seemed to be affected badly all over.

"One of my customers who was greatly helped by Peruna advised me to try it, and I procured a bottle the same day. Now my head is clear, my nerves are steady, I enjoy food, and rest well. Peruna has been worth a dollar a dose to me."—L. D. Wallace.

Grip Causes Deafness.

Mrs. M. A. Sharick, chaplain G. A. R. Woman's Relief Corps, writes from Fremont, Wash.:

"When la grippe was the prevailing illness in this Western country I was laid up the whole winter, I partially lost my hearing, and had a very bad case of catarrh of the head and throat.

"I read of Peruna, tried it and had my hearing restored and catarrh cured. I cannot speak too well of Peruna."—Mrs. M. A. Sharick.

La Grippe Cured in Its First Stage.

Lieutenant Charlee Hunt, of the Salt Lake City Barracks of the Salvation Army, writes from Ogden, Utah:

"Two months ago I was suffering with so severe cold that I could hardly speak.

"Our captain advised me to try Peruna, and procured a bottle for me, and truly it worked wonders. Within two weeks I was entirely well."—Charles Hunt.

Congressman White's Letter.

Tarboro, N. C.

Gentlemen—"I am more than satisfied with Peruna and find it to be an excellent remedy for the grip and catarrh. I have used it in my family and they all join me in recommending it as an excellent remedy."—Geo. H. White, Member of Congress.

Remained in Feeble Health After Cured of La Grippe.

Mrs. T. W. Collins, Treasurer Independent Order of Good Templars, of Everett, Wash., writes:

"After having a severe attack of la grippe I continued in a feeble condition even after the doctor called me cured. My blood seemed poisoned. Peruna cured me."—Mrs. T. W. Collins.

MORTARS OUT OF DATE.

No Danger to Battleships from These Obsolete Guns—Accurate Aim Is Impossible.

It is an open secret in both the navy and war departments that the average battleship would think nothing at all of sailing right up against a whole battery of mortars, whereas it would hesitate to encounter a single 12-inch rifle. The mortar battery fires its shell up in the air at a distance of several miles, and it is not an extravagant statement to say that there is not one chance in a thousand of the shells striking a battleship moving even at the lowest rate of speed.

It is impossible to aim these mortars at a moving ship, and even the range finders are of slight assistance. Naval experts estimate that battleships are in more danger of being struck by lightning than a hostile blow from all the mortars in the world.

There are now in position 240 of these 12-inch mortars, scattered along the coast and supposed to guard important ports on the Atlantic, gulf and Pacific coasts. Besides that the mortars take as much care as a rifled cannon.

To cap the climax of the absurdity, it is to be noted that even during the last year no less than 64 of the 12-inch mortars have been put into position. To show the contempt with which military men view these relics of bygone days it is sufficient to say that a proposition has seriously been made by certain gunnery experts absolutely defying the war department to anchor an old barge a mile or so off Sandy Hook and then attempt to hit it with any of the mortars in position there.

A New Invention.

One of the recent inventions tried on the British soldiers in South Africa is called "soldier beer." It is a jelly made from malt and hops, from which beer can be made anywhere and fermented. It is said to make excellent beer and to work equally well in hot or cold climates, the process being very simple, and the military authorities have reported favorably upon it.

A Chinese Wedding.

When a marriage takes place in China the wedding party enter the temple and fight a quantity of fireworks, including a number of crackers. This is supposed to wake the "Great Joss" from his sleep. The priest repeats the service at express speed, the bride and bridegroom take two little glasses of wine and are then declared man and wife.

Railroad Extension in Mexico.

During the period from August 1, 1899, to July 31, 1900, the Mexican Central railway expended for the construction of new lines and equipment $3,840,000.

FIFTY-SIXTH CONGRESS.

Second Session.

Washington, Jan. 23.—Senate—The senate Tuesday adopted appropriate resolutions on the death of Queen Victoria, of England. During the sitting of the senate in open session the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill was completed so far as the committee amendments were concerned.

House—Before the announcement of the death of the queen the house passed the bills to send to the court of claims the claims of Cramp & Sons, amounting to something over $1,500,000, for alleged damage done to the company on account of the failure of the government to promptly furnish armor plate and other material used in the construction of naval vessels. The senate bill to extend the placer mining laws to saline lands was passed after a rather spirited debate. The District of Columbia appropriation bill was taken up and some progress was made with it. Appropriate resolutions on the death of Queen Victoria were adopted, and out of respect the house adjourned.

Washington, Jan. 24.—Senate—Consideration of the shipping bill was resumed Wednesday. At the instance of Mr. Frye (Me.), who relinquished the chair temporarily to take charge of the measure on the floor, it was made the unfinished business of the senate, thus restoring it to its privileged position.

House—The house Wednesday passed the District of Columbia appropriation bill and entered upon consideration of the naval appropriation bill. There was some discussion of the extent to which the navy was to be increased ultimately in the course of which Mr. Wheeler (Ky.) and a member of the committee, declared himself in favor of a navy large enough to meet "all comers." Several provisions of the bill were knocked out on points of order, including that to give warrant officers the commutation for quarters allowed second lieutenants of the marine corps.

Washington, Jan. 25.—Senate—The senate devoted Thursday to the Indian appropriation bill and made only fair progress. The chief feature of the debate was a sharp attack by Mr. Pettigrew on the Dawes commission. At the opening the senate adopted the Pettigrew resolution concerning the reported deportation of A. Mabini, a citizen of the Philippines, to Guam.

House—The house considered the naval appropriation bill all day and completed it, with the exception of one paragraph. The item for increase of the navy will remain as reported, namely, two battle ships and two cruisers. Some opposition was manifested to any increase of the navy, and Mr. Cannon (Ill.) sounded a note of warning as to the size of our annual appropriations, and added that, with the present appropriation, $310,000,000 would have been spent on our new navy, and we should stop.

Washington, Jan. 26.—Senate—Senator Depew (N. Y.) delivered in the senate Friday a characteristically forceful and eloquent address in support of the shipping bill. The address, which occupied just an hour, was in the nature of an appeal for the upbuilding of the American merchant marine by the granting of subsidies, as provided for in the pending measure.

House—The house Friday adopted the conference report upon the army reorganization bill. The contest over it was brief. Mr. Hull, chairman of the military affairs committee, preventing prolonged debate. The consular and diplomatic appropriation bill, carrying something over $1,500,000, was reported. It provides $20,000 for purchasing land at Peking for the United States legation there. Minister Conger having advised the extension. Other changes made by the bill are: Salary of minister to Bolivia increased from $5,000 to $7,500; consulate established at Neo Chwang, China, at $3,000, and at Moscow, Russia, at $1,500; consulate at Chung King, China, abolished; consul general at Constantinople made United States agent at Sofia, Bulgaria, and salary raised from $2,500 to $3,000.

Washington, Jan. 28.—Senate—No business of importance transacted in the senate Saturday.

House—The following bills and resolutions were introduced Saturday: By Representative Berry, directing the secretary of the treasury to pay to Margaret Kennedy, sole heir and executrix of John Kennedy, $7,476 for fences and property destroyed by United States troops during the civil war. By Representative Smith (Ky.) authorizing the appointment of Geo. N. Jesse as a special employe of the house of representatives at a salary of $1,000 a year. Representative Southard introduced a resolution in the house, making a special order, after the revenue cutter service bill, of the Hill bill, to maintain the parity of gold and silver. The house committee on rules refused to report favorably on the resolution unless the senate should guarantee that the bill would receive attention in that body during the present session. The latter having been refused, it is likely that the Hill bill will not become a law at this session. The house passed the bill introduced by Representative Berry to pension Mrs. Mary Connery, of Falmouth, at the rate of $8 a month.

Anti-Cigarette Bill.

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 26.—Representative Witt has introduced a bill which prohibits the manufacture, sale or giving away of cigarettes within the state.

Exportation Tax Lowered.

Havana, Jan. 28.—Gov. Gen. Wood has informed the tobacco exporters that the Washington government has allowed his petition for a 50 per cent. reduction in the exportation tax. The lowering of the export duty has been the subject of agitation among the tobacco interests in Cuba for a year.

Swearing Allegiance.

Hollo, Island of Panay, Jan. 28.—Upwards of 30,000 Filipinos have sworn allegiance to the United States in Hollo province. Thirty surrendered at Santa Barbara.

SECOND INAUGURAL.

Systematic Preparations Are Being Made For the Comfort of Visitors in Washington on March 4.

Washington, Jan. 28.—The committee having in charge the preparations for the second inauguration of President McKinley have made systematic and careful arrangements for the comfort while here of the many thousand visitors. The committee on public comfort, of which M. I. Weller is chairman, has divided the city into sections and has secured a list of all hotels, boarding houses, private houses and halls, with their capacity and terms, for the information of strangers desiring quarters. The committee authorizes the statement that, while there will be somewhat more crowding than visitors expect at ordinary seasons, there will be no increase in the prices charged for the entertainment. A corps of sanitary experts has been employed to inspect and report upon all places listed. Great numbers of letters inquiring about accommodations are being received each day, and all are answered with a statement of location, character of quarters and prices, besides a map showing the exact situation of the houses to which inquirers are referred.

PROVINCE OF SHAN SI.

There Is Great Distress There, Owing to Famine, and Thousands of Natives Have Died.

Peking, Jan. 28.—There has been great distress in the province of Shun Si, owing to the famine, and thousands have died. The court has ordered rice relief to be issued in large quantities. A report reached the foreign envoys that native Christians, suffering from the famine, were to be discriminated against and to be punished if they even begged for food.

Mr. Conger, Sir Ernest M. Satow and M. Pinchon, the United States, British and French ministers, protested to Prince Ching and Li Hung Chang against such discrimination, and the court issued an edict, dated Saturday, ordering all relief officials and Chinese soldiers to treat Christians exactly the same as others throughout the empire, under penalty of decapitation. The foreign envoys consider this a most important decree if it is carried out.

PASSED AWAY.

Verdi, the Celebrated Italian Music Composer, Succumbed to His Disease.

Rome, Jan. 26.—A special dispatch to the Patria announces that Verdi, the composer, is dead.

Verdi's disease was brain trouble. He passed away peacefully.

Milan, Jan. 28.—The Scala theater will reopen after the funeral of Verdi with a performance in aid of the monument fund. King Victor Emmanuel will be represented at the funeral by the crown prince. The city council adopted a resolution on Sunday offering to place the remains of the composer in the municipal cemetery among the illustrious citizens of Milan there interred.

ROBBERS' HEAVY HAUL.

The Exact Loss From the Revenue Office at Peoria, Ill., Friday, Is Placed at $31,976.

Peoria, Ill., Jan. 28.—The exact loss sustained by the revenue office from the visit of the robbery Friday night last has been determined to be $31,976. The thieves took revenue stamps of various denominations in the original packages and the weight of the plunder was nearly 300 pounds. No clew has as yet been discovered. J. W. McGinnis, revenue agent of this district, is here, as well as several of the secret service men from Washington and Chicago, who are at work on the case, but apparently with little hope of success.

Heavy Gale on the Channel.

Paris, Jan. 28.—Dispatches from the northern coast show that there was a heavy gale over the channel Saturday and that several small boats were lost.

PHOTOGRAPHIC DEVELOPER.

One bad feature of metol is that it is prone to poison the skin.

Some photographers prophesy that the coming developer is Imogen.

Hydroquinone should never be used alone, and too much should not be added to metol.

Pyro-soda is an excellent developer for plates that have been properly exposed. From them it will produce soft, rich negatives of fine printing quality.

Probably the cheapest developer on the market, says the Philadelphia Press, is rodinal, which is a fairly good developer. It is used in one solution and can be worked on developing paper as well as plates.

Elkonogen is a good developer which is considerably used nowadays, more frequently in combination with hydroquinone than alone. It is a rather mild developer, giving negatives of extreme softness, and with blue-black tint.

One of the most popular of the newer developers is amicol, which is in vogue both for plates and developing paper. On the latter it gives good tones, but they are blue-black instead of pure black.

Nowadays metol is seldom used alone. The usual method is to combine it with hydroquinone. Hydroquinone is a rather harsh developer, whose great specialty is the giving of density rather than detail, so that it is a very good blend for metol, whose weak points it makes good.

The original developer was pyro, which means a developer in which the agent was pyrogallic acid. This is a good developer, but stains the hands and sometimes the negatives as well. The old school photographers all use pyro, which is usually used in two solutions, and claim that the negative can be kept in more perfect control with it than with any other developer.

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

Rudyard Kipling has dramatized his long story: "The Light That Failed, and the play has been acquired by Charles Hawtrey, the English actor.

Jenny Lind's letters to a woman friend living in Italy from 1845 to 1874 will soon be published by an Italian firm. The letters, it is reported, number over 100, and give the prima donna's outspoken and unconventional opinions about the public and many of the musicians of her time.

Sada Yacco, the talented Japanese actress who was heard in New York last winter and subsequently appeared with much success in Paris, has been commissioned with her husband, Kawakami, by the empress of Japan to make a careful study of the stage of European countries and select a number of plays suitable for translation in her language. The empress desires to do away with the ten-hour Japanese plays and give them a more reasonable length.

OF GENERAL INTEREST.

Merchandise was first admitted to the mails in 1861.

The Italian government has completed the installation of telephone wires on the Italian slope of the Alps, which will form part of a line connecting Rome and Paris.

William Waldorf Astor's business office is the handsomest in London, and is, in its rich appointment, unique among those of London's rich men, who usually transact their business in offices rather shabby than otherwise.

Some estimation of the disorganized and miserable state of the Belgian government railways may be gathered from the fact that recently, while a train was traveling at a moderate speed, one of the carriages dropped to pieces. The passengers were shaken up, and one man had both his legs cut off.

The Nicaragua Canal.

When built, will prove the link between prosperity and many people. It will prove a blessing to humanity in general, improving the condition of the nation, as Hostetter's Stomach Bitters does that of the individual. Nothing to equal this remedy has ever been discovered for all ailments of the stomach, liver, bowels and kidneys. It will quickly cleanse the blood and sharpen the appetite. Unavoidable Action.

"Doctor, I'm bothered with a queer pain. When I bend forward, stretch out my arms, and make a semi-circular movement with them, a sharp sting comes in my left shoulder."

"But," asked the physician, wonderingly, "why make such motions?"

"Well, if you know any other way for a man to get on his overcoat I wish you'd let me know."—Philadelphia Times.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Mr. W. G. Roberts, at one time living at 246 East Washington Street, Indianapolis, Indiana, wrote: "Your Lotion has completely cured me of Barber's Itch, after having been treated in vain for over three years by various M. D.'s." The above testimony is corroborated by many others who have suffered from virulent cutaneous disease which Palmer's Lotion never fails to cure, and all who have used it gladly recommend it to their friends and speak of it in terms of highest praise. If your druggist don't have it send to Solon Palmer, 374 Pearl Street, New York, for samples of Palmer's Lotion and Lotion Soap.

DR. GREENE'S NERVURA

BLOOD AND NERVE REMEDY.

Will Give You the Strength and Vigor of Perfect Manhood. Renews, Vitalizes and Invigorates Weak Men.

Old before his time! A broken-down, miserable wreck—weak, nervous, discouraged!

The world to him seems a place of mist, peopled with ghostly beings, whose flitting to and fro about their daily tasks serves but to irritate him. He sneers at healthy amusements, and finds no comfort or pleasure in life.

He is sick and he does not know it. He drags about, and therefore thinks he is well. He is despondent and peevish, and weak, and he does not know that there are merely signals—some from the stomach crying for aid—others from the nerves beseeching strength—still others from the great life-current—the blood—moaning that it is so impeded and clogged with impurities that it cannot move.

He, and all others like him, will find immediate relief in Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. This is just what it was intended for. It never fails to make weak men strong and vigorous, puts new life, vim, strength, power and energy into them.

Dr. Greene's Nervura is New Life, Hope and Strength for Weak Men.

Mr. JOHN D. SMITH, electrician for the Thompson-Houston Electric Co., of Lynn, Mass., says:—"When a man has been sick and is cured, it is his duty to tell others about it, that they, too, may get well. Three years ago I had been working almost night and day, could not (as regularly) and got only a few hour sleep at night. No man can stand that long, and I soon began to be prostrated. I could not sleep when I tried, and my food would not stay on any stomach. I was in a terrible condition, and was much alarmed. I went to doctors, but they did me no good. Learning of the wonderful good done by Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, I determined to try it. It cured me completely of all my complaints. I eat heartily and sleep well, thanks to this splendid medicine. I believe it to be the best remedy in existence."

Dr. Greene's Nervura is the One Great Restorative Which Cures.

DR. GREENE, 35 West 14th St., New York City, is the most successful specialist in curing nervous and chronic diseases. He has remedies for all forms of disease, and offers to give free consultation and advice, personally or by letter. You can tell or write your troubles to Dr. Greene, for all communications are confidential, and letters are answered in plain sealed envelopes.

Bud Rector and wife entertained a crowd of young folks Monday night. The time was spent enjoying music and dancing. Chas. Kelly and Boone Williamson furnished music for the dancing.

The young folks about here are enjoying themselves every week at parties. One night last week there were two dances and one play party—dances at Z. T. Kelly's and Robert Cox's, and a play party at Billy Ryle's. At each party was a good attendance, and a very enjoyable time was had.

W. T. Evans, of Petersburg, and a candidate for Assessor, was around here last Thursday calling on the voters. Mr. Evans is a deserving, conscientious, high-toned gentleman, and will make a clean race. Having to work by the day for the support of his family, he has no money to spend in a canvass.

Several men from here went to the city, last week. When they started home they concluded to come to Lawrenceburg on an electric car. When about half way to Lawrenceburg, the car ran off of the track, and they walked the remainder of the distance, crossing the river to Petersburg, continuing their tramp some distance on this side before reaching the place where they left their horses. They say that they enjoyed their trip, but don't care to take another like it before spring.

Through the faithful efforts of Lucien Dickerson, jr., and Fielding Norman, a call has been secured for Pat Norman for constable. They think he will have a regular walk-over.

Mrs. J. W. Kennedy entertained a few of the young people, one night last week. They had a delightful game of crokonole, and fuond Mrs. Kennedy a most charming hostess.

To the patrons of Union school:—You will fiud in the annexed report a list of the pupils of the school, who reached 85 per cent. in examination at the end of the fourth month. The figures immediately following the name indicate average scholarship, and the others show the number of days tardy during the month. This tardiness among the pupils is the source of much delay in the school work, and should have the immediate and effectual attention of the parents. This fault is, in the main, the only one the teacher finds in the pupil, and she would like exceedingly to be called from the executheon of the Union Public School. Fifth grade—Hattie Rouse, 95½; Jean Cleek, 98½, 11; Bess Cleek, 93 5-6, 3; Caroline Friedman 96, 5; Sophia Friedman, 95 2-5, 4; Edna Mullins, 90, 9; Madge Williams, 96 3 5, 5; John B. Dickerson, 97 3-5, 4; Robert Rouse, 94; Richard Rouse, 95 2-7; Arch Dickerson, 96 2-5, 7; Jos. Cleek, 93 2-5 11; Douglas Rouse, 98½; Frank Smith, 92 4 5, 7; Frank Rouse, 94 4-5, 7; Harry Dickerson, 96 2-5, 18; Roy Riley, 97 3-7. Fourth grade—Lizzie Stevenson, 90, 11; Bessie Goforth, 99½; Charles Hedges, 97 5-7, 1; Tristram Rouse, 97 5-7; J. T. Williams, 96 2-5, 2; Henry Holzworth, 93½, 1; Benj. Cleek, 96 4-7, 1; Jos. NANNIE D. KRISTOW, Teacher.

HUME STORE.—Rube Houston is at home on a week's visit.

Miss Sallie Finnell is attending school at Verona.

When you are not sure you have the correct time, ask Pete Dudgeon; he is always on the dot.

Several from here attended the social at Mrs. James Hinds' last Saturday evening, and report a very enjoyable occasion.

Mr. Jones closed his first school here last Friday, and, as far as we can learn gave entire satisfaction. He leaves for Lebanon, Ohio, next week, where he will attend school.

Miss Lizzie Vest will finish her first term of school next week at the Allphin school-house. Miss Lizzie has won the admiration of patrons and pupils alike, having taught an excellent school.

"Boss" Wilson makes frequent trips to Verona lately. Says he is a candidate for—matrimony. He says if he can secure one vote, it's all he asks for. Here's success to you, "Boss."

By the way, within the last week or two, there have been several candidates for the various offices, in and around here, and we begin to study about whom we are going to vote for. We have made up our minds to cast our votes for none but dyed-in-the-wool Democrats. This county is the banner county of the State as to its Democracy, and we want to keep it so. Therefore, all ye who have flopped over, or were astraddle of the fence and did not vote, take warning! an excursion up Salt River awaits you.

Our tailor, Mr. Bullock, is down with pneumonia in a light form.

Mrs. Mary Craven is sick at her daughter's, Edith, in Hebron.

John Taneous contemplates going to Denver, Colorado, in the spring.

Born, to Henry Aylor and wife, last Wednesday, a 10 pound daughter.

The remains of Mr. Abe Clore were buried in the cemetery at Hebron, last Saturday.

Henry Quick took his bed a few days last week, with grippe, but was better on Saturday.

John Crigler and wife, two sons and daughter, Kate, are all down with the grippe. Mrs. Crigler has pneumonia.

Deacon Simeon Tanner with Lieutenant Andy Smith, of Constance, were through this vicinity, last Wednesday, soliciting members to join their Christian Scientist Organization at Constance. They gave us a very pleasant and interesting talk, submitted some cards or tracts that purported to be the by-laws of the organization. Sim occupies the position of deacon and will attend to the fortune telling also. Andy is the head of the bureau and the divine healer—cures all diseases by simply laying on his hands; he is also a trance medium and clairvoyant. Judging from the success they met with in this vicinity, they will, undoubtedly, canvass the county.

LIMABURG.—Clark Beemon is on the sick list.

One inch of snow fell here last Saturday.

Mrs. Jerry Beemon, who has been very sick, is improving.

Geo. West is visiting his daughter, who lives at S. J. Rouse's.

Wallace Tanner was a guest at John Hicks' in Covington, last Saturday, Sunday and part of Monday.

Mike Yealy's school will close this (Wednesday) afternoon, with an entertainment to begin at one o'clock.

Born, on the 26th, to Charles Youell and wife, a 10 pound boy. Charley is the proudest man in the county.

Mr. Otha Garnett and wife gave a social, Saturday night, in honor of Irvin Baker. It was a delightful affair.

BELLEVUE.—The candidates got a hustle on themselves here, last week.

Andrew B. Acra, of Middle creek, was calling on us Saturday.

John Willett, of Missouri, is visiting J. H. Lawell and wife. He is a brother of Mrs. Lawell.

J. M. Henderson desires to return his sincere thanks to his relatives, neighbors and friends for the kindness shown during the recent illness of his wife and himself.

Mrs. James Rogers left for Erlanger, last Saturday, where she will join her mother for a trip to Jacksonville — Key West, Fla. They will probably extend their trip to Cuba. They will be gone a month or six weeks.

WALTON.—Glasscock received 48,864 lbs. of tobacco during last week, and has shipped to Louisville since Dec. 25, to date 114 hhds.

Mr. Taylor Crowe will move back to Walton as soon as he can get a house. The many predictions of his friends, who said he would come back in less than three months, is on the eve of being verified.

The resignation of Mr. J. W. Gosney as the Principal of the Graded School was handed in to the trustees at their meeting January 21st, and accepted. On Friday last, Miss Virgina Southgate was elected and installed as the Principal for the remainder of the term of four months.

The many friends of Amos C. Johnson, the popular drug clerk, were delighted to see him here on last Sunday. It had been reported that he was in very bad health, and his appearance on our streets seemed to souse us tho he was risen from the dead.

If ministers of the gospel could only realize what pleasure it gives a case-hardened sinner to record a courtesy extended by one to another of a different denomination, they would as a matter of policy only, try and have such occurreuces transpire more frequently thau they do.

As the Democratic primary promises to be an important topic for the next two months to come, the following puzzle is sent in as a relief to any strain that may arise from too deeply considering the chances of the reader's favorite candidate for any of the offices. Place ten coppers or other articles in a row. Then put them in piles of two each, always passing one over two. It can be done, but those who try it will find it not so easy to be done as at the first glance appears probable.

The manager of the Junior Endeavor Society of the Christian Church wishing to secure strict attention, told them if they would be quiet she would tell them something about young foxes. They were all attention in a second. "Some young foxes wont keep still, they are either moving about or whispering to other young foxes, keep getting up and down and sometimes whistle." "That's me," said Russell McKeam (6) and the rapt attention was over and everybody laughing.

Bro. G. W. Hill, pastor of the Baptist church at this place, a resident of Williamstown, was visiting some friends here on last Sunday, which was the day for the regular meeting at the Christian church, and Bro. R. W. Wallace, pastor of that church, with that rare sense of the fitness of things so becoming to the gentleman, asked him to preach in his church. The courteous offer was accepted in the spirit in which it was given, and Bro. Hill preached a magnificent sermon on "Christian Citizenship." Every good citizen likes the odor of this kind of thing. It is incense upon the altar of God.

The "roll of honor" in the Preparatory Department of the High School has a new feature that is quite commendable. It requires 90 per cent. in deportment to have the name of the pupil enrolled. Miss Effie Lermon's report is as follows, pupils making an average of 90 per cent. including deportment: Anna Baker, Pauline Curley, Mamie Willefort, Katie Bentz, Louise Green, Ralph Edwards, Roy Stamler, Sleet West, Thos. Percival, Robt. Baker, Willeve Tillman, Virgie Dickson, Lucille Hind, Ella Haley, Hallie Watson, Zella Mayhugh, Gladys Wilson, Amy West, Nellie Fullilove, Marian Mash, John Craig.

The weather is very unfavorable for any thing like a fever heat among the people in regard to the claims of any of the officeseekers. Beg pardon, it may be that some may think I should have used the term politicians; but the other word is more definite and it stands at that. It May be probable that the voters are waiting till the entries are closed. And, again, it may be, and possibly it is, that they are so pleased with the results of the last primary that their minds are made up and they want to throw in another surprise on April 6, 1901. There is a not very dim remembrance of what a combination effected a few years ago, and it is a kind of an unhealed fester that is manifesting itself in a ground swell for a victim of the aforesaid combination. He may be a great surprise, yet to the politician as they are pleased to call themselves. You can set it down that he wont be called Dennis if he enters the race.

To the Editor of the Recorder:

Dear Sir:—I would like to say through the columns of your paper to my friends who have so earnestly solicited me to become a candidate for re-election to the office of County Judge, the way in which I am now situated it would be a matter of impossibility for me to make the canvass that would be required of me. Therefore, will have to decline at this time; however, am very grateful and thank all my friends very kindly for past favors, and beg to remain,

Yours truly, C. C. ROBERTS.

The death of Newton M. Canfield, which occurred Wednesday morning, January 23, 1901, calls away another of the pioneer citizens of this county. Mr. Canfield was born in Boone county, Ky., June 7th, 1813, and came to this county in childhood and has resided here ever since. He was married to Mrs. Ann Johnson Baker in 1885, and to this union was born eleven children, eight of whom are still living. He was a devout christian and a leading member of the M. E. Church. He was a member of Williamgton Lodge F. & A. M., and was always prominent in that order. His funeral took place from the M. E. Church under the auspices of that lodge, services being conducted by Rev. Cochran and burial in River View cemetery.—Aurora Bulletin.

The white man released from jail at this place Tuesday morning was none other than Ben Roberts, who, about 20 years ago, was sent to the penitentiary from this county for stealing a horse that belonged to Mitch Rich, of Big Bone. A short time after Roberts was lodged in jail for stealing Rich's horse, he cut through the sheet-iron lining, punched a hole through the brick wall and escaped. He was finally located, recaptured, returned to jail here, tried and sent over the road for two years. When arrested for stealing A. B. Rouse's laprobe that was in the buggy in Florence, he gave his name as Frank Brown, and many thought at the time that the name he gave was assumed. J. M. Baker, of Big Bone, visited the jail during the last term of circuit court, and recognized the prisoner as Ben Roberts, with whom he used to be well acquainted, although Roberts insisted that Baker was mistaken. Last Monay evening the prisoner wrote his name, "Ben Roberts," on his cell, and told Claud McGuire, a prisoner who has been in jail about week, that it was his true name.

C. W. PORTER.

During a century a total of about 19,000,000 people have come from foreign countries to make their homes in the United States.

Alaska in 1901 is expected to yield $15,000,000 in gold, a sum which will be recalled as the country's first cost to the United States.

One burning question has grown cold and been laid away upon the historical shelf. Everybody is now agreed we are in the twentieth century.

Though storm and flood did their terribly destructive work in Galveston, Tex., only such a little while ago, the undaunted citizens of the stricken town have done much toward restoring it to its former good condition.

Word making is going on at a rapid rate, and it is announced that the new edition of Webster will contain 25,000 words not contained in the old edition. The school children of the future are destined to have a hard time of it at their spelling bees.

An enterprising Kansas man has the following business card: "Music. Language. Literature. E. A. Shankle, superintendent and lecturer. Agent for all cooperative and social literature. Private psychology, grammar, horn and vocal lessons. Bargains in coal. Bees for sale."

The Dead sea, for thousands of years a forsaken solitude in the midst of the desert and whose waves have been for centuries undisturbed, is now to be crossed by a line of motor boats. A shorter route will thus be found between Jerusalem and Kerak, the ancient capital of Moab.

Hiram Cronk, of Dunbrook, N. Y., has lived in three centuries, and, according to the list of names published by the United States commissioner of pensions, is the only living soldier of the war of 1812. He has just held a little celebration in honor of the incoming of the new century.

According to recent legislation in New York state a man is required to support his mother-in-law. Another legal arrangement provides that a woman need not support her husband unless he is incapable of labor or unless an agreement for mutual support has been made previous to marriage.

Many of the troops have left China, but the government reports show there is still a strong guard there for the winter. There are 7,500 Germans, 5,500 British, 5,000 French, 4,000 Japanese, 2,500 Italians, 1,750 Americans and 250 Austrians, making the aggregate strength of the allied forces 26,500 men.

A single presidental term of six years has been advocated by many prominent men for years. Andrew Jackson, when president, advocated the change in all of his messages. Henry Clay, was nominated on a platform demanding the change, and a proposition to so change the constitution was offered in the house in 1826.

In these days of wars and rumors of wars, of disintegrating empires and expanding republics, it is comforting to know that some scientists find time to discuss whether wasps have memories or not. This was done in Chicago at a meeting of the naturalists of the western and central states. The principal essayist of the meeting maintained the affirmative.

A large Dublin manufacturer has a room entirely furnished with Irish peat. The carpets on the floor, the curtains at the windows and paper on the walls are made from this substance. For years he has experimented with the material, which is now very largely exported as fuel, and he has discovered that from it it is possible to procure most any kind of fabric.

An authority on bacteriology says that many diseases may be traced to the eating of unwashed fruit, and particularly of unwashed grapes. After washing some grapes which had stood for a long time in a basket on a fruit stand the man of science found that the water contained tubercle bacilli in sufficient quantites to kill a guinea pig in two days. Two other guinea pigs which were inoculated with the germ-infected water died within six weeks.

Astronomers are discussing the the ory that the moon is in its glacia epoch. One telescopic expert calls the "craters" ice cups and the streams along their sides glacial weather. An other insists that the signs of volcanic action are unmistakable. All agree that most of the moon's surface is intensely white. The dark regions are termed seas, but there is no evidence that they contain water. Some writers believe they are covered with the earliest forms of vegetation.

By the operation of a new law nearly 1,000 green grocers, butchers and poultry sellers in New Orleans are forced to close their places of business permanently. The law in question prohibits the establishment of a private market within 3,200 feet of a public market, and was enacted in the interest of the public market lessees in order to increase the revenue of the city. It has been tested and upheld in the courts. The public markets now have a monopoly and food prices in New Orleans will probably go up 10 or 15 per cent.

PERMIT ISSUED.

Mayor Fleischmann, of Cincinnati, Grants the Request of the Saengerfest Athletic Association.

Cincinnati, Jan. 26.—Mayor Fleischmann has issued the following permit:

Cincinnati, Jan. 25, 1901.

Permission is hereby granted the Saengerfest Athletic Association Co., a corporation organized under the laws of the state of Ohio, to hold two sparring contests, one not to exceed ten rounds, at Convention hall, southeast corner Vine and Erkenbrecher avenue, on February 15, 1901, by authority vested in the mayor under section 6890, Revised Statutes, Ohio laws.

JULIUS FLEISCHMANN, Mayor.

Columbus, O., Jan. 26.—If the only hope of the opponents of the Jeffries-Ruhlin fight hinges on preventing it through ousting the Saengerfest Athletic club from its charter, they might as well break the hinge.

It is now too late to oust the club before the fight. Attorney General Sheets made this statement Friday. He said that if he should be requested by the Cincinnati people to bring quo warranto suit, and should bring one, the club would have 30 days in which to answer, and the fight will be over before that time. There could be no injunction against the club pending a decision, the attorney general said.

When asked if he intended bringing suit to oust the Saengerfest Athletic club from its charter, he said: "I have never heard anything about this matter except what I have seen in and been told was published in Cincinnati papers. They have been talking about certain lawyers going to have me bring suit in quo warranto, but nobody has ever consulted or requested me to take such action, nor have I given the matter consideration of my own volition."

MIDNIGHT BLAZE.

Pitkin & Brook's Wholesale Glassware and Crockery Store, in Chicago, Burned.

Chicago, Jan. 26.—Fire of a mysterious origin destroyed the big wholesale glassware and crockery store of Pitkin & Brooks, Lake and State streets, early Saturday morning, causing a loss of $550,000 and injuring several firemen. The latter were hurt by falling glassware or were scorched by flames which suddenly burst from the windows.

The fire was first discovered in the rear part of the second story and evidently had been burning slowly some time. Adjacent buildings, though seriously threatened, were saved.

In front of the Pitkin & Brooks building is the Union Elevated Loop railway, which was damaged somewhat by the intense heat. The loss on the building is $50,000; on stock, $500,000, all well insured.

The firm of Pitkin & Brooks is one of the oldest in Chicago.

ENTIRE CREW PERISHED.

Wreckage From the Salmon Steamer Ardnamurchan Found on the Coast of Vancouver Island.

Vancouver, B. C., Jan. 26.—There is little doubt that the wreckage found along the west shore of Vancouver island near the mouth of Columbia river is from the salmon steamer Ardnamurchan. It is believed the entire crew perished. For the last two weeks it has been certain in the minds of marine men that a disaster had taken place off the coast of Vancouver island. Small parts of wreckage have been found and word was received that marked cases of salmon had been picked up further south.

A Shot Fired Into the Boat in Which the Queen Regent of Spain and Children Were Riding.

London, Jan. 26.—"While the queen regent and her children were boating in the royal park on the outskirts of Madrid Saturday," says the Madrid correspondent of the Daily Express, "a shot was fired from the bank and penetrated the gunwale of the boat. The park was searched but the assailant was not discovered. The queen regent was considerably alarmed."

National Prohibition Conference.

Chicago, Jan. 26.—A call has been issued by Oliver W. Stewart, chairman of the national committee, for a national prohibition conference to be held at Buffalo in August. The purpose, as stated in the call, is to discuss questions of interest to state and county chairmen and local workers.

VENEZUELAN TROUBLE

United States War Vessels May Land an Armed Force There.

No Accurate Details of the Sinking of the British Sloop Maria Teresa By the Venezuela Gunboat Miranda.

Fort de France, Island of Martinique, Jan. 25 (via Haytien Cable).—The attitude of the government of Venezuela toward the Bermudez Asphalt Co. (American) is hostile, for the reason that the concessions recently accorded by the government have been given to people in touch with the government and who would like to resell them to the Bermudez Co. The government having refused to accede to the request of the American minister, who demanded a suspension of action on the part of the new concessionists in taking possession of their grants, strained relations between Venezuela and the United States resulted, and war vessels are expected to return to La Guayra.

If the Venezuelan government employs force to take possession of the asphalt lake, it is believed the United States auxiliary cruiser Scorpion will land an armed force.

The attitude of the Venezuelans toward Americans may be described as hostile. On the 15th of this month the Venezuelan troops in the Hoyo barracks, at Caracas, mutinied and killed their colonel, the lieutenant colonel and seven men, and then fled in various directions. Two hundred and ten of the men were captured again. There was no fighting in the town, and the exact cause of the mutiny is not known.

No accurate details are obtainable regarding the sinking of the British sloop Maria Teresa by the Venezuelan gunboat Miranda. It is supposed the Maria Teresa was on her way from the British island of Trinidad with a cargo of arms intended for the Venezuelan revolutionists, and that she was met by the Miranda, which, wishing to take possession of her, fired upon the Maria Teresa and by so doing set her on fire, after which she sank, according to one report. In the east the insurrection appears to be localized between Cumana and the extreme northeast of Venezuela.

The insurgents have again taken possession of Cerupano, and during the evening of January 21 there was a tentative uprising in the neighborhood of Barcelona.

Calm prevails in the west, but a number of arrests are being made, and the revolutionists appear to be concentrating at Curacoa.

The situation so far as it affects the Bermudez asphalt group grows more critical every hour. All the Negros and other laborers are menaced and impressed by the local authorities, or they deserted, thus leaving the plant at the asphalt lake without assistance.

The American colony in Venezuela continues to protest against the indifference with which American lives and interests are regarded.

JEFFRIES-RUHLIN CONTEST.

Saengerfest Hall, Cincinnati, Will Be Remodeled at a Cost of $2,000—Work Commenced.

Cincinnati, Jan. 25.—Work on the remodeling of Saengerfest hall for the fistic carnival was begun Thursday afternoon. The changes to be made will require an outlay of nearly $2,000, and the documents have been signed and sealed. This step was one that could be delayed so often that it gave the element of doubt a chance to spread, despite the repeated declarations that there would be no change in the plans to pull off the Jeffries-Ruhlin contest.

Just now E. G. Cooke is in the midst of the ticket tangle, but it is stated that the advance sale will commence on Monday morning next, when pasteboards will be exchanged for anything from a "V" for a gallery seat to $5 for a box chair at the ringside.

Cincinnati and adjacent territory will be well billed before the week ends. The three-sheets have been ordered, and there will be fighting as well as theatrical paper on the walls.

SEVERAL FIGHTS WITH BOERS

Smith-Dorrien Had a Successful Battle of Five Hours With Boers While on the March From Wonderfontein to Carolina.

London, Jan. 28.—The war office has received from the commander-in-chief in South Africa a dispatch dated Pretoria, January 26, reporting numerous engagements, the following being the most important:

"Cunningham was engaged at Middlefontein and Kopperfontein yesterday with Delarey's force. Babington, while moving north from Ventersdorp, threatened the enemy's flank, whereupon the Boers retired west. Cunningham's casualties were two officers wounded, four men killed and 37 wounded.

"In the engagement at Lichtenburg January 17 some yeomanry were captured. These have since been released with the exception of a major and three men. No details are yet at hand.

"Smith-Dorrien had a successful engagement of five hours while on the march from Wonderfontein to Carolina, where the Boers had lately been concentrating. The enemy were in considerable strength and held the river, but were driven out. Our losses were one officer killed and two officers and 13 men wounded."

Lord Kitchener confirms the report that a British train with troops and military stores on board was waylaid and captured at Slijpkilip, near Fourteen Streams, last Friday, but says the Boers retired on the arrival of the armored train sent in pursuit.

A ROUGH VOYAGE.

The Liner La Gascogne, Badly Damaged, Arrived at New York—Encountered Two Fierce Gales.

New York, Jan. 28.—The French liner LaGascogne arrived in port Sunday with two of her life boats smashed, the rails on her starboard quarter twisted and broken and her 400 steerage passengers not yet recovered from the fright occasioned by the battering the ship received from two terrific seas. The saloon passengers suffered a moment of terror that will cause them to remember the voyage.

When LaGascogne left Havre she had not been headed westward many hours when the first of the bad weather developed. It came in the shape of gales from many points of the compass and lasted for 36 hours.

The following day a second storm arose. A heavy sea struck the ship on the starboard quarter, caught lifeboat No. 2, wrecking and rendering it useless, smashed the chocks that kept her steady, broke the davits flush with the deck, twisted all the railings on the starboard side out of shape and managed to knock a hole about four feet square through the turtle deck. The water poured down through onto the spar deck making a fearful roar and driving the steerage passengers almost frantic.

Appleton, Wis., Jan. 28.—Dr. Rodermund, the physician who, to support his theory of non-contagion of the disease, rubbed virus from a smallpox patient over his hands and face and walked about the city, broke out of quarantine Saturday evening, eluded four officers, and, aided by H. W. Ruthbun, principal of the Appleton School of Business, drove 40 miles to Wampaun and took the limited train to Chicago. Ruthbun returned here Sunday night. He was arrested and put in the pesthouse. He will be prosecuted to the limit of the law, as will Rodermund if captured.

Hollifield had long been a terror to moonshiners and was one of the bravest men in the service. In a battle with moonshiners several years ago three of his posse were killed, he being the only one to escape.

March 15, 1899.

To MRS. PINKHAM, LYNN, MASS.:

"DEAR MADAM:—I am suffering from inflammation of the ovaries and womb, and have been for eighteen months. I have a continual pain and soreness in my back and side. I am only free from pain when lying down, or sitting in an easy chair. When I stand I suffer with severe pain in my side and back. I believe my troubles were caused by over work and lifting some years ago.

"Life is a drag to me, and I sometimes feel like giving up ever being a well woman; have become careless and unconcerned about everything. I am in bed now. I have had several doctors, but they did me but little good.

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been recommended to me by a friend, and I have made up my mind to give it a fair trial.

"I write this letter with the hope of hearing from you in regard to my case."—MRS. S. J. WATSON, Hampton, Va.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I feel it my duty to acknowledge to you the benefit that your advice and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have done for me.

"I had been suffering with female troubles for some time, could walk but a short distance, had terrible bearing down pains in lower part of my bowels, backache, and pain in ovary. I used your medicine for four months and was so much better that I could walk three times the distance that I could before.

"I am to-day in better health than I have been for more than two years, and I know it is all due to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"I recommend your advice and medicine to all women who suffer."—MRS. S. J. WATSON, Hampton, Va.

BRITISH QUEEN DEAD.

Victoria, the Aged Sovereign, Passed Away as the Result of a Paralytic Stroke.

KING EDWARD REIGNS IN HER STEAD.

A Last Loving Look and the Casket Containing the Remains Was Forever Closed to Human View.

From All Parts of the World There Are Pouring Into Osborne House Messages of Condolence—Remains Will Be Taken to London February 3.

Cowes, Isle of Wight, Jan. 23.—Queen Victoria is dead and Edward VII. reigns.

Around her were gathered almost every descendant of her line. Well within view of her dying eyes there hung a portrait of the prince consort. It was he who designed the room and every part of the castle. In scarcely audible words the white-haired bishop of Winchester prayed beside her as he had often prayed with his sovereign, for he was her chaplain at Windsor. With bowed heads the imperious ruler of the German empire and the man who is now king of England, the woman who has succeeded to the title of queen, the princes and princesses, and those of less than royal designation listened to the bishop's ceaseless prayer.

The queen had been ailing for several days and was confined to her room. Sunday she received a paralytic stroke, which confined her to bed, and Sunday night she lay in a comatose condition most of the time.

From all parts of the world there are still pouring into Cowes messages of condolence. They come from crowned heads, millionaires, tradesmen and paupers, and are variously addressed to the prince of Wales and the king of England.

London, Jan. 24.—King Edward received the privy council at 2 o'clock Wednesday. The councillors, who include the royal dukes and distinguished nobles of the kingdom, awaited the king in the throne room. The king entered an adjoining room, and then the duke of Devonshire, lord president of the council, went through the formality of acquainting the councillors that the queen was dead and that her son, the prince of Wales, succeeded her. The royal dukes, with the lords of the council, then repaired to the private apartment of the lord president.

The king then entered the council chamber and made a brief speech.

Immediately afterward the oath was administered to the king by the lord chancellor, and then the members of the council took the oath of allegiance to the new sovereign. After this they passed in turn before the king, kissed his hand and withdrew. This concluded the ceremony.

Cowes, Isle of Wight, Jan. 23.—So hampered have been the arrangements at Osborne that the body of Queen Victoria still lies in the bedroom where she died. The elaborate decorations necessary in turning the dining room in Osborne house into a chappelle ardente occupied so much time that, although the royal household waited hour after hour for the first private service, it was found impossible to hold this Thursday. All being well, however, the solemn function was performed Friday morning by the bishop of Winchester in the presence of King Edward, Emperor William and almost every other member of the royal family.

The coffin was brought to Osborne Thursday evening and was taken through the queens's private gate, which had not been previously used since her death. Emperor William was the first person to see it. The coffined body was transferred Friday morning to the dining room, now hung with deep purple. The dais is wreathed with the royal standard, and on each side are great candles. Madonnas by famous painters hang from the draped walls. In one corner magnificent wreaths from all parts of the world crush their blossoms one against the other. Among these the most beautiful are from Emperor William and Empress Augusta Victoria. Around the coffin chairs are arranged for the royal mourners.

London, Jan. 25.—The body of Queen Victoria will arrive in London on the morning of February 2 and be taken across the metropolis to Paddington. Troops will line the streets. The coffin will be placed on a gun carriage and draped with flags. On arriving at Paddington station it will be transferred to a train for Windsor, finally reaching St. George's chapel about noon, where a magnificent funeral service will take place.

It is understood that the progress of the body of Queen Victoria through London will be an imposing military pageant and that members of the houses of lords and commons will be invited to follow the procession. At the same time there seems to be some apprehension lest a change of decision should omit the London portion of the programme.

Dublin, Jan. 25.—The ceremony of proclaiming the new king in Dublin was highly interesting. Earl Cadogan, the lord lieutenant, privately proclaimed Edward VII. at a full meeting of the Irish privy council.

Cowes, Isle of Wight, Jan. 26.—The royal family Friday took their last loving look at the features of the dead queen. About 10 o'clock in the morning the shell was brought into the bedroom, where were waiting King Edward, Emperor William, the duke of Connaught, Sir James Reid and the royal ladies. The latter having retired, Sir James Reid with reverent hands, assisted by three trusted household servants, and in the presence of the king, the emperor and the duke, removed the body from the bed to the coffin. In death it was lovelier than in the closing days of life. Not a trace of the ravages of disease was visible.

The servants having retired, Queen Alexandra, the princess and the children were recalled, and with lingering steps and stifled sobs they passed slowly before the white-robed and peaceful figure. At the foot, never moving, stood the king, and when the mourning crowd had passed there remained only the son and grandson of the dead. Emperor William wept even more bitterly than the royal ladies. Finally he also retired, and the king was left alone. Sir James Reid, beckoning to the servants who were holding the coffin lid, asked the king's instructions.

For a few seconds the king stood speechless, stricken with emotion at the last farewell. Then he said quickly: "Close it finally. It must not be opened again."

Thus the remains of England's greatest ruler were forever closed from human view. Reverently the coffin was borne into the dining room. Officers and men from the royal yachts took their stand around the coffin, over which the king, queen and kaiser gently laid the robe of a knight of the garter, placing at the head a diamond crown.

KING EDWARD VII.
(Known for Many Years as the Prince of Wales.)

Beneath lay the royal ensign, while hanging above was the union jack. At the altar was the rector of Whippingham, who read a portion of the funeral service in the presence of the royal family.

Emperor William covered his face with his hands, and the grief of Princess Beatrice was pitiful. After the benediction each placed a wreath upon the coffin, and then all retired.

Ottawa, Ont., Jan. 24.—At a cabinet meeting on Wednesday the governor general and the ministers took the oath of allegiance. The chief justice of the supreme court administered the oath to the governor general, who in turn administered it to his ministers. The usual proclamations announcing Edward VII. king, and confirming the appointment of those in office, were issued. The day of the queen's funeral will be named as one of general mourning in Canada. The entrance to the parliament buildings will be draped in black.

London, Jan. 28.—Sunday throughout the kingdom all places of worship held services in memory of Queen Victoria. At St. Paul's cathedral there was an unusual scene. Before 9 o'clock in the morning an enormous crowd, wholly attired in black, streamed in all directions to the vast edifice, and by 10 o'clock it was packed. Thousands unable to obtain admission stood vainly waiting on the steps and around listening to the low organ strains and muffled peal. The service began at half past 10. Most Rev. Frederick Temple, primate and archbishop of Canterbury, preached a most touching sermon.

There was a similar scene at Westminster Abbey where all the services throughout the day were attended by enormous congregations. The large assemblage in the chapel royal at St. James palace included Princess Frederick of Hanover, Princess Francis of Teck, a host of titled people, many members of the cabinet and other distinguished persons.

All the Roman Catholic and foreign churches in England held special memorial services. The members of the French embassy attended the French church; and very elaborate services were held at the chapel of the Russian embassy by command of Emperor Nicholas.

Everywhere particular attention was paid in the musical portion of the service. At Lincoln's inn chapel Brahm's "Requiem" was performed.

The venerable William Medcomb Sinclair, archdeacon of London and canon of St. Paul's cathedral, preached a commemorative discourse at Canterbury cathedral.

Special services were preached in St. George's chapel at Windsor. Everywhere cathedrals and churches were draped and hung with mourning emblems. Telegrams from the colonies and from all the principal cities abroad where British subjects reside report memorial services. Sir Alfred Milner attended the service at the cathedral in Cape Town.

Lord Roberts and William St. John Brodrick, secretary of state for war, were present at the morning prayers in Whippingham church at 11 o'clock Sunday. An hour later King Edward, Queen Alexandra and all the royal personages not at Osborne arrived at the church for the memorial service. This was a simple function, the hymns being sung by an unsurpriced choir of school children. Sir Walter Parratt, private organist to the late queen and organist to St. George's chapel royal, Windsor, played several funeral excerpts.

The bishop of Winchester, who was the preacher for the occasion, delivered an elegant panegyric upon Victoria and declared that Emperor William's action in coming to her deathbed had touched the hearts of the British people and cemented the unity and friendship of the two kindred nations. At the conclusion of the service all stood during a performance of the "Dead March."

GREAT QUEEN'S LIFE.

She Was Born in Poverty—Ascension to the Throne of England—Her Marriage to Prince Albert.

The year 1817 was a memorable one in the history of England. Seldom had the prosperity of a country which had known no serious hitch or obstacle for a century been more seriously menaced; never were the destinies of a constitutional monarchy that had stood the storms of 800 years enveloped in a more forbidding gloom.

The death of the Princess Charlotte opened the succession to the throne to the youngest son of George III., and had inspired him with a desire to marry. The sons who had not already taken wives were the duke of York, who had children by the duchess of Cumberland, whose first living child was born till 1819.

Another brother was Edward, duke of Kent, then 51 years of age. He was not on terms of unbroken friendship with any of his brothers, doubtless he determined to marry.

Victoria, daughter of Duke Franz of Saxe-Coburg, at that time 32 years of age, had taken the duke's fancy. On July 11, 1818, the duke became the duke of Kent, the future mother of the future queen of England.

When the duke was informed by his consort that he had the prospect of an heir, it was his wish that the child should be born on English soil. The journey was attended with difficulty, for his paymaster was far from ready with cash. In the spring of 1819, however, the journey was made. The duke and duchess were installed at Kensington palace, then, as now, a place of residence for the members and principes of the royal family, and on May 24, 1819, "a pretty little princess, plump as a partridge, was born. She inherited with the blood of the child. He would dandle and caress her, and even hand her to the arms of admiring spectators, with the caution, "Take care of her, for she will be queen of England." His grace did not live to enjoy his parental happiness long.

It had been proposed that two members of the Tapp would die in the course of 1820. The duke believed the prophecy implicitly, but he applied it to his brothers. In this he had not long to wait. He had gone to the sheltered watering place of Sidmouth, in Devonshire, "a cheat," as he said, "the winter." One day he happened, when taking a walk, to get wet and contracted inflammation of the lungs supervened and carried him off.

"The poor widow found herself, owing to the duke's considerable debts, in a very embarrassing position at the time of his death. Her brother, Leopold, had left her to return to Kensington, where she applied herself to the best education of her child, Queen Victoria."

Six days after the death of the duke of Kent the prophecy above mentioned was completely fulfilled by the death of his father, George III., on January the 31st, the new sovereign, the prince regent, was proclaimed George IV. The health of the new king was previously in such a declining state. The duke of Clarence, next brother, died, under age. He had two daughters born during his time. Each of them had died in infancy, but further issue, though not probable, was still not an impossible contingency. The next in succession was the infant princess at Kensington palace. Every year as it passed by made it more apparent that if ever the life of the royal babe were spared upon her monarchy ultimately must devolve. As a matter of fact the prophetic boast of the duke of Kent was fulfilled earlier than might have been anticipated. The regent reigned ten years after his accession to the throne as George IV.; the duke of Clarence just seven years as William IV.

On August 20, 1830, King William, who had ascended the throne on the death of his brother, in 1820, gave a dinner party at Windsor on his birthday.

There was one toast which the king detested even more than his ministers—the mother of the princess, the duchess of Kent, who had not been sparing in her criticisms on the reception she had met from the royal family of England. The duchess had applied for a suit of apartments for her own use in Kensington palace, and had been refused by the king. She appropriated the rooms notwithstanding the denial.

When replying to a speech in which his health had been proposed, the king burst forth in a bitter tirade against the duchess.

"I trust in God," he exclaimed, "that I may have life and strength left to prevent the royal authority on my death to the personal exercise of that young lady sprouting up to the throne. I believe presumptive of the crown—and not in the hands of a person now near me who is surrounded by evil advisers, and who is herself incompetent to act with propriety in the situation in which she would be placed. I have no hesitation in saying that I have been insulted—grossly and continually insulted by that person, but I am determined to endure no longer a course of behavior so disrespectful to me."

The king particularly complained of the manner in which the princess had been prevented from attending at court by her mother.

"For the future," he said, "I shall insist and command that the princess do upon all occasions appear at my court, as it is her duty to do."

Having begun with an anathema the king ended with a benediction, speaking of the princess and her future reign in a tone of paternal interest and affection. The effect which followed his royal utterances produced was alarming. The queen looked in deep distress, the princess burst into tears, the duchess of Kent said not a word, but soon after leaving the room announced her immediate departure, and ordered her carriage.

There was but one event which his majesty lived to witness in the "God-forsaken realm." He devoutly prayed that he might live till the Princess Victoria was of age. His prayer was just granted, but only just.

It was not until she was 12 years old that the Princess Victoria was permitted to know the high destiny reserved for her, and even then the knowledge came in an almost accidental manner.

Meanwhile the future husband of the princess and her cousin was growing up in Germany. Prince Albert, the son of the duke of Coburg, was born at Rosenau in the August of the same year as Princess Victoria, and it is a curious coincidence, considering the future connection of the children, that Mme. Siechel, the accoucheuse who attended the duchess of Coburg at the birth of the young prince, had only three months before attended the duchess of Kent at the birth of the princess. "How pretty the little Maytlower," writes the grandmother both of Albert and Victoria, the dowager duchess of Coburg, to the duchess of Kent, "will be when I see it in a year's time. Siechel can, indeed, truthfully describe what a dear little love it is." The Maytlower above spoken of was, of course, the Princess Victoria. From a very early period the dowager duchess permitted herself to entertain the hope that her two grandchildren would there after become man and wife.

On February 25, 1831, when not quite 12 years of age, she attended her first drawing room. Lady Jersey writes the morning Mr. Greville made a scene with Lord Durham. She got up in a corner of the room and said: "Lord Durham, I hear that you have said things about me which are not true, and I desire that you call upon me to-morrow with a witness to hear my positive denial, and I hope that you will not repeat such things about me." She was in a fury, and he in a still greater. He muttered that he should never set foot in her house again, which she did not hear, and after delivering herself of her speech she flounced back again to her seat, magnificently proud of her courage. I arose out of her saying that she would make Lady Durham demand an audience of the queen to contradict the things which Lady Jersey said of her, and to clear Whig allies." These were days in which party spirit ran high, and penetrated the whole fabric of society in England. Within two or three years of this time Princess Victoria had taken her place in that society as the heiress to the English throne.

For national purposes the princess completed her majority on the 25th anniversary of her birth.

On June 2, nine days after the event had taken place, the king was desperately ill and died on June 20.

The king died at 2:20 on the morning of June 20, and the young queen met her council at Kensington palace at 11 a. m. the same day. After having received the two royal dukes, the two archbishops, the chancellor and the prime minister—Lord Melbourne—the proclamation was read to the council, the usual order passed, the doors were thrown open and the young queen entered.

Of the proceedings the clerk of the council wrote: "After she had read her speech and taken and signed the oath for the security of the Church of Scotland the privy councillors were sworn, the two royal dukes first by themselves, and as these two old men, her uncles, knelt before her, swearing allegiance and kissing her hand, I saw her blush up to the eyes, as I also felt the contrast between their civil and natural relations, and this was the only sign of emotion which she betrayed. Her manner to them was very graceful and engaging. She kissed them both as they rose from her chair and moved toward the duke of Sussex, who was furthest from her and too infirm to kneel. He seemed rather bewildered at the multitude of men who were sworn and who came, one after another, to kiss her hand, but she did not speak to anybody, nor did she make the slightest difference in her manner, or show any of her countenance to any individual of any rank, station or party. I particularly watched her when Lord Melbourne and the ministers and the duke of Wellington and Peel approached her. She went through the whole ceremony, occasionally looking at Melbourne for instruction when she had any doubt what to do, which hardly ever occurred, and with perfect calmness and self-possession, but at the same time with a graceful modesty and propriety particularly interesting and ingratiating."

On October 14, 1839—that is, four days after her lover had reached Windsor—the queen informed Lord Melbourne that she had made up her mind as to her marriage. On the 15th she wrote to Baron Stockmar:

"I do feel so guilty I know not how to begin my letter, but I think the news I will contain will be sufficient to insure your forgiveness. Albert has completely won my heart, and all was settled between us this morning. I feel certain he will make me very happy. I wish I could say I felt as certain of making him happy, but I shall do my best. Uncle Leopold must tell you all about the details, which I have not time to do."

The official and public announcement of the betrothal was not made either in Germany or England till the close of the year.

The prince arrived in England for his marriage on February 8, 1840. The marriage took place on February 10 in the chapel of St. James' palace. "Everything," writes Theodore Martin in his "Life of the Prince Consort," "had been wet, foggy and dismal, but the sun shone out to want the happy omen of that sunshine which came afterward to be proverbially known as 'queen's weather.' Soon after the return of the bridal party from the chapel the clouds passed off, the sun shone out with unusual brilliancy and the thousands who lined the roads from Buckingham palace to Windsor castle to see the sovereign and her husband as they passed were apt to estimate than those who had crowded the avenues to St. James' palace in the morning heedless of rain and cold, to see the bridal procession on its way to and from the chapel."

Notwithstanding the hearty efforts of the queen to identify herself with her subjects and to promote their welfare, three attempts have been made upon her life. An insane post boy, Edward Oxford, fired a pistol at her majesty as she was driving on Constitutional hill. The attack was repeated by one Francis with a similar weapon on nearly the same spot. The pistol ball passed under the carriage. About six months after this a hunchback named Bean similarly assayed the assassin's role, but was prevented from accomplishing his object by a boy, Dassett, who happened to be near.

CRAZY SNAKE CAPTURED.

He Is Held at Henrietta, I. T., Under a Strong Guard of Soldiers Under Lieut. Dixon.

Henrietta, I. T., Jan. 28.—Deputy Marshal Grant Johnson and Bunnie McIntosh, of Eufaula, two men noted for their bravery and daring in hazardous expeditions against outlaws, made a dash upon the encampment of Snake Indians near Eufaula Sunday and captured Chitto Harjo, Crazy Snake. After an exciting escape from the hostile Creek camp they managed to land their prisoner at this place Sunday evening and he is now held captive under a strong guard of soldiers under command of Lieut. Dixon.

The capture of the central figure of the uprising and the show of force which the troops will make will likely put an end to the threatened outbreak.

Lieut. Dixon and his troops will move out of this place upon the encampment of Snakes near Eufaula. It is not likely that a forced march will be made and it will be Tuesday before the Snakes stronghold is reached. Deprived of their leader, it is not thought probable that they will make any resistance, but will lay down their arms and yield to the inevitable.

EMPEROR HONORED.

William Received His Sword on His Appointment as British Field Marshal.

Cowes, Isle of Wight, Jan. 28.—Sunday morning Emperor William received from the hands of the duke of Connaught his sword on his appointment as a field marshal of the British army in the presence of the households of King Edward and the dead queen, as well as a number of British and German naval officers. His majesty expressed great delight at the appointment. He will entertain King Edward and the members of the royal family at tea on the imperial yacht Hohenzollern.

STATE ITEMS OF INTEREST.

THE TRIENNIAL CONCLAVE.

President McKinley Will Be Invited to Attend the Grand Encampment at Louisville.

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 24.—Mayor Charles P. Weaver, Postmaster T. H. Baker and Harry T. Jefferson started for Washington Wednesday night to carry to President McKinley a message from the executive committee of the 28th triennial conclave, Knights Templar, inviting him to attend the grand encampment session in Louisville August 27-30. The invitation is handsomely engrossed on vellum and signed by Chairman C. C. Vogt and Secretary Thomas C. Timberlake, of the executive committee.

The committee hopes for the acceptance of the invitation on the part of the president because the celebration falls at a period generally in a measure free from official duties and because President McKinley is a mason and a Knight Templar. The entrance of Mr. McKinley into masonic circles was surrounded by details that make it unusual. He was an officer of the federal army at the time and was stationed at Winchester, Va. One day while he was passing through a regimental hospital at Winchester he noticed a federal surgeon carefully attending to some of the confederate wounded and also that there was an exchange of favors between certain of the federal soldiers and their southern foes. When it was later explained to him by the surgeon that the men were brother masons, Maj. McKinley is said to have expressed a desire to join the order.

The records of Hiram Lodge No. 21, A. F. and A. M., of Winchester, Va., show that he took his first degree on May 1, 1865, and became a master mason on May 8. Only three men are now living who were present at the time. They are: W. R. Denny, of Nashville, Tenn., and George D. and G. S. Jenkins, of Winchester, Va. The president is a member of Canton commandery No. 38, of Ohio, Knights Templar, which he joined December 27, 1884.

IMPORTANT DECISION.

Court of Appeals Decides That Threats Do Not Constitute Self-Defense For Killing.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 26.—The court of appeals, in the case of Rudert, from Grayson, decided that to justify a killing in self-defense the danger to the slayer must be present then and there, and not a danger or a threat that is to take place in the future.

Rudert was told by the man he killed that he was going after a gun to kill Rudert. On this showing of facts the lower court gave an instruction of self-defense, under which dert goes free and can not be tried again, an appeal was taken to have the higher court to certify the law under such circumstances, which is done as above.

SPECIAL JUDGES.

They Must Try the Case Within 60 Days After Their Election, Says Court of Appeals.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 25.—In the case of C. Crane & Co. vs. W. M. Brooke, from Kenton county, which was heard and decided by Attorney J. L. Elliston, acting as special judge, the court of appeals Thursday held that where a special judge is elected to try a case he must do so within 60 days after his election or else be re-elected, unless both parties to the suit consent that he may serve, and reversed the judgment for a new trial. This ruling applies to courts having continuous sessions, like Kenton, Campbell, Fayette and Jefferson.

WORK OF BURGLARS.

They Cracked a Safe and Started a Very Destructive Fire in Franklin, Ky.

Franklin, Ky., Jan. 25.—A destructive fire occurred here Thursday morning on the east side of the public square, commencing in the two-story building occupied by J. P. McClothlin, and spread to the adjoining buildings, occupied by King & Lewis, dealers in drugs, and McLain & Greer, grocery men. The above buildings were destroyed and the adjoining buildings greatly damaged by smoke and water. The principal losses are as follows: J. H. Smith, building, $4,500, insured for $2,500; John Bottomly, building, $3,500, insured for $2,000; Mrs. Wilkerson, building, $2,000, insured for $1,100; King & Lewis, stock of drugs, $6,500, insured for $4,000; McClothlin, stock, $2,500, insured for $1,000; McLain & Greer, stock, $2,000, insured for $1,500; Dr. J. Jones, $1,000, no insurance; Walter Dillon, law office, $300, no insurance; Marion Webb, photograph gallery, $1,000, insured for $400, and office of Adams Express Co., $400.

Developments Thursday showed conclusively that the large safe in the McClothlin clothing house had been burglarized just before the fire and all cash, books and notes taken, resulting in an additional loss to him of $1,200.

ANOTHER TRAGEDY.

Guiled By His Opponent's Voice, He Fired and, It Is Alleged, Killed Chandler.

Williamsburg, Ky., Jan. 24.—Another tragedy has been enacted in this county in the killing of John Chandler at Pine Knot. Chandler, with Rhodile Phillips, a man named Young and several others, were in a "blind tiger" and quarreled. Chandler and friends retreated from the place, leaving Young and Phillips inside.

Threats to kill were made, and Phillips called to Chandler to know where he was. The latter replied with an oath that he was waiting for Phillips to appear. Phillips did so, armed with a Winchester, which, it is charged, he leveled at the spot from whence Chandler's voice came and fired, killing his man.

A fusillade followed, after which Phillips and Young fled to Tennessee. Both were indicted for murder.

STATE NEWS.

There is an abundance of coal, fine timber and stone here, besides other natural resources that would help support a railroad Oil has also been found in a number of wells in this and adjoining counties. Several prospectors are expected here in a few days.

Numerous county papers have been telling of the very old persons in their counties. Trimble has about as old a person as any county. Mrs Staples, who lives with her step-son and son-in-law. Mr. Staples, near Hickory grove, is 105 years old. While both deaf and nearly blind. she still converses and enjoys wonderful health.—Trimble Banner.

In an encounter with moonshiners on Elkhorn creek, on the line between Pike and Letcher counties, Deputy United States Marshal Thomas Holifield and Simon Combs were killed; Blaine Combs was captured and probably killed and Ambrose Amburgy wounded. This is said to be the full number of the posse, though another report gives the name of Rufus Amburgy as wounded.

A dispatch from Albany, Ky., says :—"Down on Indian creek, two miles from Seventy-six, and seven and one-half miles from Albany, there has been discovered a gold mine. An old miner of great experience in other gold fields got out some of the metal and had it assayed and it averaged from $60 to $333 a ton. The people of all classes are greatly excited over the prospect of a paying mine, and the value of real estate is already climbing. Several hands are at work digging and hauling ore to the river, two miles from the mine. They now have a car load ready for shipment. Should it prove to be gold in paying quantities this county would soon be on a boom such as was never dreamed of and na railroad would be built through this section.

On the banks of Six-mile creek, near the home of Mr. H. Roberts, stands a two story house that has a history. It was built of blue ash logs, all but one, about the year 1782, and, strange to relate, not a log is in the least decayed. It was built by James Roberts, Sr., grandfather of our countyman, James H. Roberts. In this house was held the first Masonic meeting not only in Henry county, but in this section of the State. There were Masons at this meeting from Lexington, Covington, Louisville, and, in fact, from all over the State. It is safe to say that it is the oldest house in the county. There are four other houses in the same neighborhood that were built soon after the one mentioned above and upon the same plan. One of this number was built by William Roberts, great-grandfather of J. H. Roberts, and he died at the advanced age of 115 years. These houses are truly monuments of pioneer days in Kentucky.—New Castle Local.

The New York Times suggests that the Senate, instead of risking a vote on Hanna's Subsidy Bill, talk it to death. It would be better to defeat it by the yeas and nays, but the Times evidently mistrusts the majority. This speaks badly for its opinion of its friends, as in the same connection it denounces the bill as "a private job of the most impudent sort" and a "complex and ingenious scheme for using public money for private ends." But are not most of the bills of the present Congress as they come from the committee amenable to similar objection?—C. J.

The official admission that "no less than 50,000" cases of leprosy are on record in the Philippine island will be, as the war department anticipated, a startling piece of information to the United States. It is doubtless the most pitiable and loathsome affliction that is visited upon the human race, and still worse is the fact that to date medical science has discovered no remedy either to alleviate materially its accompanying distress or to actually prevent its spread. The situation, therefore, is much graver than what the Americans were forced to face in Cuba when yellow fever made its apperance in the ranks of the army. Dreaded as this scourge is, it is still subject to cure and ultimate control. But the curse of leprosy remains an unrestrained agency of death by slow but sure stages. —Quincy Herald.

Wm. Davis, of near Muir, is going to convert piano boxes into sheds for his sheep. He says: I have about 150 ewes, and I propose to knock off a couple of planks from the front of each of the boxes, seal the crevices, line the boxes with tar paper and set them in the field. The boxes cost me 50 cents each and I find that they are much cheaper and just as serviceable as a shed or barn. They make really better shelters for the lambs than large barns, into which so many sheep would crowd."

Many of the farmers of Daviess county have finished burning tobacco beds and others are making active preparations to get the seed in the ground. The indications now are that a large crop of tobacco will be set in Daviess county and the present prices of tobacco will have a great tendency to increase the acreage of the next crop.

DYSPEPSIA

Caused by weak nerves or run-down condition of the nervous system, cannot be cured by the use of Pepsin, Mineral Waters, etc. If you have ever resorted to this treatment you must admit that the relief was temporary. Common sense teaches us that to cure Dyspepsia, a medicine must be used that will strengthen and build up the nervous system, and in so doing remove the cause of the digestive trouble.

Boulton's Ner-vi-ton

acts gently in relieving the cause of dyspepsia and at the same time builds up the entire system.

The man who says the days of the good old American Merino are past, is "reckoning without his host." There is a growing demand for good Merinos all over the country and world, and for high class stuff the range demand is growing really formidable. BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXVI. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 6, 1901. NO. 16.

The Indiana courts are making it very interesting for the vote sellers over there, quite a number having been disfranchised in the last few weeks for selling their votes at the last November election.

In Germany, when the vote of the jury stands six against six, a prisoner is acquitted. A vote of seven against five leaves the decision to the court, and on a vote of eight against four the prisoner is convicted.

Judge Cantwell, of Georgetown, is publicly announced as a candidate for United States Senator. It is no two to one proposition that he does not prove a considerable factor in the contest for the nomination.

In its efforts to supplant the Louisville Commercial as the Republican organ in Kentucky, the Louisville Post has stired up a first-class row in the Republican party. The Post will keep up trouble anywhere it can get any following.

The case of the Commonwealth vs. Henry E. Youtsey, charged with the murder of William Goebel, will commence in the Scott Circuit Court Tuesday.—Kentuckian-Citizen.

It has been understood in this part of the country for some time that Youtsey was tried and convicted of that offense some time since.

The Democratic primary to nominate candidates for county offices in Harrison is to be held Saturday March 16. The committee fiixed the assessment fees as follows: Sheriff and Clerk, $20 each; Representative, Attorney, Jailer, School Superintendent and Assessor, $10 each; Surveyor, Corner and Magistrate, $5 each; Constable $2.

With all due consideration for Col. Graddy the Recorder suggests that he gave his article a wrong headline. The headline should have been, "How the Democratic party left me." The Colonel is guilty of a grave indiscretion in his article, to-wit: accusing the Republican party of being only a trailer of the Democratic party in the matter of principles.

In this issue W. E. Vest is announced as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for county surveyor. When the term Mr. Vest is now serving expires, he will have been county surveyor for a period of nineteen years. He has made a pains-taking official and his field work is considered very correct, and his long experience makes him especially qualified for the office.

The largest seed distribution ever made at any time by the government began last week, and befort the spring planting time is over nearly 13,000,000 little packages of garden seeds will have been received by the farmers of every section of the country. The appropriation for the distribution was increased $40,000 by Congress at its last session making a total sum of $170,000 available for this purpose. Send name to your Congressman.

If all the people should be as productive of items as Mrs. Frakes, of Williamstown, newspaper men would have an easy time. Some two weeks ago a house belonging to her was set on fire and burned to the ground; a man fell into the cistern and was killed at the fire; next day her eldest daughter, who was fifteen, was married; Tuesday night her house in which she was living was fired by an incendiary and Friday night her son was married.

Hon Ben Stephens, who is announced in this issue as a candidate for County Judge, is too well known in this county to need any introduction. He has been prominent in county affairs for nearly forty years, and has been frequently called to responsible official position, and in every instance has he discharged, with fidelity, the trusts imposed in him. He is an old time Democrat, and one of the most congenial men in the county. If elected he will, as heretofore, meet without fear everyduty the position brings.

Editorial Paragraphs.

It was rather funny to see the administration recant so suddenly on the Venezuelan question when the "syndicate" brought its pull to bear against the trust.

o o o

Senator Towne's speech on the Filipinos was unanswerable in its facts and its logic. That was why the Republican Senators mostly left the chamber and refused to listen to it. They didn't want to be convinced.

o o o

There is little doubt that there will be a fight in the next Senate to exclude Senators elected by the four southern states in which negro suffrage is restricted. There will be none, however, to exclude Senators from northern states where uneducated and ignorant foreigners are not allowed to vote.

o o o

Cuba having repudiated the Spanish debt incurred for funds to use in conquering her, the lobby is now moving on Congress to adopt some resolution which will permit Cuba's foreign complications to be settled in the United States. If this goes through, the debt holders think they will get their money.

o o o

When the conference report on the army bill was presented to the House its adoption was forced without giving anyone a chance to see what had been agreed to. The Senate, however, refused tt act until it knew and the result was the discovery of deliberate alterations and introductions to which both Houses are bitterly opposed.

Will there be an extra session? Well, that's depends. If the subsidy bill fails, it is very likely that the President will discover that Cuban and Philippine matters demand that Congress meet again promptly. If the subsidy bill gets through, however, the chances are that all other legislation can be put off till next fall.

H. Clay Tucker, brother of George W. Tucker, of Dry Ridge, was adjudged by a jury of his peers on last Saturday in County Court to be demented, and was ordered sent to the asylum for the insane at Lakeland. Mr. Tucker was born and raised in Grant county, but more than twenty-five years ago moved to Colorado, where he has since resided leading the life of a prospector and miner, with indifferent success. He returned to his "native heath" some few weeks ago and his old friends and neighbors at once recognized the fact that he was not in his right mind. He seemed to suffer more from a lapse of memory than anything else. He grew worse until last Saturday, when the family and friends concluded it would be better to send him to the asylum, where he could have proper treatment.—Williamstown Courier.

John G. Carlisle, who was Secretary of the Treasury under President Cleveland, has been sued by an indignant cab driver for $2,000 damages. The cab driver alleges that Mr. Carlisle falsely caused his arrest and compelled him to remain in the Tombs prison for three weeks. The papers in the case were prepared some weeks ago, but owing to the difficulty of getting at Mr. Carlisle, he was not served until this week, and then the service was made by one of the plaintiff's attorneys, instead of by a regular process server. Well the cabman may possibly get a judgment, but we will wager a pair of square toed shoes to the cheapest box of blacking in town that Carlisle beats him on the excution.—Owen News.

Esq. J. C. Byland, of Walton, is announced this week as a candidate for Representative. It is altogether doubtful if there is a man in the county who is better equipped to occupy a seat in the State Legislature. He is a man of the people, warm-hearted and generous. He is quick to grasp an idea, and can see through a proposition as soon as stated, and should he be nominated and elected the county's interest will be in good hands. That he is a genuine Democrat goes without saying.

LIVE STOCK NOTES.

The medium sized hog is much preferred by lovers of pork.

Everything points to a good, prosperous year for the sheep and wool industries.

In 1894, the wool clip of the world was about 2,693,000,000 pounds while in 1900 it had fallen about one-half of one per cent. to 2,685,000,000 pounds.

In Germany and France they have given standards for service stallions. On examination by experts, all falling below the standard are ruled out of use as breeders.

In great Britain, where the climatic conditions and the habits of the people are more closely approximate to those of the United States than elsewhere, wool production has fallen off 5 per cent since 1891.

It should be kept in mind that it is just as easy and cheap to raise a good horse as it is a poor, worthless one, and in this connection to remember that blood tells. The stallion is the most important matter in this connection.

From this time on to farrowing brood sows should have plenty of cooling foods. Vegetables, clover hay, cut and mixed with bran and roots are excellent aiding digestion and contributing to general health as well as preparing for farrow and insuring health of the litter.

Now is the season of care and watchfulness to the sheep raiser, "the lambing season." He must neither eat nor sleep, as it were, but must be on the "go." Ewes should be kept in closed sheds on dry ground, well littered with clean straw, free of chaff, and if each ewe could be cut off to herself during the critical period, she would do that much better. Ewes should be provided with something green at all times, an early rye patch, etc.

The Warren Deposit Bank yesterday at Bowling Green filed suit against former Cashier Luther R. Porter and his bondsmen, to recover $20,060.

Adjt. Gen. Murray is preparing a bill for the next session of the Kentucky Legislature providing for a company of marines as this State's contribution to the naval reserve.

Mrs. Nancy G. Thomas, one of the oldest and wealthiest residents of Shelby county, died yesterday morning. She was the oldest member of the Christian church in Kentucky.

Deputy Marshal Hollifield says he was not making a raid on moonshiners at the time of the battle in Letcher county, but was endeavoring to arrest George Simons, who is wanted out West.

The residence of Judge James E. Cantrill at Georgetown war destroyed by fire with a considerable portion of its contents. The loss on the house is about $25,000. There was insurance of $12,000 on the residence and $3,000 on the furniture.

Threats do not constitute sufficient cause for killing another in self-defense, says the Court of Appeals, in case of Rudert, from Grayson. It decides that to justify a killing in self-defense the danger to the slayer must be present then and there, and not a danger or a threat that is to take place in the future. Rudert was told by the man he killed that he was going after a gun to kill Rudert. On this showing of facts the lower court gave an instruction of self-defense, under which Rudert was acquitted. Although Rudert is free, and cannot be again tried, an appeal was taken to have the higher court to certify the law under such circumstances, which is done as above.

Aguinaldo was rash to let Funston know he is still alive.—Philadelphia Ledger.

THE POULTRY YARD.

Never fasten the nests to the wall.

The nests are the harboring places for lice.

For soft shelled eggs give lime water.

It is the surplus food eaten that brings the profit.

Fowls thrive best in high, dry localities with a sandy soil.

Sand is not a good substitute for gravel.

When chickens are droopy or weak care is necessary to recuperate.

Oil the roosts and their supports with kerosene oil every two weeks.

Give the fowls all of the meat bones from the house, either crushed fine or burned.

One way of losing money is to keep a lot of cockerels long after they have ceased to make a profitable growth.

Under usual conditions a variety of food is better than any medicine that can be given.

The main thing in raising early broilers is to get them to weigh two pounds as soon as possible.

Light nutritious and easily digested food is what confined fowls require to do well.

No mites need be present when plenty of coal oil and carbolic acid are used.

Keep the dust bath always ready, use dry dirt or sifted ashes, add carbolated lime or insect powder.

Linseed meal can be given once a week at all seasons and its use will greatly lessen the amount of grain needed.

Every person keeping poultry should keep an accurate account of the expenditures as well as of the receipts.

Water enters largely into the composition of an egg and it is therefore necessary that they have plenty of it pure and clean.

Lining the inside of the poultry house with tarred paper will not only add to warmth but aid materially in keeping down lice.

Unless there is plenty of opportunity to procure lime readily a supply of crushed oysters shells and bone dust should be kept where the fowls can help themselves. They must have material from which to make egg shells, and keeping a supply of materials of this kind where they can help themselves is one of the best way of frunishing it.

O. M. B. Samuels, of Hoarce, while in our office one day last week, gave us a little insight into this novel plan of threshing corn fodder.

A few years ago Mr. Robbins asked Mr. Samuels if he could not bring over his thresher and thresh his corn for him. At first Mr. Samuels thought his neighbor jesting, but Mr. Robbins insisted he was not. He explained about seeing some of the product out in the northwest, and told how the threshing was done. Mr. Samuels was confident that if any one else could thresh fodder, so could he.

So he procured an old separator that had been cast aside as no good for wheat threshing, and about half of the teeth were taken out of the cylinder, and all the concaves taken out but one. Of course some rearrangement was necessary with the riddels, but these were the principal preparations made in the machine, and the traction engine was attached to it, and the machine made ready to work in Mr. Robbins barn yard. The fodder with the big ears was fed into the swiftly revolving cylinder, and in a moment a stream of nicely cleaned shelled corn began flowing out of the grain spout. The straw carrier now carried big bunches of shredded blade, husk and stock, and pieces of cob from a half inch to the inches long, but few, if any grains of corn.

The threshed fodder was run direct into the mow to be fed out the same as hay.—Greensburg (Ind.) New Era.

The Indiana Legislature refused to pass a bill making disfranchisement the penalty for buying a vote. The vote buyer and vote seller are not on an equal footing there.

A friend of Mr. Roosevelt's deprecates the wild and woolly stories set afloat by the newspapers concerning Teddy's hunting experiences. He says they will tend to make Roosevelt ridiculous. The friend need not worry about that. Mr. Roosevelt attended to that himself, long ago.—Omaha World-Herald.

Potatoes for Poultry.

Irish potatoes, fed sparingly to mature fowls, while not an ideal food, nevertheless furnish a good basis for a fattening ration, and will materially assist in keeping the fowls in a state of health. Chicks should not be fed on potatoes, unless it be in very limited amounts; neither should laying hens be given them, unless perhaps, the whole potatoes roasted or boiled, simply as a change of food.

When fed in any great amount they produce an overabundance of interior fat, which soon destroys the usefulness of hens as layers. Hens will eat and relish raw potatoes, and in the absence of grain food or vegetables they, in a measure, supply that one indispensable portion of a laying hen's diet.

Use common sense when feeding potatoes, and you will find them a very useful and cheap adjunct to the food which otherwise might be more expensive than the returns would justify.

GALLATIN COUNTY.

(From Warsaw Independent.)

There was a very pretty wedding solemnized in the office of the Independent Thursday afternoon, when Albert McCreary and Miss Mary Bladen, both of Ethridge, were joined together as husband and wife, Judge J. S. Brown tying the nuptial knot in a brief and impressive manner.

Frank Allen is establishing a broom factory on his farm below town, expecting to manufacture into brooms a large crop of broom corn which he raised on the farm last year. He received the machinery for the plant the first of the week and will go to work at once. As there is a trust among the broom makers and the price of brooms is at a fancy figure, there is every reason to believe that Mr. Allen's new enterprise will be a profitable and successful investment.

Monday, C. N. Cropper the horse buyer, of Louisville, was here and purchased a fine brown from Webb Beall for $125. Mr. Cropper purchases horses for the English government to be used in South Africa in their war with the Boers, but they use a much cheaper horse than he purchased of Mr. Beall. The English government use an inferior horse at present to that used by our government. Horses with blemishes are accepted by the English, while a horse that "Uncle Sam" accepts must be as sound as his dollar. Mr. Cropper is a former resident of Boone County.

The Cream

The heifer calf does not need fattening foods.

A cow that is abused will not do her best.

Fruit growing and dairying can be readily combined.

Good butter depends more on the maker than the cow.

The future dairy calf must be studied in its progenitors.

A dairy farmer is both a manufacturer and dealer.

It is the inferior butter that is the hardest to sell.

Feed each cow what she can consume to a good advantage.

Never mind the color of the cow, it is what she can do at the pail that is important.

There is no danger of being too nice in the management of the milk and butter.

The stomach is more than the body the product of the cow is the important thing.

It is not the cow that eats the most or the one that eats the least that is the best cow.

Wheather for dairy or beef the first year of a calf's life determines in a great degree its value for profit.

Skim milk and ground flax seed boiled to a jelly make a good substitute for new milk in feeding calves.

Even in feeding the dairy cows it should not be forgotten that a certain amount of bulky food is necessary.

One trouble in combining beef and butter is that the beef is ready for market before the butter cow is at her best.

As between two cows that convert the same properties of food into butter the cow that eats the most is the most valuable.

There are two lines of work possible for the farmer to follow which bring cash returns once or twice a week, these are dairying and poultry keeping.

In the basement of Quincy Market, Boston, Mass., are being prepared for shipment to one concern in Liverpool a quarter of a million chickens. The pile weighs 400 tons and is valued at $100,000. Forty refrigerator cars were required to bring this mass of poultry from the killing house in the middle West. For the shipment the chickens will be sorted and packed in wooden boxes holding a dozen each. New York Produce Review.

A bill will come before the legislature of Wisconsin providing for a special tax of $10 annually upon all unmarried men over thirty years of age. The bill will shortly be presented to the assembly by Assemblyman Christian Sarau, of Oshkosh.

The coronation of the four-year-old king of Uganda took place at Mengo with considerable ceremonial. A banquet for Europeans was served in English style, even to table napkins. Seats were provided for the missionaries. Twenty-eight bullocks and 128 goats and sheep were cooked to provide a feed for 15,000 natives.

The New York fire department has adopted a new life-saving net, consisting of a gas-pipe circular frame which opens and shuts like an old-fashioned purse. A canvas net, lined with wadding two inches thick, is attached to the frame by springs, which deaden the shock of a person jumping into it. In a recent trial a fireman jumped into it from a height of four stories and the shock was trifling.

Mrs. E. E. Holman, of Philadelphia, is a successful architect, but has managed her business in such a way that many of her clients who live at a distance are not aware that she is a woman architect. Mrs. Holman has designed all classes of buildings, and is proud of houses in every state in the union except Mississippi. The material is now en route for a building of her designing to be erected in the Island of Jamaica.

Chickens are now plucked in a wholesale manner by the use of pneumatic machinery. There is a receptacle in which the bird is placed after being killed, and into this are turned several cross currents of air from electrical fans revolving at the rate of 5,000 turns per minute. In the twinkling of an eye the bird is stripped of its feathers, even to the tiniest particle of down, and the machine is ready for another.

A ring bearer is now a prominent character in swagger weddings. Nervous bridegrooms often had so much trouble to produce the ring at the exact moment, keeping the ceremony waiting while they fumbled in every pocket, that some ingenious individual hit on the idea of intrusting the ring to some special official. So a small boy, clad in court costume, carries the important ring on a wide satin cushion and stands by the best man.

A considerable sum of money has recently been bequeathed by a Greek philanthropist of Corfu for the purposes of matrimonial lottery. Every year a certain number of poor girls, of good conduct, will receive tickets entitling them to a chance of winning a sum sufficient for a marriage portion. The committee entrusted with the administration of the legacy is presided over by the the archbishop of Corfu, and the winning number is published in the papers.

The London police nnmber 15,765. During the past year 81 were injured while stopping runaway horses, and 21 were hurt by vehicles while regulating the traffic. The property stolen in the 12 months was valued at $560,000, a sum less than has been recorded since 1890. There were 1,03 burglaries, against 1,872 in the previous year. The number of ex-convicts let loose from London during the year amounted to 681. The public left in licensed vehicles 17,000 umbrellas and 200 watches.

The queen regent of Spain, Maria Christina, will occupy Lord Salisbury's villa at Nice during the coming season. Her eldest daughter, the princess of the Asturias, will probably spend her honeymoon at the villa. The princess of the Asturias is of the pronounced Spanish type, very pleasing in appearance though not positively beautiful. She has received much more culture than is usual with Spanish girls of her age, and the queen regent has endeavored to interest her in athletics.

Some Boston capitalists propose to promote frog raising in the Bay State on a scale unprecedented in this country. An organization has recently been formed under the name of the Massachusetts Frog Co., and land has been purchased for carrying out the company's undertaking. Artificial ponds, varying in size and connected by a series of locks, are being made for conducting the system of cultivation. They will be lined with cement, and the smallest of them will be 10 feet long and 3 feet in width.

ATTEMPTED BLACKMAIL.

Prominent Attorney of Cincinnati Threatened With Exposure of His Private Affairs.

Cincinnati, Feb. 1.—Shortly before 9 o'clock Thursday morning Frederick Horman, his wife, Dr. Ada Sheehan Horman, and his stepson, Clyde Sheehan, were arrested on the charge of attempting to blackmail Howard Douglass for $7,000.

The charges against the Hormans and young Sheehan are based on letters which have been coming to Mr. Douglass and their physician, Dr. C. D. Crank, in the past four or five weeks. These letters were filed with references to the private business and domestic affairs of Mr. Douglass, and threatened that unless Mr. Douglass paid $7,000 all the secrets would be scattered broadcast among the clients of Mr. Douglass and the community.

The first letters specified $1,000 as the price of silence, but the amount gradually increased as Mr. Douglas paid no attention to the communications. His first impression was that they were the work of some crank, but, as they became persistent, he placed the matter in the hands of Postoffice Inspector Holmes.

All the letters bore the signature, "A Fellow Sinner," and were mailed from various places in the city.

Horman is a member of the same Pythian lodge, and in every way had the confidence of Mr. Douglass, being trusted even to the drawing of checks. He is near 60 years of age.

Mr. Horman had been his private secretary for 25 years, and Mr. Douglass felt he could trust him with his life.

Inspector Holmes marked a package of stamps which were taken to the office of Mr. Douglass and put in a box that was in custody of Horman. The next blackmail letter that Mr. Douglass received bore one of these stamps. The letters were all written in a feminine hand, and this confirmed the suspicion that Horman's wife was the writer. All letters after that had the same tell-tale stamps.

OPERA HOUSE BURNED.

Principal Theater in Kansas City in Ruins—Loss Aggregates Between $125,000 and $150,000.

Kansas City, Mo., Feb. 1.—Fire late Thursday night destroyed the Coates opera house, the principal theater of Kansas City, situated at Tenth street and Broadway and occupying a detached building. Walker Whiteside and his company playing "Heart and Sword," had just concluded the evening performance when some of the actors discovered that the building was on fire, the flames enveloping the whole rear of the theater in a few moments. The company lost their wardrobes and scenery, being obliged to flee from their dressing rooms. The firemen, powerless to check the flames, directed their main effort to the Coates house, diagonally across the street, and the largest hotel in the city. The hotel escaped damage. Wind blew great showers of cinders upon the hotel, the guests were notified of their danger and some left the house.

At 12:15 the theatre block was a wreck. No one was injured. The building was valued at between $125,000 and $150,000, but was insured for much less. It was one of the oldest and best known theatres in the west.

DUKE HENRY.

The Future Husband of Queen Wilhelmina Made His Formal Entry Into the Dutch Capital.

The Hague, Feb. 1.—Duke Henry of Mecklenburg Schwerin, whom Queen Wilhelmina will marry, made his formal entry into the capital at 8 o'clock Thursday evening wearing the uniform of a Dutch general and Dutch decorations. He was received at the railway station by a guard of honor and with great ceremony.

The premier welcomed him on behalf of the cabinet as "the betrothed of our beloved queen and a Dutch subject."

The duke drove in one of the state carriages to the palace, where Queen Wilhelmina visited him in the vestibule. In thanking the various officials who welcomed him he spoke the Dutch language.

Enormous crowds displayed the wildest enthusiasm, and the troops were scarcely able to control the people who massed around the palace where another guard of honor was drawn up.

The palace was beautifully decorated with flowers.

National Monument to Verdi.

Rome, Feb. 1.—The Italian senate Thursday passed a bill declaring the house in which the late Giuseppe Verdi, the celebrated composer was born, a national monument, and authorizing the interment of the remains of Verdi and his wife at the institution for old musicians, founded by Verdi in Milan.

The Pope's Condolence.

Eldorado Springs, Mo., Feb. 1.—Tommy Dillon, 5 years old, committed suicide at the home of his parents by hanging himself from an apple tree. No cause is known.

ARMY REORGANIZATION

Recruiting Stations Established at Principal Centers of Population.

The President Will Have to Appoint About Eighteen Hundred Officers to Meet the Requirements of the New Law.

Washington, Feb. 2.—There will be no delay at the war department in executing the army reorganization law. The reorganization scheme engrossed almost the entire attention of the military authorities Friday, and the result will be officially promulgated in general orders as soon as the bill shall have been signed by the president. The matters which will receive the earliest attention are the appointments of the general and field officers and the recruitment of the ten additional regiments of infantry and cavalry authorized by the bill. Recruiting stations have been established at all the principal centers of population, and all available officers in this country have been assigned to recruiting duty. There is an immediate demand for at least 5,000 recruits to meet deficiencies in the Philippines caused by the necessary discharge of the entire volunteer force by the 30th of June at the latest.

All the principal appointments provided for in the bill practically have been decided upon by the president. A list of these nominations has been made out at the war department and will be submitted to the senate without delay. It is confidently expected the appointments already agreed upon will be sent to the senate early in the week, possibly Monday. These appointments will include a lieutenant general, four major generals, nine brigadier generals and the colonels and other officers essential to the organization of the ten new regiments.

The impression prevails at the war department that Gen. Miles will undoubtedly receive the lieutenant generalcy, and that Gens. MacArthur, Wood, Wade and Young are most likely to be made major generals, although it is possible that Gen. Merriam will be made substitute for one of the four named. Among the officers mentioned as likely to receive commissions as brigadier generals are Gens. Bates, Wheaton, Chaffee, Schwan, Arnold, Rodgers and Wood (if the last named does not secure the higher rank).

Including line and staff, the president will have to appoint about 1,500 officers to meet the requirements of the new law. There is great pressure to secure these appointments, and the president will be exceedingly busy for some time to come in making his selections from among the almost countless applicants either for original appointments or promotions.

He was arrested as he was leaving the Chicago & Northwestern railway depot for his home, 801 Wolfram street. Upon being taken to the office of Charles Erich, chief transfer clerk under whom he was employed, Rosemann produced from a huge pocket on the inside of his coat a watch and several packages, which he confessed he had stolen. He was then taken to the Central police station and will be arraigned in the United States court.

Roseman is 29 years old, is married and has five children.

Toward night the wind died down somewhat, and as the temperature began to rise the snow was then turned into sleet.

GOV. NASH'S REASONS.

Why He Opposes the Saengerfest Association Prize Fight.

It Was Organized for the Purpose of Dodging the Law and Bringing Off a Contest Between Two Great Pugilists.

Columbus, O., Feb. 4.—Gov. Nash Sunday made the first public statement of his position with regard to the proposed Jeffries-Ruhlin fight at Cincinnati, and the grounds upon which his determination to prevent the fight taking place in Ohio is based. The statement is contained in a letter prepared and mailed Sunday afternoon in reply to a petition from the John C. Roth Packing Co. and 1,000 other citizens of Cincinnati protesting against interference with the fight.

Gov. Nash says in his letter that he fears the petitioners have been misled by erroneous legal advice. He quotes the law relating to prize fighting and boxing contests, and says:

"The proviso upon which you rely, reads as follows:

"'Provided that nothing in the foregoing shall apply to any public gymnasium, athletic club, or any of the exercises therein, if written permission for the specific purpose shall first have been obtained from the sheriff of the county; or, if the exercises or exhibition are held within the limits of a municipal corporation of the mayor of such corporation.'

"In my opinion, the proviso only covers exercises among the members of the club and exhibitions in which members only take part. Even if my interpretation is too strict, it does not authorize the bringing together of noted prize fighters and the offering of a large prize to the one who prevails over the other.

"Again, the Saengerfest Association Co. of Cincinnati, O., and the exhibition which it proposes to give, is not such an association and not such a contest as is contemplated by Section 5890. As I understand, the contest between Jeffries and Ruhlin was arranged for by a lawyer by the name of Witte, before the association even had a legal existence. It has no gymnasium or hall for athletic purposes, no distinct membership and none of the paraphernalia of an athletic club. It was organized simply for the purpose of dodging the law and bringing off a contest between two great fighters. The law can not and will not be trifled with in this manner. I earnestly ask you to look at the law as I have explained it, and I think you will conclude with me that you have been misled. As I have already said to you in a telegram, I am firmly convinced that this affair, if it comes off, will be a prize fight."

Stating his reasons for believing that the alleged glove contest is to be a prize fight, the governor refers to the moving picture contract which states that the profits to be derived from these pictures shall be divided equally between the association and fighter or fighters. Continuing, he says: "The winner of the contest is offered a larger prize, by thousands of dollars, than the loser. This will cause them to strike, not only skilful, but hard, blows. You say that your mayor and your splendid police force will be on hand and see that the law is not violated. You express confidence in the integrity and ability of the mayor, or the police commissioner and of your policemen. In this feeling I fully share. But I am confident that the affair will be beyond their control if they do their best."

"The fighters will be very earnest. The immense multitude of people gathered from distant states and cities, some of them at least not possessing the highest order of citizenship, will be terribly excited. Such men would brook no interference, they will have no control over themselves, your police will be overpowered, and your city will be visited with disgrace, which you will regret as long as you live. Such fearful risks must not be taken."

Cincinnati, Feb. 4.—There has been no change in the arrangements to give two glove contests at Saengerfest hall on February 15. Members of the Saengerfest Athletic club who were seen Sunday stated that they will be guided by the advice of their attorneys. The lawyers will again tell their clients that they have a perfect right, under section 6890, of the Revised Statutes of Ohio, to give glove contests under a permit from the mayor. This permit has been obtained and the promoters claim that they will go right along with preparations for the contests. The trial of Jeffries and Ruhlin before Squire Roehling on a charge that they are training for a prize fight was postponed Monday until next Monday at the request of the attorneys on both sides.

THE BODY LAID TO REST

Remains of the Late Queen of Great Britain Placed in the Mausoleum.

COFFIN CONVEYED ON A GUN CARRIAGE.

All the Royal Personages, Including Queen Alexandra and Princesses, Followed on Foot.

The Last Sad Rites Were Conducted By the Bishop of Winchester, the Dean of Windsor and the Choir.

London, Feb. 2.—Half a million of the late Queen Victoria's devoted subjects lining the shores of the Solent witnessed a majestic and awe-inspiring pageant and bade a last farewell to their beloved ruler. All who were witnesses of the function testify to the profound emotion it inspired and agree that the spectacle could not have been surpassed for splendor and solemn effect. The dominant note in the whole scene was its grand simplicity and so far as human utterance was concerned, for its silence. The sad procession gliding along in beautiful order and precision, as though moved by some hidden power. No incident of any kind occurred to mar its stately beauty. The weather was traditional "queen's weather." The "Queen of the Seas" was carried across the waters to the accompaniment of minute guns and military music—a picture which will live in history.

The millions of the metropolis Saturday rendered their even grander military tribute to the queen, who desired to be buried as a soldier's daughter. Thousands of troops marched into London Saturday morning to breakfast hurriedly, preparatory to taking their places on the line of march. With this peaceful military invasion was an equally large civilian invasion from the provinces and abroad.

It was next to impossible Friday evening to obtain a bedroom in any West End hotel, and until quite a late hour visitors were eagerly searching all along the route for windows and seats, held at exorbitant prices, to view the procession.

Crowds of people were standing in the early hours of the morning watching the army of workmen who were putting the final touches to the somber decorations and the other preparations. So great was the fear of a crush that a large body of police was ordered out.

The war office announces that the king wishes that flags should continue to fly at half mast until sunset Monday evening. All the officers and gentlemen who took part in Saturday's ceremony in London received orders to wear cloaks. This deprived the scene of a deal of expected brilliancy.

The ancient town of Windsor had undergone a great transformation, its usually quiet streets are thronged with visitors in a condition of subdued excitement. The decorations and preparations for the final scenes continue, but perhaps the strangest matter is the bewildering number of wreaths that continue to arrive from all over the world. These are so numerous that the authorities are quite at a loss to know how to deal with them, and again it has been necessary to exclude the public from the cloisters, which are already overflowing.

The final arrangements have been made at St. George's chapel royal. The purple-covered bier stands awaiting its royal burden. Four shields adorn its sides, each with a golden monogram, "V. R. I."

At Frogmore the cover of the great stone sarcophagus has been rolled away. When the queen's remains are laid beside those of the prince consort the stone will be replaced and finally sealed, a marble figure being placed above it.

The Daily Telegraph, commenting upon the ceremony, says: "In the annals of a thousand years and the records of our island dynasties there has been nothing to equal or approach the opening scene of the last progress of the mother of her people. The first stage has been traversed in the most regal and gracious burial that ever passed over English sea and land."

The Standard says: "The whole world is standing beside the open grave. We have arrived at a solemn and historic moment that will long be remembered in British annals. We need not go back to the sagas for the substance of romance.

"There was no less poetry and there was better and truer pathos in the picture painted on the Solent than any legendary painting of a dead king floating away to the sunset from his native haven."

The Morning Post, which regards Friday's marvelous scene as "emblematic of England's naval power," says:

"Assuredly that silent farewell of the dead queen must convince the nation of its duty. For the sight of the world have come to rest on us, and at times we are a little weary of the burden of did queen is lost and call to duty. If we be a nation of men worthy of her, we shall answer her silent appeal in our way."

All the other papers comment in a similar strain, with repeated reference to Emperor William's presence.

London, Feb. 4.—Never in the history of England was there such a magnificent demonstration in honor of a deceased ruler as occurred in London Saturday. The coffin was drawn by cream-colored horses. The pall was white and the uniforms of the troops and the gold trappings of the foreign sovereigns, princes and representatives forming a glittering medley, gave brilliant coloring to the scene.

St. George's chapel, where the last services took place, was magnificently decorated, but there was a noticeable absence of flowers and crepe. Soldiers, statesmen and court attaches made a brilliant assemblage, representing every country of the civilized world.

The body of the late Queen Victoria was protected by guardsmen in the Albert Memorial chapel at Windsor since it was deposited there Saturday. The officials of the royal household at Windsor castle visited the chapel Sunday, as well as a number of friends, and admired the great display of wreaths.

Services were held Sunday morning in St. George's chapel, attended by King Edward, Queen Alexandra, the duchess of Cornwall and York, Emperor William, Crown Prince Frederick William, the duke of Connaught, other relatives of the late queen, and 30 ladies and gentlemen of the royal household. The royal personages wore civilian clothing, the ladies wearing mourning veils. The only patches of color were the red coats of a few officers and the white surplices of the choir, the whole scene being in strong contrast with Saturday's brilliant display, for the body of the chapel was crowded by a congregation in black.

Monday the coffin, preceded by the bishop of Winchester and the dean of Windsor, was borne by non-commissioned officers of the guards from the Albert Memorial Chapel and placed on the gun carriage. A guard of honor of the queen's company of the grenadier guards, with the band of the regiment, was drawn up facing the chapel and presented arms. The procession moved off in the following order:

The queen's company, with arms reversed.

The governor and constable of Windsor castle, the duke of Argyll.

Highlanders and pipers, royal servants, band of the grenadier guards, the bishop of Winchester and the dean of Windsor, the lord chamberlain and the lord steward, the gun carriage, supported by the late queen's equerries and household.

Following the coffin walked King Edward, the duke of Connaught, Emperor William, the king of the Belgians, Prince Henry of Prussia, and all the royal personages, including Queen Alexandra and the princesses.

The route was through the Norman gateway, across the quadrangle, through the George IV. archway, down Long Walk, through the lodge and then from Long Walk to the mausoleum. The entire route from the George IV. archway to the gates of the mausoleum was lined with troops under the command of Col. Napier Miles, of the 1st life guards. The queen's pipers played from the gates to the mausoleum itself. On arriving there, the queen's company opened outward and formed in double rank on the steps of the mausoleum.

The choir met the funeral cortege on the steps.

The highlanders, pipers and servants on their arrival went straight in the mausoleum and took up the positions allotted to them.

Then the coffin was carried into the mausoleum, preceded by the choir and clergy. The members of the royal family on entering took places on each side of the sarcophagus, the royal household standing in the transept on each side.

The whole of the castle was kept clear. The ground from the George IV. archway to Long Walk gates were under the control of the lord steward and the office of works, which issued tickets of admission. The portion of Long Walk over which the procession moved was under the direction of the mayor of Windsor.

All concerned, including the mourners, walked. A large force of London police had been appointed to keep order and the spectacle was very impressive, bands playing funeral marches until the mausoleum was reached.

After that the ceremony was private, as there was only room for the mourners and clergy. The choir sang Sir Arthur Sullivan's anthem, "Yea, Though I Walk," the hymn, "Sleep Thy Last Sleep," and Tennyson's "The Face of Death is Turned Towards the Sun of Light," set to music by Sir Walter Parratt.

The duke of Connaught, the crown prince of Sweden and Norway, Duke Robert of Wurtemburg, the prince of Hohenzollern, the prince of Hohenlohe-Langenburg, Prince Arnulf of Bavaria, Prince John of Saxony, and other dignitaries left for their homes Monday.

It is understood that Emperor William will remain for the reading of Queen Victoria's will, which is in her own handwriting, and is a most voluminous document, including every detail of the funeral pageantry, as she seems to have anticipated she would die at Osborne house.

The latter will then go direct to Cronburg to pay his mother, Empress Frederick, a visit on account of the ceremonies.

PLEA FOR FILIPINOS.

Senator Towne Arraigns the Republican Administration.

Minnesota Statesman Presents Strong Arguments in Favor of Philippine Independence—Our Nation's Peril.

In the senate on Monday, January 28, Senator Towne, of Minnesota, created quite a sensation by an eloquent speech in behalf of Philippine independence. His efforts were applauded by both sides and his speech was recognized as a notable oration.

While discussing events which led the United States forces to the Philippines, Senator Towne referred with particularity to the charge that Aguinaldo had sold his country to the Spaniards for a bribe. He declared the accusation was "gratuitous in its calumny, when we consider that the official publications of our own government contradict and destroy it."

The senator declared that "we were in alliance with the Filipinos, an alliance sought by ourselves, availed of by us for our own advantage and finally to our everlasting shame in the estimation of honorable men repudiated by us when we found it no longer necessary and when lust of empire had so blunted our moral sensibilities that we could mount from an act of perfidy to the grand larceny of a nation."

Referring to Admiral Dewey's denial that he had ever treated the insurgents as allies, Mr. Towne said sarcastically: "I fear the honest sailor's terminology has suffered from recent contact with the nice discriminations of administration diplomacy."

Acquisition of the Philippines.

Discussing the acquisition of the Philippines, Senator Towne said:

"It is not easy to fix with accuracy the time when the design was formed to take forcible possession of the Philippine Islands, nor to ascertain the mind in whose gloomy recesses this enterprise of sacrilege and violence first gathered form and pressure. There has indeed been evidenced a disposition by its more illustrious sponsors as if their prophetic souls already trembled at the inquisition of after ages to impute the dubious responsibility to Providence itself. I know not which to admire the more, whether the modesty which disclaims credit for the policy, or the colossal presumption which challenges and betrays the vaunted confidence of the Almighty.

"No man, no party, no nation can escape accountability for actions by attributing their origin to any other source than human motives and human judgment. The policy of the administration toward the Philippines must be justified, if ever justified at all, in the forum of the reason and the conscience of mankind."

Senator Towne declared that upon the arrival of Gen. Merritt at Manila "a distinct change of tone was observable" between the United States officials and the Filipinos, the altered attitude being so marked as to force the conclusion "that part of Gen. Merritt's prearranged task was to maneuver out of an awkward friendliness with Aguinaldo and thus to reach a footing for the convenient development of some secret policy with which he had come fresh-freighted from Washington."

If there was doubt of the prearrangement of the plan it was banished, in Senator Towne's opinion, by the president himself. The third article of the protocol with Spain reads:

"The United States will occupy and hold the city, bay and harbor of Manila pending the conclusion of a treaty of peace which shall determine the control, disposition and government of the Philippines."

The Republic at a Crisis.

Yet, despite that definite provision the president, the senator urged, issued on December 21, 1898, his famous "benevolent assimilation proclamation." He continued:

"Thus the dilemma is this: Either that article of the protocol does not mean what it says or the president of the United States in causing the issuance of the proclamation to which I have referred broke the plighted faith of this government. It is not agreeable to me to use this language, but I reverently believe that the republic is at the gravest crisis of its history, and I feel that a necessary preliminary to its getting safely out is to cause the people to realize how it came to get in."

Senator Towne said of the president's proclamation that "among the roses of its soft rhetoric of love, its fair speech about our coming 'not as invaders or conquerors, but as friends,' of the 'mild sway of justice' and of 'benevolent assimilation,' the already justly awakened distrust of the Filipinos clearly beheld the unsheathed and glittering steel of despotism."

"If we are bent on slaughter," said he, "let it be in open guise. If we lust for this people's land, let us not gloss our enterprise with false and sinister pretense. Rather let us openly raise the somber flag of international piracy, whistle scrupulously down the wind and then close in on our feeble victim to the cry of 'loot and glory!'"

Would Grant Independence.

Senator Towne maintained that the United States was under the obligation of circumstances, if not, indeed, of actual promise, to grant independence to the Filipinos, and that among nations the former was quite as binding as the latter.

Senator Towne then argued at length in support of his contention that the Filipinos were perfectly capable of governing themselves, pointing out that nine-tenths of the population of Luzon can read and write, and holding that the government established by Aguinaldo was strong, symmetrical and progressive, even in the difficult and disturbing conditions which surrounded it. He declared that the Filipino utterance "would cred the world almost any emergency of administration in even the most advanced government and would have dignified and ornamented the early struggling for nationality of any people known to history."

Slight Foothold of Americans.

Continuing, he said:

"There is not the slightest ground for believing that any appreciable impression has been made upon the determination of the Philippine people to resist us to the end. There is no evidence that any strong native pro-American element has any existence whatever. As the result of two years of wasting war we occupy about one-five-hundredth part of that archipelago. No district is really pacified. We hold the ground our troops stand on, practically nothing more.

"During the campaign of 1900 it was a favorite accusation against the opponents of the administration policy that they were keeping alive a smoldering 'rebellion' in the Philippines. The newspapers and magazines made much of this foolish argument, and in many a pulpit where the gospel of the bullet has supplanted the Christianity of the Bible, the pious anathema of prudent priesthood rose to Heaven on the wings of prayer."

Mr. Towne then declared that after the elections the resistance in the Philippines increased and that it had been announced in the senate within a week that 30,000 American soldiers would be needed in the islands for an indefinite period.

Policy of an Empire.

It was a habit of the defenders of the administration policy to sneer at the term "imperialism," he said, but it could not be sneered away.

"You can have imperialism without an emperor, just as the Romans found that they could have a more than royal master, though he did not wear the latest name of king," asserted Mr. Towne.

"The retention of the Philippines will commit us to the whole programme of empire. I do not wish to convey the impression that in my opinion the present policy will at one fell swoop convert this republic into an empire in fact. But I do say the seeds of empire herein this archipelago, at this time and favoring environment will and must bring them to their flower and fruit unless we make a seasonable prevention.

"God speed the day when the American people, whose annals blaze with records of unequaled heroism and who again and always, if some great cause demand it, would freely pay with life itself the price of its defense, shall have the moral courage to do their civic duty—a rarer thing than to face undaunted the cannon's mouth—and with their sovereign voice declare that this unholy war for greed and empire shall be stopped, and that no soldier of the United States shall ever again in all our history be sent to other lands to war on people fighting for their liberty."

HANNA'S SHIPPING BILL.

If a Vigorous and Honest Fight Is Made It Will Be Defeated.

Senator Hanna will, so it is said, insist that the senate shall hold continuous sessions for the consideration of the subsidy bill. As we said recently, this ought to have no terrors for the opponents of the measure. Rather it should encourage them, for it indicates that the friends of the measure now realize that it will be no easy matter to force the bill through the senate. The more one hears and reads about this bill the more outrageous does it appear. It has been amended many times in the hope that the more serious objections to it might be removed, but it has not been materially improved. It cannot be improved without destroying the interest in it of those men who are specially to be benefited by it. If it were made fair—that is, as fair as a subsidy bill can be—the Griscom-Rockefeller-Standard Oil crowd would not care whether it passed or not. Recently an amendment has been agreed to which provides that of the $9,000,000 subsidy not more than $2,000,000 shall be given in one year to vessels of between 20 and 21 knots, or over 21 knots' speed. In an article in the New York Evening Post the other day Mr. John DeWitt Warner cites the recent report of the commissioner of navigation as authority for the statement that the only American steamships that come within these classes are the New York, the Paris, the St. Paul and the St. Louis, all of the American line. More than that there is not one foreign steamer that might come in for a subsidy that has a speed of more than 18 knots, so none of these would be entitled to a share of the $2,000,000. Nor are any of the ships being built abroad for American capital of a speed in excess of 18 knots, and the commissioner of navigation shows that none of the vessels under construction for the foreign trade in our own shipyards has a speed in excess of 18 knots. And to make the case complete, Mr. Clyde, in his testimony before the house committee one year ago, in behalf of the subsidy scheme, said:

"We know from inquiries we have made as to what ships will be built if this bill is passed that all of the vessels contemplated will be vessels of moderate speed—none of them exceeding 17 knots."

It is perfectly clear, therefore, that under this amendment the four fast ships of the International Navigation company will draw from the treasury $2,000,000 a year, for there are no other ships that are guaranteed a minimum amount. From all this, Mr. Warner concludes as follows:

"Since the highest estimate by the Reform club or any other critic of the amount which these four ships could get under the bill as it originally stood was less than $2,000,000, Senator Frye ought to explain why the sum named was so liberally calculated, and how the amendments sent to limit the stupendous job, which, in behalf of its great passenger steamers, Mr. Griscom, through Senator Frye is pushing under the pretense that he is working in aid of American agricultural exports—of which, as is admitted on all hands, these ships can carry little if any."

It is high time we were hearing from some republican senators who really represent the people on this question. We have no doubt if a vigorous and honest fight is made against the bill it can be defeated.—Indianapolis News (ind.).

Republican editors are thanking their stars that Mr. Cleveland made that speech to the Holland society. It gave them a chance to say what they had been willing to say about the Hon. Benjamin Harrison.—Albany Argus.

It will be noticed things are now beginning to get ready to "thunder down the corridors" of the new century, the thunders in the corridors of the nineteenth century having subsided December 31.

Sheriff Fields immediately ordered deputies and made ready to resist them in every way possible. CANTRILL HOME BURNED.

Splendid Residence of the Georgetown Jurist Destroyed—Loss About $20,000.

Georgetown, Ky., Feb. 1.—The magnificent residence of Judge James C. Cantrill, of this city, was gutted by fire Thursday morning. Judge Cantrill was in Frankfort at the time and his family was away from home, the only occupant of the house, besides the servants, being Mrs. Cantrill's sister.

The flames caught from a defective flue. The fire department was greatly hampered because the water pipes were frozen.

The Cantrill home was one of the most magnificent in the city, and was situated on the corner of Chambers and Main streets. The flames spread to every part of the house, and the library of the judge, which was one of the best in the state, was entirely lost. The house was modeled after the old Colonial style.

Mrs. Cantrill's sister was rescued with difficulty, and was taken to the residence of Mrs. McMicken, across the street.

The loss on the house is estimated at $20,000, with an insurance of $12,000. The loss on the furniture is $3,000, half of which was saved. The house is a complete loss.

FLORENCE.—Your humble servant will endeavor to write a few lines, but must ask your leniency, on account of disability of right arm to perform its duty, caused by shaking hands with candidates. We will not say a word about what effect the cigar smoke has on the brain, for Dad Clore is wintering fine, he takes his seat at J. G. Oelsner's store of a morning and every few minutes a candidate appears and then a smoke of course, the best cigar in the house. Now would be a good time for enterprising men to start a cigar factory here, as Dad Clore advised Oelsner to lay in 56,000 cigars for this canvass.

Health of community very poor. Nearly every other family has sickness in it, and for several days past there was not a doctor in town able to attend a patient, as Dr. Sayre and wife, Dr. B. A. Dulaney and wife were all sick in bed, and Dr. Will Corey was not able to leave his office.

As everything is going into the trusts now days, we think there will be a trust on garden produce this season, from the amount that has been raised the past week by John Buckner, John White and Henry Oelsner. We have always found the winter crops to be far superior to the summer crop.

On Monday morning, after religious services had been held on Sunday night at one of the churches, there was a walking cain found right close to the pulpit by Mr. Whitson, and, strange to say, one J. R. Whitson claimed it. Oh, what is it a candidate will not resort to? The debatable question is now did Whitson attend religious service or did some one take his cane there to make the people believe he was there?

Lost, strayed or stolen from the town of Florence—one J. R. Whitson. The last seen of him he was headed for Gunpowder with a lot of turkey wings, giving them to each and every lady in the community. We have heard of candidates electioneering with liquor, cigars and money, but never heard before of turkey wings. Whit says if he gets the ladies on his side he is sure of election. He is going to advertise in the want column for 4,000 voters on the 6th day of April. Any information in regard to him will be thankfully received by the citizens of Florence.

Now that the Covington and Erlanger electric road is an assured fact, the people of Florence and the Directors of the Fair Board should have a meeting and arrange a conference with the Directors of the road and point out the advantages it would be to the road to run on to Florence. All the officers of the road were elected last Thursday, and, now they are in working condition, and they have purchased the right of way through Erlanger—papers all signed and that throws the road up to this edge of Erlanger, consequently there would only be over a mile more of road to build, and greatly to the advantage of the road, for in coming to Florence they will catch a great deal of travel that now goes to Richwood and goes down on the Q. & C.; besides we feel confident that the 1½ miles will be as good paying 1½ miles as are on the road.

MIDWAY.—Miss Anna Wolfe's school will close this week with a nice little exhibition given by her pupils, and a tempting treat by their teacher.

William Snow has moved onto the farm of Joe W. Cleek, where he intends to cultivate a large crop of tobacco this year.

Dr. E. J. Ryle reports much sickness in his vicinity, but happily none of a serious type, most cases are the terrible grippe and its unpleasant accompaniments.

Uncle Jeems Newcom, one of the best rock breakers in the county, has moved to Gallatin county, as three pikes are managed by the county, and one can generally find a job on the road.

W. C. Johnson, at his millyard near the Springs, is engaged sawing lumber for Silas Lankins with which he intends to build him a pretty little home on his triangular property at the Springs before the 1st of March.

Last Sunday was a genuine winter day, with a full variety of weather usually found in this climate, such as snow, hail, sleet, rain, thunder and lightning and a glimpse of sunshine, all mingled in one very unpleasant day.

Mr. F. D. Grubbs, house carpenter of Beaver, is negotiating with Mr. C. C. Sleet for the building of Mr. Sleet's new house, which he intends to erect at an early date, on the foundation off of which two fine buildings have recently burned.

If the old groundhog sign is true, and thorough historical research fails to establish any valid reason for doubting it, we are yet to endure six weeks of winter weather, as his prophetic hogship certainly gazed upon his shadow, Saturday, if he emerged from his cozy lair.

Mr. T. Jake Hughes, our clever telephone magnate is arranging to build a line from Napoleon, Gallatin county to connect with his system at Berkshire, near the county line, which, when built, will afford admirable telephonic facilities between old Boone and Gallatin counties.

The past week has been especially favorable for the candidates to meet the dear voters in great gangs at the country groceries, and they have taken advantage of the opportunity excessively, as the sheckels in the tills of the grocerymen will attest, they have done the voters favors in cigars frequently, all of which the unsophisticated ballot dispenser is exceedingly fond.

The scarcity and high price of meat in the city has stimulated the rabbit market to the extent that the men and boys, with dogs and guns, gave the toothsome little varmints their vigorous attention, last week, and the number killed and shipped is simply tremendous. If there is a rabbit left for future reference in the Beaver precinct his whereabouts is elaborately unknown to our keen-eyed, sure-shot sportsmen.

BELLEVUE—Born, on the 31st of last month, to Lewis Merrick and wife, a boy.

Sunday, the 10th inst., Eld. Hays will preach at the Christian church.

Lum Popham has a jar of maple molasses to treat his favorite candidates on.

Gilly Welsickle sold his entire crop of tobacco for 7c around. Who beat it?

Miss Katie Craig's school closed here last Friday. Miss Katie has the respect of both the pupils and patrons.

We hope to poll every Democratic vote in this precinct on the 6th of April and hope our neighbors will do same.

G. T. Roe will move on the farm of Mrs. Mary Rice, now occupied by her son, W. S. We are glad to have Tony so near us.

We are informed that W. S. Rice will soon dispose of his personal effects, and with family will move to North Manchester, Ind.

W. B. Arnold was in Louisville, last week, on the tobacco market with six hhds. of tobacco. We did not learn the price realized.

James M. Setters, candidate for Assessor, had the crowd, last Saturday at the sale all to himself, and he made good use of the opportunity.

What has become of our old friend, T. J. Adams? We have not seen or heard from him since the campaign began. I suppose he is waiting to come in on the home stretch.

M. F. Wingate passed through Saturday evening about 7 o'clock, enroute home from the south end of the county, in the snow storm. He seemed to think the snow storm a luxury.

A fair crowd attended the sale of Henry Hunt's personal effects, Saturday, which brought good prices. Mrs. Mary Craven purchased the family nag, with which she will surely be pleased.

Wm. Slayback will move on Jack Walton's farm, in the house vacated by Henry Hunt. Charlie Slayback will move on J. J. Lillard's farm, in the house now occupied by Oscar Beemon, and Vester Fleek has moved to J. M. Henderson's house, and there are many other changes yet to make.

Albert H. Snyder's school at Locust Grove closed last Friday. This was his first attempt at teaching, and he made a flattering success of it. Mr. Editor, you and I have have had some acquaintance with the dear old school house that particular place.

IDLEWILD—Mrs. John Cropper is sick with lagrippe.

Most everyone put up ice during the recent cold snap.

The farmer who has sheep has business at home just now.

Ground-hog day promises us six weeks more of winter.

The jingle of the sleigh bell is making music in the air just now.

Jimmie Clore has been quite sick at his new home in Rushville, Ind.

This is fine weather for the wheat, but bad for the young lambs and fowls.

We called upon Mr. Will Riley, Friday afternoon, and were glad to find him improving.

Tom Randall gave his friends a party Friday night, which was up to date from start to finish.

Rev. Sproils preached an interesting sermon at Bullittsburg, Sunday, where he will likely take pastoral charge.

Miss Alice, daughter of Geo. R. Berkshire, of Petersburg, was a pleasant visitor at T. G. Willis' from Friday to Monday.

Felix Gaines will attend Commercial College in Cincinnati to fit himself for a business man. He has our very best wishes for his success.

The Cooking Club rounded up its first year at Geo. Kreylich's, Thursday in fine style, with a large attendance of members and visitors who enjoyed the day immensely.

The cattle grazers of this neighborhood will be more cautious in making their purchases this season than usual, on account of the disasterous year they have just experienced.

A very pleasant party took dinner with Mr. and Mrs. James T. Gaines, Sunday, including your humble correspondent, who was led to coincide with a former writer in these columns in his praise of the host and hostess and their fair daughter as entertainers and their home as a pleasant place to visit.

The writer attended church at Bullittsburg, Sunday, in a sleigh drawn by what he considered a safe mule, somewhat advanced in years, and, on the way home, the mule became frightened at the bells and ran off, and but for a timely spring from the sleigh just as his mulership was about to make a short turn into the barnyard gate, might have been dashed to pieces. Fortunately nothing was hurt, but the spectacle that the driver presented, after picking himself up out of the mud and slush, was laughable. Luckily, there were no spectators. When he drives that mule again he will leave off the bells.

GASBURG.—Now is the winter of candidate's discontent.

Countless thousands of crows visited this place Sunday.

Our public school closes on the 18th. Attendance has been unusually good throughout the term.

The candidates all have pronounced cases of the grip that will likely grow more intense as the canvass proceeds.

Ethel, daughter of Robert and Kate Nixon, was severely burned on face and hands by falling against the heating stove.

Chas. Klepp's house came near burning a few nights ago. The fire commenced on the roof and had made considerable headway when discovered by neighbors.

On the first of last month, mine host of the Boone House, C. A. Fowler, placed a large ball made of tin foil in a glass jar and sealed it up, agreeing to give each purchaser of a cigar at his place of business between that time and 2 p. m. February 2d, a guess at the weight of the ball, the person guessing its weight or the nearest thereto to be given a box of 50 cigars. At the appointed hour, last Saturday the ball was taken out and weighed, its weight being just 5 pounds. The guesses, 187 in number, were taken out of the box in which they had been deposited, and the guess of five pounds and three ounces, made by B. B. Allphin, won the box of cigars, which was passed around among the large crowd present, and soon all were enjoying a good smoke as a result of Ben's luck. The smokers are now guessing at the number of beans and grains of corn in a jar at the Boone House.

At the April term, 1899, of the Boone Circuit Court, Robert Finnell, colored, was indicted, charged with placing an obstruction, an iron rail, on the track of the C. N. O. & T. P. railway, about one fourth of a mile south of Walton on the 13th day of the March preceding. Finnell had been employed on the road as a section hand, and being discharged, was out of humor with the section boss, and it is claimed that through spite he attempted to wreck a train, and had it not been for the discovery of the obstruction by the crew of the commuter, the north bound fast express that was running fifteen minutes behind time, would certainly have been wrecked, that evening and the loss of human life would have been appalling. At the April term, 1899, Finnell was indicted here but was in jail in Covington for some crime committed against the railroad, for which he was sent to the penitentiary at Frankfort. His time expired one day last week and he was at once arrested and brought here, and lodged in jail to await trial on the indictment pending in the Boone Circuit Court.

RELIGION A SOLACE.

Dr. Talmage Speaks Comforting Words for the Righteous.

Discourse for Those Whose Lives Have Many Anxieties—All Is Well for the Believer — Trust Thoroughly in God.

There is a great solace in this discourse of Dr. Talmage for those whose lives have many anxieties; text, Isaiah 3:10: "Say ye to the righteous that it shall be well with him."

Here is a promise for people who are all right, but who will come and get it? How many, or, rather, how few, people do you know who are all right? If it were asked of any assembly that those who were sinless should rise up, none would rise except imbeciles and religious cranks. An accident happened near 60 centuries ago that started the human race in the wrong way, and we have not got over it. We know a great many splendid men and splendid women, but they will tell you that they have not always done the right thing or thought the right thought. If it were any of your business, they could give you an inventory of frailties and mistakes and infelicities that would be astonishing. Here, then, you say, is a Bible promise that goes a-begging: "Say ye to the righteous that it shall be well with him."

It is my delightful work to-day to show you that all the sons and daughters of Adam and Eve may appropriate the benediction of my text if they will first do the right thing. Over there in the next street was a man who in great misfortune lost all he had and was positively beggared, but a letter comes from some European city where the land records are kept announcing to him that a great fortune is his. Now he is as opulent as he was pauperized. He doffs his rags and puts on respectable attire and moves into a home appropriate for a man of vast estate. His worldly circumstances were all wrong last year; they are all right this year. On the next street is a man who was from perfect health prostrated, and he seemed to be sick unto death, but a skillful physician took correct diagnosis of his disease and by prompt and vigorous treatment restored him to his former vigor. As to his health he was all wrong before; now he is all right. In these two ways I illustrate my theme.

By sin we have all been morally bankrupted. Christ the Lord from His infinite riches pays our debts and emparadises us in His mercy. From His richest wardrobe He puts on us the clean robe of His righteousness and gives us a palace in the heavens when we are ready to go up and take it. Now, as to our spiritual estate, we are all right. We were morally diseased, but Christ the physician, by a bath in the fountain of grace, cures us. Now, as to our spiritual health, we are all right. That is the way we come to the righteousness spoken of in the text. It is a contrimuted righteousness, a made-over righteousness, an imputed righteousness. The moment you get into right relations with Christ the Lord that moment you can appreciate the magnificent comfort of the text, and I defy you, in all this great book, from the first verse of the first chapter of Genesis to the last verse of the last chapter of Revelation, to find me a passage with higher and deeper and broader and longer comfort than that of the text, which is as deep as the Atlantic ocean half way between the continents and high as the sun when the clock is striking 12 at noon. But I shall be stamped with the oceanic tides of this subject unless the Lord help me to keep a foothold. "Say to the righteous that it shall be well with him."

Bear in mind that but few people can stand worldly success. Water is a good thing, but too much of it will drown. Fire is a good thing, but too much of it will destroy. Lightning is a good thing, but too much of it dazzles and blinds. Success is a good thing, but too much of it has overwhelmed many for this world and the next. If it were best for us, we would all be millionaires, live in palaces like the Alhambra and be as personally attractive as Cleopatra appeared to Antony. But most of us could not endure such superabundance, and it is absolutely necessary in order to keep them right that nine hundred and ninety-nine men out of one thousand should find life a struggle. It keeps them out of mischief. After Adam was ejected from the premises where by ten minutes of toilery the day he could keep the garden and dress it the best thing that could happen to him was compulsion to work and fight. The ground that bloomed with spontaneous flowers and rustled with harvests that owed nothing to plow or hoe became hoeable and brambie was substituted for rose, and the panther growled where before he fawned, and horn and fang and hoof became belligerent. The Edenic ejectment shows us as nothing else ever could that idleness or only a few minutes of employment a day are doom and overthrow. Put it down among your blessings instead of your misfortunes that you have to work hard with brain or hand or foot or all three of them.

How many men do you know worth $250,000 who are devout and consecrated and humble and generous and employing their means for the world's redemption? You could count them up on the fingers of your two hands, even if by accident or war you had lost one or two of your fingers. As to the realm of personal attractiveness, how many women radiant of countenance and graceful of form do you know who are unaffected and cultured in manner and deeply pious before God, using their beauty for the betterment of the world and not for selfish purposes? I only take the risk of asking the question and leave to you the risk of answering it. These things I say to show you that in order to have the promise of the text fulfilled in your case it is not necessary you have phenomenal worldly success.

Notice also that God gives the righteous the power to extract good out of evil and by a divine chemistry to change the bitter into the sweet and the harmful into the beneficial. The promise that it shall be well with you does not imply that you are to be free from trouble. There is no escape from that. We all have family relations, and some of them will be making exit from this world, so that bereavement is the universal inheritance. So also is financial loss. The difference between the prospered and those not prospered is the difference in the amount they can afford to lose. The more wealth a man has the more he can lose, but one man can afford to lose a million dollars where another man cannot afford to lose one dollar. On larger or smaller scale all suffer financial loss. Amid the rapidity of the revolutions of the wheel of national and international finance monetary perplexity is as common as day or night.

So also misinterpretation and slander came to all who live active lives. Our actions, thoroughly honest and above board, may come under suspicion. Every courtroom at every term of court hears illustrations of the delusion of what is called circumstantial evidence. Innocent men are fined or imprisoned or electrocuted because of an unfortunate conjunction of events. What is true in courtrooms is true in all circles of domestic or social or political or official life. You have been misunderstood and misrepresented or will be misunderstood and misrepresented. Then how can my text be true? My explanation is this: The man without any divine grace in his heart finds in these troubles irritation and unbelief and melancholia and despair. A Christian man finds in them submission and enlarged views and divine support and reconsecration. Bereavement to the worldling brings hard thoughts of God and a resistance so violent it dares not fully express itself. Bereavement brings to the Christian the thought of heavenly reunion and a more complete laying hold of God, and a more tender appreciation of the divine presence, and deeper gratitude that we were permitted to have the departed one so long, and a more lively sympathy for the sorrows of others and another evidence of God's love, for "whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth."

Financial loss, which I just now said is sure to come, never breaks up a man who has strong faith in God. In most cases it is a loss of surplus or it is the banishment of luxuries. Most of the wants of the prosperous classes are artificial wants. The late Mr. Armour of the $60,000,000 estate pointed to one of his clerks on ordinary salary and said: "That man has a better appetite than I, sleeps better nights and enjoys life more than I do." Oh, the gigantic miseries of those who have too much! A man in Solomon's time expressed as philosophic and reasonable a wish as any man of those times or of our times. His name was Agur, and he offered a prayer that he might never have a superabundance or a deficit, crying out: "Give me neither poverty nor riches." On the one side he had seen the awful struggle of the poor to get food and clothes and shelter and to educate their children, and on the other side he had seen the gouty foot and the indigestion and the insomnia, and the anxiety about large investments, and the threatened paresis often characteristic of those who are loaded up and loaded down with too many successes. Those people who are generally called the masses—that is, the most of folks—have the things absolutely necessary for their well being. They have no Murilloson their wall, nor a "Belshazzar's Feast" in the dining room, nor a pair of $3,000 sorrels at their doorway. But they have something which those superabundantly supplied seldom have. They have better health because, being compelled to walk, they get the necessary exercise, and their diet being limited to plan food, they do not suffer from midnight salads and are not victimized by rare caterers. They retire for wholesome sleep at the very hour in which others are leaving their homes for the dance or the card party. They will sleep the last sleep just as well in the plain graveyard as those who have over them an arch of sculptured granite in costliest necropolis or most historical abbey.

The reason so many people are miserable is because they do not let well enough alone. They are in one occupation and see its annoyances and so change to another occupation and find as many annoyances, if not more. They live in one place and know its uncomfortable environments and move into another place which has just as many limitations. Their investments yield them four per cent. and they sell out to make investments that will yield ten per cent. and lose all. Better settle down and stop fretting about yourself and the world.

Do any of us fully realize the fact that God gives us three things in unlimited supply, although no formula of prayer that I ever heard recognizes them—water, air and sunlight? Water by the gripeful. Water by the bilgeful. Water by the oceanful. Some for ablution, some for slaking of thirst, some for baptistery, some for fountains and aquariums. I never appreciated what a wonderful thing water is until last summer I stood by the fountains before and around the emperor's palace at Peterhof, Russia. I had been familiar with this wonderful element of nature from childhood, having been born on the banks of the beautiful Raritan and as a barefooted boy dabbled in the brook near my father's house. But I never realized until last summer what water could do in play, or in strange caprice, or beautification, or when climbing the ladder of the light, or when skillful workmen took hold of it to toss it, or whirl it, or shape it into crowns, or hoist it into columns, or spring it into arches, or lift it into stars, or turn it into crescents, or build it into temples. You forget you ever saw the less glorious waters at Chatsworth, England, or Versailles, France, as you stand in the balcony of the palace overlooking the Finland gulf, bewildered and transported as you look at the one display called the Golden Stairway fountain. The water rolls down over 24 steps one foot high and 20 feet long. All of these 24 steps are covered with sheets of burnished gold. Silver step of the water on stairs of gold! What a glee of liquids! Rolling, dashing, foaming, enrapturing splendors! Chorus of floods! Poetry of waters! Doxology of torrents! But that which most impressed me there and elsewhere is the abundance of water, the fact that there are so many waters that the continents can afford to throw them away into the sea, Hudsons and Ohios, Oregons and Amazons, Rhines and Danubes and Volgas, and so abundant that the earth can afford to have its oceans evaporate into the heavens, Mediterraneans and Atlantics and Pacifics. How rich the earth is with waters! Best beverage of all the nations, for after the richest banquet with the richest beverages everyone wants at least a sip of it—water, cool water, God descended water!

With still more abundance is the air distributed. An earth full of it. A sky full of it. Swiftest and strongest eagle cannot fly so high as not to have it in the nostril or under the wing. And what affluence of sunlight! No one but the infinite God could dispense so much of it. The golden candlestick set on the blue mantel of the heavens! So great that the Almighty is compared to it, the psalmist crying out: "The Lord God is a sun." It is high time that we recognize in our liturgies and in our formulas of prayer the three most abundant blessings of the universe which come to all.

Some scientists are now discussing the opening of communication between our earth and the planet Mars. Experiments are being made, but they will not succeed. We cannot build a fire large enough to attract the attention of that world or lift a lens powerful enough to see any response interstellar. We do not positively know that that world is occupied by living beings, or that if it is occupied communication with them would be desirable. It might not be so good a world as this, and thus communication with it would be confusing. But I rejoice to know that Heaven is in touch with other worlds, for their improvement and a depot for glorious arrivals. It is a thoroughfare between this world and that world and a coming and going perpetual. Going out of this world is as natural as coming into it, but the one is with pang and the other is with rapture if we are fitted for the uplifting process. It shall be well with you. Now, do not get so frightened about that asthma or that cough or that influenza or that threatened pneumonia. The worst thing that fatal disease can do is to usher you into coronation and enthronement. It shall be well with you. Take as good care of your health as you can, have all the sanitary laws, keep in this world as long as you are permitted to stay and then when the heavenly call comes be glad to go. I do not care much about what your "last words" are going to be. People put too much emphasis on "last words." I would rather know what your words are now, in days of health and with mental faculties in full play—your words of kindness, your words of sympathy, your words of helpfulness, your words of prayer. So live that if you do not say a word during the last day of your life there will be no doubt here about the place of your destination. You will go right into saintly, prophetic, evangelistic, apostolic, cherubic, seraphic, archangelic, deific presence.

It shall be well with you. Mother, you will go right up into the possession of the babe that the scarlet fever or croup took out of your arms, a sorrow that still stings you, and you often say she would now be so many years old if she had lived. You will go into the presence of the old folks, for I hope you are of Christian ancestry, and you will find that they have no dimness of sight or halting gait that requires a staff, for they have taken a draught from the fountain of perpetual youth that springs from under the throne of God. Oh, the blissful companionship of Heaven is which you shall enter! It shall be well with you. I ring this bell of emancipation and triumph. I like the way the sexton rings the bell of the old country meeting house. I used to stand and admire him pulling the rope of that bell. He rings it a good while, so that every farmhouse within five miles hears it. He may halt a moment to take breath and give the sweet sounds time to stir up all the echoes of the hills. And when he is old and not strong enough to pull the rope any more, then he sits and, listens while his own rings the church bell. So my text seems a bell of invitation and victory. I began to ring it in the opening of this discourse. I hope to ring it as long as I live, and may those who come after us keep on ringing it till those farthest off from God shall come into the great temple of Gospel comfort and all the weary put down their burdens at its altar and find that peace which the world can neither give nor take away. Three times more I ring it. It shall be well! It shall be well! It shall be well!

LUXURIOUS FOOTWEAR.

Slippers Garnished with Gold for the Ball Room, Boudoir or Carriage.

Gilt slippers twinkle on ballroom floors, but only the very dainty footed should wear them, for an amply planned pair of extremities, incased in gilded kid, gain in bulk and breadth. A refuge, and a worthy one, for those whose shoe number runs beyond three, is the black satin or silk slipper scintillating with tiny gold stars, and with these can be worn very captivating hose of black silk worked in gold threads up the instep. To even the ordinary black French kid or satin dancing shoe a high heel is given and the luxurious rose or blue quilted satin bedroom pantoufle is decorated with bullion fringe about the top, says the St. Louis Gobe-Democrat.

Another excuse for garnishing a slipper with gold is that of running a gold braid about the top of the delicate foot covering and tying it over the instep in a bow with tasseled ends. Very tapering of toe and lofty of heels are all the new evening shoes. For the nonce women have given up the use of delicate sueded and patent leather ties, and are finding novelty and satisfaction in slippers that are intricately strapped over the instep. The straps run up from a point low upon the toe and afford glimpses of the delicate openworked and embroidered hose. Properly shaped, the straps fulfill the double office of giving the foot an appearance of dainty slenderness and of holding the slippers close about the members it covers.

Pretty enough are the rose, white, green and black ooze skin slippers, stitched with gold threads in a series of lines converging at the toe, or in a scroll pattern of mingled gold and silver lines.

In Paris we hear, on the best authority, that mouse gray suede, satin, velvet slippers are esteemed above all others, so that very, very smart women are wearing exquisite little slippers made of finely cured mole and rat skin. The gray shod foot is considered far more harmonious with costumes of any and every color than the black or tan shoe, and many of these mole and rat skin slippers are finished over the instep with the head or complete body of a "wee bit mousele," whose eyes are diamonds. Gray silk hose that have the new satin finish accompany the quaint slippers, against which some women conceive a piquant pleasure in wearing on their toes the stuffed presentiment of the little beastie who, in the flesh, would make their blood run cold and their feet run fast.

WASHING HANDKERCHIEFS.

This Simple Matter Is of More Importance Than Is Generally Supposed.

The dainty bit of cambric that is carried more for show than for use is very harmless, but in the hands of one who is troubled with a cold or an influenza this dainty article may become charged with elements of infection. I think the prevalence of catarrh is due to the careless use of the handkerchief as much as to any other cause, says a writer in Home Magazine. One person may impart the trouble to other members of the family unless the handkerchiefs of the individual who is affected are kept to themselves and great care taken in their cleansing. They should never be thrown around carelessly, nor should they be put in with the general wash, for there is no better method of scattering tubercular germs. Nice handkerchiefs should never be too soiled to be washed by the owner in her own wash bowl. An easy way to cleanse them is to prepare a basin of warm soft water and add enough pearline to make a strong suds; wash between the hands in the suds, then rinse in water slightly blued. Dry by spreading smoothly over a clean window pane or mirror, then fold evenly and press in a large book. Handkerchiefs that have been used by one with a cold should be pinned under water in which several tablespoonfuls of kerosene have been poured and let them remain over night. The oil tends to whiten them and will not injure the fabric in the least, and there are few articles that possess the power of kerosene for purifying and cleansing. The next morning wash the handkerchiefs and unless they are badly soiled they will not need boiling. Rinse very carefully in warm water, then hang upon a line to dry in the open air. The odor of the oil soon evaporates from cotton or linen fabrics after they have been hung out and dried in the air and sun, and they are all the whiter and softer for their oil bath, and disinfection is sure.

The New Large Waist.

Small waists are going out of fashion. They are doomed soon to be quite extinct. Broad waists are hence forth to be the fashion, and in their turn to be sung in verse and prose. Doctors will rejoice at this, but the ladies? Well, let them think of the beautiful Josephine's waist and of the ever-acting quoted Venus of Medici's waist, and they will become reconciled to the new broad waist fashion that is or that is soon to be. This explains the present rage for the Josephine "boudoir gown," as ten gowns are now called. It is made of soft Indian cashmere, gathered on a silk yoke, formed like a bolero, and a soft Japanese scarf is tied round the waist as high as possible. Japanese silk "boudoir gowns" are also fashionable and lovely at the same time.—Washington Star.

Accordion Plaits Popular Again.

Accordion plaited skirts are in again, and all young girls should rejoice, it is so easy for them to achieve pretty party gowns with the plisse au soleil, as the French call it.—Ladies' Home Journal.

FEMININE LOVE OF JEWELS.

Women of All Countries and of All Ages Have Been Dazzled by Gems.

Women of all countries have an inherent love for precious stones, which are supposed to exercise some subtle magnetism upon their natures. Hence the latter-day craze for some mascotic jewel, a survival of medieval superstition. Upon impressionable people certain gems appear to wield a potent influence. Who has not listened to weird tales of some heirloom talisman which, when lost or stolen, presaged the ruin of a noble house? A person with a vivid imagination might even believe in the theory of the Pythagoreans, who formulated the doctrine that inanimate as well as animate things are endowed with souls. Certain evolutionists of today trace the origin of man back to stones, asserting that in their adamantine bosoms they contain the all-pervading essence of spirit, and that the spark emitted from their crystalline hearts is the revelation of the imprisoned soul within.

From time immemorial jewels have served as propitiary offerings at holy shrines, as tokens of amity from one crowned head to another, as mystic messengers of affection between distant friends, as pledges of constancy exchanged between plighted lovers. Men have bled and died, kingdoms have crumbled, families have been rent asunder, husband and wife parted over the disputed possession of some coveted jewel. Perhaps poor Marie Antoinette, of illustrated memory, might have kept her pretty head upon her shoulders had it not been for the unfortunate affair of the diamond necklace. Women in all ages have succumbed to the temptation of gems. Faust bartered his soul for the love of a woman; Marguerite sold hers for a gem-starred bauble.

Postman's Busy Seasons.

OVERCROWDED LONDON.

The English Metropolis Is Suffering from a Dearth of Houses—Rents Going Up.

At the present moment, writes Sir Walter Besant in the Century, those parts of East London inhabited by the workingmen of all kinds, from the respectable artisan in steady employment down to the casual hand and the children of the street, are suffering from the dearth of houses. There are not enough houses for the people; there are not enough single rooms for the families which would gladly occupy them, if they could. The rents of the lowest tenements are going up higher and higher. The working people compete with one another for rooms. The landlord has only to put up his house, or his rooms in his house, to the highest bidder. A room that used to be let for four shillings a week can now command six, while the fine, or the sum paid on taking the key, which was formerly a few shillings, now runs up to a pound or even two. The houseless used to be considered the very poorest. Among them now are families where the head is in good work. They are houseless because there are no houses for them. The vast increase of population has a good deal to do with this. For instance, the outlying suburb of East Ham, 20 years ago a mere hamlet with a few houses and an old church in the fields, now numbers 90,000 people, all of the working class, while its neighbor, West Ham, which 30 years ago consisted of two or three scattered hamlets, is now a great town of 270,000 people, all of the working class.

A New Invention.

One of the recent inventions tried on the British soldiers in South Africa is called "soldier beer." It is a jelly made from malt and hops, from which beer can be made anywhere and fermented. It is said to make excellent beer and to work equally well in hot or cold climates, the process being very simple, and the military authorities have reported favorably upon it.

FIFTY-SIXTH CONGRESS.

Second Session.

Washington, Jan. 30.—Senator Teller gave notice in the senate that he intended to keep the shipping bill to the front, even against appropriation bills, not yielding to them without a vote of the senate. It indicated a disposition on the part of the senate leaders to force to an early issue the question whether the shipping bill is going to pass at this session. Senator Turner (Wash.) spoke Tuesday in severe arraignment of the bill. The Indian appropriation bill was passed early in the day.

House—The house spent Tuesday upon the agricultural appropriation bill. It was used as a vehicle for the introduction of several general speeches.

Washington, Jan. 31.—Senate—The shipping bill was kept to the front in the senate Wednesday. No appreciable progress was made, most of the time being occupied in speeches.

House—The anti-polygamy crusade which resulted in driving Mr. Roberts, Utah's representative, from his seat at the last session had an echo in the house Wednesday during the consideration of the agricultural appropriation bill. When the section making appropriations for agricultural colleges of the several states was reached Mr. Landis (Ind.) offered an amendment providing that no money should be paid to the college in Utah until the secretary of agriculture was satisfied that no trustee or teacher in the institution practiced polygamy. Mr. King, who succeeded Mr. Roberts, tried in vain to head it off with a point of order and then inveighed against it as simply an aftermath of the Roberts crusade. He insisted that polygamy was a thing of the past. The bill was passed.

Washington, Feb. 1.—Senate—After an eventful legislative experience beginning with the present session of congress and covering about two months, the bill for the reorganization of the United States army Thursday passed its last stage in congress and now goes to the president for his signature. The final step was taken in the senate where, by a vote of 33 to 25, the conference report on the bill was agreed to. The house of representatives already had agreed to the report. An opposition developed on the republican side of the report based on the alleged freedom which the conferees have taken in introducing new provisions. On the final vote several republican senators voted with the democrats against the report.

House—The house Thursday passed the fortifications appropriation bill and made fair progress with the post office appropriation bill. Many amendments were offered to the post office appropriation bill in the interest of various claims of post office employes, but they all went down before points of order raised by Mr. Loud, the chairman of the post office committee, who was in charge of the bill.

Washington, Feb. 2.—Senate—The shipping bill was kept steadily at the front in the senate Friday, and, in order to further expedite its progress, a motion was agreed to for a session beginning at 11 a.m. Saturday. Senators Rawlins (Utah) and Berry (Ark.) occupied most of the time Friday in speeches of vigorous opposition. Toward the close of the day a spirited discussion was precipitated by an amendment offered by Mr. Clay (Ga.), proposing to link the Nicaragua canal bill with the shipping bill. Early in the session the senate agreed to the house amendments to the resolution providing for the count of the electoral vote.

House—The house Friday passed an omnibus bill carrying 191 claims for stores and supplies taken by the union army during the rebellion. The claims were passed on by the court of claims and aggregated $344,480. Practically all the beneficiaries reside in the south. The bill to amend the Chinese exclusion act, with a view to preventing the fraudulent entry of Chinese into the United States, was also passed.

Washington, Feb. 4.—Senate—At 11 o'clock Saturday, and, with the exception of an hour and a half at the beginning of the session, devoted the entire day to the discussion of the ship subsidy bill. The situation in the senate was not changed by any developments Saturday. The republicans intend to continue pressing the shipping bill and the leaders say next week will develop whether or not the opposition intend to talk the measure to death.

House.—The house spent the day until 3 o'clock in the consideration of the post office appropriation bill. The struggle over the questions of restoring the appropriation for pneumatic tube service and of the reduction of railway mail pay were precipitated by amendments offered, but no action was taken. At 3 o'clock public business was suspended to permit the members to pay tribute to the late Senator Davis, of Minnesota.

Li Hung Chang Report'd Dead.

London, Feb. 2.—The Tien-Tsin correspondent of the Standard, wiring Thursday, says it was rumored that day in Tien-Tsin that Li Hung Chang was dead.

Paris, Feb. 3.—The foreign office has no news of the death of Li Hung Chang, as reported by the Frankfort Gazette. M. Pinchon, the French minister at Peking, has not alluded to his illness for some time, so it is supposed it is not serious.

Worst Snowstorm on Record.

Burlington, Ia., Feb. 4.—The worst snowstorm in three years has raged here all day and is increasing. All trains are late. Street cars are blocked. The wind is blowing a gale. Reports say that it is one of the worst snowstorms on record.

Capt. Scofield's Remains.

Havana, Feb. 3.—The body of Capt. Charles B. Schofield, of the Second United States cavalry, who died Saturday at Matanzas of heart disease, has arrived in Havana and will be sent north by the transport McPherson.

Laying for Him.

One of the clerks employed at the Reading terminal, who is something of a practical joker, had the tables turned on him the other day by a shrewd newsboy. Knowing that two afternoon newspapers had recently suspended publication, it has been his custom upon leaving his office in the evening to call a newsboy and say: "Here's a nickel. Keep the change and give me a Call, quick!" He thought it great fun to see the eager hands clutch ineffectually for the nickel, and then to note the disappointed expression of the youngster's face. But he tried it once too often. He greeted a boy at Twelfth and Market streets on Wednesday evening with his usual witticism, and, much to his astonishment, the little fellow shoved a Call into his hands and grabbed the coin before the astonished clerk knew what was up. Then there was nothing for the joker to do but take his medicine. "I've been a-layin' fer dat guy," remarked the boy. "He wanted a Call, an' he got it. Dat paper was six mont's old."—Philadelphia Record.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address F. J. Progress in Medicine.

Medical science grows apace with civilization and among the leading remedies, one that combines all the results of scientific study up to the present time and is put up in convenient and economical form, easy to take, easy to carry, is the famous Cascarets. Five years ago marked the time of the sale of the first box. Last year the sale reached the enormous total of over six million boxes. In this hustling, every day, busy life of ours people need just this kind of a medicine to stimulate their bowels and keep them regular. Cascarets act on the liver just enough to help nature without causing that awful sick, weakening feeling that usually follows the taking of Calomel and violent purges. Readers who have never tested the merits of Cascarets should give them a good trial.

The Power of the Press

is a common expression, but few realize its actual power. Great as is the influence of the press, it cannot begin to equal the power of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters over disease. The Bitters strengthens the stomach, purifies the blood, and cures dyspepsia, indigestion and constipation. It will tone up the nerves, stimulate inactive kidneys, and as an appetizer, it is unrivalled. If you want to get well and keep well, use Hostetter's Stomach Bitters.

30 FEET OF BOWELS

are packed away in your insides and must be kept clean, in order and doing business.

It's a long way, with many turns and pitfalls to catch the refuse and clog the channel if not most carefully cleaned out every day.

When this long canal is blockaded, look out for trouble—furred tongue, bad breath, belching of gases, yellow spots, pimples and boils, headaches, spitting up of food after eating—an all-around disgusting nuisance.

Violent calomel purges or griping salts are dangerous to use for cleaning out the bowels. They force out the obstruction by causing violent spasms of the bowels, but they leave the intestines weak and even less able to keep up regular movements than before, and make a larger dose necessary next time.

Then you have the pill habit, which kills more people than the morphine and whiskey habits combined.

The only safe, gentle but certain bowel cleansers are sweet, fragrant CASCARETS, because they don't force out the faecal matter with violence, but act as a tonic on the whole 30 feet of bowel wall, strengthen the muscles and restore healthy, natural action. Buy and try them! (Look out for imitations and substitutes or you can't get results. Cascarets are never sold in bulk. Look for the trade-mark, the long-tailed "C" on the box.) You will find that in an entirely natural way your bowels will be promptly and permanently

It is a starter for the chronic ailments and long years of suffering that come afterwards. No matter what ails you, start taking CASCARETS to-day, for you will never get well and be well all the time until you put your bowels right. Take our advice; start with CASCARETS to-day, under an absolute guarantee to cure or money refunded.

GUARANTEED TO CURE: Five years ago the first box of CASCARETS was sold. Now it is over six million boxes a year, a greater than any similar medicine in the world. Go buy today, two 50c boxes, give them a fair, honest trial, as per simple directions, and if you are not satisfied, after using one 50c box, return the unused 50c box and the empty box to us by mail, or the druggist from whom you purchased it, and get your money back for both boxes. Take our advice—no matter what ails you—start to-day. Health will quickly follow and you will bless the day you first started the use of CASCARETS. Book free by mail. WHEN WRINKLES COME.

Departing HEALTH and BEAUTY Called Back by

Dr. Greene's Nervura

YOUR mirror will tell you the bitter truth.

Healthy women look younger than their age, but you look far too old for your years.

Time deals lightly with the woman in good health, but the wasting hand of sickness and disease spares neither your youthful looks, beauty, nor complexion.

The Creator has endowed every woman with beauty, and every woman in good health is beautiful and comely to look upon. A clear, fresh, wholesome look is the result of the possession of good health, and no woman can be beautiful and attractive without good health. The dull, dead, gnawing pain, the sense of nervousness, weakness, oppression, and discouragement, the tired, listless, languid feeling, the shooting pains, the aching head, the pain in the back, all these are symptoms of a disordered system, and all these are beauty-killers, producers of dull leaden complexions, unnatural flushings, dark circles under the eyes, humors, eruptions, blackheads, lustreless eyes, and other disfigurements which divest women of their natural gift of beauty.

DR. GREENE'S NERVURA Makes Health and Happiness

Why be homely when you can be beautiful and attractive?

Get good health and with it those looks and attributes which attract, please, and fascinate. It is within your power to do so, for it is within every woman's power to be well and strong, and hence look her best, if she will use Dr. Greene's Nervura to give her strong, vigorous nerves, pure, rich blood, a clear complexion, and thus restore the energies and vitality of sound and perfect health.

Good health means youthful good looks to every woman, and it behooves women to restore and maintain their health by taking that greatest and best of all health restoratives, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. It will build up the health, cleanse and purify the complexion, restore brilliancy to the eye, make rich, red blood and strong, steady, and vigorous nerves. Dr. Greene's Nervura will make you look and feel young and restore your energies, vivacity, and enjoyment of life.

MRS. KATE AUSTIN, 40 Jenny Lind Ave., Somerville, Mass., says:

"I had a pain in my side for seventeen years. I also suffered with terrible backache and headache; such an awful headache, and I had not a bit of appetite. I cried with pain from womb trouble, and was as pale as a ghost. I was terribly nervous. I could not sleep for a long time, and had rheumatism in my shoulder and arm. I suffered everything; nobody but God knows how I suffered. I weighed 108 pounds. A friend recommended Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and I commenced to take it. I was so weak and run down that the first bottle did not do me much good, but I kept on, and the second bottle did me good and I began to gain. After taking the Nervura I never had a pain in my side, nor any headache, and I sleep well and have a good appetite. I don't believe there is any medicine in the world so good as Dr. Greene's Nervura. It did me good right off and I have had no return of my womb trouble. I had leucorrhœa, but since taking Nervura that has disappeared. I feel strong, and last summer was able to do the work for fourteen in a family, and I weigh 153 pounds. I was so weak before, nobody knows how I worked, but I had to work for my children. I sent two bottles of Nervura to my brother in Nova Scotia, and it did him lots of good. I recommend Dr. Greene's Nervura to every one."

Ill Health Destroys Beauty and Happiness. DR. GREENE'S NERVURA Makes You Well and Restores Your Good Looks.

Women have absolute confidence in Dr. Greene's Nervura, more so than in any other remedy, because it is purely vegetable and a famous regular physician prepares it, which is a guarantee that it is perfectly adapted to cure. As an additional assurance of cure, Dr. Greene, 35 W. 14th St., New York City, gives you the privilege of consulting him without charge or cost, either by calling or writing about your case.

My Reasons for Leaving the Democratic Party.

I have been often asked, in the last four years, why I left the Democratic party and voted with the Republican party. As a general answer to this question I have frequently promised myself that I would give my reasons for doing so through the medium of your paper. Now that the storm, that was agitated in the political world on account of the late National campaign, has subsided and the minds of men have regained a normal state, I propose to answer, briefly, the question that has been so often asked of me.

In the first place, I believe that all great national parties should be founded upon principles, and, that these fundamental truths or tenets should distinguish that party under whatever name it should choose to assume. No body of men representing a party have a right in convention assembled to abandon their platform or constitution embodying its fundamental principles, its declared policy and its political program with regard to any question, foreign or domestic and adopt another in utter variance to the one they represent. The mere fact of their giving the new platform the name of the old one they had abandoned does not impose upon those who adhere to the old platform, the duty of supporting any one they may nominate to represent the new principles they may espouse.

The Democrats delegated to assemble in Chicago, on the 7th day of July, 1896, in National Convention, for the purpose of renewing their allegiance to the time honored principles of Democracy, exceeded their authority when they abandoned the platform framed by Thomas Jefferson, the man who not only wrote the first platform for the party, but wrote the Declaration of Independence of the American people who constitute the government in which this party exists. Hence the principles of Democracy may be traced to the birth of our republic, and these principles are as sound and alive today as when first expounded by Thomas Jefferson. Who has kept these principles alive and where will you find them today? Go read the platform adopted at St. Louis in 1896, by the Republican party and reaffirmed by said party in 1900, and you will find that this party gathered up the old Democratic planks that were abandoned by the so called Democratic party in 1896, and fitted them in their platform.

You will find that this platform advocated sound money and defined money to be sound when its legal value conformed to its commercial value. The platform adopted by the Democrats at Chicago declared money to be sound by the fiat of the government without any regard to its commercial value.

Mr. Hamilton, the author of our coinage law was the greatest financier this country has ever produced. In its construction he had both the advice and support of Mr. Jefferson, the father of the time honored principles of Democracy. They spent weeks and months in determining the commercial ratio between gold and silver. They heartily concurred in the declaration in this law "that the safest rule for any government to adopt, is to make the legal ratio between the coins conform to the market or commercial ratio between the metals." Mr. Jefferson, thus impressed, in framing the original platform of the Democratic party, inserted the sound money plank as the chief and most important plank in the platform. Each of the succeeding Democratic Presidents down to Mr. Cleveland entertained this view of sound money.

The delegates to the convention held at Chicago were authorized and had the power to proclaim a platform embodying their views of the true solution of the monetary problem of the government then agitating the nation, but upon the condition that such platform should be consistent with the cardinal principles held by the party throughout its existence. It was not within their power to bind the Democrats of the United States to a platform inconsistent with the party's principles.

Being a confirmed advocate of sound money and believing it to be the foundation or corner stone of our monetary system upon which the business of our goverment should be conducted, I followed this plank into the Republican party. When I reached there I found several other old Democratic planks with which I was familiar. I recognized the civil service plank which Mr. Jefferson had in mind when he proclaimed that he would turn no man out of office merely for holding federalist opinions, when his party demanded that all Federalistic office-holders should be removed to make room for Republican successors. This was afterwards made a law by Mr. Pendleton, a Democratic Senator, and first executed by Mr. Cleveland, a Democratic President. Notwithstanding it was a Democratic measure by conception, formation and execution, the delegates to the Chicago convention repudiated it and the Republican party appropriated it and inserted it in their platform. This law I heartily endorse and believe that the stability of our government depends upon its strict enforcement. I believe that no man should hold a government office until he has proven by examination that he is qualified to perform the duties of that office.

I recognize, also, another time-honored Democratic plank, known as the Monroe Doctrine, that had been in the Democratic platform for seventy-three years. This old plank was left out of the new Democratic platform that was built at Chicago. The Republicans realizing its soundness inserted it in their platform.

Then again I discovered another old Democratic plank that was hewn out by those grand old Democrats, James Madison, James Monroe and Andrew Jackson, known as tariff with incidental protection. In looking over the platform adopted by the Democrats in Chicago in 1892, I find this plank still in use; but in 1896 the Democrats cast it aside and the Republicans took it up: All patriotic citizens of either party desire to see our tariff tax so imposed that it will enable the industries of this country to pay a liberal reward for labor, and, at the same time, compete on equal terms with importations from foreign countries. Hence we can not have a tariff for revenue only, nor can we have a tariff that does not protect.

Tariff for revenue cannot stand alone; neither can tariff for protection. The two are inseperable. All custom duties imposed upon imports from other countries protect, incidentally, a corresponding production of this country.

Having been reared in the schools of Jefferson, Madison, Monroe and Jackson, and, realizing that the truths taught me by these honored instructors, in political economy, would not harmonize with the spirit that formulated the mythical platform of the Chicago convention, I looked around for a platform upon, which I could stand, and, discovering the familiar old planks in the Republican platform, upon which I had stood so long, I mounted this platform and have felt quite at home since. G. C. GRADDY.

DYSPEPSIA

Caused by weak nerves or run-down condition of the nervous system, cannot be cured by the use of Pepsin, Mineral Waters, etc. If you have ever resorted to this treatment you must admit that the relief was temporary. Common sense teaches us that to cure Dyspepsia, a medicine must be used that will strengthen and build up the nervous system, and in so doing remove the cause of the digestive trouble.

acts gently in relieving the cause of dyspepsia and at the same time builds up the entire system.

VOL. XXVI. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 13, 1901. NO. 17.

A GOOD MAN GONE.

Capt. W. H. Baker died at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Dr. C. R. Slater, of Erlanger, at 11:30 o'clock p. m. on the night of the 6th inst.

Capt. Baker had been a severe sufferer for many months of stomach trouble, and it was with sorrow that his friends saw the constant wasting away of the body, while the noble spirit, its tenent, was battling bravely against the inevitable, and not until a day or two before the summons came did he cease to look after the affairs of the Erlanger Deposit Bank, of which he was President.

W. H. Baker was born near Big Bone Springs, this county, November 15th, 1836, and was a son of Stewart and Elizabeth Moore Baker, whose citizenship in that neigborhood, dates back to an early day in the history of this county. He was given a common school education, but having an active and strong mind he took great interest in public affairs from local to national, and early in life he had acquired a large fund of political information, and although his father was an ardent Whig, he was an uncompromising Democrat all his life.

In 1860 he was married to Miss Margaret McManama. To them were born three children, one of them dying in infancy, the other two, Mrs. C. R. Slater, of Erlanger, and Mrs. J. D. Stephens, of Florence, survive him. His wife died in 1871, at their pleasant and hospitable home near Big Bone Springs. In 1860, before he had attained the age of twenty-four years, the Democratic party nominated him as its candidate for sheriff. At that time a nomination was not equivalent to an election, but he came through an exciting campaign a winner. In 1863, when the party wanted a standard bearer, the popular young ex-sheriff was nominated for the legislature, and during the troublous times that prevailed he stood faithfully to the post to which his party assigned him. The war being over, at the close of his term in the legislature, he began shipping produce by flatboat to New Orleans. He continued in the produce business in New Orleans, buying and selling on commission until 1891.

In 1892 he was a prominent candidate for Congress, and at one time in the nominating convention, which was held at Warsaw, a majority of the delegates cast their votes for him, but the result was not announced, and changes in the votes were made, and resulted in the nomination of Colonel A. S. Berry. It was this year that Capt. Baker pushed to a successful termination the organization of the Erlanger Deposit Bank. He was elected president of the institution, and from that minute its success was assured, and under his wise and conservative guidance of the bank's affairs its business grew beyond the expectation of its most enthusiastic stockholder at the time of its organization.

Few men have personal magnetism equal to that of Capt. Baker, and his popularity was limited only by the circle of his acquaintance. He was a liberal contributor for charitable purposes, and a person in want never applied to him and went away empty handed. His death is a public loss. The funeral services were conducted at the Florence Christian church, of which the deceased was a member, at 9:30 o'clock last Saturday morning, in presence of an immense concourse of sorrowing friends after which the cortege proceeded to Big Bone Baptist church, where it was met by a large number of the old neighbors and friends of the deceased. At that place a short service was conducted by Rev. S. M. Adams, in a most solemn and feeling manner. At the conclusion of the services a farewell look was taken at the one so loved in life, when the remains were placed in the vault, to await final interment by the side of those of the wife in the cemetery near by.

The pall-bearers were R. J. Scott, W. A. Price, F. A. Utz, S. H. Henry, Dr. W. H. Blanton, H. G. Buckner, B. W. Adams, T. J. Childress.

Do you know that the United States is spending more money in preparation for war and mending the damages done by war, than any country in the world, not excepting Germany, England and the other great powers? It is a fact.

There is absolutely no need for an extra session, but now that it is evident that the ship subsidy infamy cannot be forced through, it seems practically certain that there will be one—to attend to Cuban and Philippine legislation, of course.

Aiter spending millions on mortars for coast defenses, the war Department has now come to the conclusion that they are useless, the chances of their hitting anything being nil, and has stopped asking for money to buy them. Pity it couldn't have found this out before.

It is certainly amazing to note how Secretary Long insists on forcing the Sampson-Schley controversy to the front again, in spite of the fact that it has now been demonstrated that Sampson did not even plan the battle which Schley won, but simply adopted the orders by which Watson brought order out of chaos at Havana, and applied them to the Santiago blockade.

C. C. ROBERTS, County Judge.
B. W. ADAMS, County Clerk.
J. M. LASSING, County Attorney.

WHEN the Grant Circuit Court convened, last week, the regular Judge was not present, and the clerk proceeded to elect a special Judge, when a dead-lock resulted, and after several hours balloting the attorneys compromised on Atty. B. F. Menifee, of Crittenden, who has presided with ability.

HISTORY gives no account of a desertion as cold blooded as was that of Henry E. Youtsey by his attorney's, Nelson and Crawford. They met in Georgetown the day before the prisoner was taken there from Louisville, for sentence, planned the desertion, and left the town before Youtsey's arrival, and had published a statement in the daily papers, in an effort to justify their action, which, to say the least, places them in a position before the public that would be decidedly humiliating to attorneys who had been half way honest in their defense of a client.

The county court day markets throughout Central Kentucky are showing remarkably stiff back-bone in the cattle line and we look for a strong demand for everything of the cattle kind here next Monday. At the Mt. Sterling market the scarcity of heifers and cows was very marked.—Ex.

WHEN Congressman Brown, Republican, of Ohio, made a speech in the House, a few days ago, attacking the Administration's colonial policy, he was congratulated by numerous members on his side of the hall. The colonial policy appears to be on the wane.

THE Kenton County Democratic Executive Committee held a meeting for the alleged purpose of reconciling the differences between the two factions, but matters were placed in a more confused condition than they were before the meeting. The proceedings of the meeting partook very much of the nature of a slugging match. Each faction of the Kenton county committee is in favor of harmony but it wants the kind of harmony that will keep its friends in, and the other fellows out of, power.

A DISPATCH from Frankfort to the Cincinnati Tribune says there will be no re-opening of the contest over the minor State offices except in the case of the Attorney Generalship. The Republicans claim that Judge Pratt occupies a different legal status from the other Republican contestants in that he did not pray an appeal to the Court of Appeals as did the others, and his suit has never been passed on by the higher courts.

OUR FIRST VALENTINE

In our childhood's
happy day,
Long ago,
When we loved to romp and play
In the snow,
When our laughter
was so glad,
When at school we learned to add
We our first wee sweetheart had,
As you know.

O, she was an angel fair
From the skies,
With glory in her hair
And her eyes;
How our little hearts would beat
When she smiled on us so sweet,
How our blushes when we'd meet
Would arise.

To that gentle maid divine
We one day
Sent a tiny valentine
Made to say:
"Roses red and violets blue,
Sugar is sweet and so are you,
If your love like mine is true
No knife can cut our love in two,
I am thine."

Since those happy days of curls,
Long ago,
We have loved some other girls,
As you know.
But those other girls combined
Never charmed our heart and mind
As that first wee sweetheart shrined—
That is so.

To those other girls we've sent Valentines
Costing dollars gladly spent,
And the lines,
Written by some poet great,
All were strictly up to date,
And artistic and ornate
In designs.

But those costly gems of art,
Decked with gold,
Never thrilled a tender heart
Like the old
Little penny thing we laid
At our sweetheart's door afraid
Lest the secret thus conveyed
Should be told.

A PREMATURE VALENTINE.

CLARISSA ROBERTS and her mother lived in a little brown house that looked like a groundbird's nest so small and cozy was it. They had agreed that it was just the right size, which was a sensible way of looking at the matter as they could not afford a larger one. When Clarissa's father died the little money that was left after his affairs were settled had been invested in this place. Their many friends were horror struck, at first, to think that they would be willing to adopt such a simple style of living after the luxurious one to which they had been accustomed; but Clarissa and Mrs. Roberts decided that it would not be honest to assume to be what they were not, so the debts were paid instead.

But they succeeded in making the little cottage such a home-like place that even the old friends looked with envious eyes at the pretty dove-cote, and more than one said: "It is an ideal home, and not so bad, after all." The veranda was a bower of beauty in the summer time, for it was covered with woodbine and Virginia creeper; and in the winter the "Ampelopsis-vitchi," so common in the south, kept rich and green—with the exception of faint tints of crimson that came with the frosts. The windows were bright and cheery with gardens of geraniums, heliotrope and marguerites and from the street presented a pretty appearance. There was nothing elaborate in the interior; most of the heavy furniture had been sold, for both Mrs. Roberts and Clarissa had a sense of the eternal fitness of things, and knew it would be out of place here.

To be sure, the parlor was also the sitting-room and library, but Clarissa's deft fingers had transformed it into a veritable shrine. The pretty ingrain carpet made one think of a bed of moss, and the white net curtains were shirred on small brass rods, draped back artistically at the sides, and tied with long loops of white ribbon. A handsome yellow jardiniere with a tall palm stood in one window and a hanging basket in the other window completed the picture. There were pictures and books galore, and in one corner a guitar spoke eloquently of the taste of the owners.

When it had been announced that Clarissa was going to teach in the high school, the numerous friends were indignant. "Of all persons Clarissa Roberts was the last one of whom I would have thought it." was the protest. But Clarissa remained serene and went along the even tenor of her way, paying no attention to Madam Grundy.

The eighth grade was noted for its refractory pupils, but when the new teacher came to rule there was a decided change. Everything went off beautifully the first day or two, and many comments were passed on her amiability. One of the girls said to Tim Sage: "My, isn't she pretty?" whereupon he assented with a nod and said, as he looked at her black eyes and red hair: "I bet she gets mad awful easy, and won't it be a picnic?" Tim smacked his lips as if he anticipated a feast.

But they soon learned that Miss Roberts ruled by love instead of fear and therefore the majority disliked to displease her, though sometimes they carried their mischievousness too far. But it was evident that Miss Roberts methods were not to be tampered with, for woe was it to the youngster who disobeyed the rules. She was patient, no one could deny that, but even "patience ceases to be a virtue," sometimes, and so it was with her.

Tim Sage, the youth of whom mention has been made, had a superabundance of spirits, and one day they overflowed. Clarissa reprimanded him quietly several times, and finally when he created a sensation by producing angleworms from the depths of a mysterious pocket, with which he frightened the girls, she took the youngster in hand.

"Tim," said she, kindly, "you may remain after school."

It was then that a settlement took place, and being of a sullen disposition he never forgot the punishment, which, after his reign of terror and of being allowed to do as he pleased, was rather humiliating. He said nothing, however, and Clarissa congratulated herself on the success of her discipline, for the boy continued to behave unusually well.

Alas! "Still waters often run deep"—and this was the case with Tim.

On the evening of Valentine day Prof. Spencer, the superintendent of the school, walked home with Clarissa and talked over some exercises they were planning for the 22d. As they parted at the gate the young man asked if he might call that evening and perfect the arrangement. Clarissa assented, and tipping his hat graciously and thanking her, he left her. On entering the house, Clarissa gave her mother a hug and said: "Mamma, dear, Prof. Spencer is going to spend the evening with us, so we will have to give up our plan, and some other time will do just as well."

"By the way, daughter, here is the mail and one in a strange handwriting."

Clarissa opened one after another and smiled at the effusion of some of the valentines, for she knew they came from a number of her girl pupils who were devotion itself.

She came to the last one that was addressed in a masculine hand which she could not mistake, and a faint hue of pink came into her cheeks. She hastily tore the envelope open and read:

"Salem, Va., Feb. 14, 1896.

"Dear Miss Roberts: It must be that you have discovered the love I bear you, and which it has been impossible for me to hide. I have watched you from day to day, hoping that I would see some response to my affection, and am not disappointed, for I believe it is returned. Believe me that this is not my fault alone, for your conduct has led me to feel that my love is reciprocated, and therefore I ask you to be my valentine, and make me happy.

"Your sincere admirer and Valentine."

Clarissa's fingers trembled, and her eyes flashed threateningly, but without a word she handed the letter to her mother, who read it slowly and then reread it before speaking.

There was no denying the fact that Clarissa admired Prof. Spencer more than any other man, but she knew that she had concealed her regard with the utmost care, for he had never made any loverly advances.

She was disappointed and chagrined. He had always been so courteous and agreeable, so perfectly dignified, and now he was so bold and presumptuous—so rude as to assert that he was sure of her affection, that she had shown it clearly. She hid her head in her mother's lap and had a good cry, girl-like. But Mrs. Roberts soothed and quieted her by by saying there must be some mistake.

"But you see there can't be, mamma; you see it is in his own handwriting and I know it so well."

Then going to her writing desk she took out a slip of paper on which a report was written, and signed Prof. J. W. Spencer. The writing corresponded, there was no denying the fact, and the two women were silent until a knock at the door startled them and Clarissa darted into another room.

"A box of flowers, dear," said her mother; "shall I open it?"

An exquisite bunch of violets nestling among the green leaves, delighted the beauty-loving eyes of the girl and the delicate odor soothed her tired nerves. She had not noticed the card, but there it lay and she read: "James W. Spencer—with best wishes."

The innocent flowers smiled, but Clarissa did not notice; their beauty was spoiled now.

Replacing the cover, she wrote a hurried note of thanks and curtly asked Mr. Spencer to pardon her, but said she could not accept them after his presumptuous conduct. Then calling to Tim, who happened to be passing, she asked him to deliver the package for her.

Tim chuckled inwardly, but was very polite and accommodating, and as hour from the time the box was first sent, it was back to the donor.

To say that Prof. Spencer was amazed does not express the feelings he experienced on opening the box. "It is so unlike her," he thought; "what can she mean?" He knew there was a misunderstanding somewhere, his mathematical judgment taught him that and with a determined air he made his toilet.

He was always particular about his attire, which was faultless on all occasions, and this evening spent more time than usual dressing. He had admired Clarissa for many years, and after her father's death his respect grew into something more substantial, but he watched her career with no little interest and when she went to teaching as a means of livelihood, he knew that her character was not weak or flimsy.

While walking towards the Roberts cottage his heart warmed toward Clarissa, and in spite of her rebuff he made several resolutions.

As he neared the house he saw a pretty little domestic picture, for Clarissa with a colony of kittens in her lap and their mother at her feet, was enjoying it, unconscious of an audience.

Mr. Spencer felt guilty, but he could not help gazing at the tableau before knocking. Mrs. Roberts admitted him, a trifle coolly, he thought, and Clarissa's manner was even more frigid than her note had been.

He forgot all about the "exercises," but immediately launched into the subject so near his heart.

"Miss Roberts, you will pardon me, but I could not understand your note, and I am sure there is some mistake."

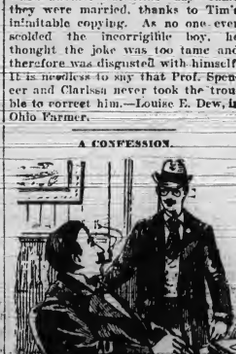
The tones were calm and courteous, so Clarissa controlled her emotion and said: "After your letter, Mr. Spencer, I think it is not necessary for me to explain."

"My letter!" said he in amazement. "Yes, your letter," responded Clarissa coolly, "in your handwriting and signed Valentine."

"Miss Roberts, allow me to say that I have not written you a word excepting the message I inclosed with the flowers."

"But I received a letter," stammered Clarissa, "and it certainly looks like your writing."

"May I see it, please?" asked Mr. Spencer.



Clarissa produced it somewhat reluctantly, and the former assured her that he was the victim of a practical joke.

The poor girl covered her face and cried: "Who could be so cruel?" Then it was Mr. Spencer's turn to play comforter.

"Do you feel so very badly, Miss Roberts?" said he. "Part of the note at least is true, in regard to my feeling toward you; but it seems some one has got ahead of me, and paved the way roughly."

It is needless to go into details. The tangle adjusted itself easily and Mr. Spencer and Clarissa arranged matters very satisfactorily, so much so that when another Valentine day came they were married, thanks to Tim's infantile copying. As no one ever scolded the incorrigible boy, he thought the joke was too tame and therefore was disgusted with himself. It is needless to say that Prof. Spencer and Clarissa never took the trouble to correct him.—Louise E. Dew, in Ohio Farmer.

LAMB BREAKS UP A SCHOOL.

Animal Much Resembling Mary's Resents Efforts of Teacher to Put Him Out, Upsetting Stove.

In 30 seconds a snow-white lamb, belonging to a flock that was being driven past the new schoolhouse on the Short Tract road the other day at Nunda, N. Y., routed the entire school, frightened Miss Alice Ray, the teacher, into hysterics, and forced the trustees to hold a special session to appropriate money to repair the damage the lamb had done.

"It's the sweetest little lamb, just the kind that followed Mary to school," Miss Ray said to her pupils as the lamb dashed into the room. The pupils thought so, too, until Miss Ray began to pet the lamb and show it toward the door. Then the little animal began racing around the schoolroom. It collided with the stove and knocked a leg from under it and it fell in a heap. The coals scattered all over the floor, starting a fire.

Miss Ray and the pupils broke for the door and escaped, followed by a blinding smoke. They carried snow and water and put out the fire. The lamb was extricated by John Bennett, who was driving the flock. Miss Ray went home suffering from nervous prostration and school broke up for the day.

NEW SIX-INCH GUN.

Decided at the War Department That an Effort Will Be Made to Secure a Better Weapon.

It has been decided that a new six-inch rapid-fire gun is to be constructed at the war department in an effort to secure a better gun of that type than has been purchased abroad by the navy department. The gun is to be built at the Bethlehem steel works and must give a muzzle velocity of 3,000 foot seconds and be capable of being fired at the rate of at least 8,000 pounds per minute at 2,500-foot seconds velocity. The distinctive features of this gun will be the breech mechanism, patented by the Bethlehem company. The navy department recently purchased the right to use the breech mechanism of the Vickers people in England, the sum paid being $250,000.

The Bethlehem mechanism is supposed to be an improvement on the Vickers. Some recent tests made with the Vickers device, it is said, resulted in a gun being fired as many as ten shots per minute.

The guarantee in the case of the Bethlehem mechanism is eight rounds in the same period, and there is a hope, of course, that the Vickers achievement will be surpassed.

SUBSTITUTE FOR BENZINE.

Germany Offers a Premium of Two Hundred and Fifty Dollars for Such an Article.

Consul Hughes, at Coburg, Germany, reports to the state department that for years a substitute for benzine has been in demand. The objectionable points about benzine are its high inflammability and volatility, the danger of poisoning the atmosphere, etc. This was one of the chief topics of discussion at Hanover, and this fall the subject came up once more at the meeting at Cassel, when a premium of about $250 was offered for an effectual substitute for benzine, or for means of rendering it less dangerous. Here is a good chance for American genius.

CONGRESSMAN HOWARD.

Of National Reputation are the Men Who Recommend Peruna to Fellow Sufferers.

A Remarkable Case Reported From the State of New York.

CONGRESSMAN HOWARD OF ALABAMA.

House of Representatives,
Washington, Feb. 4, 1899.
The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio:

Gentlemen—"I have taken Peruna now for two weeks, and find I am very much relieved. I feel that my cure will be permanent. I have also taken it for la grippe, and I take pleasure in recommending Peruna as an excellent remedy to all fellow sufferers."
M. W. Howard.

Congressman Howard's home address is Fort Payne, Ala.

MOST people think that catarrh is a disease confined to the head and nose. Nothing is farther from the truth. It may be that the nose and throat is the offenders affected by catarrh, but if this is so it is so only because these parts are more exposed to the vicissitudes of the climate than the other parts of the body.

Every organ, every duct, every cavity of the human body is liable to catarrh. A multitude of ailments depend on catarrh. This is true winter and summer. Catarrh causes many cases of chronic disease, where the victim has not the slightest suspicion that catarrh has anything to do with it.

The following letter which gives the experience of Mr. A. C. Lockhart is a case in point:

Mr. A. C. Lockhart, West Henrietta, N. Y., Box 38, in a letter written to Dr. Hartman says the following of Peruna:

"About fifteen years ago I commenced to be ailing, and consulted a physician. He pronounced my trouble a species of dyspepsia, and advised me, after he had treated me about six months, to get a leave of absence from my business and go into the country. I did so and got temporary relief. I went back to work again, but was taken with very distressing pains in my stomach.

"I seldom had a passage of the bowels naturally. I consulted another physician with no better results. The disease kept growing on me, until I had exhausted the ability of sixteen of Rochester's best physicians. The last physician advised me to give up my work and go south, after he had treated me for one year.

"I was given a thorough examination with the X-ray. They could not even determine what my trouble was. Some of your testimonials in the Rochester papers seemed to me worthy of consideration, and I made up my mind to try a bottle of Peruna. Before the bottle was half gone I noticed a change for the better. I am now on the fifth bottle, and have not an ache or pain anywhere. My bowels move regularly every day, and I have taken on eighteen pounds of flesh. I have recommended Peruna to a great many, and they recommend it very highly. I have told several people that if they would take a bottle of Peruna, and could then candidly say that it had not benefited them, I would pay for the medicine."—A. C. Lockhart.

Mr. W. P. Peterson, of Morris, Ill., says: "I was nearly dead with catarrhal dyspepsia and am now a well man, better, in fact, than I have been for twenty years or more.

"Since I got cured by your Peruna I have been consulted by a great many people."

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, O.

GET BIG GAME PRESERVE.

Mayor Harrison and Other Chicago Men Buy Tract of Indiana Marshes.

Carter H. Harrison, mayor of Chicago, and a party of 50 representative men of that city, including Charles S. Dennis, Hempstead Washburne, Rollo Organ and William Haskell, have closed a deal with Brown Bros., of this city, writes the Crown Point (Ind.) correspondent of the Chicago Inter Ocean, in which they come into control of 10,000 acres of marsh land on the Kankakee river, south of Crown Point, which they will use as a game preserve, which will be the largest in the United States.

They have leased the big morass for a term of 25 years, and will at once commence the erection of a costly clubhouse and stock the marsh with all kinds of game, besides the duck and geese which habitate the place each spring and fall. This deal practically places the duck-hunting in this well-known game marsh in a trust and is absolutely controlled by Chicagoans, the residents of Indiana having been frozen out entirely, as the land along the Kankakee river has all been leased.

The Macsawba club ground commences south of South Bend, the English Lake Gun club then follows for miles and the Diana club and the new one just formed takes up the balance of the land, and in each case no poachers are allowed in the Calumet marsh. The Tolleston club, of Chicago, has a monopoly on that territory. An effort is being made throughout the state to legislate the nonresident hunters out of the state.

BREAKS RECORD FOR NAVY.

Speed of 30.8 Knots Attained by the New Torpedo Boat Destroyer Bailey.

In a spurt of about two minutes' duration the other day at Newport in a government test for the standardization of its propellers, the torpedo-boat destroyer Bailey made a rate of speed of 30 8-10 knots. This is a higher rate than any vessel of the United States navy has yet reached. The Bailey is built to make but 30 knots. It is not believed or expected that the Bailey can maintain the record speed for any length of time, but the test showed how swift a descent upon an enemy the boat could make in actual war. The engines worked with remarkable smoothness and evenness and the board of naval officers conducting the trial were surprised that the vibration of the craft was hardly noticeable.

INAUGURAL HYMN.

Frederick R. Burton Sets to Music Holmes' Poem, "Freedom, Our Queen."

A letter was received by Frederick R. Burton, the director of the Yonkers Choral society, on December 29 last from Washington, asking him if he could write a selection to be given at the inauguration exercises. The letter stated that the inauguration committee aimed at the unusual accomplishment of securing thorough American music with special qualifications for the occasions.

Mr. Burton selected Oliver Wendell Holmes' poem, "Freedom, Our Queen," as his text. The words were completed in the rough, then touched up, mailed and sealed on Sunday, just two days after the order had been given to go ahead.

Mr. Burton has just received his reward. A letter not only accepting the production, but complimenting the author in the highest terms, and stating that it is just what was wanted, has been received by him. The further information was added that the selection has already been assigned as the president's greeting, and will be given by a full chorus and orchestra.

ENTANGLING HIMSELF.

Mark Hanna's Methods Exposed in His Iniquitous Ship Subsidy Scheme.

Because of his distinguished party leadership and services Senator Hanna is looked upon as the chief hope and mainstay of the ship subsidy bill. The purposes and methods embodied in this measure have been made clear to the readers of the public press and the expressions of opinion elicited from all sections show an overwhelming majority against its enactment. Even the shipbuilders and the ship owners are divided among themselves, those in opposition contending that the $9,000,000 to be annually distributed will go to a favored combine now in process of formation and that there will be a great shipping trust sustained and fattened by government bounty.

The fundamental and fatal weakness of the bill lies in its assumption of the right to use public moneys, secured through the taxation of the entire people, to aid private individuals to build ships and reap an increased profit from traffic on the high seas. Aside from the fact that the move is to help a favored portion of those who represent a special interest, it indorses a national policy which would sanction the subsidizing of car building, additional bounty being given for speed and capacity, of wagon making or of any other industry promotive of trade or the traffic that serves it.

According to the reports from Washington, Senator Hanna is disgruntled because this bill, refused support in the national convention of his party and never advocated by republican orator or editor during the campaign, has been shunted in order to make way for the army bill. Among the evidences of his displeasure is his alleged purpose to oppose an appropriation for improving the Cleveland

SHIP SUBSIDY AND FARMERS.

Representative Journals of the Country Are Outspoken Against the Measure.

Secretary of Agriculture James Wilson has declared in favor of the shipping bill, which provides large subsidies for American ships. He says that farmers need better freight service to foreign countries, and gives instances to show where important freight has been delayed. He then says that from every point of view we should not depend on foreign ships, but that Americans should carry American freight. We agree with the secretary, though we know from experience that it often pays better to hire some one else to carry our produce than to do your own hauling. If Mr. Wilson wishes to give the farmers real advice he should not stop with what they already know, but go on and tell us why the rich ship builders and steel makers need help from the government. That is the point to be discussed. Why should the farmers be taxed to support a class of people who are better able to provide for themselves than most business men?

Mr. Wilson is quoted as saying that he "knew from correspondence that there is a practically universal sentiment among the farmers in favor of the bill, and that those who are against it are mainly those who do not understand what advantages the bill will bring to the farmers." Our experience and observation indicate just the reverse of that statement. The farm papers of the country are outspoken against the bill. The few farmers who talk to us in favor of it seem to have an idea that it is a party measure which will make their party stronger with certain rich men or in certain localities. There are many farmers who now see in their own business the results of former indirect taxation schemes. Here is their question, Mr. Secretary—perhaps you will answer it: Why, if our manufacturers can outdo the world on machinery and material, do they not build their own ships without help?—Rural New Yorker.

CAN HE PUSH IT THROUGH?

breakwater because Representative Burton, of that district, is specially interested in bettering this harbor, but is opposed to the ship subsidy bill.

Senator Hanna acknowledges no personal pique in taking this attitude toward a proposed improvement at his own home. He says that it would undoubtedly make a saving in freights, but he doubts whether the government should be in the business of saving freight rates for private individuals. Thus have the gods made Marcus Antonio mad enough to attempt to be cynical.—Detroit Free Press.

TRIUMPH OF TRUSTS.

Preparing to Ride the American People a Merry Race on Land and Sea Alike.

It is interesting to note the steady and logical development of the epochal movement now under way for the organization of a great railway trust which shall dwarf into insignificance all preceding monopoly combinations yet effected in this country.

According to recent news reports the scope of the combine is now nearly complete in its contemplated organization. It began with the idea of bringing all the great railway lines under one control by virtue of the "community of ownership" plan. Subsequent developments showed that a monopoly ownership of American coal mines was also a feature of the proposed railway trust. Then came the effort to absorb all the steel industries of the United States. Now it is announced the gigantic combine also contemplates embracing the several sleeping car companies in its "community of ownership" project. This is trustism with a vengeance.

The American people are doubtless watching the progress of the railway trust with considerable interest. Coming at the same time that the Hanna ship subsidy grab for the benefit of American monopolists on the seas is being jammed through congress, this railway combine is quite significant. The trusts are certainly having things their own way. It may be said, with much more ruefulness than humor, that they are preparing to ride the American people a merry race on land and sea alike. And it's the American people who must pay all expenses and lose the race if McKinleyism and trustism continue to prevail in American government.—St. Louis Republic.

EXTRA SESSION CLAMOR.

A Pretext of Ship Subsidy Men to Work Their Measure Through Without Delay.

The talk at Washington about an extra session of congress in order to legislate on the Philippine question is probably put about by the ship subsidy people, who have despaired of passing their bill at the present session. There is not the least chance that congress will pass any law on the subject of the Philippines, either at this session or any other, while the decision of the supreme court on the various colonial questions is pending. Nor will the president take any step or form any opinion in reference to an extra session during that interval. The ship subsidy men are, of course, growing hungrier with the progress of time, because their expenses run on continually and because every passing day tends to show that American shipping and ship building can prosper without subsidy. If the bill should go over a whole year the chances are that everybody would see that it is not needed. That is the greatest danger now threatening this particular American sub—the danger that it will not be able to stand on its own bottom. Hence the clamor for an extra session of congress to do something for the Philippines.—N. Y. Post.

——American farm machinery is shipped by water 3,000 miles and by rail from 500 to 1,000 miles and sold to English and Scotch farmers for less than the American consumer must pay. Ocean and railroad charges must be added to the article sold the Englishman and the Scotchman and the machinery sold in competition with English machinery. If American implement men can pay all these freight bills and compete on the foreigner's soil, why should American consumers be deceived by their plea for protection against foreign competition?—The Commoner.

——The republican party, under the direction of Mark Hanna and Mr. McKinley, is certainly paying its debts to the syndicate interests whose millions brought about Mr. McKinley's reelection. It is doing this by putting its hands in the people's pockets and extracting the money necessary to such payment. A filching of $180,000,000 at one snatch is going it pretty steep however.—Will the people be able stand this sort of thing for four ye more?—St. Louis Republic.

J. M. Walker & Co., of Cincinnati, are making an effort to organize a Farmers' Cooperative Department. Besides many other benefits growing out of the concern in the interest of farmers. These are days of concentration and the farmers are getting in the boat. There are similar organizations in nearly all branches of trade and all work beneficial to their members. It is often remarked that farmers cannot be organized. This is a mistake. All they want is to see a feasible plan—one which they think will work, and they are ready to take it up. Our friend, Chas. Ragenbogen, suffers at times, from absentmindedness. A few evenings since he came up to the postoffice to get a paper when the carrier came. He was soon engaged in social chat with some one, and did not notice the carrier when he was distributing his papers among the crowd. After the bus had gone he remarked, "I wish the papers would come," as he was anxious to go home, and when he was told they had come, he was very much surprised. His wife had sent by him that evening for a spool of thread, No. 40 black, and, instead of getting one spool he got 40 spools, remarking, "I don't know what my wife wants with so much thread." He had been interviewed by several candidates that day, was probably the cause of his unsettled mind.

It is not known that there was any scarcity of cats in our little town, nor to whom we are indebted for the liberal shipment that came over the L. & N. on the train due here at 4:20 P. M. on Tuesday the 5th. inst. Fourteen were counted as scurrying into the town when the doors of the baggage car had been thrown open, and the night was made hideous by plaintive calls of "maria, maria," alternating with "meows" and "spitzes," in all parts of the town.

The internal revenue tax on checks has given lots of trouble to at least one of our citizens. J. M. Thomas, of the Phoenix had one check sent back to him to cancel the stamp. He says that in future he thinks the requirements on his checks will all be met.

The biggest sensation we have had for some time came on last Saturday morning when it was known that the Walton Deposit Bank had been broken into. It occurred between the hours of three and four o'clock A. M. Can not tell how much was taken as the safe blowers left it in such a condition that an expert will have to come and open it. It is reported that the robbers were seen to come out at 4 o'clock and went down to J. A. Sanders' stable, where they took a horse and buggy, which was found hitched to a post on the corner of Pike and Main St. the next morning, and lost no time on the road. The bank was fully insured.

Saturday was a notable day in Walton. The great sale of Mr. H. C. Diers attracted a larger crowd than the gloomy winter morning gave any promise of, especially as it grew colder as the hours were passing. The sale was a brisk one, and our fellow-citizen, Esquire Thomas Roberts, acquitted himself very handsomely in the role of auctioneer. It is understood that the sale was a good one.

Mr. Diers, through the Recorder, thanks his friends and patrons for the many kindnesses he has received at their hands during the course of his business career in Walton, and it will always be a great satisfaction for him to dwell upon the pleasant reflections with which his associations were connected in this town. Especially will he always feel grateful to the great concourse of those who manifested their feelings towards him on the day of his closing sale.

Mr. Diers goes hence to engage in the hotel business in Harrison, Ohio, an avocation for which his genial manners, wide acquaintance and natural suavity most eminently fit him. He has always been an earnest advocate for any and all measures that would increase the importance or business of the town, and the people of Harrison will find him a public spirited man in any place where he sets his foot.

Some notices of candidates are unavoidably left out, and as they will keep are retained for another issue.

Mr. Editor: While looking over the Recorder this morning, I saw a piece taken from the Greensburg (Ind.) New Era, about O. M. B. Samuels' corn thresher. Probably there are a few readers of the Recorder, who do not believe that corn is threshed like wheat. But it is. I am personally acquainted with Mr. Samuels, and have seen his thresher at work. I write this simply to inform those who doubt the story, that it is true. CLARENCE TOLIN.

In the churchyard of Leigh, near Bolton, will be found a tombstone bearing the following amazing sentence: "A virtuous woman is 5s. to her husband." The explanation seems to be that spnce prevented "a crown" being cut in full, and the stonemason argued that a crown equals five shillings.

Outside the farms and ranches there are 2,777,497 horses in the United States. The largest number is found in New York state, 302,271; Illinois being second, with 232,377; Pennsylvania, 215,977; Ohio, 185,653; Iowa, 147,275; Massachusetts, 132,016; Missouri, 124,952; Indiana, 124,072; Texas, 106,819, and Michigan, 100,419.

At Constantinople the mosque of St. Sophia was built in the tenth century, and the mortar which was used in its construction was mixed with musk. Since then kingdoms have risen and fallen, dynasties have flourished and perished, but throughout the ages the scent of musk has remained in the mosque at St. Sophia without ever having been renewed.

One of the best-known instances of churches with streets through them is that of St. John the Baptist church in Bristol, England. The church is situated right over the ancient gateway into the city on the Avon, and the towering spire, standing high above the neighboring houses and streets, is a remarkable sight, as one surveys it from the roadway below.

It has been estimated that the approximate total production of rubber annually is 57,500 tons. Of this amount 21,000 tons are taken by the United States and Canada; 21,000 by the United Kingdom, and 15,500 by the rest of Europe. The Amazon district produces 25,000 tons and East and West Africa 24,000 tons; parts of South America other than the Amazon district 3,500 tons.

Down in Patagonia there is to-day a party of men, sent there by a magazine, hunting a living specimen of the supposedly extinct giant sloth. Scientists have found footprints preserved in the sandstone of Connecticut and the west, and from sketches found in all parts of the world remodeled mastodons, ichthyosauri, megalosauri and all the rest of them. But living specimens belonged to a period long on specimens but short on scientists.

A London fog is an expensive visitation. A day of it, counting the day at eight hours, is estimated to cost anything from £50,000 to £100,000 in hard cash. No small proportion of this goes to the gas and electric light companies, which have to supply about a third more power than usual. But there are also the railways. For signaling is expensive. At Clapham Junction alone £50 has been spent by a single railway company during a day's fog in extra pay to the plate layers.

Miss Helen Gould has an interesting little handshake. She has evidently learned that to protect and preserve her own hand when giving it to hundreds of others, she must do most of the shaking herself. She takes the proffered hand firmly in her own at about the elbow level, holds it there for an instant, then raises it quickly in an almost exactly perpendicular line, then suddenly releases it. She looks directly into the eyes of the person she is meeting.

A bill was introduced in the Wisconsin senate providing that no persons can marry who are suffering from true or hereditary insanity, insanity caused by vicious habits or the use of drugs, consumption and various other diseases which are named in the bill. Every person who wishes to marry is required to go before an examining board of three surgeons to be appointed in each county of the state by the county judge, and must pass an examination before a marriage license can be issued to them.

A Boston paper is authority for the statement that at Ware, Mass., there is a frog farm which raises, or will raise, 100,000 frogs, and which bids fair to make its owner, Mr. Merrill, a wealthy man. This farm, it is said, has five sizeable ponds, which are connected by small canals, which the frogs, in various stages, are to use free of charge. As they grow they are successively put into larger ponds until they attain their fatal majority, when they are shipped to Boston, New York and other eastern cities.

MOB LYNCH A NEGRO.

George Carter Taken From the Jail at Paris, Ky.

He Had Assaulted Banker Board's Wife—Served Time in the Penitentiary and Was a Terror in the Community.

Paris, Ky., Feb. 11.—George Carter, a brutal Negro, who assaulted Mrs. Lake Board about three weeks ago in a dark locality on Second street, was taken from the county jail at 2 a. m. Monday morning by a mob of 50 determined men and hanged to an iron arch in front of the courthouse. The mob made its appearance at the jail about 1:30 and demanded admittance. Jailer Kizer refused and the door was broken open and the mob surged in. Jailer Kizer refused to turn over his keys, but was speedily overpowered. The keys were secured and a rush was made for Carter's cell.

In his night clothes the trembling wretch was hustled into the night air, speedily bound and hurried to the courthouse entrance. There a rope was adjusted around his neck. Asked as to his innocence or guilt he maintained silence. The word was given and the body was swiftly drawn up by willing hands. He was soon strangled and the mob speedily dispersed, leaving the body swinging with a note pinned on it stating that this was the death meted out to Negroes who assaulted white women. The mob was orderly, but determined, and made sure and swift work.

The crime for which Carter met an ignominious death was committed about three weeks ago. Mrs. Board, who is the wife of Mr. W. E. Board, the assistant cashier of the Deposit bank, was returning home late in the evening, when she was suddenly seized and thrown to the ground. She made a desperate resistance, and her assailant knocked her down four times. In the dim light she recognized her assailant and gave his description to the police. Carter's capture was effected by Officer Joe Williams in Ruckerville, a Negro suburb.

Carter bore a bad reputation and had served two terms in the penitentiary, one for housebreaking, the other for malicious cutting. He was a member of a notorious band of Negro thieves that had long terrorized Paris. He had just been served with a warrant sworn out by Bessie Smoot, his sister-in-law, charging him with criminal assault.

Mrs. Board's little son, who was with her at the time the assault was committed, visited the jail and fully identified Carter as the man who knocked his mother down. At his examining trial Carter was held over in $300 bond to the circuit court. After completing the work the mob quietly dispersed, leaving the ghastly memento of their violence swinging in the night breeze as a warning to others.

EXPRESS ROBBERY.

The Safe, With Contents, Supposed to Contain $40,000, Taken From the Railway Depot.

Sioux City, Ia., Feb. 11.—Prompt and active work by the authorities at Manilla, Ia., resulted in the arrest of men who are accused of having been implicated in the theft of a United States express safe, said to have contained $40,000.

The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul train on which the safe was taken from Sioux City arrived at Manilla at 8:05 p. m. Saturday night. The Omaha train was late, and James Sturtevant, of Sioux City, the express messenger, did not hurry in unloading the goods and packages from his car. The express safe, with other articles, was unloaded and placed on a truck on the depot platform, and then Sturtevant and the other baggageman went to the other end of the platform to get another truck load.

When Sturtevant returned he noticed that the articles on the truck were disarranged, and a glance showed that the iron box was gone.

PROMINENT CAPTURE.

Buston, the Insurgent Governor of the Island of Calanduanes, is a Prisoner of War.

Manila, Feb. 11.—A company of the 6th United States volunteer infantry, operating in the island of Catalanes, off the southeast coast of Luzon, captured Buston, the insurgent governor of the island.

The United States gunboat Don Juan de Austrin, co-operating with a detachment of the 47th infantry, captured 30 insurgents, including a colonel and two majors in the province of Albay, Luzon.

Evidence is accumulating against the incriminated Manila traders who were charged with aiding the insurgents.

Death of Mrs. Commander Reeder.

New York, Feb. 11.—Mrs. William H. Reeder, wife of Commander William H. Reeder, U. S. N., commanding the school ship St. Marys, now at the Brooklyn navy yard, died aboard that vessel Sunday. She was a daughter of the late Rr. Adm. Clarke Wells.

THE BRITISH WORSTED.

The Ammunition Became Exhausted and the English Were Compelled to Retire After Sustaining a Severe Loss.

East London, Cape Colony, Feb. 11.—Details have been received here of severe fighting at Tabaksberg mountain, 40 miles east of the railway and about midway between Small Deel and Bloemfontein. Maj. Crowe, with a composite column traveling southwest, sighted the mountain on the morning of January 31. He heard firing and knowing that Col. Pilcher's column was on the other side of the mountain he concluded that this officer was in action. Consequently he hurried forward only to meet Boers streaming down and evidently retiring from Col. Pilcher's lyddite shells. Immediately Maj. Crowe brought three 15-pounders and a "pompom" to bear on the Boers who, however, were found to be so numerous that it was impossible to hend them. Orders were given to return to camp, about two miles from the mountain. The column rested until 4 in the afternoon when the march was resumed southwest.

Maj. Crowe was just touching the southern point of the mountain when a terrific rifle fire opened from a large force of Boers who were in ambuscade on the mountain. The fight soon became general. The Boers outnumbered the British five to one and were attacking them on both flanks and the rear. The British "pompom" jammed and was useless. Maj. Crowe grasped the situation and by a brilliant move got the convoy into a safe position.

Between 7 and 8 in the evening the Boers charged the position and turned both flanks. The British ammunition became exhausted and Maj. Crowe was obliged to retire and abandon the "pompom" after the advance party had endeavored to save it and had sustained severe losses.

A rear guard action was fought by Maj. Crowe into the camp where the wagons had been laagered. He personally superintended the retirement, the Boers harrassing him throughout. Entrenchments were thrown up during the night. When morning came Maj. Crowe started to join Gen. Knox 12 miles southwest. The Boers immediately re-attacked him, compelling him to fight a second rear guard action for a few miles. Gen. DeWet personally commanded the Boers, estimated at 2,500. Maj. Crowe's force was only 700. Eventually the British joined Gen. Knox and returned to Bloemfontein. Lord Kitchener has highly complimented Maj. Crowe upon the achievement.

GEN. SPRUITT KILLED.

Louis Botha, With 2,000 Men, Attacked Gen. Smith-Dorrien at Orange Camp, Bothwell.

London, Feb. 11.—The war office has received the following dispatch from Lord Kitchener, the commander in chief in South Africa:

"Pretoria, Feb. 9.—The columns, working eastward, occupied Ermelo, February 6 with slight opposition. A large force of Boers, estimated at 7,000, under Louis Botha, retired eastward. About 800 wagons, with families passed through Ermelo on the way to Amsterdam, and very large quantities of stock are being driven east.

"A peace delegate, under sentence of death, and other Boer prisoners were taken away by the Boers. All the reports show that the Boers are exceedingly bitter. Fifty Boers surrendered."

Louis Botha, with 2,000 men attacked Gen. Smith-Dorrien at Orange Camp, Bothwell, at 8 a. m. February 6. He was repulsed after severe fighting. Gen. Spruit was killed, Gen. Randemeier was severely wounded, two field cornets were killed, 20 of the Boer dead were left in our hands and many severely wounded.

Our movement to the east is reported to have thoroughly upset all the enemy's calculations and created a regular panic in the district.

Christian DeWet appears to be crossing the line south of Jagersfontein road to the west, having failed to effect a crossing by the drifts east of Bethulie.

In Cape Colony, Calvinia has been occupied by Col. DeLisle, who entered February 6, the enemy retiring toward Kenhardt. Col. Haig is driving the Midland commandos northward, past Aberdeen.

THE EMPRESS YIELDED

She Allows Emperor Kwang Su to Resume the Reins.

Gen. Bailloud, French Commander at Pao Ting Fu, Says He Is Acting Independent of the Commander-in-Chief.

Shunghai, Feb. 11.—It is reported here that the empress dowager, yielding to foreign pressure, has allowed Emperor Kwang Su to resume the reins of government.

A dispatch from Peking asserts that all the fortified passes beyond the territory held by the allies are being garrisoned by the Chinese, and that Boxers are re-entering Peking secretly.

Peking, Feb. 11.—Count Von Waldersee is very much dissatisfied with the conduct of the French troops near Pao Ting Fu and also with their avowed intention, in spite of his protests against it, to organize an expedition to take possession of the province of Shan Si. He takes the ground that expeditions, except for police purposes, or against bands of robbers, should not be undertaken during peace negotiations.

Gen. Bailloud, the French commander at Pao Ting Fu, says that he is acting in entire independence of Count Von Waldersee, and believes the wisest course to be to nip the incipient rebellion in the bud immediately. He asserts that he was attacked on three sides by a number of Chinese while out with a few men near Pao Ting Fu, and his theory is that the power of the foreigners should be shown, if possible, whenever an occasion arises.

A staff officer of Count Von Waldersee, who investigated the Pao Ting affair, could find no evidence of such trouble as had been reported. On the contrary he believes there are grounds for believing quite the opposite, although probably there, as elsewhere, considerable numbers of dangerous robbers infest the country districts.

Li Hung Chang asserts that the empress dowager and Emperor Kwang Su never had more harmonious relations than they have now and that the former quite agrees to the necessity for modern reforms. He has telegraphed to the court his refusal to agree to sentences of execution "fraught with extreme danger and threatening the dynasty itself."

CONGRESSMAN DEAD.

Col. Albert D. Shaw Died Suddenly In His Room at the Riggs House, Washington.

Washington, Feb. 11.—Representative Albert D. Shaw, of Watertown, N. Y., formerly commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, was found dead Sunday morning in his room at the Riggs house. A physician summoned immediately after the discovery of the body pronounced death due to apoplexy, probably about 2 o'clock in the morning.

Col. Shaw had returned about 1:30 o'clock from a banquet at the Ebbitt house in honor of his successor, Gen. Leo. Bassieur, and before he left the banquet hall had responded eloquently to a toast and appeared in excellent health and spirits. The body was discovered lying face downward on the floor. The features were slightly bruised, showing he had fallen suddenly and heavily. After his return to the hotel Col. Shaw asked for hot water, complaining of indigestion. The water was brought to him and that was the last seen of him alive.

MUST CLOSE UP.

The Jointists of Topeka, Kan., Given Until Next Friday to Quit Business.

Topeka, Kan., Feb. 11.—Three thousand male citizens of Topeka, in mass meeting here Sunday, decided that the numerous joints of the city must close their places. They issued an ultimatum giving the jointists till Friday, next at 12 o'clock noon to quit business. If this is not done warning was given that a thousand armed men would immediately move on the joints and remove them by force. Sunday's action is the result of the crusade started in Topeka less than ten days ago by Mrs. Carrie Nation.

The ultimatum commanded the officers of the city and county to perform their duty regarding the closing of the joints. The officers were warned that they had waited long enough.

Still More Counterfeiting.

The Secret Service has unearthed another band of counterfeiters, and secured a large quantity of bogus bills, which are so cleverly executed that the average person would never suspect them of being spurious. Things of great value are always selected for imitation, notably Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which has many imitators, but few equals for disorders like indigestion, dyspepsia, constipation, nervousness and general debility. Always go to reliable druggists who have the reputation of giving what you ask for.

A Decision Reversed.

Mr. Dennis Meehan, at one time in the gun business at 99 Minden Lane, New York, wrote: "Your Lotion has cured me of Chronic Eczema, with which I have been afflicted three years, and which, after being in different hospitals eleven weeks, the physicians pronounced incurable. Your Lotion quickly relieved me of the terrible itching, and in five weeks I was as well as ever." This is one of many instances in which Palmer's Lotion has effected a complete cure after the case had been abandoned by the physicians treating it. If your druggist does not have it, write to Solon Palmer, 374 Pearl Street, New York, for samples of Palmer's Lotion and Lotion Soap.

Six Million a Year.

Did you ever stop to consider what a million means? Multiply this six times and it shows you how popular Cascarets are and what great merit they possess. For, last year over six million boxes of this wonderful medicine for liver and bowels were sold in this country alone. The American people know a good thing. The sales of Cascarets prove it. The medicine is the best for the bowels, the price right, 10c, 25c and 50c a box, and a 50c box is a whole month's treatment for the worst kind of a case. It is a pleasure to advertise a medicine like this as well as to endorse the makers and ask readers to buy it.

A SILENT RELIGION.

Dr. Talmage Sets Forth Its Evils in His Sermon.

Duty of Christians to Speak Out Heartily on the Side of Righteousness—Casting Out the Dumb Spirit.

[Copyright, 1901, by Louis Klopsch, N. Y.]

In this discourse Dr. Talmage calls for a more demonstative religion and a hearty speaking out on the right side of everything; text, Mark 9:25: "Thou dumb and deaf spirit, I charge thee, come out of him."

Here was a case of great domestic anguish. The son of the household was possessed of an evil spirit, which, among other things, paralyzed his tongue and made him speechless. When the influence was on the patient, he could not say a word—articulation was impossible. The spirit that captured this member of the household was a dumb spirit—so called by Christ—a spirit abroad to-day and as lively and potent as in the New Testament times. Yet in all the realms of sermondom I cannot find a discourse concerning this dumb devil which Christ charged upon in my text, saying: "Come out of him."

There has been much destructive superstition abroad in the world concerning possession by evil spirits. Under the form of belief in witchcraft, this delusion swept the continents. Persons were supposed to be possessed with some evil spirit, which made them able to destroy others. In the sixteenth century in Geneva 1,500 persons were burned to death as witches. In one neighborhood of France 1,000 persons were burned. In two centuries 200,000 persons were slain as witches. So mighty was the delusion that it included among its victims some of the greatest intellects of all time, such as Chief Justice Matthew Hale and Sir Edward Coke, and such renowned ministers of religion as Cotton Mather, one of whose books, Benjamin Franklin said, shaped his life—and Richard Baxter, and Archbishop Cranmer and Martin Luther; and, among writers and philosophers, Lord Bacon. That belief, which has become the laughing stock of all sensible people, counted its disciples among the wisest and best people of Sweden, Germany, England, France, Spain and New England. But while we reject witchcraft, any man who believes the Bible must believe that there are diabolical agencies abroad in the world. While there are ministering spirits to bless there are infernal spirits to hinder, to poison and to destroy. Christ was speaking to a spiritual existence when, standing before the afflicted one of the text, he said: "Thou dumb and deaf spirit, come out of him."

Against this dumb devil of the text I put you on your guard. Do not think that this agent of evil has put his blight on those who, by omission of the vocal organs, have had the golden gates of speech bolted and barred. Among those who have never spoken a word are the most gracious and lovely and talented souls that were ever incarnated. The chaplains of the asylums for the dumb can tell you enchanting stories of those who never called the name of father or mother or child, and many of the most devout and prayerful souls will never in this world speak the name of God or Christ.

There has been apotheosization of silence. Some one has said silence is golden, and sometimes the greatest triumph is to keep your mouth shut. But sometimes silence is a crime and the direct result of the baleful influence of the dumb devil of our text. There is hardly a man or woman who has not been present on some occasion when the Christian religion became a target for raillery. Perhaps it was over in the store some day when there was not much going on, and the clerks were in a group, or it was in the factory at the noon spell, or it was out on the farm under the trees while you were resting, or it was in the clubroom, or it was in a social circle, or it was in the street on the way home from business, or it was on some occasion which you remember without my describing it. Some one got the laugh on the Bible and caricatured the profession of religion as hypocrisy, or made a pun out of something that Christ said. The laugh started, and you joined in, and not one word of protest did you utter. What kept you silent? Modesty? No. Incapacity to answer? No. Lack of opportunity? No. It was a blow on both your lips by the wing of the dumb devil. If some one should malign your father or mother or wife or husband or child, you would flush up quick and either with an indignant word or doubled up fist make response. And yet here is our Christian religion which has done so much for you and so much for the world that it will take all eternity to celebrate it, and yet when it was attacked you did not so much as say: "I differ. I object. I am sorry to hear you say that. There is another side to this." You Christian people ought in such times as these to go armed, not with earthly weapons, but with the sword of the spirit. You ought to have four or five questions with which you could confound any man who attacks Christianity. A man 90 years old was telling me how he put to flight a scoffer. My aged friend said to the skeptic: "Did you ever read the history of Joseph in the Bible?" "Yes," said the man, "it is a fine story, and as interesting a story as I ever read." "Well, now," said my old friend, "suppose the account of Joseph stopped half way?" "Oh," said the man, "then it would not be entertaining." "Well, now," said my friend, "we have in this world only half of everything, and do you not think that when we hear the last half things may be consistent, and that then we may find that God was right?"

Oh, friends, better load up with a few interrogation points! You cannot afford to be silent when God and the Bible and the things of eternity are assailed. Your silence gives consent to the bombardment of your Father's house. You allow a slur to be cast on your mother's dying pillow. In behalf of the Christ, who for you went through the agonies of assassination on the rocky bluff back of Jerusalem, you dared not face a sickly joke. Better load up with a few questions, so that next time you will be ready. Say to the scoffer: "My dear sir, will you tell me what makes the difference between the condition of woman in China and in the United States? What do you think of the sermon on the mount? How do you like the golden rule laid down in the Scriptures? Are you in favor of the Ten Commandments? In your large and extensive reading have you come across a lovelier character than Jesus Christ? Will you please to name the triumphant deathbeds of infidels and atheists? How do you account for the fact that among the out and out believers in Christianity were such persons as Benjamin Franklin, John Ruskin, Thomas Carlyle, Babington, Macaulay, William Penn, Walter Scott, Charles Kingsley, Horace Bushnell, James A. Garfield, Robert E. Lee, Stonewall Jackson, Admiral Foote, Admiral Farragut, Ulysses S. Grant, John Milton, William Shakespeare, Chief Justice Marshall, John Adams, Daniel Webster, George Washington? How do you account for their fondness for the Christian religion? Among the innumerable colleges and universities of the earth will you name me three started by infidels and now supported by infidels? Down in your heart are you really happy in the position you occupy antagonistic to the Christian religion? When do you have the most rapturous views of the next world?" Go at him with a few such questions, and he will get so red in the face as to suggest apoplexy, and he will look at his watch and say he has an engagement and must go. You will put him in a sweat that will beat a Turkish bath. You will put him on a rout compared with which our troops at Bull Run made no time at all. Arm yourself not with arguments, but interrogation points, and I promise you victory. Shall such a man as you, shall such a woman as you, surrender to one of the meanest spirits that ever smoked up from the pit—the dumb devil spoken of in the text?

But then there are occasions when this particular spirit that Christ exorcised when He said: "I charge thee to come out of him," takes people by the wholesale. In the most responsive religious audience have you noticed how many people are sing at all? They have a book, and they have a voice, and they know how to read. They know many of the tunes, and yet are silent while the great raptures of music pass by. Among those who sing not one out of a hundred sings loud enough to hear his own voice. They hum it. They give a sort of religious grunt. They make the lips go, but it is inaudible. With a voice strong enough to stop a street car one block away all they can afford in the praise of God is about half a whisper. With enough sopranos, enough altos, enough bassos to make a small heaven between the four walls they let the opportunity go by unimproved. The volume of voice that ascends from the largest audience that ever assembled ought to be multiplied two thousandfold. But the minister rises and gives out the hymn, the organ begins, the choir or precentor leads, the audience are standing so that the lungs may have full expansion, and a mighty harmony is about to ascend when the evil spirit spoken of in my text—the dumb devil—spreads his two wings, one over the lips of one half the audience and the other wing over the lips of the other half of the audience, and the voices roll back into the throats from which they started, and only here and there anything is heard, and nine-tenths of the holy power is destroyed, and the dumb devil, as he flies away, says: "I could not keep Isaac Watts from writing that hymn, and I could not keep Lowell Mason from composing the tune to which it is set, but I smote into silence or half silence the lips from which it would have spread abroad to bless neighborhoods and cities and then mount the wide open heavens." Give the long meter doxology the full support of Christendom, and those four lines would take the whole earth for God.

That hymn, "Oh, For a Thousand Tongues to Sing," was suggested to Charles Wesley by Peter Bohler, who, after his conversation, said: "I had better keep silent about it." "No," said Wesley, "if you had 10,000 tongues you had better use them for Christ." And then that angel of hymnology penned the words:

> Oh, for a thousand tongues to sing
> My dear Redeemer's praise,
> The glories of my God and King,
> The triumphs of His grace!
> Jesus, the name that calms our fears,
> That bids our sorrows cease;
> 'Tis music in the sinner's ears;
> 'Tis life and health and peace.

While much of the modern music is a religious dog-rel, a consecrated nonsense, a sacred imbecility, I would like to see some great musicians of our time lift the baton and marshal "Luther's Judgment Hymn," "Yarmouth," "Dundee," "Artel," "Battle street," "Uxbridge," "Pleyel's Hymn," "Harwell," "Antioch," "Mount Pisgah" and "Coronation," with a few regiments of mighty tunes made in our own time, and storm Asia, Africa and America for the kingdom of God. But the first thing to do is to drive out the dumb devil of the text from all our churches.

We do not, however, let us lose ourselves in generalities. Not one of us but has had our lives sometimes touched by the evil spirit of the text—this awful dumb devil. We had just one opportunity of saying a Christian word that might have led a man or woman into a Christian life. The opportunity was fairly put before us. The word of invitation or consolation or warning came to the inside gate of the mouth, but there it halted. Some hindering power locked the jaws together so that they did not open. The tongue lay flat and still in the bottom of the mouth as though struck with paralysis. We were mute. Though God had given us the physiological apparatus for speech and our lungs were filled with air which by the command of our will could have made the larngeal muscles move and the vocal organs vibrate, we were wickedly and fatally silent. For all time and eternity we missed our chance, or it was a prayer meeting, and the service was thrown open for prayer and remarks, and there was a dead halt—everything silent as a graveyard at midnight. Indeed, it was a graveyard and midnight. An embarrassing pause took place that put a wet blanket on all the meeting. Men, bold enough on business exchange or in worldly circles, shut their eyes as though they were praying in silence, but they were not praying at all. They were busy hoping somebody else would do his duty. The women fussed, and under the awful pause and made their fans more rapidly flutter. Some brother, with no gold, coughed, for that sound trying to fill up the time, and the meeting was slain. But what killed it? The dumb devil. This is the way I account for the fact that the stupidest places on earth are some prayer meetings. I do not see how a man can keep any grace if he regularly attends them. They are spiritual refrigerators. Religion kept on ice. How many of us have lost occasions of usefulness? In a sculptor's studio stood a figure or the god Opportunity. The sculptor had made the hair fall down over the face of the statue so as to completely cover it, and there were wings to the feet. When asked why he so represented Opportunity, the sculptor answered: "The face of the statue is thus covered because we do not recognize Opportunity when it comes, and the wings to the feet show that Opportunity is swiftly gone.

But do not let the world deride the church because of all this, for the dumb devil is just as conspicuous in the world. The great political parties assemble at the proper time to build platforms for the candidates to stand on. A committee of each party is appointed to make the platform. After proper deliberation, the committees come in with a ringing report—"Whereas," and "Whereas," and "Whereas." Proclamations all shaped with the one idea of getting the most votes. All expression in regard to the great moral evils of the country ignored. No expression in behalf of temperate living, for that would lose the vote of the liquor traffic. No expression in regard to the universal attempt at the demolition of the Lord's day. No recognition of God in the history of nations, for that would lose the vote of atheists. But "Whereas," and "Whereas," and "Whereas." Nine cheers will be given for the platform. The dumb devil of the text puts one wing over one platform and the other wing over the other platform. Those great conventions are opened with prayer by their chaplains. If they avoided platitudes and told the honest truth in their prayers they would say: "O Lord, we want to be postmasters and consuls and foreign ministers and United States district attorneys. For that we are here, and for that we will strive till the election next November. Give us office, or we die. Forever and ever, amen." The world, to say the least, is no better than the church on this subject of silence at the wrong time. In other words, is it not time for Christianity to become pronounced? Aggressive as never before? Take sides for God and sobriety and righteousness. "If the Lord be God, follow Him." Have you opportunity of rebuking a sin? Rebuke it. Have you a chance to cheer a disheartened soul? Cheer it. Have you a useful word to speak? Speak it.

Be out and out, up and down for righteousness. If your ship is afloat on the Pacific ocean of God's mercy, hang out your colors from the mast-head. Show your passport, if you have one. Do not smuggle your soul into the harbor of Heaven. Speak out for God! Close up the chapter of lost opportunities and open a new chapter. Before you get to the door on your way out shake hands with some one and ask him to join you on the road to Heaven. Do not drive up to Heaven in a two-wheeled "sulky" with room only for one, and that yourself, but get the biggest Gospel wagon you can find and pile it full of friends and neighbors and shout till they hear you all up and down the skies: "Come with us, and we will do you good, for the Lord hath promised good concerning Israel." The opportunity for good which you may consider insignificant may be tremendous for results, as when on the sea Capt. Haldane swore at the ship's crew with an oath that wished them all in perdition, and a Scotch sailor touched his cap and said: "Captain, God hears prayer, and we would be badly off if your wish were answered." Capt. Haldane was convicted by the sailor's remark and converted and became the means of the salvation of his brother Robert, who had been an infidel, and then Robert became a minister of the Gospel, and under his ministry the godless Felix Neff became the world-renowned missionary of the cross, and the worldly Merle d'Aubigne became the author of "The History of the Reformation" and will be the glory of the church for all ages. Perhaps you may do as much as the Scotch sailor who just tipped his cap and used one broken sentence by which the captain and the hearers are still resounding with potent influences. Do something for God, and do it right away or you will never do it at all.

> Time flies away fast;
> The while we never remember;
> How soon our life here
> Grows old with the year
> That dies with the next December!

FIFTY-SIXTH CONGRESS.

Second Session.

Washington, Feb. 6.—Senate.—The senate Tuesday passed the District of Columbia appropriation bill and partially considered the bill making appropriations for the support of the West Point military academy. During the day the ship subsidy bill, by a vote of the senate, was formally laid aside and superceded as the unfinished business.

House.—The house continued discussion of controverted questions in connection with the post office appropriation bill. Mr. Griggs (Ga.) spoke against organizations of postal employes formed with a view to forcing legislation in their interest. Mr. Moody (Mass.) discussed the question of railway mail pay from the standpoint of a member of the joint postal commission. Mr. Bromwell (O.) and Mr. Gaines (Tenn.) assailed the appropriations for special mail facilities from New York to New Orleans, and Mr. Catchings (Miss.) and Mr. Meyer (La.) defended these appropriations.

Washington, Feb. 7.—Senate.—The war revenue reduction bill was under discussion in the senate less than an hour Wednesday. Determined, but unsuccessful effort was made to reduce the tax on bank checks and to provide that telegraph and express companies should bear the burden of the tax on messages and packages sent. The finance committee's amendment levying a tax on transactions in so-called "bucket shops," modifying the tax upon cigars and cigarettes and providing for a rebate on unbroken packages of tobacco in addition to several others of minor character were adopted. An amendment substituting an income tax for the war revenue measure was rejected by a party vote—21 to 28. The bill was then passed. The military academy bill was passed.

House.—Debate on the post office appropriation bill consumed another day. It was agreed before adjournment that the debate should close Thursday at 12:30 p. m., when the votes should be taken upon the several amendments which are pending.

Washington, Feb. 8.—Senate.—The senate had both day and night sessions Thursday. At the day session the pension appropriation bill, appropriating $144,000,000, was passed after a few minutes' consideration. The ship subsidy bill was then taken up. Mr. Morgan opposed it in vigorous language. He asked Mr. Allison for an estimate of the appropriations for the present session, and the latter replied that he thought the aggregate would be $230,000,000. Mr. Hale expressed the opinion that the figures would be nearly $800,000,000.

House.—The post office appropriation bill, debate on which has consumed almost an entire week in the house, was passed Thursday. The debate hovered about three topics, railway mail pay, pneumatic tube service and special fast mail facilities, but it bore no fruit. The amendment to reduce the rate of railway mail pay was ruled out on a point of order, the amendment to continue the pneumatic tube service in New York, Boston and Philadelphia was abandoned. The house then took up the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill. Mr. Hill, chairman of the committee on foreign affairs, explained that the bill carries $1,805,808.

Washington, Feb. 9.—Senate.—An ineffectual effort was made in the senate Friday to secure an agreement upon a time for a final vote upon the shipping bill. Vigorous protests were made by opponents of the measure against any such agreement, even for a date in the indefinite future. The naval appropriation bill was considered the rest of the day, the shipping bill being laid aside informally. The naval bill had not yet been acted on when the senate adjourned.

House.—Friday the house passed 184 private pension bills. In all, the house at this session has passed about 900 bills, a number considerably exceeded in the Fifty-first. A general pension bill was passed to restore to the pension rolls widows of soldiers of the rebellion who subsequently married and became widowed or divorced. A bill was passed to amend the act creating the Mississippi river commission so as to require the meetings of the commission to be held at some city along the line of the river. At 5:40 the house adjourned.

Washington, Feb. 11.—Senate.—No business of importance was transacted in the senate Saturday.

House.—Gen. Grosvenor Saturday presented a petition to the house from the storekeepers and gaugers in the Eleventh Ohio internal revenue district praying for an appropriation by congress to enable them to employ their vacations without loss of salary. Representative Tayler introduced a bill to confirm the private land claim in New Mexico of Arroyo de San Lorenzo made to Antonio Chaves. It appears that about ten years ago the estate of Chas. D. Arms, of Youngstown, bought a portion of this land, paying therefor about $100,000, and Tayler's resolution is in the interest of the heirs of that state.

Patti Will Sell Her Estate.

London, Feb. 11.—Mme Adelina Patti (Baronness Cederatrom) will sell her beautiful estate Craig-y-Nos at auction June 18 unless it is previously disposed of at private sale.

Prominent Men Held.

Alton, Ill., Feb. 11.—Willis I. Fairman and John Boals were arrested by Sheriff Rotz on the county charges and taken to the county jail at Edwardsville. Fairman is a prominent lawyer, while Boals is manager of the Alton planing mills.

Denied in Mexico.

Mexico City, Feb. 11.—Bankers deny there is any present probability of the country adopting a gold basis, and that no loan for that purpose is in contemplation, as reported in a telegram from New York.

INTERESTING STATE NEWS.

HENRY YOUTSEY.

He Has Entered Upon His Term of Life Imprisonment in the Kentucky Penitentiary.

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 7.—Henry Youtsey, who was sentenced by Judge Cantrill at Georgetown Tuesday, entered upon his term of life imprisonment in the penitentiary Wednesday. Youtsey is the first one of the Goebel assassination suspects to suffer penitentiary imprisonment. His wife accompanied him to the prison doors. Later she called to see him and was almost prostrated when she saw him in prison garb.

Youtsey said to the warden upon entering the prison: "I ought not to be here, but as long as I am here I shall make you a good prisoner."

Jim Howard was returned from Louisville and ex-Secretary of State Caleb Powers, from Georgetown, was placed in jail here.

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 8.—Henry E. Youtsey, who entered on his term of life imprisonment Wednesday, was assigned to work Thursday in the dining room. Youtsey will become a member of the Christian Endeavor society Sunday.

TWO MEN HELD OUT.

The Shotwell Jury Could Not Agree and Was Discharged by the Judge.

Williamsburg, Ky., Feb. 8.—The jury in the Shotwell conspiracy to murder cases was discharged at 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon by Judge Morrow because of inability to agree upon a verdict. The jury was given the case Monday morning, and from the first the ballot stood ten for conviction and two for acquittal. The two men who hung the jury were Henry Finley, an uncle of fugitive Charles Finley, who is now rusticating in Indiana, and Frank Snyder, a Finley adherent. Finley, a reputable citizen, said that the proof introduced by the state, which was purely circumstantial, was not sufficient to convict any one of the five accused Shotwells, and he did not propose to aid in hanging men who had not been proved guilty. Snyder was of a like opinion.

Judge Morrow remanded the Shotwells to jail without bond. A new trial can not be held until the May term of court, as the present session ended Friday.

BERRY HOWARD.

It is Reported by His Friends That He Will Go to Indiana—He is Afraid of the Soldiers.

Middlesboro, Ky., Feb. 9.—Berry Howard, of Straight creek, who is under indictment charged with complicity in the Goebel murder, was here over night. Howard is considerable exercised over the report that Gov. Beckham will send troops for him. Howard said he intended to go to Frankfort and ask mercy from Gov. Beckham, but his friends say he will go to Indiana. He said he had been told that John L. Powers, Caleb Power's brother, was in Indiana, and also that Charles Finley, who is a fugitive in Indiana, was in the Kentucky mountains recently.

Want New Buildings.

Lexington, Ky., Feb. 7.—It was decided by the commissioners of the Eastern Kentucky Insane asylum, at their meeting Wednesday night, to ask of the next legislature an appropriation of $100,000 for the erection of three new buildings—two for white and one for colored patients. HEAD-END COLLISION.

Engineer Killed and the Fireman Pinioned Between the Locomotive Cab and the Tender.

Paducah, Ky., Feb. 7.—Two Illinois Central freight trains came head-end together two miles north of Hastings, on the Memphis division, Wednesday morning, killing Engineer Jas. Wilson, who was mashed to death by the coal in the tender. His fireman, Pink Underwood, was shoveling coal when his right hand was pinioned between the cab and the fender. With a mighty effort he tore his hand from his arm, doing likewise when his left foot caught, tearing both meb ers from his body. He will die.

Dan McClaun, aged 24, a tramp, beating his way to Memphis with his brother, Gus McGlaun, was cut in two by engine wheels. Two Negro brakeman and Engineer Phil Kothelmer and Fireman Morrison were injured. They were brought here Wednesday night.

Engineer Wilson's body will be shipped to Water Valley, Miss., his former home. Conductor Foster overlooked his orders, which caused the wreck, he leaving Hennings nine minutes ahead of time, as he stated himself.

THRILLING EXPERIENCE.

An Insane Man Makes a Desperate Attempt to Take the Life of Marshal Bolton.

Williamsburg, Ky., Feb. 7.—Marshal Bolton, of Jellico, had a thrilling experience with Hiram Tye, an insane man, who had taken to the mountains to escape the officers who were after him with a lunacy warrant. Tye secluded himself on top of a thickly wooded mountain near Jellico, armed with a pistol.

When Bolton appeared Tye began firing at him, and Bolton stepped behind a tree until Tye had fired all of his ammunition. Then he made a run for his man, but Tye grabbed his hatchet in one hand and a knife in the other, and for a long time kept the officer at bay. Bolton finally disarmed his man and brought him here. He was committed to Lakeland asylum Wednesday.

TAXING RAILROADS.

Question as to Whether They Shall Be Assessed for a Franchise to Be Paid County Argued.

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 8.—The question as to whether the railroads shall be assessed for a franchise tax to be paid to the counties, in addition to the franchise tax paid the state, was argued Thursday before the state board of assessment by Helm Bruce, E. F. Trabue and Walker Hines for the railroads, and County Attorneys Davis, of Woodford, Thomas, of Warren; Simmons, of Kenton, and others, who urged that the board certify to each county the amount of franchise tax it was entitled to collect.

The question as to whether the board can assess for former years beginning with 1898 was the principal bone of contention. The board will not pass on the question for several days.

It will be independent of the turf congress. He went to Cincinnati Friday night to hold a conference with turfmen. Improvements will be made at the track at once. There are now 143 horses quartered there and Mr. Green says he is assured of a heavy participation of runners and good patronage.

An Interesting Insurance Case.

Whether the Mutual life Insurance Company shall pay $240,000 on the life of James C. Pearson, President of the Pearson Nail Company, who, it is said was mortally ill when the first premium was paid, will be settled in the courts.

Charles T. Gallagher, counsel for Mrs. Pearson, has already filled a claim and expects a contest.

For several months a Boston agent of the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York had persistently called upon Mr. Pearson and urged him to take out a policy. He did not wish any more insurance and told the agent so. Another man was sent from the same company and he labored with Mr. Pearson without success. Then a special agent attached to the New York office, with a long list of business and social friends a man who is selected to get heavy business when the less persuasive agents fail-presented his card and spent his days and evenings as near Mr. Pearson as possible. He made daily calls about his office and hovered about the Waldorf-Astoria evenings.

Friday, January 4, the special agent called at the Waldorf-Astoria and induced Mr. Pearson to be examined, saying it would not do him any harm to know if he could pass the physical examination. Mr. Pearson consented and and was examined in his room by the company's medical officer. He was then persuaded to sign an application for a twenty-year endowment policy of $240,000, the annual premium on which was $15,000,

This having been done, Mr. Pearson gave no more thought to the matter. At the time he was apparently a strong, healthy man and was considered a good risk. He was so reported by the physician. On Monday, January 7, Mr. Pearson returned to Boston. During the day he felt pains, which he attributed to some slight stomach trouble, but upon reaching home it was diagnosed as appendicitis. The patient was removed to Elliot Hospital, in this city, where an operation was performed Wednesday, January 6th. Mr. Pearson died that day.

In the meantime, according to the testimony in possession of the estate of Mr. Pearson, his secretary, Oliver M. Story, at the New York office, unaware of the serious illness of his employer, attended to the insurance policies. The documents were presented at the office in New York and Mr. Story gave a check for $15,000, the amount of the annual premium. The money was paid on January 8, the day before Mr. Pearson's death.—Boston telegram to the St.. Louis Republic.

Representatives of wealthy planters in the Hawaiian island have been in Kentucky this month contracting with negroes to go to the Pacific islands to work. They were offered transportation, board, clothing and $20 a month. A large number have gone. So far, there has not been any objection urged to the procedure on the grounds of kidnaping Uncle Sam's wards. It is possible that the negro has been imposed upon to the extent of being told that free excursions are run in Hawaii every Sunday, and that Sundays come twice a week there.—Laure Herald.

Mr. Frank Martin living on the pike between Burgin and Harrodsburg, has a prize collection of gray squirrels on his farm. They differ from other squirrels in bu tone way, and that is, instead of making their nests in trees, as is the habit of their kind, they are content to live in a sink hole. Near the hole is a small thicket of young oaks, and here the squirrels climb and play, but show no disposition to alter the locality of their home. It is the opinion of people here about that this is the only colony of the common gray squirrel known to live under ground.—Harrodsburg Sayings.

In buying a cow for dairy it is nearly always best to see her milked twice in succession about twelve hours apart. Then the milk should be carefully tested in order to ascertain the amount of cream, and the cream be churned in order to ascertain how much butter is made; in this way her value as a dairy animal may be known. But in addition she should give a good even flow at least ten months out of the year. An item very essential if the best profit is to be realized.

The man who saves the dry manure but lets the liquids run to waste, is just equal to him who "saves at the spigot and wastes at the bung."

GRANT COUNTY.

From Williamstown Courier.

Several appeals have been taken to the county Judge from the decisions of the late Board of County Supervisors and they will be heard on next County Court day.

Dr. J. M. Wilson was at Frankfort last week and laid before the governor petitions, and letters, and prayed for pardon in the case of his son Eugene who is now under sentence of five years in the penitentiary for the killing of a Miss Cloyd at London, Kentucky, some three years ago. The Doctor is very sanguine that Governor Beckham will grant Eugene a pardon. He has made a very strong case in fact the strongest in letters, petitions and prayers ever presented to any governor of Kentucky asking for a pardon in any case. Ten of the jury have written letters to Governor Beckham asking him to undo their sentence. Almost every man of prominence and many women in Grant have written letters to the Governor praying that Eugene may be released and all citizens in Williamstown and vicinity are praying that pardon may be granted. The governor will act on the papers within a few days.

Ed Lucus and family had a very narrow escape from being cremated in the ashes of their own home, one cold night last week. Their home was entirely destroyed by the flames and when Mrs. Lucus was awakened from her sleep at one o'clock in the morning the fire was falling from the ceiling onto the beds of their children. Hastily wakening her husband they were barely able to escape from the burning building in time toget their children out of the fire. They saved nothing, not even their clothes. All of their household furniture, clothes, flour, and provisions were consumed in the flames. They had on only their night clothes and were in their bare feet, and in this condition had to walk in the snow and with the thermometer down almost to the zero point, to the residence of John Lawrence who lived about a quarter of a mile away. The neighbors and friends of Mr. Lucus made up for him a little over $100 with which to begin life over again. They have four little children, and those who are disposed to help them are giving to a worthy charity.

The Emperor of Germany will send a special representative to this country to select carriage and saddle horses for the imperial stables. This is a new departure as heretofore the German court has bought this sort of stock in England and Hungary exclusively.

A sheep's fleece protects only when it is dry. A sodden fleece is exceedingly injurious, as it chills the sheep in the most sensitive part of its body, the spine, through the center of which the chief nerve of the body runs and from which all other nerves of the body radiate. Thus the digestive organs are controlled by this nerve, as well as all the nerves of motion. This explains the cause of many ailments of the digestive organs of the sheep.

DYSPEPSIA

Caused by weak nerves or run-down condition of the nervous system, cannot be cured by the use of Pepsin, Mineral Waters, etc. If you have ever resorted to this treatment you must admit that the relief was temporary. Common sense teaches us that to cure Dyspepsia, a medicine must be used that will strengthen and build up the nervous system, and in so doing remove the cause of the digestive trouble.

Boulton's Ner-vi-ton

acts gently in relieving the cause of dyspepsia and at the same time builds up the entire system.

Young Women

The entry into womanhood is a critical time for a girl. Little menstrual disorders started at that time soon grow into fatal complications. That female troubles are filling graveyards proves this. Wine of Cardui establishes a painless and natural menstrual flow. When once this important function is started right, a healthy life will usually follow. Many women, young and old, owe their lives to Wine of Cardui. There is nothing like it to give women freedom from pain and to fit young women for every duty of life. $1.00 bottles at druggists.

Miss Della M. Strayer, Tully, Kan., "I have suffered untold pain at menstrual periods for a long time, was nervous, had no appetite, and lost interest in everything, in fact was miserable. I have taken four bottles of Wine of Cardui, with Thedford's Black-Draught, when needed, and to-day I am entirely cured. I cannot express the thanks I feel for what you have done for me."

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXVI. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 20, 1901. NO. 18.

The report of the Commissioner of Navigation on the benefits of the Ship Subsidy Bill brings out the fact that the American Line alone would be helped by the measure.

IN this issue David Haley, of Walton, announces as a candidate for Coroner. He has always been an active political worker, and if elected will fill the office to the satisfaction of all.

It is said that one-half of Chicago's population is going lame on account of having been vaccinated in the lower lines. In many cases blood poison with death as the result, is expected.

An extra session of the Maryland Legislature has been called by Gov. John W. Smith, principal object being to pass a bill reforming the electiou laws by disfranchising the illiterate voters of the State.

THE Illinois legislature wants to reform election methods in that State, and with that in view a bill has been introduced in the House making a candidate, who treats a voter, subject to a fine and disfranchisement.

THE Owen News issued its industrial edition last week, and it was a beaute. It contained pictures of nearly all the business men and business houses of the county. The edition was a credit to the office from which it was issued.

THIS week Simeon E. Terrill announces as a candidate for Surveyor. Mr. Terrill is a son of the late Geo. W. Terrill, and like his noble sire, there is no discount on his democracy. He is a clever gentleman and will make a faithful public servant if elected.

Attorney General McClurg has advised the Mississippi Railroad Commissioners that in his opinion the Southern and Mobile and Ohio railroads are competing lines in Mississippi, and that the proposed combination transgresses the laws of the State. He advises that the question be tested in the courts.

ANDREW CARNEGIE is in a condition now that his annual income is over $15,000,000. He can give away $1,000,000 a month and then have enough to live on very comfortably. Carnegie started in this world with no money and a very indifferent education, and his great wealth is the result of an unyielding determination.

IN this issue Mr. J. W. Kennedy, of Union, is announced as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for the legislature at the primary election to be held April 6th. Mr. Kennedy is and has been thoroughly in accord with the Democratic party on all the political questions that have been before the county, and has been an earnest and able defender of the same. Besides being sound in his democracy, Mr. Kennedy is a well informed man in political economy, and if elected to represent the county in the General Assembly he will rank high as a legislator.

The hemp crop is being broken out and the yield is very satisfactory both in quality and qunatity. Much of it was sold earlier in the season at $4,50 to $5 per long hundred, but quite a quantity of it has been sold recently at five cents per pound, or $5,60 per hundred. This is a splendid price and will probably stimulate the production of hemp for the present year especially as tobacco prospects are not flattering for the future.—Winchester Democrat.

Bees, says the Englishman, Albert Gale, like considerable water. Give them plenty. It saves time for them by preventing them going off to the creeks. A vessel with bits of cork or other floating material thrown in places in easy access to the bees, is a very useful thing in an apiary. A tin containing brackish water is also useful. Bees, he says, are very fond of salt as will be seen by the eager way they search the ground where the liquor from corned beef has been thrown out, the the margins of brackish streams, etc.

Germany spends $194,000,000 in round numbers annually for her army and navy; England is spending $238,000,000 for her present war; Russia spends an even 200,000,000 a year; but the United States appropriates this year $253,000,000 for a naval and Military establishment far smaller than that of any of these countries. Explanations would certainly seem to be in order.

GRANT COUNTY.

It is more than likely that Grant county will be able to collect five years back taxes on the railroads that run through the county on account of their franchise taxes which they have never paid to the counties of the State. The amount that will likely be due Grant county will approximate $20,000. It has only been three years since the Fiscal Court collected $10,000 back franchise tax from the banks of Grant county. If they can make this new railroad collection they will have certainly earned their salaries.

Grant county has 17,850 people 4,000 voters. 4,500 children of school age, $750,000 invested in free turnpike roads, four iron bridges, a $20,000 County Infirmary, $15,000 County Clerks office, $10,000 Jail, a Court House fifty years old, a debt of $120,000, and a tax rate of 65 cents on the $100. We have many other things such as pretty girls, good school houses, fine churches, blue grass, tobacco and fine stock, two railroads, and other things too numerous to mention. In fact Grant county is about the best county of its size in the State, and it is about the right size.

Grant county has five hundred miles of free turnpike roads, nearly all in first-class condition. They have cost the county a stack of money and burdened the taxpayers with a debt yet outstanding of more than $100,000; but after all they are worth all they have cost, as Grant county is rapidly becoming one of the best counties in the State, as its rapidly increasing population attests.

Victoria's Unequaled Influence.

Victoria's reign was so long that even if her own personal agency in public matters had been of little significance she would of necessity have been identified with a marvelous series of events making up one of the most remarkable periods in the history of the world. But Queen Victoria from the very beginning of her reign was a significant factor in public events, to an extent even greater than could be commonly known. According to those very real, though unformulated, usages and methods collectively known as the British Constitution, the sovereign "reigns," but does not "rule" and responsible government is vested in the Queen's chosen ministers, who, in turn, are dependent upon the support of the elected parliament. But the influence of the British sovereign, if tactfully and prudently exerted, may count for as much in certain times of emergency as the more visible and tangible authority of the Czar of Russia, not to mention the German Emperor. And Queen Victoria had for many years past exerted an almost unbounded moral control over the larger policies of the British empire. She was industrious and methodical, patient and tactful, with a memory that was a great storehouse of knowledge of things past and present. She had retained the full possession of her rare power of judgment and discernment up to the very last. A monarch who has seen fifteen parliaments elected, and who had dealt with a full score of different ministers under the headship of ten different individual prime ministers, might be expected to know something of parliamentiary institutions and executive government. Her accumulated experience, indeed, was so vast that the deference of English statesmen to her superior knowledge had for the twenty-five or thirty years of her reign been a genuine rather than an assumed attitude. In her long reign she has seen five Archbishops of Canterbury and six Archbishops of York in office, and in like manner had probably seen an average of five or six changes in all the bishoprics of England. Thus, her knowledge of the organization and life of the state Church, of which in a certain sense she was the head, was profound and valuable. She had seen lord chancellors and chief justices come and go, and had outlived two generations of judges who dispensed justice in her name. And she had known huudreds of sovereigns and rulers.—From "Progress of the World," in the American Monthly Review of Reviews for February.

Frequent Cultivation.

The important advantages of a frequent stirring of the surface soil among all our growing crops, we are convinced is too often greatly underestimated. It is said that it pays to hoe cabbage every morning during the early part of the season, and although this may be carrying it to an extreme, we are convinced that a more frequent cultivation than is ordinarily given might prove profitable. The frequent breaking of the crust admits of a freer circulation of the air to the roots, and aids them to make the most of all the dews and rains which fall. The manufacture and assimilation of plant food goes on more rapidly, and to a certain extent, cultivation is found to be a substitute for manure. Next to actual irrigation, frequent and continued surface cultivation aids most in securing and retaining moisture, and supplying it to the growing plants. More moisture is lost by evaporation through hard, compact soil, than is used by the whole crop. Another benefit derived from the long row system is the almost certain enlargement of the fruit and vegetable garden. The work becomes so easy that a much larger area will naturally be planted.

The State Agricultural Department has received the annual supply of spring garden seed for distribution over the State. Commissioner Nall will send the seed out to the farmers through his correspondents in the various counties. He will, on March 1, issue the first crop report of the year.

The Hopkinsville Kentuckian says that the most corrupt exhibition of dirty politics ever seen in Christian county was that at the Republican primary held in that county last week, where every species of political infamy was resorted to, the court house even reeking with filth of the corrupt gang. A good deal of tobacco is moving now whenever it is in case for handling. The crop is moving off to market at a rapid rate, 500 hogsheads having been shipped over our narrow guage during the month of January, while February is holding up the average or a little better. The prices are by no means satisfactory, but there is no very good prospect for an improvement and people want to get it off their hands.—Flemingsburg Democrat.

A farmer in another county put up a mean job on a hunter the other day. The farmer had killed a fox squirrel, skinned him and stuffed his hide with leaves, then he climbed a tree and nailed the dummy to a limb. A hunter soon came along and spied the squirrel. He shot at the game until his ammunition was exhausted and his gun barrel hot enough to fry meat. He then climbed the tree and discovered the deception. He was so mad that he burned a hole in his pants in sliding down the tree. He left the "squirrel" for some other fool hunter to waste ammunition on.

J. C. Rich, of Kenton, this county, lost six valuable horses, supposed to be from hydrophobia. The suffering of some of them before death must have been excruciating, indeed. One a valuable mare broke the sides in three places of a very secure stable and was found dead in her stall. Two or three days before her death she commenced biting her lips and on the evening of her death she uttered a shriek as though in great agony. The cases of these horses have attracted a great deal of attention in the immediate neighborhood and they are, we think, of sufficient importance to be investigated by the state authorities.—Commonwealth.

Senator Lindsay's Sneeze.

When Senator Lindsay sneezes in the Senate the rafters shake. The Senator is good for about three sneezes in the course of a session. One of these he pulled off to-day. Senator Hale was speaking when the gigantic Kentuckian was seen to double up as though in the throes of a fit. Upwent his arm over his head. His legs shot out like those of a man trying to swim. Then he threw his head back, giving the galleries a bird's-eye view of a face that seemed to be coming to pieces. The body became rigid, and then came the sneeze, Senator Hale stopped speaking. Senator Pettus, who had been napping in his chair, started up. Two doorkeepers poked their heads in to ascertain the cause of the explosion, and the official stenographer dropped his pen in alarm.—Washington telegram to the N. Y. World.

Sheep and Weed Seeds.

A neighbor who has a nice little flock of grade Shropshire sheep came to our ranch in a great hurry a few mornings ago. He reported two of his fine yearling ewes dead and a third one sick. We found the trouble to be impaction of the stomach from eating too many weed seeds. These sheep had been running on green feed till the snow fell, which covered it, and they had to go on dry feed suddenly. He had fed them some screenings from the threshing machine and they got too much of it, which produced in the stomach the same state of things as smut eating does in cattle. A change of food for sheep appears to be the only remedy, as the sick die so quickly after the trouble is observed. Too much care cannot be observed in getting the flock from green feed to dry in the fall and they should have plenty of clean water and salt to aid the digestion of the dry feed. The roughage at this time of year, too, should be the early cut kind so as to be as tender as possible. These three young ewes were quite a loss in this little flock as the young ewes are the hope of the flock, and these were worth at least $6 per head for mutton and more than that for breeding purposes, as they were choice—Exchange.

The ship subsidy job seems to have become a good deal of a joke. When its professed supporters, like Allison and Hale, take advantage of the debate upon it to warn the country solemnly that the national expenditures are reaching appalling figures, the conclusion is inevitable that the confiding Mr. Hanna is the victim of what is known in the inner circles of politics as a "long-distance jolly."—New York Journal.

To the Editor of the Recorder:

I appreciate your consideration for me in one of your editorials last week. You suggested that I gave my article that appeared in that issue a wrong headline—that it should have been, "How the Democratic party left me," instead of "Why I left the Democratic party." Your suggestion recalls the lamentable picture presented in that historic period of the Democratic party.

Something more than a year prior to the memorable campaign of 1896, I saw that the old Democratic ship was drifting dangerously near the financial rock, I warned Democrats through your paper, of the danger ahead. I was not willing to see the grand old vessel go to pieces on this financial rock. I made plea after plea for harmony, but all in vain. The crew was hopelessly divided. Some refused to recognize their captain, Mr. Cleveland. Others favored his command and defended his authority.

Finally a battle was fought on board the old ship, and in the midst of the conflict she struck the fatal rock. The shock was terrible. It ended the conflict, and when the the smoke of battle had cleared away the old ship was almost deserted. The captain, Mr. Cleveland, and a few of his faithful followers were all that remained. Those who mutined against his leadership fled to another and newer vessel, carrying with them many timid ones who had fought on the side of the captain.

The captain, Mr. Cleveland, that grand old sailor, stood firm on the deck and never uttered a word of complaint. His few faithful comrades, the Gold Democrats, gathered around him and renewed their allegiance to his command. He lifted his eyes to the battle ridden flag that still floated over the old ship, and after taking a long, hopeful look, turned to those around him, and said: "Boys, repair the breach, and let us, with the help of God, sail her between Sylla and Cbaribdis, and anchor her safe in the harbor."

The old captain who had remained aboard in her most trying hour and saved her from being wrecked, turned to his faithful followers once more, and said: "Boys, keep everything shipshape until our mutineers return." Those who were guilty of insubordination, deserted the old Democratic ship and joined the excursion aboard the new vessel which had for its passengers men of so many different nationalities, commanded by the new and untried captain, Mr. Bryan, supported by such lieutenants as Altgeld, Tillman, Coxey and Carl Brown, came to grief upon the same financial rock.

Now, after four years of erratic wanderings through the vast waves upon the dreadful sea of politics, the mutineers are deserting the new vessel and its untried commander, and clamoring to be associated again with those men of high principles, noble ambitions, unselfish and patriotic aims, who adhered to the old Democratic ship, with a constancy of devotion unparallelled in the history of politics. They desire to get aboard once more the old Democratic ship where they can commune with the spirits of Jefferson, Jackson, Benton and Beck, and enjoy the society of such faithful old salts as Cleveland, Carlisle, Lindsay, Buckner, and other faithful Democrats who have grown gray in the service.

CARE OF SHEEP.

It is reported that in western Iowa there are one-third less cattle feeding than a year ago.

Common sheep are now worth more per head, on an average, than at any time since 1892.

A good, faithful shepherd, who feeds with punctuality, hardly knows what a foundered sheep is. This cannot be said of those who use the self-feeder.

Don't forget to supply the sheep plentifully with bran, especially where you have not provided roots for them. It is both food and medicine to them.

Don't allow any dog but your own faithful "shepherd" around the barn, or yards now that the ewes are pregnant, or cases of abortion will be in evidence.

Sheep do not like to be kept in too close a place. They like plenty of fresh air and freedom to go in and out at will. They know what is best for them.

Public attention has been called to the amount of the funded debt of the city of New York, which was $389,-905,900 on January 1, 1901, an increase of $31,000,000 over the year previous, and the figures have provoked unfavorable criticism. New York's debt has increased largely since consolidation, but the tendency of municipal debts to grow is not wholly peculiar to New York. Three years ago the net public debt of Chicago was $17,-619,000. It is now $26,332,000, a substantial increase.

MILITARY OPERATIONS.

All the Available Troops to Be Gotten Ready in Two Weeks.

An Expedition Will Be Sent to the West in China—The Soldiers Are Much Elated Over the Prospects.

Peking, Feb. 18.—A few days ago Count Von Waldersee wrote to the generals under the supervision notifying them to have all their available troops ready in two weeks for an expedition lasting 80 days.

Sunday Gen. Chaffee and Gen. Voyron, the French commander, received letters asking for their co-operation and expressing a desire to know what force they can spare. In commencing his letter to Gen. Chaffee, Count Von Waldersee says:

"Owing to the unsatisfactory nature of the negotiations for peace and also to circumstances rendering such a course desirable, it will probably be necessary to resume military operations on a large scale, especially toward the west."

It is not thought likely that Gen. Chaffee will agree to such a plan without instruction from Washington. The French commander, however, is expected to do so. Count Von Waldersee's plans contemplate offering the command of the expedition in the first instance to Sir Alfred Gaselee, the British commander, but it is believed that in view of his recent illness Gen. Gaselee will inform Count Von Waldersee that he is unable to accept the command. In that event it will be offered to Gen. Voyron, provided the French fall in with the arrangement which Count Von Waldersee believes will be the case. Such an offer to Gen. Voyron would have the effect, it is thought, of overcoming the differences which have existed between the French and Germans, because it would be a demonstration of Count Von Waldersee's confidence in the military ability of the French contingent.

Ere long an announcement is expected that the destination of the proposed expedition is Sian Fu. The foreign envoys believe its object to be to compel the Chinese to accept the terms of the powers. It is thought that when it becomes known that the expedition has started the imperial court will hasten to comply immediately with all demands of the joint note.

The military are much elated at the prospect of active service. Many believe the Chinese army will strive to the uttermost to protect the province of Shen Si against invasion.

INSURGENTS SURRENDER.

Villamor and Alejandria Surprised Near Paperia by a Detachment of the 5th Infantry.

Manila, Feb. 18.—Eighty men of the 5th United States infantry and a detachment of scouts surprised the insurgent leaders Villamor and Alejandria near Paperin. Villamor was wounded. There have been further incriminating developments in the charges against Dr. D. M. M. Carman, the American contractor, who with his partner, Theodorio Carranza, a Spanish merchant, was arrested February 6, charged with furnishing supplies to aid the insurgents. Proof has been secured of his dealings with the rebels showing that he supplied them with uniforms, provisions, money and some arms.

Many insurgent officers are surrendering.

INTEREST OF TEMPERANCE.

A Large Mass Meeting Held in Lawrence, Kan.—Seven Jointists Were Arrested.

Lawrence, Kan., Feb. 18.—A mass meeting of 2,000 people was held here Sunday in the interest of temperance. Speeches were made by the city and county officials and other prominent citizens. The officials defended their administration of affairs in regard to saloons and stated that the attitude of the temperance people was responsible for the conditions that exist here. During the day seven jointists, three of whom are women, were arrested.

THE STORY DENIED.

J. Pierpont Morgan and John D. Rockefeller Did Not Purchase Fairmont, W. Va., Mines.

Wheeling, W. Va., Feb. 18.—The story put on the wires Saturday that J. Pierpont Morgan and John D. Rockefeller had purchased all the mines in the Fairmont, W. Va., district, is declared to be false by officials of the companies alleged to be in the deal. The figure given was $14,000,000, and the officials point out the absurdity of the price by calling attention to the fact that the annual output of the district is $12,000,-000.

HUNTING TRIP OVER.

Gov. Roosevelt Arrives at Colorado Springs and Will Return East in Excellent Health.

Colorado Springs, Col., Feb. 18.—Gov. Roosevelt was in Colorado Springs Sunday the guest of P. B. Stewart, who was one of the members of the hunting party in Rio Blanco county during the first three weeks of the hunting. Gov. Roosevelt is in the most excellent health and spirits, and will return to the east in perfect condition for the arduous duties upon which he is to enter so soon. His time until the inauguration will be taken up with attending to his vast correspondence, the accumulation of six weeks. A public reception will be tendered him in this city Monday afternoon at 5 o'clock. He expressed the desire that nothing in the nature of a banquet be held and the reception will be simply a public informal handshaking occasion granted to the people of Colorado Springs by the vice president-elect because of the extremely friendly feeling that has sprung up between them.

Gov. Roosevelt is much annoyed over the hair-raising stories that have been circulated concerning his hunting experiences. To a representative he gave the following statement Sunday:

"No correspondent of any newspaper, no man who wrote to, or gave any information to any newspaper, was within 40 miles of where I was hunting at any time during the five weeks I was out. The sensational stories, such as those describing adventures with bears and wolves were deliberate and wilful fabrications, and, I understand, were written by men who were not within hundreds of miles of where I was. We did not see a bear or a wolf on the entire trip. Aside from lynx and smaller game our hunting was confined to hunting the so-called mountain lions or panthers. I got 12 of them."

DEWET'S COMMANDO.

It is Reported to Be Extremely Exhausted and Harrassed On All Sides by the British.

London, Feb. 18.—The Times correspondent at De Aar confirms the report that DeWet's commando is "extremely exhausted" and "harassed on all sides." He adds: "Unfortunately the heavy rains have handicapped the movement of British troops from the north. The country is reduced to a swamp. The rise of the Orange river behind the Boers, which ought to have been an advantage, has only prevented the co-operation of Gen. Bruce-Hamilton's column on the enemy's rear.

"The invaders get sympathy, but few recruits, except mere youths. They are mainly armed with Lee Metfords."

Dispatches from Pretoria announce that the Carolina commando has broken through Gen. French's cordon westward.

DANISH WEST INDIES.

The Islands Will Not Be Sold to the United States During the Present Parliamentary Session.

London, Feb. 18.—The Copenhagen correspondent of the Times says: From a competent source I learn that the Danish West Indies will not be sold during the present parliamentary session. The syndicate will form a new trans-Atlantic steamship company and undertake other commercial enterprises in connection with the islands, whose excellent ports will be, it is presumed, invaluable when the Nicaraguan canal is finished.

"The negotiations are still incompleted but they will be settled before October, and the negotiations with the United States will then be dropped. Mr. Andersen, a prominent director of the East Asiatic Steamship Co., is among the most anxious to retain the islands.

BATTLESHIP KEARSARGE.

An Accident to One of the 13-Inch Guns While Cruising Off Key West.

Washington, Feb. 18.—A mail report giving an account of the bursting of a shell in the bore of one of the big 13-inch guns of the United States warship Kearsarge has been received at the bureau or ordnance of the navy department. The accident occurred several weeks ago while the ship was at target practice off Pensacola, Fla. The damage resulting is said to be not serious and consisted mainly in the deforming or "gouging" of the lube. This will not prevent the gun being used again. The naval officials treat the matter lightly and say that such explosions occur occasionally. It is probably the first time, however, that an explosion has occurred in one of the 13-inch guns. The pecuniary loss will not be very large.

Skating Championship.

Christiana, Feb. 18.—In the skating championship contests here Sunday the 500 metres race was won by Gundersen in 47 2-5 seconds and the 5,000 metres race by Wathen in 9:24 3-5. Gundersen will receive the royal cup, the gift of King Oscar.

Murder and Suicide.

Crescent City, Fla., Feb. 18.—Dr. W. L. McLeod and his wife were found dead in their residence. The evidence seemed to indicate that McLeod had killed his wife and then committed suicide.

A BUSY DAY IN TOPEKA.

Mrs. Nation Completely Wrecks a Notorious Joint.

Celebrated Saloon Smasher Addressed a Large Mass Meeting of Men and Women and Was Arrested Four Times.

Topeka, Kan., Feb. 18.—Mrs. Carrie Nation put in a busy Sunday in Topeka and as a result the capital city has experienced more genuine excitement than can be remembered by the oldest inhabitants. Mrs. Nation literally crammed the day full of exciting episodes; she succeeded in having the contents of a notorious joint smashed, broke into a cold storage plant where a number of fine bars had been stored away for safety and demolished them, addressed a large mass meeting of men and women, and was arrested four times. The last time that the law laid its hands upon her was when Mrs. Nation emerged from the church where the mass meeting had been held.

Sunday morning at 6 o'clock just as the big bell on the Church of the Assumption tower was striking off the hour, Mrs. Nation, the famous joint smasher, sallied forth from the state house grounds at the head of 500 men and women, all armed with hatchets and axes, and moved on the joints of the city. Nobody but Mrs. Nation knew what plans she had laid.

In the crowd were a large number of students of Washburn college, some of the ministers of the city and a number of professional and business men. The crowd marched in military order. There was no excitement. The men and women were following their recognized leader whom they trusted implicitly. The company marched silently out of the state house grounds, down Kansas avenue, to the place on East Seventh street kept by Mr. Murphy. When the joint was reached the work of demolition was commenced without preliminaries. Mrs. Nation, brandishing a new hatchet, had started the onslaught, uttering words of deprecation against the joint keepers as she deftly sent her weapon through the first plate-glass window at hand. Others followed her lead quickly. Amidst the shouts of the crusaders and the dictatorial commands of the policemen present trying to protect the property, glass was soon crashing to the ground on all sides. Next the door was smashed in with an ax, the interior entered and bar, kegs, bottles, mirrors and everything smashable was attacked.

Her work over Mrs. Nation proudly emerged from the place only to be arrested. She went along with the officer, followed by her band and many people who had gathered. At the police station she was released promptly and hurried back to her work.

She entered a livery barn, in which some bars had been stored, and smashed them. Then at the head of 25 of her stoutest hearted followers she went to the Mooser cold storage plant and entered in the search of some liquor she thought had been stored there. This time Mrs. Nation was arrested by the county authorities and was taken to jail in a patrol wagon. It was afternoon before she was released from jail on bond, and after taking dinner with Sheriff Cook she went to the First Christian church, where she was accosted by an officer with a warrant, and taken to the county jail again. She stayed this time for two hours, and finally her bond was signed by one of the jointists of the city, a prominent Negro politician.

Mrs. Nation was arrested for the fourth time in the afternoon.

WOMEN OF THE UNITED STATES

Regard Peruna as Their Shield Against Catarrh, Coughs, Colds, Grip and Catarrhal Diseases.

MRS. BELVA A. LOCKWOOD, LATE CANDIDATE FOR THE PRESIDENCY.

Mrs. Belva Lockwood, the eminent barrister, of Washington, D. C., is the only woman who has ever been a candidate for the President of the United States. She is the best known woman in America. As the pioneer of her sex in the legal profession she has gathered fame and fortune. In a letter to The Peruna Medicine Company, she says:

"I have used your Peruna both for myself and my mother, Mrs. Hannah J. Bennett, now in her 88th year, and I find it an invaluable remedy for cold, catarrh, hay fever and kindred diseases; also a good tonic for feeble and old people, or those run down, and with nerves unstrung."—Belva A. Lockwood.

Mrs. T. Pelton.

Mrs. T. Pelton, 502 St. Anthony avenue, St. Paul, Minn., writes:

"Peruna has done wonders for me. It has cured my headache and palpitation of the heart; has built up my whole system. I cheerfully recommend Peruna to all sufferers afflicted with catarrh. My mother is never without Peruna. When one is tired and generally out of sorts, if Peruna is taken it immediately removes that tired feeling."

Peruna cures catarrh by removing the cause, inflamed mucous membranes.

Dr. Hartman, the compounder of Peruna, once said, in a lecture to women:

"A great number of women consult me every year. I often have occasion to say to these patients, 'I fear you have catarrh, madam.' They will generally reply, 'Oh, no, I never had catarrh. My nose is perfectly clear and my breath is not bad. I am not troubled with coughing or spitting or any other disagreeable symptoms of catarrh.' But, my dear madam, you may have catarrh all the same. Catarrh is not always located in the head. You may have catarrh of the lungs, or stomach, or liver, or kidneys, and especially you may have catarrh of the pelvic organs."

Mrs. Julia C. Brown, of Peoria, Ills., says: "I have used Peruna in my home for the past four years and am thoroughly convinced that it is a reliable family remedy." Julia C. Brown.

The doctor went on to say: "I have been preaching this doctrine for the last forty years, but there are vast multitudes of women who have never heard it yet. Catarrh may attack any organ of the body. Women are especially liable to catarrh of the pelvic organs. There are one hundred cases of catarrh of the pelvic organs to one of catarrh of the head. Most people think, because they have not catarrh of the head, they have not catarrh at all. This is a great mistake and is the cause of many cases of sickness and death."

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, O.

Career and Character of Abraham Lincoln.

An address by Joseph Choate, Ambassador to Great Britain, on the career and character of Abraham Lincoln—his early life—his early struggles with the world—his character as developed in the later years of his life and his administration, which placed his name so high on the world's roll of honor and fame, has been published by the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway and may be had by sending six (6) cents in postage to P. A. Miller, General Passenger Agent, Chicago, Ill.

A Twenty-Five-Dollar Family.

A strong sense of the fitness of things must have possessed a colored woman who recently applied for the place of cook in a Washington household. The home was exceptionally well supplied with rich furniture and brica-brac, and evidently the woman thought her work should be in keeping with this elegance.

"What is your name?" asked the family.

"Evangeline, thank you," came in reply from the dusky applicant.

"Evangeline, then, tell me, are you a good cook?"

"It's just like this: You see, I can do ten-dollar cooking, $15 cooking, $20 cooking; but—"

There was an undue emphasis on the "but," and Evangeline glanced admiringly about the house.

"It seems to me," she went on, finally, "you folks wouldn't be satisfied with any other than my $25 kind."

The family was taken aback, but managed to recover itself in time to say it might get along with about seventeen-dollar and thirty-five cents cooking for a few months, at any rate.—Washington Star.

THE WORLD'S BEST KNOWN TRAIN.

The Empire State Express—What It Does Daily and How It Does It.

"There is only one train in the country that exceeds fifty miles an hour in speed for 10 miles run, and that is the Empire State Express."—Public Ledger, Philadelphia.

The Ledger might have added that this great train averages fifty-three and one third miles per hour for the entire distance: from New York to Buffalo, 440 miles, including four stops and twenty-eight slow downs; that it does this each business day of the year. The attention which the Empire State Express has attracted in every country of the world has proved one of the greatest advertisements for American machinery and American methods that has ever been put forth, and that the New York Central & Hudson River Railroad Company is entitled to the thanks of not only the entire State of New York, but of every person in the United States from one end of the land to the other for placing before the world an object lesson without an equal.—From the Syracuse Post-Standard.

THE FIGHT ENJOINED.

Judge Hollister Decided Against the Jeffries-Ruhlin Contest.

It is Thought That the Big Meeting Will Be Postponed, Although No Formal Announcement Has as Yet Been Made.

Cincinnati, Feb. 15.—Judge Hollister Thursday granted the injunction against the proposed Jeffries-Ruhlin fight at Saengerfest hall Friday night. The suit was brought by Attorney General Sheets against the members of the Saengerfest Athletic association, the fighters and fight promoters.

Judge Hollister declared in his decision that the evidence of those parties interested in pulling off the fistic battle showed clearly that the affair is to be what the statutes and courts of Ohio contemplate by the term of prize fight.

He declared the proposed fight to be a nuisance, and would be brutal, pernicious and demoralizing. The court-room was filled during the reading of the decision. Ministers, attorneys, Saengerfest directors and fight promoters were present, while a large crowd of outsiders thronged the corridors of the courthouse, unable to gain admission to the court-room.

He cited cases at great length and took up the following points:

1. Whether the proposed contest would be a prize fight under the law and in fact.

2. Whether the proposed fight would constitute a public nuisance.

3. Whether, as a court of equity, he had power to enjoin the fight, there being a legal remedy after its occurrence.

4. Whether, in view of all the circumstances, he should grant the injunction.

Each point he took up at length and decided in the affirmative, fortifying himself with decisions from the courts of many states.

At the conclusion of the reading of the decision, which took two hours and 11 minutes, Judge Peck, for the defense, filed notice of appeal, with exceptions to the judge's rulings. Judge Colston was the first to congratulate Judge Hollister. Then Rev. Drs. Robinson and McKinney and other ministers and lawyers crowded around him, while the Saengerfest contingent, which had been expecting a favorable decision, filed off to one corner of the room. They went off to lunch with Manager Brady. They declined to express their opinions fully.

President G. F. Dieterle, of the Saengerfest Athletic club, said: "The injunction ties our hands. The fight is off for the present, and we have matured no plans as yet.

The Saengerfest people have declared that all the money received for fight tickets will be returned if the fight does not come off.

CHINA'S OBSTINACY.

Believed It Is to Facilitate Preparations for a Renewal of Hostilities in the Spring.

London, Feb. 15.—The Tien-Tsin correspondent of the Standard, writing Thursday says:

"The situation in Peking is again becoming complicated, and the prospects of a settlement are more remote than ever. It is reported that the signatures of the Chinese plenipotentiaries to the peace conditions are not in correct form. It is believed that Sir Ernest Mason Satow will take decisive early action. Count Von Waldersee is reported to have sent an ultimatum to the imperial court. All appearances indicate that China's immovable obstinacy is merely intended to facilitate the active preparations she is making for a renewal of hostilities in the spring.

MAURICE THOMPSON.

A Poem Written by James Whitcomb Riley on the Death of the Indiana Author.

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 16.—James Whitcomb Riley wrote this beautiful poem for the Indianapolis News on Maurice Thompson, the well known author, who died at Crawfordsville, Friday:

He would have holiday—outworn, in sooth,
Would turn again to seek the old release,
The open fields—the loved haunts of his youth,
The woods, the waters, and the paths of peace.

The rest—the recreation he would choose
Be his abidingly. Long has he served
And greatly—aye, and greatly has us use
Our grief, and yield him nobly as deserved.

Perchance—with subtler senses than our own
And love exceeding ours—he listen thus
To ever nearer, clearer pipings blown
From out the lost lands of Theocritus.

Or haply he is beckoned from us here,
By knight or yeoman of the leaky wood,
Or, chained in roses, haled a prisoner
Before the blithe, immortal Robin Hood...

Or mayhap, Chaucer signals, and with him
And his rare fellows he goes pilgrimaging;
Or Walton signs him, o'er the morning dim
Of misty waters midst the daics of spring.

Ho! Wherso'er goes, and whoso'er
He fares with, he has bravely earned the boon.
Be his the open and the glory there
Of April buds, May blooms and flowers of June!

Be his glittering dawn, the twinkling dew,
The breathless pool or gush of laughing streams,
Be his the triumph of the coming true
Of all his loveliest dreams!

JAMES WHITCOMB RILEY.

Mr. Thompson is the author of "Alice, of Old Vincennes," which will be dramatized for next season. He is also the author of a number of other works. He was one of the best known literary characters of the country. Mr. Thompson was born in Fairfield, Ind., September 9, 1844.

Gen. Lew Wallace, of Crawfordsville, made the following eloquent tribute to Maurice Thompson, his neighbor and friend:

The gift of persistence was his, and the pay in results magnificent. Escaping the ruts of the college bred, success as a writer of poetry and prose was his, but not all of him; he became a leading scholar and a Greek, and to know the literature of France like a Frenchman. And still, they were not the total—he grew an all round man, a lawyer, a politician, a geologist, an engineer, a practical genius, in short, on which the community he lived paid rent thousands of interest and enterprises.

Let another penalty of the self-educationist be paid. Well fitted for society bright, genial, pleasant in manner, a conversationalist who knew a world full and had all at tongue's end, he yet shut himself in against the social world, blind and deaf to its every blandishment. He preferred his home, anybody else's home; his books to gossip; despising fashion and scandal, he kept away from them, and was never so contented as when at work in the midst of his family; for such was his schooling that when he had an idea, whether it was a critique for the independent or a book of his own, it made no difference with him if the elaboration was with the kettle singing on the stove or the family in discussion across his table.

Not the least of his loves was nature. He courted her with the fine spiritualism of a poet who had eyes to see her material glories, splendors of the day and night, and also eyes of the soul to look into her mysteries and analyze them, and made them parts of himself, and enjoyed well as worship them. He gave her the days of his youth. He followed her a boy into the wild woods, and by the shore of still lakes and the shaded bank of running streams. She won him his book of books. As a hunter he preferred a bow to a gun; the gun was loud mouthed and disenchanting; the arrow sped away silently and killed without scarring.

BOY KILLED BY A TIGER.

Terrible Battle in a Cage Between the Keeper and the Enraged Animal at Indianapolis.

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 16.—Albert Neilson, a 19-year-old boy employed at Bostock's zoo, in the Cyclorama building, as a helper, was torn to pieces Friday morning by Rajah, the ferocious Bengal tiger. A terrible battle between the beast, standing over and clawing its bleeding victim, and keepers around with red-hot pokers took place. At last the tiger was driven from his prey and the boy dragged out and hurried to the hospital, where he died in a few minutes.

Neilson was employed to help the keepers, and had just been in the cage with the baby lions which he played with and petted as usual. He stepped from the cage, and, it is supposed made a mistake, and opened the door to Rajah's cage, and was inside before the mistake was apparent.

Wellman is a wealthy farmer.

RELATIONS WITH CUBA

Conference Between General Wood and a Special Committee.

The Signing of the Constitution Some Time Next Week Will Be Made an Occasion of Great Importance.

Havana, Feb. 16.—Gov. Gen. Wood left Havana for a two days' rest at Batabano. With him went the special committee appointed by the Cuban constitutional convention to draw up a proposition defining the future relations between the United States and the republic of Cuba.

Judging from the versional opinions of the members of the committee no objection will be raised on its part to establishing the most liberal relations. Indeed, it seems to be accepted as a matter of course that the United States government is entitled to ask for assurances as to the stability of the republic. There is an evident disposition to look upon the outline of the proposed relation published February 1 in La Nacion as indicating what is desired by the United States. La Lucha commented favorably upon the suggestions of La Nacion at the time, and the silence of the radical press has been significant.

The only hitch that is expected to arise between Gen. Wood and the commission in discussing the question is as to the maintenance of naval stations in Cuba by the United States. The other clauses may be somewhat modified, but it is likely an agreement will be reached whereby Cuba shall not negotiate loans on which she is unable to pay interest, and shall not make treaties with other nations prejudicial to the interests of the United States in Cuba, or in any way preventing the island's freedom of action. The United States, on the other hand, will guarantee peace and the protection of the rights defined by the treaty of Paris, and all rights acquired by military decrees during the period of intervention will be respected.

The special committee will report to the convention early next week. The signing of the constitution will be made an occasion of importance. It is expected to take place next Monday or Tuesday, and the foreign consuls will be invited to be present.

La Nacion, treating editorially, February 1, of the condition of Cuba, said:

"That the republic, for a period of two years after the establishment of independence, will conduct foreign affairs through the United States; will make no treaty with any other nation prejudicial to the United States, and will accept no compromise which might give rise to the occupation of the island or to intervention in its customs.

"That the United States for a period of two years after the establishment of independence may occupy forts in Cuba, provided the Cuban flag flies with the American.

"That Cuba will lease to the United States two coaling stations and will give no commercial advantages to any other nation which are not given to the United States; and

"That none of these concessions or promises are to be taken to imply any cessation of the sovereignty of Cuba or any lessening of her complete independence."

REMAINS INTERRED.

The body was afterwards taken to the railroad station, the emperor and archduces following the hearse on foot. The coffin was taken, by way of Carlowitz, to Kruschedol, near Belgrade. It was interred Saturday afternoon.

Anti-Joint Riot Threatened.

Winfield, Kan., Feb. 16.—An "anti-joint" riot is threatened here. The saloon men have many sympathizers who deny that the crusaders have a right to destroy saloon property. FIFTY-SIXTH CONGRESS.

Second Session.

Washington, Feb. 13.—Senate—During the entire session of the senate Tuesday the agricultural appropriation bill was under consideration. After six hours of consideration the bill was little more than half completed. The debate upon the measure dealt almost entirely with administrative details of the department of agriculture, many commendations of the work of the department being made by senators on both sides of the chamber.

House.—The house passed the army appropriation bill and entered upon consideration of the sundry civil bill, the last but one of the big money bills. The debate on the army bill was confined largely to a discussion of the question of passing bills to remove the charge of desertion against soldiers, and was made notable by a statement of Mr. McClellan (N. Y.) comparing the cost of the soldier in European armies with the cost to the United States. According to his figures, including the cost of pensions, etc., each United States soldier involved an expense of $2,823, while a German soldier costs $227 and a French soldier $232.

Washington, Feb. 14.—Senate.—When the senate convened Wednesday the blind chaplain made a beautiful and touching reference to the death of Mrs. Thomas C. Platt, wife of the senator from New York. During the greater part of the day the senate was engaged in executive session and in the counting of the electoral vote for the president and vice president of the United States. Late in the afternoon consideration of the agricultural appropriation bill was resumed, but little progress was made.

House.—The house devoted Wednesday, excepting an hour and a half consumed in counting the electoral vote and promulgating the result of the presidential election, to the sundry civil appropriation bill. General debate upon the measure was completed, but little actual progress was made with the bill. Fifteen of the 134 pages of the bill were disposed of.

Washington, Feb. 15.—Senate—The senate devoted practically the entire day Thursday to the agricultural appropriation bill. The measure was not completed. Mr. Hale (Me.) and Mr. Lodge (Mass.) sounded notes of warning against the enormous appropriations being made by the present congress. A brief night session of the senate was held to complete the wording of the District of Columbia code bill.

House.—The events in connection with the sale of the old New York custom house to the National City bank, which heretofore has been the subject of much comment, occupied the center of the stage during the debate on the sundry civil appropriation bill in the house Thursday. Forty-three of the 137 pages of the sundry civil bill were completed Thursday.

Washington, Feb. 16.—Senate—Friday the agricultural appropriation bill was passed after being under consideration for nearly four days. That the opposition to the shipping bill in the senate will not permit a vote to be taken on the measure at the present was made clear during the closing of Friday's session. For several days it has been evident that it would be difficult to gain unanimous consent to take a vote upon the measure, but not until late Friday was the frank assertion made that a vote could not be had.

House.—Under the leadership of Mr. Cannon, chairman of the appropriation committee, a long filibuster consumed the entire time of the house.

Washington, Feb. 18.—Senate.—At the conclusion of the morning hour in the senate Saturday, when the unfinished business—the shipping bill—was laid before the body, Mr. Spooner (rep., Wis.) moved to proceed to the consideration of the oleomargarine bill. By a practically unanimous vote, only two senators voting in the negative, the motion prevailed. Thus the subsidy bill was displaced as the unfinished business and the oleomargarine bill was placed in that order. After little over an hour's consideration of the measure it was laid aside in order that unobjected bills on the calendar might be considered. Nearly 300 bills, including 197 private pension bills, were passed during the day.

House.—No business of importance was transacted Saturday.

COUNTERVAILING DUTY.

The Belgian Government Will Not Retaliate Against the United States.

Washington, Feb. 18.—Count Lichtervelde, the minister to the United States from Belgium, says his government has not taken any steps looking to retaliation, against the United States because of the continued imposition of a countervailing duty on Belgian sugar imported into the United States.

The countervailing duty on Belgian sugar has been imposed for several years past. Recently, as has been the custom annually, it has been restated or readjusted and this has given rise to the impression that the step was taken recently by this government. The readjusted duty makes little if any difference in the existing rates.

Steel Men Injured.

STATE ITEMS OF INTEREST.

TRIENNIAL CONCLAVE.

Louisville City Council Appropriates $20,000 Towards the Entertainment of the Knights.

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 15.—The Louisville city council Thursday night appropriated $20,000 towards the entertainment of the Knights Templar at the triennial conclave here next August. This is independent of the $100,000 being raised by the local members of the order to provide a programme of attractions for the grand encampment week. It is understood that the city council will later add to its subscription $10,000 for illumination, out of which sum will be erected a massive electric quadruple arch at the intersection of Fourth and Jefferson streets, to cost $7,000. The arch will require 5,000 incandescent lights. A pedestal at each corner will support an immense dome, on which will be placed an immense revolving cross and crown. Large figures of ancient knights in armor will adorn the arch, the highest point of the structure being 82 feet above ground. Thirty-one grand commanderies having state jurisdictions and over 100 subordinate commanderies have already contracted for quarters for the conclave. Fully 10,000 women are expected to accompany the templars to this meeting.

SENSATIONAL DEVELOPMENTS

The Celebrated Merrick Forgery and Grave Robbery Trial Recalled at Cadiz, Ky.

Princeton, Ky., Feb. 15.—The celebrated Merrick forgery and grave robbery trial was recalled at Cadiz, Ky., at 10 o'clock Thursday morning and jury selected. Wylie Jones was the first to testify and he stated that on November 22, 1900, he in company with Mark Malloy, cashier of bank of Eddyville, Ky., who had cashed a check for Merrick for $98, which had R. H. Kevil & Sons' name forged to it, and that Robert Merrick, father of the supposed dead forger, paid him his money; they also met Drs. Chas. J. Pollard and Wade Jefferson there and that the doctors advised that Merrick could be moved to town all right, but the old man begged so hard they left him remain. W. F. Dodds was the next to testify, and his statement was about the same as that of Jones, and court adjourned when some sensational developments are expected to follow.

INDIGNANT STUDENTS.

They Want Commandant W. T. Carpenter, of the Kentucky State College, Removed.

Lexington, Ky., Feb. 16.—Antagonism to Commandant W. T. Carpenter, of the Kentucky State college, resulted in a mass meeting of 200 students here Friday night, at which resolutions were passed demanding that the faculty remove the commandant by February 22. In case this demand is not complied with they resolved to refuse to drill.

The antipathy to the commandant, who holds the rank of major, and is a veteran of the late war, results from what is declared to be too rigid discipline.

Cadiz Wants a Railroad.

Cadiz, Ky., Feb. 14.—At a mass meeting of the citizens of the town and county held at the court house in regard to building a railroad from Cadiz to tap the Illinois Central or the L. & N. railroad at Gracey, much interest was shown. The proposition stands: If the citizens of Cadiz and vicinity will subscribe for $25,000 worth of stock a certain construction company will take the remainder of the stock and put into running operation a railroad within four months. At the meeting all shares were subscribed for except $1,500 worth. There will be no trouble in raising the remainder.

Furnaces May Resume.

Middlesboro, Ky., Feb. 14.—It is believed that the appointment of a receiver for the Virginia Iron, Coal and Coke Co., of Bristol, will be followed by the putting in blast of a great many of the company's iron furnaces, and among the number the Middlesboro plant, which has been closed for one year. The Holiday stove plant here has been taken to Bristol.

DECLARED VALID.

The Kentucky Court of Appeals Upholds the Covington Gas Light Contract.

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 14.—The court of appeals, in an opinion by Judge Burnam, rendered a decision in the Covington Gas Light case Wednesday. The decision upholds the award of the 20-year franchise to the Covington Gas Light Co., holding that the ordinance entering into a contract between the city of Covington and the gas company is valid. Chas. W. Keith and others contested the contract on the ground that the proceedings of the city council at the time of the passage of the ordinance were irregular.

The decision upholds the regularity of the entire proceedings, including the election of a president pro tem. of the board of councilmen. The decision is an affirmance of the lower court.

TAYLOR'S EXTRADITION.

Rumor Says That Gov. Durbin Will Honor Gov. Beckham's Requisition.

Lexington, Ky., Feb. 14.—It is persistently rumored that Gov. Beckham will issue requisition papers for ex-Gov. W. S. Taylor and Chas. Finley, charged with complicity in the Goebel assassination, within the next few days. It is further stated that the requisition will be honored by Gov. Durbin, of Indiana. A close friend of Gov. Beckham has been heard to say that Gov. Beckham had positive information that his requisition would be honored, and that Finley and Taylor would be brought back to answer to the charge. The rumor is creating great excitement among republican leaders.

The trial of these men on such a charge will bring about serious complications in state affairs.

TIN CAN TRUST.

The Louisville Can Co. Absorbed by the Tin Can Combination Now Forming at Chicago.

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 16.—The Louisville Can Co. has been absorbed by the tin can combination now being formed in Chicago with a capital of $10,000,000.

An officer of the Louisville Varnish Co. Friday said: "The Louisville Can Co., which is owned by the Louisville Varnish Co., has passed to the control of the tin can trust, as it has been termed.

"We now have a capacity of 80,000 cans annually and it is the intention of the combine to increase it to 160,000 annually. Louisville will be made the distributing point of the entire south and the only plant the combine will have in the south will be located here."

Over an Embankment.

Newport, Ky., Feb. 16.—At 9:10 o'clock Friday morning a west-bound car on the Dayton division jumped the tracks near the boundary line between Newport and Bellevue, tore down the heavy fence on the north side of the road, leaped through mid-air, and, with its load of human freight, landed in Taylor's creek, 50 feet below. The fact that there was no loss of life when 24 people took this awful ride can not be explained. There were many injured, however, and some so seriously that it may prove fatal.

The Governor's Right.

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 15.—The court of appeals passed on the question whether the governor or the county judge should fill by appointment a vacancy in the office of magistrate. The case came up from Nelson county on the appeal of Frank Daugherty, county judge, vs. Ed H. Arnold, who was appointed magistrate by Gov. Bradley. The court holds that the governor alone has the power to appoint.

Clerk Charged With Theft.

Lonisville, Ky., Feb. 16.—John L. Wilson, for 15 years a trusted employe of the wholesale dry goods firm of J. M. Robinson-Norton & Co., was arrested Friday charged with the theft of about $3,000 worth of silk. In the presence of the two arresting officers Wilson made no denial of the charge and said he had sold the silk to A. Benjamin, a capital manufacturer, who was also arrested.

Drilling For Oil at Iaes.

Inez, Ky., Feb. 14.—The Standard Oil Co. began operating for oil here. The Tripie State Natural Gas and Oil Co. has drilled over 40 strong wells of natural gas near here, and specialists employed by the Standard company say there is no longer any doubt of this being a rich oil field.

Suicided at the Age of 124.

That flock of ewes that the Gasburg correspondent spoke of, last week, has visited this neighborhood several times within the past few weeks.

We saw Hiram Early building a new sled, last week. He says the groundhog saw his shadow, and he knows he will have use for it before spring.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Vosbell entertained quite a number of young folks, Tuesday night of last week. All who were present report a good time.

Wm. C. Hensley sold to Miss Julia Smith, last week, 30 acres of land on Ashbysfork and adjoining the place where she lives. Price, $30 per acre.

Some scoundrel put a skunk in the stove at the school house, last week, and wrote an order on the blackboard for Less Nichols to take it out. However, it fell to Miss Julia Smith and Pradie Acra's lot to move it, which was not a very pleasant task for ladies to perform. An effort should be made to find out the offender, and to see if such proceedings can not be stopped.

The farmers around here say they are going to make up money and have the old iron bridge put across Woolper again, somewhere near where it formerly stood. The work of making up the money will begin at once. John Baiden says he will give $25. If every farmer who travels the road will be as liberal with his money and work as Mr. B. it will be but a short time until old Woolper will have another of the best bridges in the county.

The party given by Miss Lula Jones, last Friday night, showed very clearly the state of health of the town. More than half of the expected guests were kept away by sickness.

B. B. Allphin was not here, but he had some of the ablest lieutenants that any man ever had in a field where there was so much noise and confusion. He will get many votes.

O. H. Lermon has undertaken the removal of the house, known in days gone, as the "Blue Goose" to the rear of the lot. Dr. Bagby recently purchased, to be used as a stable.

M. F. Wingate was up here, his second visit, I believe, and he is going to get some votes. How many, can not be told, as he and his intimate friends are very quiet in their methods.

The contract for putting in the heating apparatus for the graded school house has been awarded to the Peck Williams Co., and the plans for the building are expected to be submitted to the board this week.

Mrs. Emmie H. and Miss Ada Lermoud are suffering with very severe cases of grip. It would be impossible to state how many other cases of grip there are in town, and all that can be said is, "there are ever so many."

Owing to the protracted illness of Mrs. King, mention of which was made last week, Mr. H. C. Dorn may not move his family to Hrrrison this week. The old lady had a relapse on Saturday and the move will not be made until there is an improvement in her condition.

Mr. C. W. Porter had many friends, and they were making capital for him in indignant denials of some reports that some of his enemies had circulated about his standing as a Democrat. When Mr. Porter is somewhat older he will find "that lies like young chickens, always come home to roost."

D. M. Suyder was on hand, but he was suffering with the earache. He said as he knew Mr. Voshell could not be here, he should not endeavor to do any electioneering which was very nice and gentlemanly in him. The contest between Voshell and him, one of incertitude as the people will not open their mouths, not only in regard to them, but also concerning candidates for other offices, saving that of County Judge, for which Ben Stephens is an outspoken favorite.

That redoubtable and unflinching Democrat, J. F. Blyth, was indefatigable and looked as smiling as a blush rose in June, and must have been greatly encouraged. Several, to my own knowledged, have been heard to say of him, "Well, I've never voted for him, but think I shall this time, because a man who can meet me as pleasantly as he does, knowing as well as he does, that I never supported him, will certainly make a good official. There were some earnest workers for him, and they talked out plainly.

Only a few of the candidates missed being here on Diers' great sale day, but there appeared to be enough to go around. John Robert, the Whitson, was in great form and must in time have had some connection with that branch of the Quaker family known as the "Shakers," for every time he was seen he had a grip on someone's hand, wringing it as if the man's vote was in his hand, and he was trying to shake it out. To anyone living around here it seems that as far he is concerned it will be a unanimous thing. All who have expressed themselves about it, say, "of course, I shall vote for John Robert. For whom else?"

A. M. Edwards is making some important alterations in the Phoenix Livery Stable. The office has been enlarged to double its former size and a nice harness room has been fitted up across the driveway opposite the office. The enlargement of the office was needed, as it makes it a matter of possibility for ladies driving to the town to have a comfortable seat while waiting for their horse to be got ready. And it may be well enough to mention in this connection, that there is not a store in the place where any provision is made to accommodate ladies with a comfortable resting place. There may be a chair or so placed in proximity to the stove, but they are generally occupied by men who seem to have no other business in stores out but to keep the stoves warm.

The second unsuccessful attempt to rob the Walton Deposit Bank must have been discouraging to the expert cracksmen, who made the attempt. They could almost touch the booty, but it would have taken, perhaps, three more blasts to enable them to handle it. They had placed their explosives, after blowing off the locks of the two vault doors, so as to blow out the two plates on the safe, on which there are twelve bolts, turning one of which all must be turned. In the explosion one of these plates struck one of the bolts bending it so that the inside vault door could not have been opened in half a day's time, but daylight was coming on apace and the people were astir. All the losses, consisting of damages to the vault and safe, were fully covered by insurance—a policy having been issued so recently as the first of the month. The loss is estimated at $400.

FLORENCE.—We are more than glad to see the interest taken in the Covington and Erlanger electric road, and the movement on foot to bring it on to Florence. By a meeting held at Florence, Saturday evening, the 16th inst., the following committee was appointed to confer with the directors of the electric road; B. F. McGlasson, J. M. Lassing, Rev. G. N. Buffington, Fred Rich, James Kennedy, ——— Sawyers. All the gentlemen on the committee were present at the meeting except Mr. Kennedy, and we hope he will arrange to meet with this committee at their meeting, which will have due notice. We feel confident, with such men as we have on this committee, can convince the directors of the road of the advantages it will be to the road to run to Florence. We were glad to see J. M. Lassing in our meeting and taking such interest, for we feel sure to have the road to Florence will be an advantage to Burlington, and if we get the road to this place, it will not be a great while before it would run to Burlington, the county seat. The census of 1900 shows the population of Boone to be less than it was in 1890. For goodness sake, wake up and try and bring the population to Boone and not let it go away, and try and have a large increase in population in 1910. Now is the time to do it by running electric roads into our county. Just run the road here and you will see population coming to our county, and, the travel will be there in a very short time. Now the road will ask the question, will it pay to run to Florence? We say yes. Why? because Florence has four turnpikes and one dirt road centering here. The Price pike with a good lot of travel, the Burlington pike with a large travel, which would take one electric cars here; the Union pike, would bring all the Union and Beaver neighborhoods, which now go to Richwood and take the Q. & C. for the city, but if the electric road was here the Union and Beaver people could come over a better pike, less toll and could go on the electric road at any time—no catching of trains; and for several miles up the Lexington pike is thickly settled. All would take the electric cars here. Besides the hundreds of people the road would haul every day during the fair, and it is not only during the fair, but for weeks before the fair, men who have business with the fair board. Every year there are several dollars put into the Covington livery stables for rigs to come out here to see about privileges for the fair, and we feel confident that if the electric road stops at Erlanger it will surely split the travel with the Q. & C. road. It is bound to do it, for when the people get down there some will say I want to go to a certain part of the city and I will go down today on the Q. & C. It is certain they will have to compete with the Q. & C. and to do it successfully they ought to come to Florence.

Mr. Abel Carpenter is on the sick list.

Harvey Latham has returned home from the Philippines.

The Ball given by the Odd Fellows Friday eveuing, was quite a success. There were about 60 couples in all, who tripped the light fantastic until the wee small hours of morn. Supper was elegantly served by the ladies of Florence, the tables being loaded with the delicacies of the season. Promptly at 1 o'clock several couples stepped out, ready to walk for the cake, viz: little Miss Irella Tanner and Roy Clutterbuck; Mrs. Elijah Greene, of Covington and Harvey Latham; Mrs. Dr Moffett, of Covington, and John Piatt, of Erlanger; Miss Eva Clutterbuck and Hal Blanton, of Erlanger. The cake was awarded the first couple mentioned, they being children. Mr. Ad Kinerding, of Erlanger, won the cake as the best waltzer.

IDLEWILD—The sick are all improving, so far as I can learn.

Edwin Gaines, a handsome young gentleman, from Burlington, was in our midst, Friday.

There is an unusual amount of sickness in this neighborhood. Scarcely a family has escaped.

Scott Chambers sold a nice string of hogs, last week, at Cincinnati, at the top of the market.

Mrs. Perry Cropper will terminate her visit here Wednesday. She will visit Home City on her way home in Louisville.

Lewis Gaines, of Newport, Ky., has been visiting his father's family for a few days. He returned Monday morning to his part of duty.

Mr. D. Rouse and son, A. B. Rouse, of Burlington, and Harry Blyth and wife and their daughter, Louise, were guests of the writer's family Sunday.

Dr. E. W. Duncan, of Burlington, was calling here, Wednesday afternoon. The doctor will occupy the residence lately vacated by Dr. Furnish, after first of March.

Another family announces its intention to leave this neighborhood, that has been very appropriately called "God's country," on which occasion there will be tears shed. They may be confined to the writers own family, but a residence of fifteen years here, has the pleasures without attachments, being formed that will call for the deepest sorrow at the severing. We will miss these scenes and these friends and our memory will ever turn toward them tenderly. Our best years are passing, aye, have nearly passed. We must go where more prosperity is promised.

The writer in making a business round in the interest of the Farmers' Cooperative Department of Cincinnati, on Saturday, was handsomely entertained by Rice Bros., in their hospitable home at the noon meal, where the table groaned under a menu fit for a king, both for quantity and quality. He confessed with shame, that this was his first visit to them, but if his inclinations are consulted, it will not be his last. Wibur Rice, the head manager of the farm, with Mr. John H. Stevens, has recently purchased, to head their herds of Shorthorns, from an Indianapolis firm, an animal whose sire and dam each sold for $1,000, and he himself is a thing of beauty, two-years old, and weighs 1,400 pounds. Their farm stock is second to none in Boone co.

The 8 acres of land near Florence, belonging to the late John Beutler, is for sale. On this land is a good residence, all necessary out buildings, never failing water and a good orchard. If not sold will be rented. Apply to John Beutler, Erlanger, Ky.

A party of ladies, equipped with field glasses, went up into the court house cupola, Friday, and took a survey of the country for miles around. One of the ladies being the wife of a candidate, it is supposed she wanted to discover how the land lay in the county.

Charles Stephens, who is very much interested, says the proceedings pending in the county court will in nowise interfere with the Burlington and East Bend road as it now exists, the proceedings being for the opening of a new road, and not for an alteration in the old road.

During the illness of Mr. Abe Clore, of Hebron, Mrs. James L. Clore, got her cloak, a new one, exchange for that of some other lady. She take this method of informing the lady whose cloak she has, hoping to bring about another exchange, and a correction of the mistake.

Bro. Lentz is publishing The Lutheran Banner, a Parish paper, at his new home, and from the last issue we take the following:

"Rev. S. E Slater, of Haley, Tenn., has been called to the church at Florence, Ky., lately served by the editor of the Banner. He has been very kindly received and he starts out in his work with ripe promises of good things to follow. He serves a royal people, and the way Uncle Noah Surface has played Santa Claus is only a foretaste of many good things to come."

The matter of extending the Big 4 rail road from Aurora to this city has been deferred. Last week the committee of citizens here having the matter in charge, received a letter from President M. E. Ingalls stating that owing to the large expense the road would not be built to Rising Sun unless the company decided later on to build through to Louisville, Ky., and that question could not be decided for some months. Of course the people here are greatly disappointed, and especially so from the fact that promises made have again been broken. While the building of the road is still one of the possibilities, it would be difficult to find a man, woman or child in Rising Sun who has the slightest faith in such a possibility.—Rising Sun Local.

A man and woman, claiming to be from Cincinnati, applied to County Clerk Adams for a marriage license, last Saturday, but were refused. Mr. Adams' policy in regard to issuing matrimonial licenses to strangers coming from outside of the county, is the correct one, and it is sure to keep him out of trouble. Only a few weeks since a couple of strangers applied to him for a marriage license, and when asked the age of the bride expectant, the would be groom answered, "over 21 years old," but he was nonplussed, when the clerk drew from his pocket a dispatch and a letter from the girl's father, forbidding the issual of the license for the marriage of his daughter, saying she was not 21 years old. Whenever a couple leaves home in search of a marriage licenses, ninety-nine times out of one hundred the clerk who issues them makes himself liable to a prosecution.

There was a very pretty wedding solemnized in the Verona Catholic church last Wednesday morning, when Mr. Martin Madin and Miss Anna Riley, both of the Verona neighborhood, were joined in wedlock by the Rev. J. P. Cavanaugh in a brief and impressive manner. After the congratulations by the many friends present, the happy young couple left for Cincinnati, where they remained a few days, returning to the home of the groom's father, to spend a few weeks, after which they will move to the groom's recently purchased home in the Concord neighborhood, Gallatin county. The bride's attire was a lovely gray. The groom wore a handsome suit of dark blue. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pat Riley, about 23, and a very pretty young lady, and worthy in every respect. The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Madin, is an industrious, sober young man, who has a great many friends.

In the death of John Beall, which occurred on the evening of the 12th inst., of heart disease, the northern part of the county loses a greatly beloved citizen, and all who knew "Uncle Johnnie," as he was familliarly called, mourn his death.

John Beall was born May 26, 1817, in a house that stood near the spring on what is known as the Hawkins land, immediately northwest of Burlington. He was one of ten children, five girls and five boys, born to Jordeu and Alisie Bryan Beall, originally citizens of Virginia. Of the ten children, Julia Beall is the only survivor.

John Beall and Julia Ann Wilhoit were married December 9, 1841. To them were born the following eight children: David Beall, Isabelle Beall, Jordon Beall, Orren Beall, Jeannette Beall, Jas B. Beall, John. B. Beall, Chas. B. Beall.

Uncle Johnnie Beall never belonged to a church, but was a strong believer in religious institutions. He had often expressed a desire that when his time to go came, that his death be just in the manner it was.

He spent his long life in this county, and saw nearly all his associates in boyhood take their departure, and during the last fourteen years he had often been heard remark, "I am living on borrowed time." Ill temper and harsh words were strauges to him, kind words and smiles being pronounced characteristics, and endeared him to young and old alike.

The funeral was preached at the Hebron Lutheran church, last Thursday, by Rev. J. A. Lee, of Covington, and the immense concourse of friends in attenance was a testimonial as to the great personal worth of the deceased.

Mr. James Delph, one of the old citizens of this part of the county, departed this life last Thursday night, after several weeks' severe but most patient suffering of heart disease. Had he lived until the 24th of next month he would have been 80 years old.

He was a son of the late Samuel Delph, who owned the property and died where Tony Bentler lives. He was born near Burlington, and spent his long life in the immediate vicinity of the town.

On the 24th of March, 1855, he was married to Miss Sarah Ann Crigler, a Nicholas Crigler. To them were born two children, a son and daughter, Jerry and Hester. The son survives. The daughter married W. C. C. Rouse, and died many years ago, leaving two sons, H. W. and J. B. Rouse.

Mr. Delph lived to see the passing of nearly all those with whom he associated in his youth, while he noted the never ceasing changes in the face of the country, and many a sigh was caused him by the seemingly wanton devastation of the towering forests about him, and in which he spent so pleasantly many of his juvenile hours.

Mr. Delph had been a member of the Lutheran church at Hebron for 40 years, was a just upright man, who attended strictly to his own affairs and never made an enemy. The funeral was conducted at the residence by Rev. Slater at 2 p. m., last Saturday, after which the remains, were followed by a large concourse of friends to their last resting place. The aged widow, son and grand sons have the sympathy of all in their bereavement.

UNION, KY., Feby., 11th, 1901.

Please allow me to say through your paper, to my friends who have so earnestly solicited me, that the conditions on which I would become a candidate for nomination for County Representative can not be met, viz: that Mr. Jas. W. Kennedy would not become a candidate.

He feels he has so far committed himself that he cannot retire, and will announce himself as a candidate for the place, and in him I can say you have one thoroughly qualified for the place, and who will make you a good official.

The condition reserved was to prevent any possible appearance of strife in our ranks by a seeming rivalry between candidates living so closely together in the same community, and a protection of any rights the preference to leave him in a compromised position.

I assure you that I have a proper appreciation of the support you have offered me, and the great encouragement given me; and all are released from promises, pledges and offers of support, and asked to resume the state of mind and feeling they had before they placed me upon the scene. Respectfully,

J. L. FRAZIER.

TO RENEW OUR YOUTH

Dr. Talmage Tells How We May Grow Young in Spirit.

Way to Conquer the Effect of Advancing Years—The Christian's Heaven a Place of Eternal Youth.

In this discourse Dr. Talmage shows how anyone can conquer the spirit of years and grow younger in spirit; text, Psalms ciii., 5: "So that thy youth is renewed like the eagle's."

There flies out from my text the most majestic of all the feathered creation—an eagle. Other birds have more beauty of plume and more sweetness of voice, but none of them has such power of beak, such clutch of claw, such expansion of wing, such height of soaring, such wideness of dominion. His appetite rejects the carrion that invites the vulture, and in most cases its food is fresh and clean. Leveling his neck for flight, in spiral curve it swings itself toward the noonday sun. It has been known to live 100 years. What concentration of all that is sublime is the golden eagle, the martial eagle, the booted eagle, the Jean le Blanc eagle! But after awhile in its life comes the molting process, and it looks ragged and worn and unattractive, and feels like moping in its nest on the high crags. But weeks go by, and the old feathers are gone, and new ornithological attire is put on, and its beak, which was overgrown, has the surplus of bone beaten off against the rocks, and it gets back its old capacity for food, and again it mounts the heavens in unchallenged and boundless kingdoms of air and light. David, the author of the text, had watched these monarchs of the sky, and knew their habits, and one day, exulting in his own physical and spiritual rejuvenescence, he says to his own soul: "You are getting younger all the time. You make me think of an eagle which I saw yesterday, just after its molting season, swinging through the valley of Jehoshaphat, and then circling around the head of Mount Olivet. Oh, my soul, 'thy youth is renewed like the eagle's.'"

The fact is that people get old too fast. They allow the years to run away with them. The almanac and the family record discourage them. Some of you are older than you have any business to be. You ought to realize that as the body gets older the soul ought to get younger. Coming on toward old age you are only in the molting season, and after that you will have better wings, take higher flight and reign in clearer atmosphere. Our religion bids us to look after the welfare of the body as well as of the soul, and the first part as well as the latter part of my subject is appropriate for the pulpit.

Many might turn the years backward and get younger by changing their physical habits. The simpler life one leads the longer he lives. Thomas Parr, of Shropshire, England, was a plain man and worked on a farm for a livelihood. At 120 years of age he was at the daily toil. He had lived under nine kings of England. When 152 years of age, he was heard of in London. The king desired to see him and ordered him to the palace, where he was so richly and royally treated that it destroyed his health, and he died at 152 years and nine months of age. When Dr. Harvey, the discoverer of the circulation of the blood, made post-mortem examination of Thomas Parr, he declared there were no signs of senile decay in the body. That man must have renewed his youth, like the eagle, again and again.

All occupations and professions have afforded illustrations of rejuvenescence. Hippocrates, the father of medicine, lived 109 years, and among those eminent in the medical profession who became septuagenarians and octogenarians and nonagenarians were Darwin, Gall, Boerhaave, Jenner and Ruysch, observing themselves the laws of health that they taught their patients. In art and literature and science among those who lived into the eighties were Plato and Franklin and Carlyle and Goethe and Buffon and Halley. Sophocles reached the nineties.

You cannot tell how old a man is by the number of years he has lived. I have known people actually boyish in their disposition at 80 years of age, while Louis II., king of Hungary, died of old age at 20. Haydn's oratorio, "The Creation," was composed at 70 years of age. Humboldt wrote his immortal work, "The Cosmos," at 75. William Cullen Bryant, at 83 years of age, in my house read without spectacles "Thanatopsis," which he had composed when 15 years of age. Isocrates did illustrious work at 94. Diontinus Gorgias was busy when death came to him at 107 years of age. Herschel at 80 years of age was hard at work in stellar exploration. Masinissa, King of Numidia, at 90 years of age led a victorious cavalry charge against the Carthaginians. Titian was engaged on his greatest painting when he died in his one hundredth year. How often they must have renewed their youth!

Bat as the average longevity of those in private life and with less mental strain and no conspicuous success is much larger than the average longevity of the renowned. There are hundreds of thousands of men and women now renewing their youth like the eagle's, so that the possibility of such a turning back of years is all around us being demonstrated.

Bismarck, the greatest of German statesmen, a long while before his decease passed his eightieth milestone. When Gladstone was 83 years of age, I ran with him up and down the hills of Hawarden. We started for a walk, but it got to be a run. All those men again and again renewed their youth.

Some one writes me: "Is not three score and ten the bound of human life, according to the bible?" My reply is that Moses, not David, who wrote that psalm, was giving a statistic of his own day. Through better understanding of the laws of health and advancement of medical science the statistics of longevity have mightily changed since the time of Moses, and the day is coming when a nonagenarian will no longer be a wonder. Phlebotomy shortened the life of whole generations, and the lancet that bled for everything is now rarely taken from the doctor's pocket. Dentistry has given power of healthy mastication to the human race and thus added greatly to the prolongation of life. Electric lights have improved human sight, which used to be strained by the dim tallow candle. The dire diseases which under other names did their fatal work and were considered almost incurable, now in majority of cases are conquered. Vaccination, which has saved millions of lives and balked the greatest scourge of nations, and surgery, which has advanced more than any other science, have done more than can be told for the prolongation of human life. The X ray has turned the human body, which was opaque, into a lighted castle. It is easier in this age to renew one's youth than in any other age. When Paul stopped the jailer from suicide by commanding, "Do thyself no harm," he showed himself interested in the physical as well as moral life of man. Among the blessings which God promised was that in which he said, "With long life will I satisfy thee," and David, in my text, illustrates the possibility of palingenesis or rejuvenescence.

But the body is the smallest and least important part of you. It is your soul that most needs rejuvenation, but you will also help bodily vivification. In order to do this, I advise you to banish as far as possible all fretfulness out of your life. The doing of that will make you ten years younger. I know many good Christian people who are worrying themselves out in managing the affairs of the universe. They have undertaken too big a job. They are trying to drive too long and fiery a team. They have all the affairs of church and state on hand, and they fret about this, and fret about that, and fret about the other thing. They fear there will be a dividing up among the nations, and there will be an entanglement causing wars such as we have never heard of. They fear that Edward VII. will not be as wise a king as his mother was a queen. They are appalled at the accumulated national debt. They fear society is going to pieces by reason of immoralities. They apprehend that America will be overcrowded with foreigners. They say the newspapers are getting so bad that the country is going to be utterly demoralized. They are all the time apprehensive of social and religious and political calamities, and it is telling on their mental health, depressing their physical health, and instead of renewing their youth like the eagle's, they are imitating the eagle who would sit in his nest of sticks lined with grass on the rock, mourning about the woes of the ornithological world, the loneliness of the pelican, the filthiness of the vulture, the croak of the raven, the recklessness of the albatross. Would that improve things? No. It would be a molting process for that eagle which would never close, and it would only get thinner and more gloomy and less able to gain food for its young and less able to enjoy a landscape as it appears under a 20-mile flight on a summer morning under the blue heavens.

I do not advise you to be indifferent to these great questions that pertain to church and state and nations, but not to fret about them. Realize that it is not an anarchy that has charge of affairs in this world, but a Divine government. At the head of this universe is a King whose eyes is omniscience and whose arm is omnipotence and whose heart is infinite love. His government is not going to be a failure. He cannot be defeated. Better trust Him in the management of His world and of all worlds. All you and I have to do is to accomplish the work that is put in our hands. That is all that we have to be responsible for. In a well managed orchestra the players upon stringed instruments do not watch each other. The cornetist does not look to see how the violinist is drawing the bow over the strings, nor does the flute scrutinize the drum. They all watch the baton of the leader. And we are all carrying our part, however insignificant it may be, in the great harmony of this world and of the universe which our Lord is leading, and we all have to watch His command and do our best and not bother ourselves about the success or failure of other performers. If you want to renew your youth, better stop managing the affairs of the universe.

Mythology tells us that Jason begged Medea, the goddess, to take some of the years of his life and give them to his father. She promised that without abbreviating the sons life she would prolong his father's life. She filled the caldron with herbs and the blood of beasts and birds and then stirred the caldron and put some of the juices in the mouth of the aged father, and it is said that his hair turned from white to black, the shriveled limbs rounded into robust health and the rejuvenated man felt as he did at 40 years of age. All that is a poetic myth. But a brightened religious hope and a strengthened faith in God's providence have rejuvenated many a man in disposition and usefulness and renewed his youth like the eagle's. On the contrary, it is thought that worriment is becoming in this country a national disease, and it has been called "Americanitis."

Another mode of rejuvenescence is much of the time speculating with those younger than yourself rather than with those who are as old or older. If you have no children of your own, better adopt a child. There are in this country and in all countries orphans by the tens of thousands. Go to one of the asylums or institutions where friendless children are cared for and select some little one with an honest eye and good disposition and take him to your home. Put around him all the elevating and happy influences you can provide. In two years he will become part of your life, and his company to you will be indispensable. It will make you 20 years younger. He will be an illumination to the evening of your life, and he will speak your praise long after you have departed from this world, and in heavenly places you will have been rewarded by the great friend of children, the Lord Jesus.

My text suggests that Heaven is an eternal youth. A cycle of years will not leave any mark upon the immortal nature. Eternity will not work upon the soul in Heaven any change, unless it be more radiance and more wisdom and more rapture. A rolling on from glory to glory! In anticipation of that some of the happiest people on earth are aged Christians. The mightiest testimonies have been given by the veterans in the Gospel army. While some of the aged have allowed themselves to become morose and cynical and impatient with youth and pessimistic about the world, and have become possessed with the spirit of scold and fault finding, and are fearful of being crowded out of their sphere, many of the aged have been glad to step aside that others may have a chance and are hopeful about the world, expecting its redemption instead of its demolition, and they are inspiration and comfort and helpfulness to the household and to the neighborhood and to the church. The children hail the good old man as he comes down the road. His smile, his words, his manner, his whole life, make the world think better of religion.

I congratulate all good Christians that the molting season will soon be over and you will mount higher than eagle ever ascended. What a good thing that you are soon to get rid of winter's cold and summer's heat and drenching rain and hovering clouds and live in superbest climate of the universe, whether it be this world made over as to atmosphere and contour or in some star which mighty telescope hails from the observatory or in some center around which all worlds wheel. It is all ready and has been ready, as near as I can calculate, since 1,871 years ago, when Christ went up after saying: "I go to prepare a place for you." What a good thing to get rid of this world's vicissitudes and enter upon glorious certainties, and to have no surprises except those that are exhilarant as when Milton may ring a new canto or Chrysostum may speak with a new eloquence or Handel may render a new symphony, for I do not suppose that those who were mighty on earth are going to be idlers in Heaven.

I congratulate all Christians who are in the eventide. Good cheer to all of you. You are yet to hear the best songs, see the grandest sights, take the most delightful journeys, form the most elevating friendships, and after 10,000 years of transport you will be no nearer the last rapture than when you were thrilled with the first.

In Heaven you will have what most pleases you. Archbishop Leighton's desire for Heaven was a longing for Christ and purity and love, and he has found there what he wanted. John Foster rejoiced at the thought of Heaven because there he could study the secrets of the universe without restraint, and he has been regaling himself in that research. Southey thought of Heaven as a place where he would meet with the learned and the great—Chaucer and Dante and Shakespeare. He no doubt has found that style of communion. The great and good Dr. Dick was fond of mathematics, and he said he thought much of the time in Heaven would be given to that study, and I have no doubt that since ascension he has made advancement in that science. The "12 manner of fruits" spoken of in Revelation means all kinds of enjoyment in Heaven, for 12 manner of fruits includes all the chief fruits that are grown on trees. I suppose there will be as many kinds of enjoyment in Heaven as there will be inhabitants.

You will have in Heaven just what you want. Are you tired? Then Heaven will be rest. Are you passionately fond of sweet sounds? Then it will be music. Are you stirred by pictures? There will be all the colors on the new heavens and on the jasper sea and the walls imbedded with what splendors! Are you fond of great architecture? There you will find the temple of God and the Lamb and the uplifted thrones. Are you longing to get back to your loved ones who have ascended? Then it will be reunion. Are you a home body? Then it will be home. Here and there in this world you will find some one who now lives where he was born, and three or four generations may have dwelt in the same house, but most people have had several homes—the home of childhood, the home they built or rented for their early manhood, the home of riper and more prosperous years. But all homes put together, precious as they are in remembrance or from present occupancy, cannot equal the heavenly home in the house of many mansions. No sickness will ever come there, for it is promised "there shall be no more pain." No parting at the front door, so that look at faces never to be seen again, but home with God, home with each other, home forever. And that night after the molting season, when "thy youth is renewed like the eagle's,"

> Wings in hope free
> O'er dawn-empurpled sea;
> Wings 'bove life to soar
> And beyond death forevermore.

In the galleries of congress now nearly all the ladies remove their hats. It is a new custom, but it is one that gives to the sessions of the senate the character of an afternoon tea.

John Sargent, the artist, has put into practice his theory that a painter should never be far from his work. He has rented the house on Tite street, Boston, next to his studio, and has had communicating doors cut through the intervening walls.

Judge A. J. Harlan, of Savannah, Andrew county, Mo., is the last survivor of the Thirty-fifth congress. He has been a member of the legislative bodies of three states and served two terms in congress. It was he, who, as clerk, introduced Kossuth to congress.

Sir Hiram Maxim, according to the English papers, had for years before he became a British subject been "a leading member of a society whose aim it was to induce British subjects residing in America to change their nationality and become citizens of the republic."

WHAT THE LAW DECIDES.

Qualification of odd fellows as jurors in an action by another odd fellow of a lodge to which they belong on a lease assigned to him by his lodge is sustained in Reed vs. Peacock (Mich.), 49 L. R. A., 423.

Right to assess upon the remaining lands of a person any part of the amount of the compensation to be paid him for lands taken by appropriation proceedings, or any part of the costs and expenses incurred therein, is held, in Cincinnati, L. & N. R. Co. vs. Cincinnati (O.), L. R. A. 566, to be unconstitutional.

The fact that a purchaser of a round-trip excursion ticket is unable to read or write, and is not specially notified of the conditions upon it, is held, in Watson vs. Louisville & N. R. Co. (Tenn.), 49 L. R. A. 464, insufficient to relieve him from the effect of a condition requiring the return part of the ticket to be stamped in order to be used.

Appropriation of public money to pay to the widow, heirs or legal representatives of a person who died in office the salary for any unexpired part of his term is held, in opinion of justices (Mass.), 49 L. R. A. 564, to be within the power of the legislature, where the public good will be served by the grant of such a reward, but not where the only public advantage is such as may be incident to the relief of a private citizen.

FROM ENDS OF THE EARTH.

Austria-Hungary has 250,000 nobles.

In 1830 Italy exported 2,000,000 gallons of wine. Sixty million is now her export.

Austria's first measured wool clip was 20,000 tons in 1821. This has now risen to 2,700,000.

In Portugal in 1840 there were neither roads nor carriages. Now 2,000 miles of excellent rond exist.

Belgium has added 3,000 acres a year to its area during the last century by careful drainage and embankment.

Sore Hands

Red, Rough Hands, Itching, Burning Palms, and Painful Finger Ends.

One Night Treatment

Soak the hands on retiring in a strong, hot, creamy lather of CUTICURA SOAP. Dry, and anoint freely with CUTICURA, the great skin cure and purest of emollients. Wear, during the night, old, loose kid gloves, with the finger ends cut off and air holes cut in the palms. For red, rough, chapped hands, dry, fissured, itching, feverish palms, with shapeless nails and painful finger ends, this treatment is simply wonderful, and points to a speedy cure of the most distressing cases when physicians and all else fail.

Cured by Cuticura

I WAS troubled with hands so sore that when I put them in water the pain would near set me crazy, the skin would peel off, and the flesh would get hard and break, then the blood would flow from at least fifty places on each hand. Words never can tell the suffering I endured for three years.

I tried at least eight doctors, but my hands were worse than when I commenced doctoring. I tried every old Granny remedy that was ever thought of without one cent's worth of good and could not even get relief.

I would feel so badly mornings when I got up, to think that I had to go to work and stand pain for eight or nine hours, that I often felt like giving up my job, which was in the bottling works of Mr. E. L. Keras, the leading bottler of Trenton, N. J., who will vouch for the truth of my sufferings.

Before I could start to work, I would have to wrap each finger on both hands, and then wear gloves, which I hated to do, for when I came to take them off, it would take two hours and the flesh would break and bleed. Some of my friends who had seen my hands would say, "If they had such hands they would have them amputated"; others would say "they would never work," and more would turn away in disgust. But thanks to Cuticura, the greatest of skin cures, it ended all my sufferings.

Just to think, after doctoring three years, and spending dollar after dollar during that time, Cuticura cured me. It has now been two years since I used it and I do not know what sore hands are. I never lost a day's work while I was using it or since, and I have been working at the same business, and in acids, etc.

GIRLS SOLD AT AUCTION.

Five Chinese Maidens Disposed Of to Highest Bidder in San Francisco.

Five Chinese slave girls were sold at public auction in San Francisco's Chinatown the other day, as publicly as though they had been in Canton, where such human slavery is a recognized institution. The girls were the property of Gong Gow, an old Chinaman who has kept for years one of the disreputable dens in Chinatown. He wanted to go back to China, so he advertised the furniture and chattels of his establishment for sale at auction.

When the sale began there was a large crowd. The girls were exhibited and the auctioneer enumerated their good points. They stood stolidly by, as they were used to such proceedings, having been sold in Canton before they were brought here. They fetched fancy prices, as the restriction act is so rigidly enforced now that it is difficult to get pretty Chinese girls into the country.

They sold at from $1,700 to $2,500 each, and they were at once removed to the quarters of their new owners, who will begin to draw large revenue from their earnings.

MARKED COIN COMES BACK.

Returns After Twenty-Five Years of Wandering to the Original Owner.

Twenty-five years ago, while working in the blacksmith shop of J. W. Shetter, at Stoughton, Wis., Harvey Hawman, former chief of police of Sioux City, stamped the letters "J. W. S." his employer's initials, on a half-dollar. This week that same coin, without any doubt, was handed to him over the counter of his fish market in Sioux City, Ia. The coin had been worn smooth by constant handling during the quarter of a century. In that period of time it had perhaps jingled in the pockets of thousands of persons and may have traveled miles across the country and back, only to land finally in the hands of the man who had marked it with letters of an unmistakable character.

Never was a man more completely surprised than was Mr. Hawman when he saw the marked coin. In spite of the fact that he had not thought of it since he last saw it, he recognized it at once, and his mind flashed back over the quarter of a century. He proposes to keep it now.

PLANT PECANS.

Agricultural Department Will Seek to Encourage the Industry Among Farmers.

A collection of 15 varieties of pecans has just been made by the director of plant industry of the agricultural department, with a view to encouraging the growth of these nuts more generally. Now almost our entire production of pecans comes from Louisiana and Texas, and from these fields the director has got his finest specimens.

It is the intention to propagate a number of the young plants, both by nut planting and obtaining slips or sprouts from the southern territory which is most productive and during the next year distribute them in parts of the country where it is thought they may be grown.

It is the opinion of the director of plant industry that almost any nut known to commerce may be cultivated in some part of our variable climate, and it is his intention to follow this experiment with others.

Possibilities of California.

With over 75,000,000 of population in this country California to-day stands isolated, with only 1,500,000 of population, but production in many lines sufficient for 100,000,000 consumers.

DEALING WITH CRIMES IN CANADA.

From the Chicago-Times Herald on January 19th, 1901.

"The citizens of the Dominion of Canada have just cause to be proud of their record as law-abiding people. The annual report of the criminal statistics of the Dominion, which has a population of over 6,000,000, shows that there were only twenty-five indictments for murder in 1899, of which only two were left without final action. Eleven of those indicted were hanged, nine acquitted and three confined as insane.

"Canada is a country of vast proportions. Its people are scattered over a wide stretch of territory, making police surveillance particularly difficult and in many districts impossible. Yet a city like New York or Chicago alone furnishes a far greater criminal list every year than the whole vast stretch of territory from Quebec to Vancouver.

"The Canadians ascribe their immunity from crime to the promptness with which punishment is meted out to offenders. When a man is caught red-handed in the act of robbing another he is not released on straw bail by some justice of the peace from the slums, to go out and repeat the offense. Sharp and sure justice is meted out to criminals of all kinds, the result being that when the guardians of the public peace succeed in bringing a thug to the bar they are seldom called upon to hunt him a second time.

"Furthermore there are few court delays in Canada when a criminal is brought to book. They have no Dreyer cases over there. There are no methods whereby Canadian criminals can have the proceedings stayed from month to month and from year to year or after being convicted, appeal from one court to another until witnesses die of old age or opportunities for corruption can be found.

"Nor does this swift method of treating with wrong-doers in Canada leave the innocent unable to properly defend themselves. They have all the opportunities and privileges that our own laws extend to them. The extent to shield the guilty is lacking —that is all."

The above taken from the editorial column of the Times-Herald gives some idea of the immunity from crime that exists in Canada, and this is one of the many inducements held out for Americans to settle in the district known as Western Canada. The season of 1901 will see a few sections of the country opened up for settlement. They are attractive in every respect. It is understood that one of the best Indian Reserves in the famous Valley of the Saskatchewan will be opened up this year, and an invitation is extended to those desiring homes to make inquiries. The price of the land is said to be nominal. Besides these lands, the several railway companies have lands to sell; also the Government. For particulars write to the Agent of the Government, whose advertisement appears elsewhere.

Greatest in the World.

Within five years Cascarets have reached the largest sale of any liver or bowel medicine in the world, simply because they cure. They have great merit as the sale of over six million boxes a year proves. No matter what ails you, start using Cascarets to-day and if you are not benefited, and in every way satisfied after you have given them a fair trial you can have your money back for the asking. There is no waste. They are put up in tablet form and every tablet is stamped "C. C. C." They don't cost much —10c, 25c and 50c a box and a 50c box will furnish a whole month's treatment for the worst case. Cascarets are the best and cheapest liver and bowel regulator in the world.

An Eloquent Speaker.

Johnny—Pa, doesn't a man sometimes speak so rapidly that the stenographer can't follow him, and say so many wonderful things that they are lost in admiration of his eloquence?

Pa—Yes; I have heard that something of the kind does happen now and then. But why do you ask, Johnny?

Not very long ago, when Mr. Fred Falk was living at the corner of Hunt and Pendleton Streets in Cincinnati, Ohio, he wrote: 'About one year ago, my face and neck were so terribly burned by the hot vapors of burning spirits and oil that the skin peeled off the moment it was touched. Palmer's Lotion was immediately and liberally applied, which relieved my intense agony in a few minutes and a new skin was formed in two weeks without leaving a scar." Your druggist ought to have this wonderful healer. If he hasn't it, send to Solon Palmer, 374 Pearl Street, New York, for samples of Palmer's Lotion and Lotion Soap.

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

Born Feb. 22, 1732. Died Dec. 14, 1799.

The character, the counsels and example of our Washington * * * they will guide us through the debts and difficulties that beset us; they will guide our children and our children's children in the paths of prosperity and peace, while America shall hold her place in the family of nations.—Speech of Edward Everett, July 5, 1858.

Tribute to Washington

Richard Henry Lee's Eulogy of the Great Patriot, Soldier and Statesman

We feel that we need make no apology for printing at this time this beautiful eulogy of Washington. The words are those of Richard Henry Lee. They are the words of one who knew the great chieftain, the brave soldier, the wise counselor, the first and greatest American patriot. No more suitable choice could have been made by congress in selecting a member to deliver a eulogy of the beloved dead. Richard Henry Lee had believed in Washington, in his ability, in his patriotism, and when those faint-hearted patriots in the dark hours of the revolution would have sacrificed all that had been won, when they would have surrendered the cause to England and fortune all hope of independence, Lee stood firmly by the army in the field, and by the American commander.

The eulogy of which the following is but an extract, was delivered before congress at Philadelphia, December 26, 1799. More than a century has passed since that time, but the words uttered then have as great a meaning to-day as they had then, and we live to see the beginning of the fulfillment of the prophecies regarding the lasting fame of Washington.

THE founder of our federated republic—our bulwark in war, our guide in peace, is no more! O that this were but questionable! Hope, the comforter of the wretched, would pour into our agonizing hearts its balmy dew. But, alas! there is no hope for us; our Washington is removed forever! Possessing the stoutest frame, the purest mind, he had passed nearly to his sixty-eighth year, in the enjoyment of high health, when, habituated by his care of us to neglect of himself, a slight cold, disregarded, became inconvenient on Friday, oppressive on Saturday, and, defying every medical interposition, before the morning of Sunday, put an end to the best of men. An end did I say?—his fame survives! bounded only by the limits of the earth, and by the extent of the human mind. He survives in our hearts, in the growing knowledge of our children, in the affection of the good throughout the world; and when our monuments shall be done away; when nations now existing shall be no more; when even our young and far-spreading empire shall have perished, still will our Washington's glory unfaded shine, and die not, until love of virtue cease on earth, or earth itself sinks into chaos.

How, my fellow citizens, shall I single to your grateful hearts his preeminent worth? Where shall I begin in opening to your view a character throughout sublime? Shall I speak of his warlike achievements, all springing from obedience to his country's will—all directed to his country's good?

Will you go with me to the banks of the Monongahela, to see your youthful Washington, supporting, in the dismal hour of Indian victory, the ill-fated Braddock, and saving, by his judgment and by his valor, the remains of a defeated army, pressed by the conquering savage foe; or, when oppressed America, nobly resolving to risk her all in defense of her violated rights, he was elevated by the unanimous voice of congress to the command of her armies? Will you follow him to the high grounds of Boston, where, to an undisciplined, courageous, and virtuous yeomanry, his presence gave the stability of system, and infused the invincibility of love of country; or shall I carry you to the painful scenes of Long Island, York Island, and New Jersey, when, combating superior and gallant armies, aided by powerful fleets, and led by chiefs high in the roll of fame, he stood, the bulwark of our safety, undismayed by disaster, unchanged by change of fortune? Or will you view him in the precarious fields of Trenton, where deep gloom, unnerving every arm, reigned triumphant through our thinned, worn-down, unaided ranks; himself unmoved? Dreadful was the night. It was about this time of winter, the storm raged, the Delaware rolled furiously with floating ice, forbade the approach of man. Washington, self-collected, viewed the tremendous scene; his country called, unappalled by surrounding dangers, he passed to the hostile shore; he fought; he conquered. The morning sun cheered the American world. Our country rose on the event; and her dauntless chief, pursuing his blow, completed, in the lawns of Princeton, what his cast soul had conceived on the shores of the Delaware.

Thence to the strong grounds of Morristown he led his small but gallant band; and through an uncommon winter, by the high efforts of his genius, whose matchless force was measurable only by the growth of difficulties, he held in check formidable hostile legions, conducted by a chief experienced in the art of war, and famed for his valor on the ever memorable heights of Abraham, where fell Wolfe. Montcalm, and since, our much lamented Montgomery, all covered with glory. In this fortunate interval, produced by his masterly conduct, our fathers, ourselves, animated by his resistless example, rallied around our country's standard and continued to follow her beloved chief through the various and trying scenes to which the destinies of our union led.

Who is there that has forgotten the vales of Brandywine, the fields of Germantown, or the plains of Monmouth? Everywhere present, wants of every kind obstructing, numerous and valiant armies encountering, himself a host, he assuaged our sufferings, limited our privations, and upheld our tottering republic. Shall I display to you the spread of the fire of his soul, by rehearsing the praises of the hero of Saratoga, and his much loved compeer of the Carolinas? No; our Washington wears not borrowed glory. To Gates—to Greene, he gave without reserve the applause due to their eminent merit.

Moving in his own orbit, he imparted heat and light to his most distant satellites; and combining the physical and moral force of all within his sphere, with irresistible weight he took his course, commiserating folly, disdaining vice, dismaying treason, and invigorating despondency; until the auspicious hour arrived, when, united with the intrepid forces of a potent and magnanimous ally, he brought to submission the since conqueror of India; thus finishing his long career of military glory with a luster corresponding to his great name, and to this, his last act of war, affixing the seal of fate to our nation's birth.

To the horrid din of battle, sweet peace succeeded; and our virtuous chief, mindful only of the common good, in a moment tempting personal aggrandisement, hushed the discontents of growing sedition; and surrendering his power into the hands from which he received it, converted his sword into a plowshare, teaching an admiring world that to be truly great you must be truly good.

Were I to stop here the picture would be incomplete, and the task imposed unfinished. Great as was our Washington in war and as much as did that greatness contribute to produce the American republic, it is not in war alone his preeminence stands conspicuous. His various talents, combining all the capacities of a statesman, with those of a soldier, fitted him alike to guide the councils and the armies of our nation scarcely had he resigned from his martial toils, while his invaluable parental advice was still sounding in our ears, when he, who had been our shield and our sword, was called forth to act a less splendid, but more important part.

The finger of an overruling Providence pointing at Washington, was neither mistaken nor unobserved; when, to realize the vast hopes to which our revolution had given birth, a change of political system became indispensable.

How novel, how grand the spectacle! In dependent states, stretched over an immense territory, and known only by common difficulty, clinging to their union as the rock of their safety, deciding by frank comparison of their relative condition, to rear on that rock, under the guidance of reason, a common government through whose commanding protection, liberty and order, with their long train of blessings, should be safe to themselves, and the sure inheritance of their posterity.

This arduous task devolved on citizen selected by the people, from knowledge of their wisdom and confidence in their virtue. In this august assembly of sages and patriots, Washington of course was found; and as if acknowledged to be the most wise where all were wise, with one voice he was declared their chief. How well he merited this fair distinction, how faithful were the labors of himself and his compatriots, the work of their hands and our union, strength and prosperity, the fruits of that work, best attest.

First in war, first in peace, and first in the hearts of his countrymen, he was second to none in the humble and endearing scenes of private life. Pious, just, humane, temperate and sincere; uniform, dignified and commanding, his example was as edifying to all around him as were the effects of that example lasting.

His last scene comported with the whole tenor of his life; although in extreme pain, not a sigh, nor a groan escaped him; and with undisturbed serenity he closed his well-spent life. Such was the man America has lost! Such was the man for whom our nation mourns!

World to Find This Year.

This is the recent decision of one of the prominent scientics of the world, but the exact day has not yet been fixed upon, and while there are very few people who believe this prediction, there are thousands of others who not only believe, but know that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is the best medicine to cure dyspepsia, indigestion, constipation, biliousness or liver and kidney troubles. A fair trial will certainly convince you of its value.

Rather!

"By the way," asked the stranger, "are women permitted to practice at the bar in this country?"

"Permitted!" snorted the other man, who happened to be a retired saloon keeper from Kansas. "You can't keep 'em from doing it when they take a notion, begosh!"—Chicago Tribune.

WHAT IS OVARITIS?

A dull, throbbing pain, accompanied by a sense of tenderness and bear down in the side, with an occasional shooting pain, indicates inflammation.

On examination it will be found that the region of pain shows some swelling. This is the first stage of ovaritis, inflammation of the ovary. If the roof of your house leaks, my sister, you have it fixed at once; why not pay the same respect to your own body?

You need not, you ought not to let yourself go, when one of your own sex holds out the helping hand to you, and will advise you without money, and without price. Write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., and tell her all your symptoms. Her experience in treating female ills is greater than any other living person. Following is a letter from a woman who is thankful for avoiding a terrible operation.

"I was suffering to such an extent from ovarian trouble that my physician thought an operation would be necessary.

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound having been recommended to me, I decided to try it. After using several bottles I found that I was cured. My entire system was toned up, and I suffered no more with my ovaries."—MRS. ANNA ASTON, Troy, Mo.

It is surprising the trade our two stores in Hebron are having with the people of other neighborhoods. Bullittsville, Francisville and Limaburg people were all represented here, last week, and left a good quantity of the "root of all evil." Some one said there was a man from New York, also, making purchases here. Hebron is fast coming to the front since we have telephone communications.

The Boone County Pomona Grange met at Greenwood Hall, Hebron, last Saturday. Quite a number of members from Golden and Mt. Pleasant Granges were in attendance, and all came with baskets filled with luxuries for the inner man. The lodge being opened in due form, the first business was the initiating of three new members in the fourth degree; then some 18 or 20 were obligated in the fifth degree, after which a recess was called for dinner. A table 36 feet long and 4 feet wide was soon constructed, and the good ladies began spreading or piling the delicacies, as there was so much the table would not hold them—the joists creaked and groaned and tumbled beneath with the great weight of boiled ham, fried chicken and turkey, salads of all kinds, pies, cakes and many other things too tedious to mention. All partook of this meal with relishment. After spending the recess eating and chatting as only grangers can do, the Grange was called to order and business pertaining to the order was transacted. Soy Beans as Food.

The North Carolina Experiment Station recommends the following receipts for cooking soy beans, which are stated to be one of the best muscle producing foods grown. The protein and nitrogen content in the soy bean is very large: Soak the beans until the skin rubs off, and stir until the skins rise to the surface. Boil the beans, with or without bacon, until soft, then season with salt, pepper and butter and serve. This makes a dish which is an excellent substitute for meat. The Japanese who eat little meat, have eaten the soy bean from time immemorial, and to its effect is largely ascribed their wirey activity and endurance, as distinguished from the comparative weakness and indolence of the more southern riceeating natives.

Hardly any substance is as easily contaminated by foul odors as milk.

Under no conditions should the milk cows be compelled to drink ice cold water.

The great difference in the quality of milk is not noticeable often until it is put in the churn.

The milk may be rich in fats, but the butter globules be in separable by the churning process from the milk.

One cause of failure in washing butter comes from having the churn so full that sufficient water can not be added to wash properly.

A large quantity of milk of a good quality is what the dairyman wants and to secure it the feeding of plenty of nutritious food is necessary.

DYSPEPSIA

Caused by weak nerves or run-down condition of the nervous system, cannot be cured by the use of Pepsin, Mineral Waters, etc. If you have ever resorted to this treatment you must admit that the relief was temporary. Common sense teaches us that to cure Dyspepsia, a medicine must be used that will strengthen and build up the nervous system, and in so doing remove the cause of the digestive trouble.

Boulton's Ner-vi-ton

acts gently in relieving the cause of dyspepsia and at the same time builds up the entire system.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXVI. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 27, 1901. NO. 19.

BIG preparations are under way for the inauguration on the fourth of March.

THE candidate who can not demonstrate with figures that he is a sure winner of the nomination to which he aspires, is not much of a mathematician.

IT seems that a great many Republicans are determined that Collector Comingore shall walk the plank at the expiration of the commission he holds.

SENATOR HANNA is going to see Mr. McKinley clear through this time, and with that in view he will occupy the carriage with him at the inauguration.

THE Secretary of State has notified county political executive committees that when a primary election is held under the law that the ballots must be preserved.

THE State Board of Health has been industriously engaged this winter trying to prevent the spread of small pox. In many sections the efforts of the board for the benefit of the public has not been appreciated.

AN old criminal was once asked the first step that led him to his ruin, and he answered: "The first step was cheating an editor out of two years' subscription. When I done that the devil had such a grip on me that I could not shake him off."

IF the company that has under consideration the proposition to build an electric road from Covington to Erlanger, can be induced to continue on to Florence, that town will at once acquire a prominence that but few in the county will ever reach.

THE criminal court in Louisville is making life a burden for gamblers, several of them having been given a term of years in the penitentiary. It is said that gamblers in other parts of the State are afraid the example of the Louisville court will be followed in their counties.

ON next county court day the candidates whose names will be printed on the ballots for the primary election to be held April 6, will weigh in. It is being predicted that some who are announced will not come to time, but the knowing ones in this particular may be disappointed.

IT is now plain that the Democratic factious in Covington do not intend to adjust their differences, and that the State committee will eventually have to take cognizance of the trouble and straighten it out, and the sooner it acts in the matter the better it will be for the Democratic party, especially in Kenton county.

IF the recent Republican primary election in Christian county was half as corrupt as a great many Republicans charge, that Honest Election League with headquarters at Louisville, should marshal its forces and proceed to Christian county where it would strike pay dirt in abundance. But it is doubtful if the H. E. L. ever hears of Republican frauds and corruption.

IT is very often the case that a person who has been successful at a primary election assumes that all those who contributed to his success by voting for him, should forever thereafter assist him to defeat others who voted against him and afterwards appear in the role of a candidate. The dictatorial spirit is very pronounced in many people and occasionally gets deserved rebuff.

BEN ROBERTS, who, with a negro boy served a thirty days' sentence in jail here for stealing A. B. Rouse's buggy robe, is now serving a thirty days' sentence in the Grant county jail, for stealing a buggy robe in that county. It is evident that Roberts has adopted petty thieving as a means by which to obtain board and lodging during the winter, and when warm weather returns he will turn his attention to larger game. A whipping post would do much towards ridding the people of these petty thieves, while the counties would be saved the expense of supporting them as a reward for their rascality.

Editorial Paragraphs.

It costs Great Britain $650 and 650 men to kill a Boer. Wonder what it cost Teddy to kill a lion?

o o o

The Senate is now studying its hand with a good deal of care and wondering whether it is safe to conclude that the President is bluffing in regard to that extra session.

o o o

Isn't it about time that the Phillippine war should be officially declared at an end once more? It hasn't been ended for nearly two months now—not since the election, in fact.

o o o

The cotton census is to be taken all over again. The bright young man who had charge of collating the figures brought so much out of them that their deficiencies became too glaring to be permitted to stand.

o o o

With Professor Pupin discovering how to talk around the world by wires, and Tesla discovering how to telegraph around it without wires, the limits of electrical communication would seem to have been about reached.

o o o

The ground hog is played out. Not only has he deliberately falsified this winter, but his official rival, the Weather Bureau, has come out with a declaration that he has been right only twice in the last ten years. We shall have to depend on the goosebone hereafter.

o o o

Russia's sudden reprisals have stricken the administration with consternation. Secretary Gage thought that he could please the sugar trust by causing two years or so of litigation, during which time he could keep Russia in play. But the Czar called his bluff in good shape, and he is face to face with a humiliating back down.

o o o

General McArthur has explained that Editor Rice was deported for exposing the official corruption in the office of the captain of the port, in which he had been employed. The general decided that the charges must be false and, as Rice threatened to prove them, there was nothing left to do but to deport him.

o o o

The actual situation in South Africa seems to be that the British posts throughout the country and those guarding the railway lines are held practically in a condition of perpetual siege by the mobile Boers. Of all the thousands of men that Kitchener has at his disposal, less than 20,000 are reported to be available for actual field work.

The Republican press answers the charge of extravagance in government expenditures by declaring that this is a billion dollars or a two billion dollar or a three billion country—as the case may demand. It would make the same answer if Congress spent ten billions and do so, without ever considering whether the money was honestly or wisely spent.

GEO. LEIBERTH, of Newport, has returned home from Porto Rico, and has already injected some life into the contest for the appointment for Collector of Internal Revenue in this district. Leiberth is a deputy under the incumbent, Comingore, but is exceedingly anxious to supercede his principal, who has, also, the enmity of what is known as the Ernst faction, which is recognized as a powerful factor in Republican politics in this part of the State. T. B. Mathews, of Petersburg, the head of the Republican party in this county, has a strong following, which has been friendly to Collector Comingore, and the indication is that that element will continue to back Comingore as against an Ernst-Leiberth combination. Such a fight would be a very pretty one, and might result in a favorable opportunity for a dark horse to come in as a compromise man, in which event it will not be a surprise to see a Boone county man capture the plum. Comingore's unconcernedness about the matter is perplexing to those who want his political scalp.

IN the election of W. A. Price as President of the Erlanger Deposit Bank, no mistake was made, and he will come nearer maintaining the policy inaugurated by his lamented predecessor than any other man connected with the bank. Mr Price is well acquainted with the patrons of the bank, and being a pleasant, clever gentleman he will hold the liberal patronage the institution has enjoyed from the time it began business.

IN his effort to help the Sugar Trust by increasing the duty on Russian sugar, Secretary Gage put his foot in it badly. Two could play at the game of increasing tariffs, and Russia answered back with an increase of 50 per cent duty on American imports of machinery, &c., which practically shuts American machinery out of that market, one of the best to be supplied.

THE Legislative District composed of Carroll and Gallatin counties will hold a Democratic primary election on Saturday, May 18, to nominate a candidate for the legislature.

THE fellow who is drawing cartoons of Roosevelt is getting better pay for his work than Teddy will draw for his services as Vice-President for the same length of time.

IT is said the report has reached the mountainous districts of this State that the government has employed Mrs. Nation to go to the mountains and smash illicit stills and in consequence considerable uneasiness prevails among the moonshiners.

IN this issue John Mannin is announced as a candidate for surveyor of this county. He is a young man of good morals, raised a straight Democrat, and if nominated and elected he will make a good officer. It is his first appearance in politics as a candidate.

THE citizens of Rising Sun have authorized the city council to appropriate $12,000 as an inducement for building an electric road from Aurora to their town. They have given up all hope of getting a steam railway.

EDITOR GULLION has sold the Carrollton Democrat to attorney Smith. The Democrat is a most excellent country paper, and the press gang will be sorry to see its enterprising editor retire from the ranks.

Chicago's newest theatrical enterprise, the new Jewish theater, formerly Irwin's, in Desplaines, near West Madison street, bids fair to become a permanent institution. It is more than probable that the theater will run forty-two weeks in the year with Yiddish plays.

A new range-finder has just been invented which, it is said, is a great improvement on all range-finders now in use. The distance of any object can be ascertained by a mere glance through the instrument, it being shown on a little dial the moment the object is focused.

The telescope, so far from being, as is generally averred, the outcome of the famous experiment of Galileo, was known at least 300 years before his time; while the microscope certainly dates from the early part of the ninth century, although greatly improved in the sixteenth by Jansen and others.

The Hambledon cricket legend, which makes England's national game take its rise in the little Surrey village scarcely more than 100 years ago, has long since been exploded. The game was played by the Vikings, and is certainly identical also with the "club ball" of the fourteenth century.

The annual production of cheese in the United States is commercially estimated at 300,000 pounds, made at 3,000 factories. New York and Wisconsin each have 1,000 factories and produce three-fourths of the entire output. Other cheese-making states in their order are Ohio, Michigan and Pennsylvania.

The people of Oregon wanted to buy Governor Geer an executive mansion, but he does not approve the idea. "I am a poor man," says the governor, "too poor to accept such a favor. I am living comfortably in a house which I rent, and to buy a fine house for me to furnish and keep up would simply lay on my shoulders a burden I could ill afford to carry."

The best collection of Chinese coins to be found outside of China has been given the archeological museum of the University of Pennsylvania by Rev. E. W. Twing, a Honolulu missionary. The collection goes back to a time over 2,500 years ago, and includes those odd, early Chinese coins which were made in the form of spades, razors, keys, shirts and tools.

In a wood near Polnora, on the edge of the Northern Carpathians, a woman went to gather sticks, leaving her baby in a secluded spot. Upon her return she saw two great eagles bearing away her child, whom they had dismembered. Upon a hunt being made by the inhabitants the bones of the baby were found in the eagles' nest on the rocks amid the snow.

Vice President-elect and Mrs. Roosevelt, with their children, will be the guests of Commander and Mrs. Cowles in Washington from March 2 to March 5. They will then go to their Oyster bay home and return about October to Washington, where they will occupy the house of Bellamy Storer, at Rhode Island avenue and Seventeenth street, which Mr. Roosevelt has leased.

Kentucky's Natural Bridge, in Powell County, is perhaps the most unique freak of nature that the state possesses in its line. It is a giant wall of rock connecting two immense cliffs, rising some 1,200 feet above the valley below, in the middle of which there is an opening about 150 by 50 feet in width. The approach of this opening on either side is almost impossible.

The widow of the late Henri Say, the well-known refiner of Paris, whose will is now being contested in the Paris court of appeals, was an American woman. She was a Miss Davis and is Frederick Gebhard's aunt. She was the divorced wife of Count D'Huersel when she married Mr. Say. The widow received the entire estate of 50,000,000 francs, and Mr. Say's sister, the viscomtesse de Tredern is trying to have the will broken.

Kansas has a capital punishment law on her statute books at present, but it provides that when a man is convicted of murder in the first degree he shall be taken to the state penitentiary and confined for one year, after which he shall be hanged upon the governor's signing his death warrant. Every Kansas governor has delayed the signing of the death warrants; putting off the unpleasant duty upon his successor, and there has never been a man hanged under that law.

Mrs. Mary Goodnight, of Goodnight, Tex., enjoys the distinction of being the only woman in the world who owns a herd of buffaloes. There are 100 in the herd, more than half of which are pure bred, the remainder being "cataloes," as a cross between a buffalo and a Galloway cow is called. The cataloes have the same hump as the buffaloes, and shaggy hair, but their color varies from jet black to light brown, and they are most readily distinguished from the pure bred by their horns, which are longer.

BOERS RETREATING.

They Retire Before Gen. French's Advancing Column.

Col. Owen Captured DeWet's 15-Pounder and Pompom as Well as 53 Prisoners and a Quantity of Ammunition.

London, Feb. 25.—The war office has received the following dispatch from Lord Kitchener:

"Middleburg, Transvaal, Feb. 24.—French reports from Piet Retief, February 22, that the result of the column's sweeping the country east that the Boers are retreating in scattered and disorganized parties to the number of some five thousand in front of him.

"Amsterdam and Piet Retief have been occupied and troops are protecting the Swazi frontier. French will push on, but is much hampered by the continuous heavy rains.

"Summary of total losses inflicted upon the enemy up to February 16: 292 Boers known to have been killed and wounded in action, 34 taken prisoners, 183 surrendered, one 15-pounder gun, 462 rifles, 160,000 rounds of small ammunition, 5,500 horses, 70 mules, 3,530 trek oxen, 14,709 cattle, 155,400 sheep, and 1,070 wagons and carts captured.

"Our casualties: Five officers and 41 men killed and four officers and 108 men wounded.

"I regret to say that Maj. Howard, a very gallant officer of the Canadian scouts, was killed February 17.

"Plumer reports that Col. Owen captured DeWet's 15-pounder and pompom February 23, as well as 53 prisoners and a quantity of ammunition. We had no casualties; enemy in full retreat and dispersing, being vigorously pursued.

"DeWet's attempt to invade Cape Colony has evidently completely failed."

It is reported that Gen. DeWet escaped to the opposite bank in a boat and is fleeing with a handful of followers. It is reported from a Boer source at Zeerust that Gen. Delarey has been captured.

INSANE WOMAN'S ACT.

Mrs. Rose Wurzer Threw Her Six Children in a Well and Then Jumped in Herself.

Colfax, Wash., Feb. 25.—Mrs. Rose Wurzer, in a fit of insanity, drowned her six children, aged from 4 to 13 years, at Uniontown, Wash., Sunday. Two were boys and four girls. She threw them into a well 30 feet deep, containing two foot of water, then jumped in herself and held the heads of the children beneath the surface until all were drowned. Mrs. Wurzer was found alive in the well with her six murdered children by the neighbors, who pulled her out with a rope. She is violently insane. The woman's husband died a year ago, since which time she has been supported by the county and the charity of neighbors.

STEAMER DISABLED.

The British Vessel Mira, From New Orleans for Liverpool, Lost Her Rudder Head.

St. Michaels, Azores, Feb. 25.—The British steamer Mira, Capt. Vincent, which sailed from New Orleans January 29, for Liverpool, was spoken on February 19 in latitude 36 degrees north, longitude 47 west, with her rudder head gone, by the British steamer Foresthoime, Capt. Benton, from Sabine Pass, February 3, and Norfolk, February 12, for Hamburg, which arrived here for coal Sunday. The Foresthoime reports that owing to her small coal supply, which would enable her to reach this port alone, she was unable to render any assistance to the Mira.

TIRED OF JAIL LIFE.

Mrs. Carrie Nation Writes a Letter to Judge Hazen Demanding Her Release.

Topeka, Kan., Feb. 25.—Mrs. Carrie Nation, tiring of jail life, has written Judge Hazen a letter demanding release.

"I want you to quit your fooling," she writes, "and let me out of here. If you cause me to miss my engagements, I won't feel like a ministering angel unto you. It is time for you to recover yourself before the devil, your master, makes a clean sweep with you into hell.

"You know you are persecuting one of God's children who loves you for Jesus' sake. Let me out that I may go about my business of saving such poor devils as you. Write, or come to see me right off."

Judge Hazen has ignored the letter, placing it in the waste basket with dozens of others received on the subject from different parts of the country. Some of these letters threaten the judge. One from Bunker Hill, Kan., says a committee of 50 will administer a coat of tar and feathers to the official if Mrs. Nation is not released by February 27 and another from a woman in Douglass, Mich., says:

"We now propose, if Mrs. Nation is held longer, to raise the greatest army of women the world has ever known and wipe man out of existence. It is our intention to begin with you."

Resolution Demanding Its Enforcement Passed at a Mass Meeting in Wichita Kan.

Wichita, Kan., Feb. 25.—A public mass meeting of citizens of Wichita, under the auspices of the ministerial association, was held here Sunday and a resolution passed demanding the enforcement of the prohibitory law. No specified time was set for the jointists to close their places and doubt is expressed that the citizens will ever adopt hatchet smashing as a means of compelling them to quit business. The meeting was surprisingly temperate and 3,000 people who attended, most of them through curiosity, were disappointed at its tameness. The resolutions were presented to the mayor, county attorney and sheriff Monday. It is said that no effort will be made by these officers to change the present system of allowing saloons to run for city revenue.

THEIR PUNISHMENT.

Full Text of the Edict Sent to the Foreign Ministers.

Prince Chun, Emperor's Brother, Will Soon Go to Berlin to Express Regrets for the Murder of Baron Von Ketteler.

Peking, Feb. 25.—The full text of the imperial edict regarding punishments was sent Saturday evening to the ministers of the powers. The ministers say that there is little confusion with reference to strangulation and suicide, but that this is not important. Li Hung Chang received a bulletin announcing the sentences which could be best carried into effect by the board of punishment, and he requested the Japanese to deliver Ying Nien and Chao Shu Chiao in order that the sentences in their cases might be executed in conformity with the edict; but the Japanese considered the notice too short and have delayed the enforcement of the penalties until Tuesday in order that the ministers of the powers might send representatives as they desire. It is also intended to guard the men at the place of execution, so as to prevent suicide or escape.

When official confirmation, duly certified by high officials of state, of the sentence of death upon the others, shall have been received and these two have been executed, China will have practically complied with the terms demanded by the powers, as she has already agreed to issue edicts prepared by the ministers of the powers for the cessation of examinations and regarding the responsibility of viceroys and governors.

Prince Chun, the emperor's brother, will soon go to Berlin to express China's regrets for the murder of Baron Von Ketteler. He says China has now accepted to the uttermost and also performed everything required by the powers, except the payment of the indemnity, the amount of which has not been decided.

He thinks arrangements should be made for the evacuation of Peking in order to enable the court to return. He says he believes no nation in history ever complied with a series of terms more quickly and more completely.

No official announcement has been made of the abandonment of the proposed expedition into the interior, but it is not likely that any further preparations will be made. The foreign envoys feel that the proposal was a master stroke and caused the settlement of what might have been a protracted affair.

The ministers of the powers regard the punishment edict as satisfactory. Chih Siu, former grand secretary, and Hsu Cheng Yu, son of the notorious Hsu Tung, will be publicly executed in Peking Tuesday. An edict has been promulgated suspending examinations at all points which were the scenes of outrages upon foreigners.

What He Got.

Towne—Our friend Underthum tells me he's got a fine situation. How much does he get, do you know?

Unlike Anybody Else.

Obstinacy, like most other qualities, has many forms of manifesting itself.

"I do think," said one of the group of loafers who were discussing Uncle Chauncey's peculiarities, "he's the contrariest man alive."

"What new light have you had on the subject?" asked one of the others.

"Well, he's so contrary," was the rejoinder, "that if he sees a newspaper advertisement headed 'Don't read this!' he doesn't read it!"—Youth's Companion.

An Easy Winner.

A minister was one day walking along a road, and to his astonishment he saw a crowd of boys sitting in front of a ring with a small dog in the center. When he came up to them he put the following question: "What are you doing to the dog?" One little boy said: "Whoever tells the biggest lie wins it." "Oh," said the minister, "I am surprised at you little boys, for when I was like you I never told lies." There was silence for awhile, until one of the boys shouted: "Hand him up the dog!"—London Labor Leader.

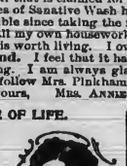
THANKFUL TO MRS. PINKHAM

Letters Proving Positively that there is No Medicine for Woman's Ills Equal to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

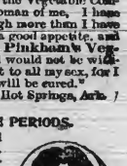


(ALL LETTERS ARE PUBLISHED BY SPECIAL PERMISSION.)

"I cannot say enough in regard to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It has done me more good than all the doctors. I have been troubled with female weakness in its worst form for about ten years. I had leucorrhœa and was so weak that I could not do my housework.

I also had falling of the womb and inflammation of the womb and ovaries, and at menstrual periods I suffered terribly. At times my back would ache very hard. I could not lift anything or do any heavy work; was not able to stand on my feet long at a time. My husband spent hundreds of dollars for doctors but they did me no good. My husband's sister wrote what the Vegetable Compound had done for her, and wanted me to try it, but I did not then think it would do me any good. After a time, I concluded to try it, and I can truly say it does all that is claimed for it. Ten bottles of the Vegetable Compound and seven packages of Sanative Wash have made a new woman of me. I have had no womb trouble since taking the fifth bottle. I weigh more than I have in years; can do all my own housework, sleep well, have a good appetite, and now feel that life is worth living. I owe all to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I feel that it has saved my life and would not be without it for anything. I am always glad to recommend it to all my sex, for I know if they will follow Mrs. Pinkham's directions, they will be cured."

Gratefully yours, Mrs. Annie Thompson, South Hot Springs, Ark.



CHANGE OF LIFE.

"I was taken sick five years ago with 'The Grippe,' and had a relapse and was given up by the doctor and my friends. Change of Life began to work on me. I flowed very badly until a year ago, then my stomach and lungs got so bad, I suffered terribly; the blood went up in my lungs and stomach, and I vomited it up. I could not eat scarcely anything. I cannot tell what I suffered with my head. My husband got me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and before I had taken half of it I began to improve, and to-day I am another woman. Mrs. Pinkham's medicine has saved my life. I cannot praise it enough."

M. A. Denson, Millport, N.Y.

PROFUSE PERIODS.

"I commenced taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound about 3 months ago, and cannot express the wonderful good it has done me. Menstruations were so profuse as to leave me very weak for some time after. Was also troubled with leucorrhœa, tired feeling, bearing down sensation, pain across the back and thighs. I felt as though there was a heavy weight in my stomach all the time. I have taken two bottles of the medicine, and now have better health than I have had for four years."

Mrs. Lizzie Dickson Hodge, Avalon, Ohio.

WENT ON HIDDEN ROCK

Mail Steamer City of Rio De Janeiro Sinks in the Golden Gate.

It is Thought Nearly 150 Persons on Board Met Death in the Water.

SHE WENT DOWN DURING DENSE FOG.

Among the Passengers Were United States Consul Wildman, Wife and Two Children.

They Have Not Been Accounted For and it is Feared They Are Among Those Who Perished.

There Were 234 People On Board the Ill-Fated Vessel, Only 178 of Whom Have Been Accounted for.

San Francisco, Feb. 23.—The Pacific mail steamer City of Rio de Janeiro ran on a hidden rock while entering the Golden Gate early Friday morning in a dense fog. She sank a few minutes after striking. It is thought nearly 150 persons were drowned, but it is impossible to ascertain the exact number owing to the fact that Purser John Rooney, who had the passenger list and roster of the crew, is among the missing.

At 5 o'clock Friday afternoon ten bodies had been recovered, two white women, one white man and seven Chinese. The most prominent passenger was Rounseville Wildman, United States consul at Hong Kong, who was accompanied by his wife and two children. It is thought all were drowned. The ship was in command of Pilot Jordan when she struck. He was rescued. Capt. Wm. Ward went down with his vessel.

As nearly as can be learned there were 234 people on board the Rio de Janeiro as follows:

Cabin passengers, 29; second cabin, 7; steerage (Chinese and Japanese), 68; Officers and crew, 140; Total, 234.

The following have been accounted for: Rescued, 79; bodies at the morgue, 10; total, 89.

Missing, 145.

The Rio de Janeiro was three days overdue from Hong Kong, via Honolulu, when she arrived off the heads Thursday night, and the dense fog prevailing at the time induced Pilot Jordan to bring her to anchor until he could see his way clear through the gateway. She laid to until about 4:30 o'clock, when the atmosphere cleared and she started under a slow bell toward Point Bonita. All went well until 5:40 o'clock, when she struck. Most of the passengers were below at the time, and it is believed that many of them were drowned in their berths.

The first news of the disaster reached here at 7:30 p. m., and soon after a boat load of rescued passengers and petty officers arrived at the mail dock.

Tugs were immediately dispatched to render any service that might be needed, but no living persons were afloat when the tugs reached the wreck. A number of drowning people were rescued by Italian fishermen and the bodies of two white women, three Chinese and a Japanese were brought in by the tugs. The search for bodies has continued all day.

All accounts show that the officers gave the necessary orders with the least possible delay.

Capt. Ward, who was on deck when the vessel struck, gave orders to the crew on watch to hurry the passengers to the forward deck. At the same time the quartermaster on duty sounded the signal for fire drill, and within five minutes all the men were at their stations. There was no way of knowing the extent of the damage to the vessel, as she remained of an even keel 15 minutes after striking the rock. But Capt. Ward, with the instinct of long experience, knew the gravest danger threatened the 200 souls in his charge, and, pacing the deck, he gave orders to lower the life boats and rafts.

There was not much confusion until, 35 minutes after striking, the bow of the vessel suddenly plunged under water. Then there was a wild rush for the boats. The boats had already been lowered and others were getting away as rapidly as the trained discipline of the crew could prepare them. A thick fog enveloped everything, and as yet no sign had come from the life saving station. Darkness was all about, and with this added horror the people on the Rio had to cope.

One boat got clear of the vessel without damage. This contained the following persons:

Mrs. Yost, Mrs. Ripley, Chief Engineer Herlihey, Second Officer Coghlan, Frank Cramp, J. R. Russell, Storekeeper Borgg, Water Tender D. Lane, Quartermaster R. Mathieson and Capt. Kecht, of the German navy.

The boat got clear of the sinking vessel and then stood by to help in picking up those who had no time to get into the boats and were in the water.

Another boat, containing Third Officer Holland and J. F. Carpenter, got away, but was drifted around close up under the bow of the steamer. As the forward end of the vessel plunged downward the prow caught the small boat and cut it in two. The two men in the boat were uninjured and swam away from the sinking steamer just in time to avoid being caught in the swirl of water caused by the settling of the big ship. Carpenter was picked up by the other boat. The fate of Holland is not known, but he is supposed to have perished.

A number of Italian fishermen, who were just starting out, saw the sinking of the Rio and hastened to give all the assistance in their power.

While all this was going on Capt. Ward was directing the passengers and trying to keep them from panic. He succeeded only partly, as many of the terrified people rushed to the railings and jumped overboard. Some of these were picked up, others were drowned. The Chinese crew, to the number of over a hundred, were terrorized. Some of them huddled in little groups, chattering in fear. Others cronched close to the deck, moaning pitifully. Many jumped into the sea.

Capt. Ward remained on deck until the vessel had settled to such an extent that the water was engulfing him. Then he went up on the bridge and from there continued to issue his directions, although by this time the confusion was so great that few paid any attention to his commands.

That the steamer sank almost immediately after striking is the report of a majority of those rescued. Some of the passengers say that she instantly listed forward, and that in five minutes she went down, while others declared that she stayed afloat for half an hour after she struck. The confusion occasioned by such an incident is intense and it is not surprising to find that there is a lack of unanimity as to the length of time the vessel remained above water.

The wreck lies about three-fourths of a mile south of Fort Point and about a thousand yards off the rocky shore.

The smoke stack and a portion of the upper works of the ill-fated steamer are visible.

There are several conflicting stories concerning the fate of Capt. Ward. The steward of the Rio says that he stood beside the captain when the vessel went down. Two other survivors say that they also saw the captain to the last; but Frederick Lindstrom, the quartermaster officer of the Rio, emphatically declared that Capt. Ward emulated Adm. Trion, of her British majesty's ship Victoria, in going down to his cabin, where he met his doom behind a locked door.

Quartermaster Officer Lindstrom was one of the first to land at Meigg's wharf Friday morning and one of the first statements he made was that Capt. Ward had gone down with the wrecked steamer. According to his story, Capt. Ward, after consulting with Pilot Jordan, came down from the bridge.

He was standing on the deck when the vessel crashed upon the rocks.

There was a cry of "Man the Boats!" but it was apparent that in the midst of the awful confusion a systematic effort to save the passengers would be of no avail. Everybody was scrambling for his own safety.

It was at this time that Lindstrom says he saw Capt. Ward standing on the forward deck. Suddenly the captain turned and, walking hurriedly to his cabin, disappeared behind the door, which he closed.

A second later the vessel was plunging to the bottom of the sea.

Capt. Frederick W. Jordan, the pilot of the Rio, was rescued by an Italian fishing boat owned by Frederick Castrini, and was brought to Meigg's station about 10 a. m. Along with him was a Japanese and Philip Nusenblack.

William Casper, of Toledo, O., was among the survivors who, while floundering in the water, encountered the raft on which were R. H. Long and a number of Chinamen. Casper was out of his bunk and on deck when the first alarm was given. He agrees with Long that most of the steamer's passengers were on deck when the vessel struck.

The cargo of the Rio De Janeiro was valued at over $500,000. There were besides $600,000 in treasure in the specie bank. The steamer itself was valued at from $650,000 to $700,000.

DOWN ON AMERICANS.

Senor Cisneros Refuses to Sign the Cuban Constitution.

He Exclaimed: "We Are All Cubans and When the Time Comes We Will Fight the Americans Together."

Havana, Feb. 22.—The Cuban constitution, first submitted by the central committee to the convention at the public session of January 21, was signed Thursday. One copy was sent to Gov. Gen. Wood and the other placed among the records of the convention. The president and vice presidents signed first and the delegates followed in the order of their seats on the floor of the convention, the two secretaries signing last.

Senor Cisneros created a sensation by refusing to sign. He said:

"Cuba is now independent, and I can see no reason for sending this constitution to the United States for acceptance. The United States government has no right to pass on it, for it is a distinctly Cuban document and was drawn up by this convention, which has assumed the responsibility of establishing the republic."

Several delegates crowded around him and endeavored to dissuade him from his course, but he was immovable. As the delegates retired, Senor Tamayo remarked: "We are all Cubans, senor."

Senor Cisneros replied, "Yes, when the time comes to fight the Americans we will fight them together."

Then he turned toward the press table, and, shaking his first at the American newspaper men, he said, "The Americans are like the monkey. When the monkey closes its paw on a thing it never wants to let go."

Subsequently he said he would sign the copy of the constitution that had been filed with the records of the convention, but would wait until the other had been sent to Washington in order to avoid any possibility of his name being attached to that also.

Senor Capote, president of the convention, delivered the document to Gen. Wood at the palace Friday morning. Gen. Wood and his staff received formally the commission charged with the duty of presenting the constitution. The latter was translated and a copy in English will be sent to Washington with the original. Probably the transiation will not be ready before Monday.

Thursday afternoon Gen. Wood sent a personal letter to Senor Tamayo, chairman of the special committee on relations, outlining the suggestions received from Secretary Root, but pointing out that these were only expressions of the opinion of the executive department as to what the people of Cuba should desire to have established and agreed upon between the United States and Cuba, and should not be taken as official declaration of the United States, being necessary to refer the whole matter to congress.

The special committee on relations has not decided what report it will make. Another meeting has been called for Friday. Senor Temayo considers Gen. Wood's letter as a private communication which he is not at liberty to lay before the convention.

A POLITICAL FEUD.

J. W. Tolbert and a Man Named Martin Shot at McCormick, S. C.

Charleston, S. C., Feb. 23.—J. W. Tolbert was shot Thursday on the streets of McCormick, Abbeville county, whence he had been told he must go or he would be killed. Thursday's shooting is the outcome of the political feud which resulted in the Phoenix riots and murders in the fall of 1898. Before Tolbert was shot he is said to have fired two shots at a young man named Martin, a visitor in the town who, it is thought, had nothing to do with the trouble between Tolbert and the citizens of McCormick. Martin was dangerously wounded. This so enraged some of the citizens that they immediately opened fire on Tolbert, but only two shots took effect. If Martin should die it is reported from McCormick that the citizens will lynch Tolbert.

CROWE HEARD FROM.

E. A. Cudahy Receives a Letter From the Alleged Kidnaper—He Protests His Innocence.

Omaha, Neb., Feb. 23.—Pat Crowe has been heard from under circumstances which indicate that he is soon to make public appearance.

E. A. Cudahy is in receipt of a letter bearing Crowe's signature. The handwriting has been tested by comparison and it is the opinion of the Pinkertons, Chief Donahue and other authorities that the signature is genuine.

The letter is dated South Omaha, February 15, but the envelope indicated that it had been mailed in Omaha.

Mr. Cudahy and Chief Donahue have made its contents known, however. Crowe complains in his letter that he has heard that the Omaha police are looking for him and believe him to be one of the kidnapers of Edward Cudahy.

He maintains that he is innocent and says that he has no knowledge of the affair, with the exception of what he has read in the newspapers. He says that he will drop into Omaha some day and prove himself innocent and that he would have done so long ago had he not been afraid that he might suffer the fate of the Negro who was lynched at Leavenworth.

Crowe says that Omaha people must have cooled off considerably by this time, and expresses the opinion that he will soon be able to come here with safety. He makes an appeal to the chief of police and Mr. Cudahy for protection and says he will expect them to stand between him and violence. In conclusion he says he is much hurt to think that Mr. Cudahy suspects him of being guilty of the kidnaping and expresses his appreciation of the kindness Mr. Cudahy has shown him in the past.

TEMPERANCE BILL SIGNED.

Gov. Stanley Approves the Measure Making Places Where Liquors Are Sold Common Nuisances.

Topeka, Kan., Feb. 23.—Gov. Stanley signed the Hurrel temperance bill, which makes places where liquor is sold common nuisances and allows the county officers to confiscate the illegal stock. Another temperance bill by Hurrel is in the hands of the judiciary committee. It provides that the county attorneys have the power to compel witnesses to testify in cases involving violation of the prohibitory law. The Hurrel measure is the first of the many temperance bills introduced since the Nation crusade began to become a law.

COOK CONVICTED.

His Heavy Sentence Causes Consternation Among Other Louisville Gamblers.

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 21.—Henry Cook, a former employe of Ed Alvey, the notorious gambling king, was convicted in the criminal court Wednesday afternoon of assisting in setting up and running a game of craps, and was fined $500 and the costs in the case, and given two years in the penitentiary.

This is the second conviction under the present prosecution of the gamblers, Frank Paul having been given a similar sentence last Saturday. Cook was accused of having operated a crap game over the saloon of John Borschenck, on Market street, near Fourth, and the evidence against him was conclusive.

The gamblers are panic-stricken over the affairs have taken. They succeeded in staving off the trials for about a week, but Judge Barker, who presides over the criminal division, was determined that the cases should be tried this month, and swept aside one technicality after another until there was no further means of delay. An attempt to have the present petit jury, which is composed almost exclusively of business men of high standing, declared illegal by the court of appeals, proved ineffectual, and it looks as though the rest of the cases will be tried.

The governor, of course, could not make the exchange, but on the advice of the commonwealth's attorney issued a pardon to the Reeves brothers for their offense of escaping from prison and honored Gov. Durbin's requisition for their return to Indiana. Sheriff Castrup and deputy, of Jasper, Ind., were here ready to take them back, but before they got possession of the prisoners Attorney Walter Franklin sent another writ of habeas corpus, returnable Saturday morning. This writ directs the sheriff of this county to bring the prisoners into court Saturday and show cause why they have been detained in jail. The Indiana officers are still here, and are confident of securing their men Saturday.

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 22.—Mrs. Clotel B. Botto was indicted Thursday by the grand jury on the charge of false swearing during the sensational contest over the will of Mrs. Florence Irvin-Botto.

The basis of the allegation of false swearing is Mrs. Botto's testimony as to her knowledge of codicils of the will by which, if the codicils should stand, Mrs. Botto and her son, Will Botto, who was the husband of the testator, would receive much more of the estate than if the codicil had not been added.

We do not wish to debate the question with Col. Graddy as to whether he left the "Democratic party or the party left him," but we are glad that he is too modest to claim to be the Democratic party. The Col.'s pen picture in the last paper reminds me of the young lady just home from boarding school, who showed an old lady one of her drawings. "Oh! darlint, isn't it swate! Now tell me, is it a cow, or a is it a rosy bush?"

The fourth birthday of Master Wendell Rouse was celebrated by a dinner at the residence of his aunt, Mrs. T. F. Curley. The young gentleman appreciated the honor, but was more especially delighted with his birthday cake which he persisted in calling "crokinole cake."

The very good taste Miss Gertrude Schneider has exhibited in arranging the grocery department of the Brittenheim store is all the more remarkable from the fact that she never has had anyone to show her how to do such a thing. Everybody talks of the improvement she has made in the looks of the grocery. Give the other departments a touching up, Miss Trudie, and show folks the artistic talent you possess.

It is said that Taylor Crowe was within $50 of a trade for a house and lot somewhere in Walton and dumbfounded less are the speculations as to whose house and lot it is. The probability is that Mr. Charles Harrell is the owner of the property in question, as he is desirous of moving back to Indiana, having staid here a little longer than usual If he moves out there again it will be the 23d time he has been moving back and forth in 25 years. It seems he cannot stay more than two years in any place. It becomes too monotonous after that time.

The most important and mirth provoking event of the past week was the "tacky" party given by Miss Mary Rouse at her home, corner Pike and Verona ave., on last Friday evening. Miss Sallie Herndon and Mr. Fred Erskew won the prizes for being repectively the tackiest dressed young lady and gentleman at the party. The costumes worn on the occasion were picturesque and the source of very great amusement. There were too many pressed to furnish a list of the names. All the bells of the town and all the gents who were not on the sick list are thought to have been there.

Ere this reaches your readers that clever gentleman and all around good fellow, Henry Diers, will, in all probability, be having his grand opening in Harrison, O. He leaves with Mrs. Diers to take possession on the 28th inst. On account of some peculiar views about moving cats they leave behind a glossy black cat, one with a white heart mark on his breast. Mrs. W. A. Moxley was very anxious to have it and Mrs. Diers gave it to her. She took it home and shut it up in a room and went out on some business. When she came in her pet dog also came. That cat made a forward movement towards the front window and went through the pane of glass just as easy as a well thrown brickbat and with about the same gentle crashing noise.

Our candidates might as well sit down on a rock in the middle of the pasture, and wait for the cow to back up to them to be milked, as to stay around Petersburg and wait for the offices to come to them.

If a man moves from one precinct to another ten days before the primary election, will he be entitled to vote in the precinct to which he moves, he being a legal voter there next November?—[He will most certainly be entitled to a vote in the precinct to which he moves, though he move there but the day before the primary election, if a legal voter at next November election.—ED.]

Not since the 3d of this month has there been any new cases of grippe developed in this vicinity. Some think the electric storm we had that day destroyed the foul germs of the disease is why the epidemic ceased so suddenly.

Clyde Hafer took a civil service examination early last fall, and not until last Friday did he know the result, when he received a communication from Washington City, notifying him that he was the first man on the list, and had received a larger per cent than any in his class.

Everybody knows that sealskins are very valuable, and why they should command such fabulous prices we can't say. Judging from the enormous number shipped from this vicinity every week by the Tanner Bros., it seems there would be an over production and prices would decline.

A very pretty home wedding took place at the residence of Mr. John Conner, last Wednesday. The contracting parties were Mr. Ed Ernest and Miss Bessie Conner. Rev S. E. Slater tied the hymenial knot. Thursday a host of friends and relatives gave them a royal reception at the home of the groom's parents, a sumptuous dinner being served in honor of the occasion. This worthy young couple begins the voyage of life together with the best wishes of a host of friends, and the bright prospects of a happy future.

A friend of ours sent us a prescription, sometime since, for la grippe, and as it knocked the grippe out of us higher than Gilderoy's kite, we give it to the public for what it is worth. Take four quarts of whisky into which dissolve four ounces of loaf sugar, to th a add one teaspoonful of water and another quart of whisky, then place it over a hot fire and boil sufficiently long to boil out the water, then stir in a little more whisky to cool it, and gulp it down. In order to remove the bad taste in the mouth take a little more whisky. With the exception of 5 drops this is the next best remedy for all purpose cures we know of.

Weeden Finnell, son of the late Elder, James Finnell, and a native of this county, died at the home of his son, Orrin, with whom he had lived in Kansas, since 1892. The remains were brought to this county, arriving here on Monday of last week, the interment being in the old Finnell burying ground on the farm now owned by W. H. Senour, near Walton. The deceased was about 75 years old and a brother of the late Vardiman Finnell, of Verona.

When the war between the States began, Mr. Finnell was a citizen of Missouri, and a sympathizer with the South, while his nearest neighbor was a Union man. Mr. Finnell never suspected that he entertained other than the very kindest feeling for him, but one day a squad of federal soldiers called and arrested him at the instance of his neighbor, who had represented to the federals that he was a rebel who should be put out of the way. Being under arrest, Finnell was taken some distance from his house, and ordered to advance and take his position on a stump from which to be shot. Reaching the stump, he leaped over it, and ran under fire, to a creek which was skirted on either side by dense undergrowth which, in many places, obscured the pools of water. In one of those pools, hidden by nature, as it were, for his especial benefit on that occasion, he took refuge, allowing his nostrils, only, to protrude above the surface of the water. The soldiers made diligent search up and down the creek, firing their muskets into the larger holes of water several times, but without effect. The search was finally abandoned, Mr. Finnell remaining in hiding until night, when he left the neighborhood, and in a few days he was a member of the noted Quantrill band and bore arms until the close of the rebellion.

DYSPEPSIA

Caused by weak nerves or run-down condition of the nervous system, cannot be cured by the use of Pepsin, Mineral Waters, etc. If you have ever resorted to this treatment you must admit that the relief was temporary. Common sense teaches us that to cure Dyspepsia, a medicine must be used that will strengthen and build up the nervous system, and in so doing remove the cause of the digestive trouble.

Boulton's Ner-vi-ton

acts gently in relieving the cause of dyspepsia and at the same time builds up the entire system.

CHRISTIAN HEROISM.

Dr. Talmage Praises It and Tells of Its Great Rewards.

How the Lord Jesus Will Remember the Faithful Soldier of the Cross —Heroes and Martyrs of Everyday Life.

[Copyright, 1901, by Louis Klopsch.]

In this discourse Dr. Talmage praises Christian heroism and tells of great rewards. The text is Galatians vi., 17, "I bear in my body the marks of the Lord Jesus."

We hear much about crowns, thrones, victories, but I now tell the more quiet story of scars, honorable and dishonorable. There are in all parts of the world people bearing dishonorable scars. They went into the battle of sin and were worsted, and to their dying day they will have a scarification of body or mind or soul. It cannot be hidden. There are tens of thousands of men and women now consecrated to God and living holy lives who were once corrupt; but they have been regenerated, and they are no more what they once were than rubescence is emaciation, than balm is vitriol, than noonday is midnight. But in their depleted physical health or mental twist or style of temptation they are ever and anon reminded of the obnoxious past. They have a memory that is deplorable. In some twinge of pain or some tendency to surrender to the wrong they have an unwholesome reminiscence. They carry scars, deep scars, ignoble scars.

But Paul in my text shows us a scarification which is a badge of honorable and self-sacrificing service. He had in his weak eyes the result of too much study and in his body, bent and worn, the signature of scourgings and shipwrecks and maltreatment by mobs. In my text he shows those scars as he declares, "I bear in my body the marks of the Lord Jesus." Notice that it is not wounds, but scars, and a scar is a healed wound. Before the scar is well defined upon the flesh the inflammation must have departed and right circulation must have been restored and new tissue must have been formed. It is a permanent indentation of the flesh—a cicatrix. Paul did well to show those scars. They were positive and undisputable proofs that with all his body, mind and soul he believed what he said. They were his diploma, showing that he had graduated from the school of hardship for Christ. They were credentials proving his right to lead in the world's evangelization.

Men are not ashamed of scars got in battle for their country. No American is embarrassed when you ask him: "Where did you get that gash across your forehead?" and he can answer: "That was from a saber cut at San Juan." When you ask some German: "Where did you lose your right arm?" he is not ashamed to say: "I lost it at Sedan." When you ask an Italian: "Where did you lose your eye?" he is not annoyed when he can answer: "I suffered that in the last battle under our glorious Gen. Garibaldi." But I remind you of the fact that there are scars not got in war which are just as illustrious. We had in this country years ago an eminent advocate who was called into the presidential cabinet as attorney general. In midlife he was in a Philadelphia courtroom engaged in an important trial. The attorney on the opposite side of the case got irritated and angry and in most brutal manner referred to the distinguished attorney's disfigured face, a face more deeply scarred than any face I ever saw. The legal hero of whom I am speaking in his closing argument said: "Gentlemen of the jury, when I was a little child I was playing with my sister in the nursery, and her clothes caught fire, and I ran to her to put out the fire. I succeeded, but I myself took fire, and before it was extinguished my face was awfully burned and as black as the heart of the scoundrelly counsel who on the other side of the case has referred to my misfortune." The eminent attorney of whom I speak carried all his life the honorable scar of his sister's rescue. Albert Barnes, the most distinguished of all commentators, unless it be Matthew Henry, for years at four o'clock in the morning might have been seen going from his house in Philadelphia to his study in the church and in those early hours and before breakfast to give all those wonderful commentaries, a theological library in themselves. He said that as he was pastor he felt bound to give all the rest of each day to work connected with his pastorate. But at what a ruinous draft upon his eyesight he did that early morning work, first by candlelight and then by gaslight! When he got through those wonderful volumes of Scriptural exposition, Albert Barnes was a blind man. Scars, illustrious scars, on his extinguished eyesight!

People think they must look for martyrs on battlefields or go through a history to find burnings at the stake and tortures on racks when there are martyrs all about us. At this time in this capital city there are scores of men wearing themselves out in the public service. In ten years they will not have a healthy nerve left in their body. In committee rooms, in consultations that involve the welfare of the nation, under the weight of great responsibilities, their vitality is being subtracted. In almost every village of the country you find some broken down state or national official. After exhausting himself in the public service, rough American politics kicks him out of congress or cabinet or legislative hall, and he goes into comparative obscurity and comparative want, for he has been long enough away from home to lose his professional opportunities. No man that was ever put to death by sword or instrument of torture was more of a martyr than that man who has been wrung to death by the demands of official position. The scars may not be visible, for these are scars on the brain, and scars on the nerve and scars on the heart, but nevertheless are they scars, and God counts them and their reward will be abundant.

In all lands there are veterans of war who may not have had their face scraped with one bullet or their foot lamed by one bursting shell and who could not roll up their sleeve and show you one mark suggestive of battle, yet carry with them weaknesses got in exposures to disease along malarial swamps or from many miles of marching, and ever and anon they feel a twinge of pain, each recurrence of which is sharper or more lasting, until after awhile they will be captured for the tomb by disorders which started 20 or 30 or 40 years before. And their scars are all unseen by human eyes. But those people are as certainly the victims of war as though they had been blown up in an undermined fortress or thrust through with a cavalryman's lance. What I want to make out is, that there are scars which never were counted except as God counts them, and I want to enlarge your sympathies.

There are many who can, in the same sense that Paul uttered it, say: "I bear in my body the marks of the Lord Jesus"—that is, for the sake of Christ and His cause they carry scars which keep their indenture through all time and all eternity. Do you think that Paul was accurate when he said that? If you have studied his career, you have no doubt of it. In his youth he learned how to fashion the hair of the Cilician goat into canvas, a quiet trade, and then went to college, the president of which was Gamaliel, an institution which scholars say could not have been very thorough because of what they call Paul's imperfect command of Greek syntax. But his history became exciting on the road to Damascus, where he was unhorsed and blinded. His conversion was a convulsion. Whether that fall from the horse may have left a mark upon him I know not, but the mob soon took after him and flogged and imprisoned and maltreated him until he had scars more than enough to assure the truthfulness of his utterance: "I bear in my body the marks of the Lord Jesus."

All of Paul's suffering was for Christ's sake. He had intellectual powers which could have achieved for him all worldly successes. You see what he could do in a courtroom when with extemporaneous speech he made the judicial bench tremble; when on Mars hill he confounded the Athenian critics; when he preached amid the excitement of a tumbling penitentiary; when in a storm at sea he took command of the ship, the only one on board cool headed. With his inspired logic, and his courage of utterance, and his power of illustration, and his capacity to move audiences, and his spirit of defiance, there was no height of worldly power he might not have gained.

What Hannibal was to an army, what Draco was in making laws, what Homer was to poetry, what Demosthenes was in power of persuasion, what Socrates was to philosophy, what Aeschylus was to the drama, that Paul might have been to all centuries. God never before and never since made another human being like him. But with all his capacity and opportunity of achieving worldly renown he turns his back on home and becomes an exile, on bounteous tables and eats his hard crust by the roadside, on the pleasure yachts that sailed the Mediterranean and embarked on a freightboat from Alexandria, on scholars in Athens and talks to fishermen. Instead of plaudits of aroused and enthusiastic assemblages he addressed audiences that talked back and asked insolent questions and broke up in a riot. Instead of garlands flung at his feet they hurled stones upon his head. Five times he was scourged, at each whipping 39 strokes, the fortieth stroke spared not from mercy, but because 40 strokes were the severest punishment the law allowed, and they feared, through counting wrong, they might make it 41 and so themselves be punished. Why, Paul must have been scarred all over, and he only tells the plain truth without any commentary when he declares: "I bear in my body the marks of the Lord Jesus." It was as much as to say: "See those long scars? There is where they whipped me. See you that ugly incantare. That is where they stoned me. See you that encircling scar on my wrist? That is where they handcuffed me. See those ugly curves around my ankles? There is where they made my feet fast in the stocks."

There are many who, like that apostolic martyr, have on them the mark of the Lord Jesus. There is the great army of foreign missionaries, sometimes maligned by dissolute American, English and Scotch merchants, who at Hong-Kong and Calcutta and Constantinople have had their wickedness reproved by the pure home life of those missionaries. There is the great army of the ministers of the Gospel, now in Heaven, who, on small salaries and amid fatigues that slew them, served their day and generation. There is another great army of private Christians who, in Sabbath schools and in tract distribution and in humanitarian and evangelistic efforts have put their life in sacrifice on the altars of God. There is another army of Christian invaders who lost their life in overwork for the church and the world's redemption. People call their illness neuralgia or nervous prostration or insomnia or paresis or premature old age. I call their ailments scars, as my text calls them scars. There may be scars on the memory, scars on the spirits, scars on the courage, scars on the soul, as well as scars on the body, and those invisible to the human eye are as honorable as those visible.

All ye who bear in your body the marks of the Lord Jesus have you thought what use those marks will be in the heavenly world? What source of glorious reminiscence! In that world you will sit together and talk over earthly experiences. "Where did you get that scar?" saint will say to saint, and there will come back a story of hardship and struggle and persecution and wounds and victory through the grace of the Gospel. Another spirit will say to listening spirit: "Where did you get that hurt so plainly marked?" And the answer will be: "Oh, that was one of the worst hurts I ever had. That was a broken friendship. We were in sweetest accord for years, together in joy and sorrow. What one thought the other thought. We were David and Jonathan. But our personal interests parted, and our friendships broke never to be renewed on earth. But we have made it all up here, and misunderstandings are gone, and we are in the same Heaven, on neighboring thrones, in neighboring castles on the banks of the same river."

"Where did you get that mark?" says another spirit to listening spirit, and the answer comes: "That is a reminder of a great bereavement, of a desolated household, of a deep grave, of all the heartstrings at one stroke snapped altogether. But you see it is no longer a laceration, for the wound has been healed, and my once bereft spirit is now in companionship with the one from whom for awhile I was separated." "Where did you get that long, deep scar?" says another immortal to listening immortal, and the answer comes: "That was the awful fatigue of a lifetime struggle in attempting amid adverse circumstances to achieve a livelihood. For 30 years I was tired—oh, so tired! But you see it is a healed wound, for I have found rest at last for body and soul, the complete rest, the everlasting rest, that remaineth for the people of God." Some one in Heaven will say to Martyr John Rogers: "Where did you get that scar on your foot?" and the answer will come: "Oh, that was a burn I suffered when the flames of martyrdom were kindled beneath me!" "Ignatius, what is that mark on your cheek?" "Oh, that was made by the paw of the lion to which I was thrown by the order of Trajan!" Some one will say to Paul: "Great apostle, that must have been a deep cut once, the mark which I see on your neck." And Paul says: "That was made by the sword which struck me at my beheadment on the road to Ostia." But we all have scars of some kind, and those are some of the things we will talk over in the heavenly world while we celebrate the grace that made us triumphant over all agnosticism.

Now what is the practical use of this subject? It is the cultivation of Christian heroics. The most of us want to say things and do things for God when there is no danger of getting hurt. We are all ready for easy work, for popular work, for compensating work, but we all greatly need more courage to brave the world and brave satanic assault when there is something aggressive and bold and dangerous to be undertaken for God and righteousness. And if we happen to get bit what an adieu we make about it! We all need more of the stuff that martyrs are made out of. We want more sanctified grit, more Christian pluck, more holy recklessness as to what the world may say and do in any crisis of our life. Be right and do right, and all earth and hell combined cannot put you down.

The same little missionary who wrote my text also uttered that piled up magnificence to be found in those words which ring like battle axes on splitting helmets: "In all these things we are more than conquerors through Him that loved us, for I am persuaded that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord."

How do you like that, you cowards, who shrink back from aggressive work and if so much as a splinter pierce your flesh cry out louder than many a one torn in auto da fe? Many a soldier has gone through a long war, been in 20 battles, led a regiment up a hill mounted by cannon and swept by musketry and yet came home without having been once hit and without a mark upon him. But it will not be so among those who pass in the grand review of Heaven. They have all in the holy wars been wounded, and all bear scars. And what would the newly arrived in Heaven do with nothing to show that he had ever been struck by human or diabolic weaponry; how embarrassed and eccentric such an one in such a place! Surely he would want to be excused awhile from the heavenly ranks and be permitted to descend on earth, crying: "Give me another chance to do something worthy of an immortal. Show me some post of danger to be manned, some fortress to be stormed, some difficult charge to make. Like Leonidas at Thermopylae, like Miltiades at Marathon, like Marlborough at Blenheim, like Godfrey at Jerusalem, like Winkelried at Sampach gathering the spears of the Austrian knights into his bosom, giving his life for others, show me some place where I can do a brave thing for God. I cannot go back to Heaven until somewhere I bear in my body the marks of the Lord Jesus." My hearer, my reader, quit complaining about your misfortunes and disappointments and troubles and through all time and all eternity thank God for scars!

Thy saints in all this glorious war
Shall conquer though they die.
They see the triumph from afar
And seize it with their eye.
When that illustrious day shall rise,
And all Thine armies shine,
In robes of victory through the skies,
The glory shall be Thine.

FIFTY-SIXTH CONGRESS.

Second Session.

Washington, Feb. 20.—Senate.—By the emphatic vote of 18 to 42 the senate late Tuesday afternoon rejected the conference report on the military academy appropriation. The report was rejected because it was regarded by a large majority of the senate as too drastic, and while no instructions could be given the conferees by the senate, it was understood that to secure a favorable action by the senate a modified provision as to the penalty for hazing would have to be presented and agreed upon by the conferees.

House.—The house spent the day upon the sundry civil appropriation bill and reached the 99th page. There are 135 pages in the bill. The features of the day was the debate upon the question of irrigation of arid lands in the west which came up incidentally. No material amendments were placed upon the bill Tuesday.

Washington, Feb. 21.—Senate.—The senate spent the day on the post office appropriation bill, making some progress, but not completing it. The amendment of Mr. Butler (N. C.), proposing a reduction of about 9 per cent. in the pay for railway postal service, was defeated 18 to 51, after a debate, in which Mr. Depew answered Mr. Butler's criticism on the large profits made by American roads. Late in the day a sharp controversy on the pneumatic tube question was precipitated by an amendment offered by Mr. Mason extending that service to Chicago and one by Mr. Vest extending it to St. Louis.

House.—The house finally passed the sundry civil appropriation bill Wednesday and entered upon consideration of the general deficiency, the last of the general appropriation bills.

Washington, Sept. 22.—Senate.—For nearly two hours Thursday the senate had under discussion a resolution by Mr. Jones (Ark.) to discharge the judicial committee from further consideration of the anti-trust bill passed by the house at the last session and to bring it before the senate for consideration. To some extent the merits of the measure was discussed. During the remainder of the afternoon the post office appropriation bill was under consideration. After a prolonged contest the appropriation for pneumatic tube service was eliminated entirely, so that as the bill stands now the service will have to be discontinued after July 1.

House.—Thursday was another field day in the house. Two distinct sensations occurred. Early in the day, during the consideration of an amendment to deficiency appropriation bill to prevent hazing at the naval academy, Mr. Hepburn, of Iowa, used exceedingly strong language while inveighing against the practice of hazing, charging by indirection that the habits of tyranny and oppression formed by the officers of the army and navy at their academies was responsible for the refusal of sailors to enlist in the navy and for the large number of desertions from the army.

Washington, Feb. 23.—Senate—Two of the senate supply bills of the government, the post office and the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill, were passed by the senate. During the greater part of the session a proposition to discontinue the appropriations for fast mail facilities from New York to New Orleans, via Atlanta, and from Kansas City, Mo., to Newton, Kan., was under discussion. By a decisive vote the senate continued the appropriations. An effort was made to obtain an appropriation to continue the pneumatic tube service in New York, Boston and Philadelphia, but it failed. An amendment was agreed to authorizing the postmaster general to investigate the telegraph system and to report his findings to the next congress.

House—The house devoted the day to odds and ends of legislation. With the approach of the end of the session members with small bills of various kinds besieged Speaker Henderson for recognition. The house devoted an hour to unanimous consent legislation and two hours and a half to the passage of private claims bills and private pension bills. Nine bills were passed by unanimous consent and 29 claims bills and 139 pension bills were passed.

Elected United States Senator.

Salem, Ore., Feb. 25.—John H. Mitchel was elected United States senator at 12:30 o'clock Sunday morning to succeed John W. McBride, whose term expires on March 4 next. His election was accomplished by a combination of 35 republicans with 11 democrats, making 46 votes, the majority necessary to elect. The result was reached on the 25th ballot of the day and the 52d of the session.

New Union Depot Burned.

Ft. Worth, Tex., Feb. 22.—The new union depot being erected jointly by the Santa Fe and Houston & Texas Central railroads in this city at a cost of $50,000, burned Thursday. It will be reconstructed at once. The loss was covered by insurance.

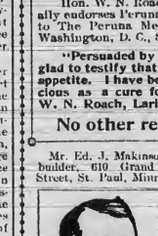
A UNITED STATES SENATOR

Says Pe-ru-na, the Catarrh Cure, Gives Strength and Appetite.



Hon. W. N. Roach, United States Senator from North Dakota.

Hon. W. N. Roach, United States Senator from North Dakota, personally endorses Peruna, the great catarrh cure and tonic. In a recent letter to The Peruna Medicine Company, at Columbus, Ohio, written from Washington, D. C., Senator Roach says:

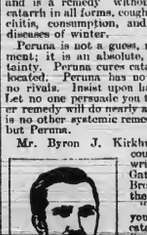
"Persuaded by a friend I have used Peruna as a tonic, and I am glad to testify that it has greatly helped me in strength, vigor and appetite. I have been advised by friends that it is remarkably efficacious as a cure for the almost universal complaint of catarrh."
W. N. Roach, Larimore, North Dakota.

No other remedy can take the place of Peruna.

Mr. Ed. J. Makinson, contractor and builder, 610 Grand Block, Wabash Street, St. Paul, Minn., says:

Mr E. J Makinson, Contractor and Builder.

"Many doctor bills can be saved by the use of Peruna. I have all my friends taking Peruna, and I have heard nothing but praise from them. Last fall I had a bad cough. I took four bottles of Peruna and it cured me. I am inclined to ward consumption, as all my family have died with it. I weigh 185 pounds, and I believe it is Peruna that has given me such good health."—J. Makinson.



As a result of the changeable climate, catarrh has become one of the most prevalent and universal diseases known to man. Nearly one-third of the people of the United States are afflicted with catarrh in some of its many phases and stages. Add to this the fact that catarrh rapidly tends to become fixed or chronic, also the further fact that it is capable of producing a great many other diseases, and we begin to realize the true nature of this dread disease.

So formidable has catarrh become that in every city or town of any size numerous doctors are to be found who make the treatment of catarrh a specialty. Of course a great deal of good is accomplished in this way, but as yet a comparatively small number of the people can avail themselves of this treatment because of the great expense necessarily attached to it.

To all such people Dr. Hartman's remedy, Peruna, comes as a great boon. Not only is it more successful in curing catarrh than the treatment of the catarrh specialists, but it is within the reach of every person in this land. Peruna can be bought at any drug store, and is a remedy without equal for catarrh in all forms, coughs, colds, bronchitis, consumption, and all climatic diseases of winter.

Peruna is not a guess, nor an experiment; it is an absolute, scientific certainty. Peruna cures catarrh wherever located. Peruna has no substitutes—no rivals. Insist upon having Peruna. Let no one persuade you that some other remedy will do nearly as well. There is no other systemic remedy for catarrh but Peruna.

Mr. Byron J. Kickhuff, attorney, counsellor at law, writes from 632 Gates avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., the following:

Byron J. Kirkhuff, Attorney and Counsellor at Law.

"I have used your Peruna for catarrh and find its curative powers all you recommend. It cured me of a very bad attack and though I suffered for years I feel entirely relieved, and if it will benefit others, I gladly give it my endorsement."—B. J. Kirkhuff.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, president of the Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

MAKES WOMEN COARSE.

Not One Girl in Twenty Can Steer Safely Among the Rocks Journalism Places in Her Path.

Inreply to a letter sent by Edward Bok to representative men and women journalists of this country asking, "Is the newspaper office a place for a girl?" a leading woman writer and editor says, in the Ladies' Home Journal: "For a young girl I consider a newspaper office the most appalling moral eye-opener imaginable. Naturally, where all subjects are published, they are to a great degree discussed, and a woman must hear things that no amount of chivalry from her masculine coworkers can prevent. That bon camaraderie, which a woman of the world understands and can cope with, is often the undoing of the young girl who grows flippant and unwomanly in her desire to be regarded favorably by members of the staff."

A leading editor in replying to the same question embodies in his letter the opinions of the 29 other men who also answer the inquiry negatively: "'It depends upon the girl,' is said. And it does. But so much depends upon her, she is asked to carry so much, she is required to be so everlastingly on the defensive, that there isn't one girl in 20 who can safely steer across all the rocks she meets. And even if she does I do not see how it is worth her while. We are supposed to pay our women better than any paper in New York; yet of the lot, the highest paid receives only $42 a week. She is generally credited as getting $100 a week, but, actually, she gets what I say, since I pay her such Friday. And here is an unreal success."

ELEVEN BILLIONS.

United States Treasurer Roberts' Estimate of the Metallic Money of the World.

An increase of more than 100 per cent. in the money of the world in less than a generation is an exhibit of the annual report of the director of the mint. Nearly the whole of this increase is in metallic money and much the larger portion is in gold. The total stock reported in 1873 was about $4,600,000,000. More than half of this was in paper money, not fully covered by the metallic reserve. The situation at the beginning of 1900 showed a total monetary stock of about $11,600,000,000, of which only a little more than one-fourth was in uncovered paper money, says the Philadelphia Times.

Director Roberts finds that, while the money supply of the world has increased about $7,000,000,000, the increase in gold money since 1870 has been about $3,600,000,000; in silver, about $2,700,000,000, and in uncovered paper money only about $630,000,000.

A large proportion of the increase in gold has taken place within the short space of seven years, while the quantity of silver money, which was at its maximum of about $4,200,000,000 at the beginning of 1896, has since been somewhat reduced by the retirement of silver by Germany and its retirement in other countries. The conditions of 1900 showed a total monetary supply of about $10,300,000,000, which has since been increased by about $1,300,000,000. About $940,000,000 of this increase has been in gold money.

PRESS COMMENTS.

——Mark Twain is still stanch and true to the western American spirit. He is an out-and-out anti-imperialist and gives good American reasons for the faith that is in him.—St. Louis Republic.

——The tariff duty on wool is 11 and 12 cents, and yet that commodity is falling in price while its competitor, unprotected cotton, is advancing in value by leaps and bounds.—Kansas City Times.

——The country is willing to get along without so good a thing as the subsidy bill, and if the country desires to make the sacrifice what is it to Senators Frye and Hanna?—Indianapolis News (Ind.).

——The real republican managers in the United States senate are said to oppose the ship subsidy because they do not like Mr. Hanna's methods. All of them, however, like Mr. Hanna's methods well enough when their terms are about to expire and it is necessary to carry the state.—Detroit Free Press.

——Senator Hanna's complimentary remarks about the south are not likely to influence southern statesmen to support his ship subsidy bill. They believe that the surest and quickest way to build up the merchant marine is to amend our navigation laws, so that foreign built ships owned by Americans can fly the American flag. With the laws so amended it would at once appear that there was no foundation for the plea of American shipbuilders that ships cannot be built as cheaply in this country as in foreign countries.—Savannah News.

THE SHIPPING BILL.

Mark Hanna's Hand in Pushing Forward the Trust-Favoring Scheme.

From the decision of the senate republican committee on order of business to ask for earlier daily sessions of the senate, and also to move for night sessions next week, it is evident that Hanna's party associates perceive the danger to their party contained in the calling of a special session of congress.

If it is deemed necessary to convene the Fifty-seventh congress in special session following the close of the Fifty-sixth, the responsibility for such necessity must rest upon the backers of the ship subsidy bill. It is because of the stubborn determination of the friends of the subsidy grab to jam it through congress at all costs that other business, genuinely important to the entire country rather than to a syndicate clique of monopolists, has been impossible of transaction. It has been the ship subsidy bill or nothing with the arrogant influences back of that evil measure.

On its face, the ship subsidy bill is sufficiently malodorous to contain a serious menace of future disaster to the party which dared to make it a law. If it shall compel the calling of a special session of congress for the transaction of business which could otherwise easily have been disposed of during the regular session, the disfavor in which the subsidy grab stands with the people will be ominously increased. Wise republicans plainly perceive this forbidding truth of the existing situation.

The probabilities are, however, that Mark Hanna sternly demands the passage of the ship subsidy bill, extra session or no extra session. He must recoup the syndicates whose money reelected Mr. McKinley to the presidency. The $180,000,000 subsidy grab is the beginning of this repayment. If the people's representatives in congress are so "foolish" as to fight the ship subsidy bill, why, so much the worse for the people. They'll have just that much more to pay in the long run, and Hanna is insolently indifferent to their loss if their loss means the syndicates' gain.—St. Louis Republic.

A PROTECTED COMBINATION.

Something in the Line of Trusts for the American People to Contemplate.

There seems to be no doubt that a deal has been consummated by which pretty much all the steel manufacturing concerns in the United States, representing an aggregate capital of nearly $1,000,000,000, have been brought under one control.

Some of the consolidating concerns are giants in themselves. The Carnegie company, at the head, is capitalized at $320,000,000, the Federal Steel company at $200,000,000, the American Steel and Wire company at $90,000,000 and the National Steel company at $50,000,000.

These four alone have an aggregate capitalization of $660,000,000, or an average of $165,000,000 each. They are not "infant industries."

This gigantic combination will have more power than its component members have had to stifle all competition among themselves and to take the utmost advantage of the tariff which has been made for their benefit upon the assumption that they are feeble creatures who are quite incapable of caring for themselves.

They are exporting now at the rate of fully $120,000,000 worth a year of their products, and selling them in open and free competition with all comers in neutral markets, and in the face of high tariff duties, even, in the markets of competitors.

With what semblance or pretense of reason, then, can it be said that they need any tariff protection whatever in their home market? Such a claim cannot be set up except upon the assumption that they must charge their own countrymen more than they accept from foreigners for the same goods in order to make satisfactory profits.

Do Americans relish being forced by the Dingley law to pay exorbitant prices in order that the people of other lands may buy American goods at low prices? It would seem that they do.—Chicago Chronicle.

An Extra Session Unnecessary.

The talk in Washington of the need of an extra session of congress has a motive that is not put forward. The pretext that it is needed to pass legislation for the Philippines is buncombe. There will be no legislation for the Philippines by this session of congress or any other, pending the decision of questions regarding the status of the islands now before the supreme court. The coterie in Washington most anxious for the extra session of congress are the advocates of the ship subsidy bill. Their anxiety increases as greater familiarity with the bill on the part of the general public still further jeopardizes the character of the measure. It grows more evident from day to day that American shipping can live and grow without the aid of a subsidy. But failure to pass the ship subsidy bill will be a grievous disappointment to those who have probably paid for it in advance by political contributions. Hence the demand for an extra session. —Utica Observer.

——Cuba was never so thoroughly searched by Spaniard or insurrecto for his foe as it is now being by the administration for some shadow of an excuse to violate the promise of Cuban independence made before the beginning of the Spanish war. If the Cubans would only revolt or something like that! But they won't. That the promise to turn Cuba over to Cubans must be broken seems to be the major premise of the arguments of the imperialistic press—how to justify violation of the promise is what torments them.—Utica Observer.

Where the Thieves Were.

The wife of a well-known and very popular member of the house of representatives was telling a story on him the other day, which was much appreciated.

The gentleman came in rather late the other night after a convivial time. He was tired and sleepy, and scarcely struck the bed before he was in a profound slumber. Toward morning the good wife became alarmed by unusual noises, and immediately visions of plunder and violence disturbed her imagination. She shook her spouse with vigor and cried: "Jim, wake up; wake up!" He gave an extra snort and snore, and turned over. She shook him again, screaming: "Jim, you must get up; there are thieves in the house!"

Arousing himself for a moment, he said: "Oh, no, my dear; there are no thieves in the house; they are all in the senate."—Baltimore Sun.

The Prince Declined.

When the prince of Wales was about to visit Niagara Falls Blondin had a rival, one Farini, who was a character. He issued an advertisement urging that the entrance to his initial entrance to the great and glorious United States in a striking manner. Accordingly he proposed that he should wheel the prince in a wheelbarrow over a tight rope across the gorge to the United States—an entrance that would be unparalleled! Then the notice added: "Should accident happen the his highness whereby he should happen to be precipitated to the gulf below (of which, I assure you, there is little danger) the money taken from the spectators shall be refunded."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

Whenever the American people find a thing of merit, absolute genuine merit, they appreciate it and never hesitate to make liberal use of it. It is merit that counts for the enormous sale of Cascarets—over six million boxes last year. It is the best bowel and liver regulator in the world and sells at prices that suit everybody—10c, 25c and 50c a box, put up in tablet form, and every tablet stamped "C. C. C." There is no waste. Cascarets are easy to take and are sold by the makers under an absolute guarantee to refund the money if Cascarets do not prove satisfactory. A 50c box is enough for a whole month's treatment for the worst case. Every sufferer is urged to give Cascarets an immediate trial.

The Trust Problem.

To a thoughtful mind, the trust problem is one of serious import. It must be firmly grappled with, for it creeps upon society before you are aware of its existence, in this respect much resembling the various disorders which attack the stomach, such as constipation, indigestion, dyspepsia and biliousness. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will cure all such ailments, and prevent la grippe, malarial fever and ague. Be sure to give it a trial.

Change of Name.

Mrs. Greene—I suppose the Chitlings are awfully stuck up since they got that money from Mrs. Chitling's uncle?

Mrs. Gray—Not so much as one might have supposed; but I notice that when they have mincemeat on the table they call it croquettes; it used to be plain hash.—Boston Transcript.

A Long, Long Time.

This expression is especially forceful when it relates to the period of a person's illness, and it then has a very dreary sound. When Mrs. A. A. Bailey was living at 858 Bolton Ave., Cleveland, Ohio, she wrote: "My daughter has been troubled with Granulated Sore Eyelids for four or five years. She has now begun to use your Lotion and her eyes are better than for a long, long time." This wonderful remedy if used faithfully will, not only relieve, but cure. If your druggist does not keep it, take no substitute, but send to Bolon Palmer, 374 Pearl Street, New York, for samples of Palmer's Lotion and Lotion Soap.

Puffs under the eyes; red nose; pimple-blotched, greasy face don't mean hard drinking always as much as it shows that there is BILE IN THE BLOOD. It is true, drinking and over-eating overloads the stomach, but failure to assist nature in regularly disposing of the partially digested lumps of food that are dumped into the bowels and allowed to rot there, is what causes all the trouble. CASCARETS will help nature help you, and will keep the system from filling with poisons, will clean out the cores that tell of the system's rottenness. Bloated by bile the figure becomes unshapely, the breath foul, eyes and skin yellow; in fact the whole body kind of fills up with filth. Every time you neglect to help nature you lay the foundation for just such troubles. CASCARETS will carry the poisons out of the system and will regulate you naturally and easily and without gripe or pain. From Williamstown Courier.

There is "hot time coming" for the "blind tiger" venders in Grant county. Uncle Sam has at last tumbled to the fact that wines, whiskies and beer are being sold in Grant county by various persons without leave, law or license, and last week he put one of his secret service sleuths on the trail and he discovered that of the thirty and more "blind tigers" being conducted in Grant county there was only one that had even the protection of a Government license. So these gentlemen who have been peddling the "death dealer" in barns and hay lofts, in old houses and out of the way places will likely be visited in a few days by a United States Deputy Marshal and invited to accompany him to Covington, there to explain to a Federal Judge and jury why it is that he has no respect for Uncle Sam's laws made and provided. Go in, Uncle Sam, we are with you. Close up every place good and tight that has no license to sell.

Grant county jail is the best jail in the State without exception, yet in the last year eight prisoners have escaped from its "durance vile." Appropos of the facility with which prisoners get out of our $20,000 jail. Hon. Jim Settle, of Owen county, probably sized the situation up as well as any man could in that witty, inimitable manner of his when in Williamstown during the October Court. Jim, who is one of Owen county's best lawyers, came over to Grant to practice his profession during the October term of the Court and did not bring with him a very liberal supply of ready cash. He put his horse in the livery stable and proceeded to the bar to engage in his profession. He remained in Williamstown practicing for several days, but did not increase his worldly assets of cash. In fact the Hon. James was not familiar with the practice at a Grant county bar and really lost money on the week's engagement. Finally becoming homesick he went to the livery stable to get his horse and buggy, when he learned that the charges were $4 50 and that the polite liveryman refused to surrender the horse until the bill for his keeping was settled. Jim swore and denounced the methods of doing business in Williamstown, but the liveryman was obdurate. About that time one of Mr. Settle's acquaintances came along and inquired into the matter, when James explained it to him and he wound up by saying "That he had always been a d—d fool, that he ought to have known better than to put his horse in a livery stable. I guess I put him in the wrong place. If I had put him in the jail down here he would have got out himself by this time." The joke was so good that Jim's horse was bailed out, and he went on his way rejoicing that he did not live in Williamstown.

And it turns out that Jerry Constantine, of Sparta, Gallatin county, whose constituents have supposed all along was the telegrapher for the national House of Representative is on the pay-roll of Uncle Sam as a "teamster." You naughty boy, Jerry! You ought not to have deceived your people.

It has been apparent to a casual observer for some time that there are two factions in the Republican party in this county, between which there is considerable friction, one faction being composed of the fellows who "never get nothing nohow." This latter faction has been on the verge of rebellion, on two or three occasions, against the local powers that be, and had it not been for the advice of a prominent leader in the party, although but a recent acquisition to its ranks, a very pretty fight between the factions would have been pulled off last year in one of their conventions, and mayhap an entire change of leaders would have been installed. The gentleman sought to be disrobed of leadership is a hard fighter and a splendid organizer, and when the fight is made on him in convention, he will at least put up a contest that will be interesting to his opponents. The gentleman who has been pouring oil on the troubled waters so successfully since he cast his lot with the g. o. p. is of the opinion that the period for which he will be able to longer maintain party harmony in the ranks in this county is brief, and that the fight to a finish will soon come.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

After the 1st day of March, 1901, I will build buggies for $50 up. The vehicle will have first-class wheels, B grade, with celebrated Gotier steel tire, drilled and bolted between spokes. The axle will be the celebrated Winchester 1000 mile axle, something neat and strong. The gearing will be of my own make and pattern, which I claim has no equal. The body will be good, seasoned yellow poplar; sills and risers good seasoned ash and hickory—not Cottonwood as the factories are now using. Notice the corners of a factory body and you find them bursting out, something I guarantee my work not to do.

Trimming.

Trimmings.—Rows of second growth ash, steel socket of the improved Cleveland pattern; top to have leather sides quarters bufled, not split, roof and curtains 30 ounce rubber; lining, 14 ounce cloth any color you wish; back and cushion, leather or cloth as you wish; storm apron large enough to cover two people and turn water; rug carpet will be something neat, full length, well bound, as will also the toe pad. I also build a two-seated, three spring

Pleasure Wagon for $67.

In fact Carriages, Phaetons, Surreys or any kind of a vehicle as cheap as any factory work, and I know a great deal better. I build this work on orders only. I carry no stock, so you can order what you want.

Carriage Repairs.

You ask me if I can shoe a horse. I answer, yes If you give me time enough I can make the shoe as good as anyone, but when it comes to paring the foot and driving the nails, I would lack the judgment—I could not level the foot and would prick your horse, and then how quick you would remove the shoe and do what you could for him, and all I could say would be too late. The same way with an axle or any other parts of a carriage. If they are on a strain, or a wheel that is dished out of shape I will fix it for you. No cure, no pay. Notice some

Prices on Wheels.

I will cut your wheels down, put on new XXX beveled rims and heavy steel tires for $6 68, and everything else in proportion.

Painting.

There are a great many ways to repaint a job. My prices are in reach of all. Following are my prices for 1901: $5, $8, $10 and $12 On my $10 and $12 jobs I give a written guarantee. If you can buy the paint and varnish and stripe your job and do the work for $5, I have nothing more to say on a $5 job. Come and see, learn and be convinced I mean just what I say.

The man who gets the first one of my buggies will sell more for me. Now come on. My place of business is one-fourth of a mile west of T. J. Childress' toll-gate. H. G. COLLINS,

Few mothers are healthy, because their duties are so exacting. The anxiety of pregnancy, the shock of childbirth, and the care of young children, are severe trials on any woman. But with Wine of Cardui within her grasp, every mother—every woman in the land—can pay the debt of personal health she owes her loved ones. Do you want robust health with all its privileges and pleasures? Wine of Cardui will give it to you.

WINE of CARDUI

strengthens the female organs and invigorates weakened functions. For every female ill or weakness it is the best medicine made. Ask your druggist for $1.00 bottle Wine of Cardui, and take no substitute under any circumstances.

Mrs. Edwin Cox, Carmel, Me., writes: "When I commenced using Wine of Cardui I was hardly able to walk across the house. Two weeks after I called had a calm and natural confinement. When any other child was born I suffered with labor pains 24 hours, and had to raise him on a bottle because I had no milk. After using the Wine during pregnancy this time, I gave birth last month to a baby girl, and was in labor only two hours, with but little pain, and I have plenty of milk. For the benefit of any sufferer in my health I thank God and Wine of Cardui."

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXVI. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 6, 1901. NO. 20.

FROM the best information obtainable the wheat crop in this part of the State will be a failure this year.

IF Governor Beckham had no advisor in the gambling cases he needed one, and if he had one he was a bad one.

IT looks very much like some of Gov. Beckham's political enemies laid a trap for him and he walked right into it.

GOV. BECKHAM has already made record enough for a whole term in the matter of issuing pardons before or after convictions.

THE militia had to be called out, one day last week at Indianapolis to prevent the lynching of a colored man almost in the shadow of the capitol of the State. Indiana is making a record rapidly for lawlessness.

THE appropriations of the Congress just adjourned exceeded $1,457,000,000 and several very large steals that were presented during the session, among them the ship subsidy, did not go through, but they may be more successful in the future.

THE Democrats want to have a majority in both houses of the next General Assembly, and to insure a majority they must drop all factional fights and put their best men forward for Representatives and Senators—men who are for the good of their party first and not wholly for personal advantages and preferments.

THE Senate Committee on Military Affairs favorably reported a bill to pay Confederate soldiers for horses taken from them by the Federal soldiers after the surrender at Appomattox. It is estimated that these claims amount to $200,000 about $40,000 of which would go to citizens of Kentucky and about $60,000 to Tennesseeans.

SOL FLEMING, the first kuklux ever sentenced in Letcher County, was given a life term one day last week. The jury was out less than ten minutes. Fleming with 14 others, was accused of robbing and murdering Mrs. Mina Hall and her son, Sherwood Reynolds, at Boone's Fork last November. It was hard to suppress Judge Lynch for some time after.

THE Pugh faction in the Democratic party in Kenton county is clearly on top, and the Elliston faction looks very much like it is nowhere. Each faction has called a primary to nominate a Democratic ticket to be voted for this fall, but the call of the Pugh people was made by a majority of the committee. It seems that Pugh is trying to have the trouble adjusted, and declares his willingness to submit to the action of the State Committee in the matter, let that action be what it may.

JUDGE BARKER, of Louisville, in whose court Alvey, the gambler, was tried and convicted makes a strong statement in denial of the charges made against him by Gov. Beckham in his reasons for pardoning Alvey. Judge Barker handles the Governor without gloves, and does it in a dignified manner, but he could not prevent Kinkead, one of the attorneys for the Commonwealth, from making a spectacle of himself. A committee of attorneys has been appointed to investigate the conduct of the court and the attorneys for the prosecution in the Alvey case.

AFTER searching six months for the oldest persons in the world the committee on vital statistics of the Hundred-Year club of New York City has prepared a report which shows that the oldest man is Izia Rodofsty of Moscow, Russia, who is in his 136th year; and the oldest woman, Mrs. Nancy Hollfield, of Battle Creek, Mich., who is 117. Rodofsty is reported by Dr. Jonosky, of Moscow, who says the old man comes of a long lived family. His father died at 120 years. Rodofsty's sight is good, but his hearing is poor. He was never ill, uses liquor but has never used tobacco. Dr. Wood, of the Battle Creek, Mich., sanitarium, reports that Mrs. Hollfield has lived a temperate, simple life, doing housework for years.

IT'S lucky for Great Britain that the Boers are not as numerous as the Filipinos, and its lucky for the United States that the Filipinos are not as good fighters as the Boers.

So much dust and litter are left behind on London bridge by the passage over it of over 2,000 vehicles daily that three or four carts are required to carry off the fine debris from leather soles and iron tires. It is said that twenty-five cubic yards of granite are reduced to powder each year by the incessant traffic.

Will some student of history be kind enough to inform us wherein the struggle of the Fillipinos for independence differs from the struggle of the thirteen colonies duriug the Revolutionary War for their independence? And we would also like to be informed wherein the war of Great Britian against the Colonies in 1776 differs from the war now waged by the United States in the Philippine Islands. —Paris Democrat.

THE Rising Sun Recorder concludes an editorial on the recent lynching at Terre Haute, Indiana, as follows:

"Recent outrages of mobs in Indiana and other parts of the north, equal any outlawry committed in the south or anywhere else, show a lively growth of barbarism all over this country, and call for a loud demand by the soberheaded people from a far more rigid enforcement of the laws, the protection of those in the hands of the authorities, and the speedy trial and prompt conviction of those guilty of violating the laws."

Senator Beveridge, of Indiana, who was thirty-eight last October, is generally referred to as a remarkably precocious young man to have attained such a high position at such age. But Henry Clay was elected Senator at thirty-one, and John C. Breckinridge at thirty-nine, having been previously elected Vice-President at thirty-five and having served the full term. In the Senate which will meet on the 15th of March next for executive business will be Joseph W. Bailey, of Texas, who is exactly one year younger than Beveridge, and has served ten years as a member of Congress.—Courier-Journal.

GOV. BECKHAM'S hasty action in pardoning the leading gambler of Louisville, immediately upon his conviction, can not be accounted for on any ground that ought to prompt the chief Executive to such action. He should at least have had consideration enough for the court in which Alvey was convicted to give it a hearing on the charges made against it of corruption in the trial. There is no excuse for the Governor's action, and his friends who intimate the pardon was granted as a rebuke to a leading attorney for the prosecution places the Governor in even a worse light before the public. That the Governor made a very serious mistake can not be denied, but it is hoped that he will profit by it, and that at the close of his administration it will be the only event in his career as Chief Executive that will not be to his credit as an official.

THE Washington Mirror says: "William J. Deboe—Junior Senator from Kentucky, Possesses less ability than any other man in the Senate of the United States. Has practically no knowledge of public affairs. Was elected more by accident than any otherwise. Has few friends among public men, but no companions. He was unknown except in his immediate neighborhood, until a Republican Legislature in a Democratic State elected him to the Senate. During his four years of service he has done nothing. If he were to serve another four years the result will be the same. He is both a physician and a lawyer. Has never reached any eminence in either profession. He seems to understand his mental limitation, and does not presume to be other than what he is. Few people know him, and those who do not have no interest in forming his acquaintance. At the expiration of his present term he will retire to private life, and no more will be heard of him. This will be as it should be."

GRANT COUNTY.

From Williamstown Courier.

Hon. D. S. Clay has suffered a very great loss during the past week from hydrophobia among his ewes. He had thirteen very fine Southdown ewes on his farm near Williamstown. One evening about ten days ago while the family were all at supper a dog broke into the lot where the sheep were confined and bit all of them except one that had dropped lambs and had been put into another lot. No one saw the dog, but when the family ran out to see what was the matter they found all of the ewes badly bitten, evidently by a dog, but none of them apparently seriously hurt. Nearly a week later every one of the sheep that were exposed were taken with rabbies, and after fighting everything in sight for an hour or two, fell dead. The ewes lost will approximate in value the sum of $100. This is the first time we have ever heard of hydrophobia among sheep, especially in the winter time, as rabbies are supposed to be a product of hot weather and bad water.

Newt Gouge and Miss Addie Richardson were married at the County Clerk's office last Tuesday afternoon by the County Judge. The wedding was the culmination of a long courtship. A few months ago young Gouge accidentally shot himself with a double load of bird shot. The charge entered the arm near the shoulder and tore away a great mass of flesh and muscle. The wound was very painful and dangerous and his physician declared that death might result. In a few days blood poisoning was threatened and the worst was feared. Miss Richardson hastened to the bed side of her almost dying sweetheart, and despite the protestations of some of his family, stayed with him and nursed him till all danger was passed. No trained nurse was ever more faithful to a patient than she, and at one time, when he was at his worst, she remained at his bedside four days and nights without closing her eyes in sleep. His recovery is perhaps as much due to her faithful nursing as to any other cause.

When Newt recovered he came to Williamstown and hunted up his sweetheart, secured her consent to an immediate marriage, went to the Clerk's office, sent for the County Judge, who in a few well-chosen words, pronounced the wedding ceremony. Newt was so enraptured that he stopped proceedings in the midst of the ceremony and kissed the bride. The Courier offers its blessing.

James Gordon sold to R. A. Shaw, agent for the Cotinental Tobacco Company 12,500 pounds of tobacco which is said to have been one of the best crops grown in this neighborhood this year. The tobacco was grown on the farm of Perry Conrad, and on six acres of land, making a yield of more than 2,000 pounds to the acre. Mr. Gordon is said to be one of the best handlers of the weed in this locality.

The Grant County Covention of Christian churches will convene in Willlamstown on the fifth Sunday in March.—the 30th and 31st days of the month. Bro. O. P. Hogan is president of the Convention. Some of the ablest ministers of the Christian church are expected to be present.

That money is abundant in Grant county could not be better demonstrated than to know that the deposits in the Grant County Deposit Bank have increased more than $31,000 since the first day of January and are increasing from day to day.

How is it that the sons of the butcher, the baker and the candlestick maker, not to mention those of the ditch diggers, should become haughty aristocrats after passing through Annapolis and consider that none of their quondam companions can ever rise to their social level?

Miss Margaret Ingles, of Lexington, announces her candidacy for State Librarian. The office is now held by Miss Pauline Hardin, who will also be a candidate. Miss Ingles was on the stump for Goebel and Bryan.

In Louisville last week 4 hogsheads of new Owen County tobacco brought $9 30 to $3 85.

Farm, Stock and Crop.

The brood sow should be deep thro the sides, with large heart girth and finely and properly developed hind quarters.

The Argintine and Uraguay wheat crops are short and these countries will have no grain for export this year.

Seven millions of the 9,000,000 bales of cotton produced in this country are by negro labor. However much of a menace the presence of the black man may be to America, it is very evident it would be hard to get along without him.

A Galveston firm is in receipt of this letter from a man in a coast country town: "I have read so much about Mardi Gras that I would like for you to tell me where I can get the seed, and if you think it is a good grass to feed cattle."

The hog is the mortgage lifter, the sheep the farm fertilizer, the cow the barn builder and hen the grocery bill payer. This quartet, with a man and a women not afraid of the work in caring for them, will insure prosperity on any farm,

The greatest improvement and profitable prices now realized by our farmers for both mules and horses has greatly encouraged interest in the value of those animals, and our farmers generally will breed their mares this spring as it is once more profitable to raise colts.

A Shortage in Weight.

The weight of the 1900 tobacco crop certainly fooled a number of us. It can be safely estimated that it will be one hundred pounds less to the acre than the 99 crop. While in some cases it will reach as high as 300 pounds, in other places it will be no greater than fifty pounds. A fair average can therefore be struck at 100 pounds to the acre. The crop of 1899 was so very compact and heavy that its weight was actually deceptive the other way. One farmer, delivering a load of tobacco of the 99 crop to a country buyer, made a guess that from appearances, there ought to be five hundred pounds in the load. When it was weighed in, however, the scale showed that it weighed fifteen hundred pounds. This year, when a large wagon-load of the new crop is brought in the guess is double and sometimes even triple that of the actual weight. Thus are even the best informed deceived. The figures which the plant gave during the summer estimating the Burley crop at 275,000,000 pounds, were all right then, but the shortage in weight since has cut that figure fully twenty million pounds. Even at that the guess was a good one, when the acreage is taken into consideration. The heavy rains of the summer deteriorated the tobacco's growth and maturity, in some places, particularly in the blue grass sections of Kentucky where the level land, so rich and prodcutive was made to suffer by a superabundance of rain. The hilly counties fared better for the very fact that they were hilly. I venture the assertion that by the first of February there will not be much old tobacco left. Shipments of good old are coming in steadily, and if they continue so for the rest of the month there will be little remaining to come.—Tobacco Plant.

We did not approve of Bill Sam Taylor issuing pardons to the mountaineers for drunkenness and parading the streets at Frankfort with rifles, pistols and knives before they were tried, neither do we approve of Beckham issuing pardons to gamblers, of Louisville, before they are tried. We don't care what the circumstances are in the cases, the Democrats should be consistent in their views—Georgetown News.

A Part of the Billion-Dollar Trust.

The Australian Government has just ordered 17,000 tons of steel rails from the Illinois Steel Company, that concern having made a bid for the order "lower than any competing concern in the world." British steel-rail manufacturers would, of course, have had the preference in Australia if they could have filled this large order at the same or nearly the same price as their American rivals. But they were unable to do it, and consequently the works of the Illinois Company at South Chicago will have its entire force running on full time for the next ten months.

These 17,000 tons of rails are to be delivered at Melbourne. From Chicago to Melbourne is a broken journey of 2,000 miles by land and over 10,000 miles by sea. The freight on those 17,000 tons of steel will of course have to be paid, and it must be heavier than it would be on British rails carried all the way to Melbourne by sea without reshipment, from Southampton.

With this latest and strongest proof of the fact that the British steel rail is simply "not in the running" with the steel rail of American make, the question often put by The World recurs with added point: Why do American steel-rail manufactures, who are just being absorbed in a gigantic steel combination for monopoly, still insist that an import duty of $7.84 per ton on steel rails is needed to protect them against the foreign mauufactures whom they are underbidding in their own markets, and inspite of the handicap of heavier freight charges to the port of delivery?—New York World.

Take a grain of falsehood, a handful of runabout, a sprig of herb of backbite, a teaspoonful of don't you tell it, six drachms of malice, and a few drops of envy. Stir well and let simmer for an hour. Add a little discontent and jealousy, and then strain through a bag of misconstruction. Cork it in a bottle of manevolence and hang it on a skein of street yarn. Shake it occasionally for a few days and it will be ready for use. Take a few drops before going out to walk and you will succeed.

A capital story relating to good old times is still told in the Fen district of the eastern counties. As is well known by many and even now remembered by some, a bass viol was often procured to help the choirs in parish churches.

One lovely Sunday morning in the summer while the parson was droning out his drowsy dicourses and had about reached the middle a big bull managed to escape from his pasture and marched majestically down the road, bellowing defiantly as he came. The parson, who was somewhat deaf, heard the bull bellow, but mistaking the origin of the sound, gravely glanced toward the singers seats and said in tones of reproof:

"I would thank the musicians not to tune up during service time, It annoys me very much."

As may well be imagined, the choir looked greatly surprised, but said nothing.

Very soon, however, the belligerent bull gave another bellow, and then the aggrieved parson became desperately indignant. —Cassell's Magazine.

SOUTHERNERS have always been accused of being anxious for government office but there is on record no such case of coldbloodedness as that shown by the seven northern men who applied for Consul Wildman's post before the breath was fairly out of his body.

At Manchester, Clay County, the fountain head of mountain "civil liberty," two prisoners have been assassinated, one shot down in the midst of the State militia, and the other while in the jail in conversation with the jailer. Yet the professional murderer suspected of one or both of these crimes and under indictment for the assassination of Gov. Goebel, struts around Clay and adjoining Republican counties unmolested by the sworn officers of the law, aided, lauded and envied by the rank and file of those who pose as the special champions of law and order.—Louisville Times.

Sorghum as Fodder.

Several inquirers ask about the value of sorghum as a fodder plant for cattle, and one of the letters of inquiry wishes to know whether second growth sorghum, that was cut a few days before frost, is good for cattle. There is no doubt about the value of sorghum either as a green feed or as a ration for milk cows and other cattle. It should be planted, however, on good soil and with about as much care as corn, if it is to do its best, and should be planted at about corn planting time. A very good way is to put in a bushel and a peck of seed to the acre with a press drill, setting the shoes about two inches deep. This is heavy seeding, but the heavy stand it makes produces fineness of growth. When planted in this way it should be harvested before it is exposed to frost, and it may be cut with mowing machines and allowed to dry as it falls for a day or two, after which it is raked and gathered into large cocks to cure. It is not regarded as wise to leave it lying in the sun to bleach, and many of those who do not like it have been prejudiced against it by the fact that they did not allow it to lie too long. It can remain in the winter if desired, and it will keep with very little more loss than if stacked, and this is a great saving of labor. It is commonly reported to draw heavily on the fertility of the soil, but this objection is, we think, rather overestimated. It must not be supposed that sorghum is a perfect forage crop, for it is not, although it is undoubtedly a good one. It deteriorates in value in the spring, but this need be no objection so far as it is intended for winter feeding. It has a somewhat stimulating effect on the digestive tract, particularly if fed to work animals, and it is likely to keep the stables dirty when animals fed on it are kept in them but, on the other hand, it makes a large yield of palatable fodder in good seasons and a fair yield of good feed in dry seasons. It stands protracted drouth well and recovers quickly when rains come. It is relished by all kinds of farm animals, and can be fed with safety to horses of any age, including brood mares. To the inquirer who asks specially about second growth sorghum cut before frost to be used as a fodder, we would say that when so cut it will make good feed. The dangers that sometimes attend pasturing on second growth sorghum do not exist when it is cut and cured.—Homestead.

A young gentleman of this county was engaged to a charming young girl in Tennessee and just before the holidays he went to pay her a visit, says a Kentucky exchange. The day for the wedding was drawing near. The groom-elect thought he detected some kind of a sad expression in the eyes of the fair young thing, and right he was. She approached him one evening, just as the western sun was setting in the western part of the west, and looking up into his tender red eyes, she said: "William, I have a secret, and my conscience smites me until I have to tell you. It is this, Willie: my father served a term in the Tennessee State prison. It was no fault of mine, Willie, and do you still love me?" "Glad you brought up this confession business." said Willie, "I too, have a secret;" and then he looked sad. "Mabel," Willie's white lips faltered, "my father served a term in the Kentucky Legislature;" and Mabel, the mean thing shook him and now he's home retailing shoes and cussing.

ROOSEVELT BECOMES VICE PRESIDENT.

The Scenes Were Inspiring Ones, Long to Be Remembered by the Visitors That Were Present.

The Parade of the Military, Naval and Civic Societies Was the Finest Ever Witnessed in Washington—Inaugural Address.

Washington, March 4.—Amid scenes of the greatest enthusiasm President McKinley was inaugurated as president of the United States for the second term. Such crowds of prominent people, swell clubs, crack military organizations and representative Americans, have seldom been seen in the Capitol city before. Some of the picturesque elements incident to former inaugurations was, of coure, lacking, owing to the fact that President McKinley was his own successor, eliminating the usual formal calls by the president-elect upon the retiring president and his return of the visit, together with the ensto-mary dining at the white house of the two the evening of March 3.

President McKinley left the capitol building at 10:30 to await the adjournment of congress and be ready to affix his signature to the last bills which were rushed through. In the senate chamber the arrangement of seats for diplomatic corps, justices, senators, etc., were perfect, and when Vice President Roosevelt began his short inauguration speech just before the inauguration of the president, the scene was an inspiring one.

The Oath of Office.

President McKinley began his inaugural address shortly before noon, and although it was comparatively short, the delivery was listened to with rapt attention by all within hearing distance.

At the conclusion of the address, the oath of office was administered by Chief Justice Fuller, and when President McKinley kissed the Bible and swore to "preserve, protect and defend the constitution of the United States," a great shout from the thousands upon thousands of people massed about the great building announced to the country that William McKinley had commenced his second term. Troop A, of Cleveland, mounted on handsome black chargers, acted as personal escort to President McKinley in the great parade and made an imposing appearance. This is not their first appearance, however, at the national capital, as they acted in the same capacity four years ago.

At 1:30 the inaugural parade, one of the grandest ever witnessed in the capital of the nation, moved from the capitol up Pennsylvania avenue, amid the cheers of the multitude.

McKinley's Inaugural Address.

My Fellow Citizens: When we assembled here on the 4th of March, 1897, there was great anxiety—with regard to our currency and credit. None exists now. These our treasury receipts were inadequate to meet the current obligations of the government. Now they are sufficient for all public needs, and we have a surplus instead of a deficit. Then I felt constained to convene congress in extraordinary session to devise revenues to pay the ordinary expenses of the government. Now I have the satisfaction to announce that the congress just closed has reduced taxation in the sum of $41,000,000. Then there was deep solicitude because of the long depression in our manufacturing, mining, agricultural and mercantile industries and the consequent distress of our laboring population. Now every avenue of production is crowded with activity, labor is well employed and American products find good markets at home and abroad. Our diversified productions, however, are increasing in such unprecedented volume as to admonish us of the necessity of still further enlarging our foreign markets by broader commercial relations. For this purpose reciprocal trade arrangements with other nations should in liberal spirit be carefully cultivated and protected. The national verdict of 1896 has for the most part been executed. Whatever remains unfulfilled is a continuing obligation resting with undiminished force upon the executive and the congress. But fortunate as our condition is, its permanence can only be secured by sound business methods and strict economy in national administration and legislation.

The War With Spain.

Honesty, capacity and industry are now here more indispensable than in public employment. There should be fundamental requisites to original appointment and the surest guarantees against removal.

Four years ago we stood on the brink of war without the people knowing it and without any preparation or effort at perparing for the impending peril. I did all that in honor could be done to avert the war, but without avail. It came inevitable, and the congress at its first regular session, without party division provided money in anticipation of the crisis and in preparation to meet it. It came. The result was signally favorable to American arms and in the highest degree honorable to the government. It imposed upon us obligations from which we can not escape and from which it would be dishonorable to seek to escape. We are now at peace with the world, and it is my fervent prayer that if differences arise between us and other powers they may be settled by peaceful arbitration, and that hereafter we may bespared the horrors of war.

Faithful Discharge of Duty.

Entrusted by the people for a second time with the office of president, I enter upon its administration appreciating the great responsibilities which attach to this renewed honor and commission, promising unreserved devotion on my part to their faithful discharge and reverently invoking for my guidance the direction and favor of Almighty God. I should shrink from the duties this day assumed if I did not feel that in their performance I should have the cooperation of the wise and patriotic men of all parties. It encourages me for the great task which I undertake to believe that those who voluntarily committed to me the trust imposed upon the chief executive of the republic will give me generous support in my duties to "preserve, Protect and defend the constitution of the United States" and "to care that the laws be faithfully executed." The national purpose is indicated through a national election. It is the constitutional method of ascertaining the public will. When once it is registered it is a law to us all and faithful observance should follow its decrees.

Sectionalism Has Disappeared.

Strong hearts and helpful hands are needed, and fortunately, we have them in every part of our beloved country. We are reunited. Sectionalism has disappeared. Division on public questions can no longer be traced by the war maps of 1861. These old differences, issues and fear disturb the judgment. Existing problems demand the thought and quicken the conscience of the country and the responsibility for their presence as well as for their righteous settlement rests upon us all—no more upon me than upon you.

There are some national quesuons in the solution of which patriotion should exclude partisanship. Magnifying their difficulties will not take them off our hands nor facilitate their adjustment. Distrust of the capacity, integrity and high purposes of the American people will not be an inspiring theme for future political contests. Dark pictures and gloomy forebodings are worse than useless. These only becloud, they do not help to point the way of safety and honor. "Hope maketh not ashamed." The prophets of evil were not the builders of the republic, nor in its crisis since have they saved or served it. The faith of their fathers was a mighty force in the creation and the faith of their descendants has wrought its progress and furnished us defenders.

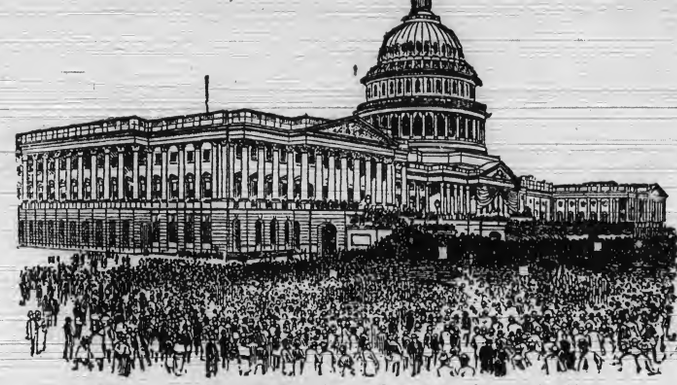
THE AMERICAN PEOPLE.

Intrenched in Freedom at Home, Take Their Love for It With Them Wherever They Go.

They are obstructionists who despair and who would destroy confidence in the ability of our people to solve wisely and for civilization the mighty problems resting upon them. The American people, intrenched in freedom at home, take their love for it with them wherever they go and they reject as mistaken and unworthy the doctrine that we lose our own liberties by securing the enduring foundations of liberty to others. Our institutions will not deteriorate by extension and our sense of justice will not abate under tropic suns in distant seas. As heretofore, so hereafter will the nation demonstrate its fitness to administer any new estate which events devolve upon it, and in the fear of God will take occasion by the hand and make the bounds of freedom wider yet." If there are those among us who would make our way more difficult we must not be disheartened, but the more earnestly dedicate ourselves to the task which we have rightly entered. The path of progress is seldom smoo th. New things are often found hard to do. Our fathers found them so. We find them so. They are inconvenient. They cost us something. But are we not made better for the effort and sacrifice, and are not those we serve lifted up and blessed?

Republics Exalt Freedom and Harmony.

We will be consoled, too, with the fact that opposition has confronted every onward movement of the republic from its opening hour until now, but without success. The republic has marched on and on and its every step has exalted freedom and humanity. We are undergoing the same ordeal as did our predecessors nearly a century ago. We are following the course they blazed. They triumphed. Will their successors falter and plead organic impotency in the nation? Surely after 125 years of achievement for mankind we will not now surrender our equality with other powers on matters fundamental and essential to nationality. With no such purpose was the nation created. In no such spirit has it developed its full and independent sovereignty. We adhere to the principle of equality among ourselves and by no act of ours will we assign to ourselves a subordinate rank in the family of nations.



Events of the Past Four Years.

My fellow citizens, the public events of the past four years have gone to history. They are too near to justify recital. Some of them were unforseen, many of them momentous and far-reaching in their consequences to ourselves and our relations with the rest of the world. The part which the United States bore so honorably in the thrilling scenes in China, while new to American life, has been in harmony with its true spirit and best traditions and in dealing with the results its policy will be that of moderation and fairness.

We face at this moment a most important question—that of the future relations of the United States and Cuba. With our near neighbors we must remain close friends. The declaration of the purposes of this government in the resolution of April 20, 1898, must be made good. Ever since the evacuation of the island by the army of Spain the executive with all practicable speed has been assisting its people in the successive steps necessary to the establishment of a free and independent government, prepared to assume and perform the obligations of international law which now rest upon the United States under the treaty of Paris.

Relations With Cuba.

The convention elected by the people to frame a constitution is approaching the completion of its labors. The transfer of American control to the new government is of such great importance, involving an obligation resulting from our intervention and the treaty of peace, that I am glad to be advised by the recent act of congress of the policy which the legislative branch of the government deems essential to the best interests of Cuba and the United States.

Scene at the Capitol Building During Delivery of Inaugural Address.

THE PHILIPPINE ISLANDS.

The Congress Has Provided an Army to Enable the Executive to Restore Peace.

The peace which we are pledged to leave to Cuban people must carry with it the guarantee of permanence. We become sponsor for the pacification of the island, and we remain accountable to the Cubans, no less than to our own country and people, for the reconstruction of Cuba as a free commonwealth on abiding foundations of rigiat, justice, liberty and assured order. Our entranchisement of the people will not be completed until free Cuba shall "be a reality, not a name; a perfect entity; not a hasty experiment bearing within itself the elements of failure."

While the treaty of peace with Spain was ratified on the 6th of February, 1899, and ratifications were exchanged nearly two years ago, the congress has indicated no form of government for the Philippine islands. It has, however, provided an army to enable the executive to suppress insurrection, restore peace, give security to the inhabitants, and establish the authority of the United States throughout the archipelago.

Will Establish Local Governments.

It has authorized the organization of native troops as auxiliary to the regular force. It has been advised from time to time of the acts of the military and naval officers in the islands, of my action in appointing civil committees, of the instructions with which they were charged of their duties and powers, of their recommendations, and of the several acts under executive commission, together with the very complete general information they have submitted. These reports fully set forth conditions past and present, in the islands, and the instructions clearly show the principles which will guide the executive until the congress shall, as it is required to do by the treaty, determine, "the civil rights and political status of the native inhabitants."

The congress having added the sanction of its authority to the powers already possessed and exercised by the executive under the constitution, thereby leaving with the executive the responsibility for the government of the Philippines, I shall continue the efforts already begun until order shall be restored throughout the islands, and as fast as conditions permit will establish local governments, in the formation of which the full co-operation of the people has been already invited and when established, will encourage the people to administer them. The settled purpose, long ago prevailed, to afford the inhabitants of the Islands self-government as fast as they were ready for it, will be pursued with earnest and fidelity.

Faithful and Noble Work.

Already something has been accomplished in this direction. The government representatives, civil and military, are doing faithful and noble work in their mission of emancipation, and merit the approval and support of their countrymen. The most liberal terms of amnesty have already been communicated to the insurgents, and the way is still open for those who have raised their arms against the government for honorable submission to its authority. Our countrymen should not be deceived. We are not waging war against the inhabitants of the Philippine islands. A porton of them are making war against the United States. By far the greater part of the inhabitants recognize American sovereignty and welcome it as a guaranty of order and of security for life, property, liberty, freedom of conscience and the pursuit of happiness. To them full protection will be given. They shall not be abandoned. We will not leave the destiny of the loyal millions in the islands to the disloyal thousands who are in rebellion against the United States. Order under civil institutions will come as soon as those who now break the peace shall keep it. Force will not be needed or used when those who make war against us shall make it no more. May it end without further bloodshed, and there be ushered in the reign of peace to be made permanent by a government of liberty under the law.

VICE PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT.

On Taking the Oath in Senate Chamber He Delivered a Short Address to the Assemblage.

Vice President Roosevelt said:

The history of free government is in large part the history of those representative legislative bodies in which, from the earliest times, free government has found its loftiest expression. They must ever hold a peculiar and exalted position in the record which tells how the great nations of the world have endeavored to achieve and preserve orderly freedom. No man can render to his fellows greater advice than is rendered by him who, with fearlessness and honesty, with single-minded disinterestedness, does his life work as a member of such a body. Especially is this the case when the legislature in which the service is rendered is a vital part in the governmental machinery of one of those world powers to whose hands, in the course of the ages, is entrusted a leading part in shaping the destinies of mankind. For weal or for woe, for good or for evil, this is true of our own mighty nation. Great privileges and great powers are ours, and heavy are the responsibilities that go with these privileges and these powers.

We Stand Supreme as a Continent.

We belong to a young nation, already of giant strength, yet whose present strength is but a forecast of the power that is to come. We stand supreme as a continent, in a hemisphere. East and west we look across the two great oceans toward the larger world life in which, whether we will or not, we must take an ever increasing share. And as, keen eyed, we gaze into the coming years, duties new and old rise thick and fast to confront us from within and without. But there is every reason why we should face these duties with sober appreciation alike of their importance and of their difficulty. But there is also every reason for facing them with high hearted resolution and eager and confident faith in our capacity to do them aright. A great work lies ready to the hand of this generation; it should count itself happy indeed that to it is given the privilege of doing such a work. A leading part therein must be taken by this, the august and powerful legislative body over which I have been called to preside. Most deeply do I appreciate the privilege of my position; for high, indeed, is the honor of presiding over the American senate at the outset of the twentieth century.

HELP FOR WOMEN

WHO ARE ALWAYS TIRED.

"I do not feel very well, I am so tired all the time. I do not know what is the matter with me."

You hear these words every day, as often as you meet your friends just so often are these words repeated. More than likely you speak the same significant words yourself, and no doubt you do feel far from well most of the time.

Mrs. Ella Rice, of Chelsea, Wis., whose portrait we publish, writes that she suffered for two years with bearing-down pains, headache, backache, and had all kinds of miserable feelings, all of which was caused by falling and inflammation of the womb, and after doctoring with physicians and numerous medicines she was entirely cured by

MRS. ELLA RICE

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you are troubled with pains, fainting spells, depression of spirits, reluctance to go anywhere, headache, backache, and always tired, please remember that there is an absolute remedy which will relieve you of your suffering as it did Mrs. Rice. Proof is monumental that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the greatest medicine for suffering women. No other medicine has made the cures that it has, and no other woman has helped so many women by direct advice as has Mrs. Pinkham; her experience is greater than that of any living person. If you are sick write and get her advice; her address is Lynn, Mass.

BEST SPRING MEDICINE.

The Palm Given to Dr. Greene's Nervura.

That Grand Jury, the People, Have So Decided.

Used by Hundreds of Thousands in Spring as a Blood Medicine.

Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy is indeed "the World's Great Spring Medicine." It has come to be recognized by almost everybody as the best possible spring medicine to take, and hundreds of thousands of our people use it during the trying spring months, to tone up anew the relaxed nerves, and re-invigorate and enrich the blood.

A spring medicine is a necessity if one wishes to keep in perfect health and vigor during the changes from winter to summer. This grand spring tonic, this perfect spring medicine, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, is exactly what the system needs at this season. It not only purifies, but makes rich, red blood; it not only strengthens and invigorates the nervous system, but re-energizes and revitalizes the nerves by feeding them with renewed nerve force and power. It is not only an aid to digestion, but it creates a regular, natural and healthy action of the bowels, liver, kidneys, which in the spring are always sluggish and inactive.

In fact, it is just what people need to make them well and keep them well during these months, so threatening to the health of all, and when it is considered that Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy is made entirely from pure, health-giving vegetable remedies, and that people give it more testimonials of cure than any other remedy on earth, no one can doubt that it is the very best spring remedy for everybody to use.

Mr. Gustave Leibach, of 337 First St., Jersey City, N. J., says:—

"I was troubled with sick headaches, and could not sleep on account of the pains in my head. I was suffering night and day with dyspepsia, could not eat anything, my stomach would sour so. I had to starve myself to have any ease. I had to give up work at last, I was so nervous and miserable. and I was failing away in flesh so that my friends hardly knew me. I tried several remedies, but without avail. At last someone recommended Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. I tried one bottle and began to improve. I started in to eat all right; then I picked up my health; my headaches disappeared, and my weakness and sour stomach went away. I used three bottles, and could sleep all night with ease; I used six bottles, and felt like a new man. I can now do a hard day's work without any trouble, and I am as happy as a bird in spring. I was so miserable, always suffering, always in pain, but now I am like a new man."

Use Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy this spring, for it is the discovery and prescription of a well-known physician, Dr. Greene, of 35 W. 14th St., New York City, who is responsible for its beneficial action, and who can be consulted free of charge, personally or by letter.

THE FEDERAL PARTY.

They Secure Many New Members In Laguna Province.

The Promoters Have Published a Long Address to Judge Taft Written in Flowery and Fulsome Language.

Manila, March 2.—Twenty-one rebel officers and 120 bolomen have surrendered to Lieut. Desque, of the 47th United States volunteer infantry, at the town of Irocin, in Albay province, Southern Luzon.

The federalists are securing many new members for their party in Laguna province, east of Manila.

The promoters of the conservative party have published a long address to Judge Taft, president of the American Philippine commission, written in flowery and fulsome language, the gist of which seems to be expressed in the following paragraph:

"We confess to being distinct from some of those men who are co-operating with the American government for peace in that particular which refers to the maintenance, against restrictions and exactions, of our programme which places the maintenance of peace subject to a compliance with the conditions, which would lead to a point whence there is no outlet. We believe there is no better means of perpetuating than an absolute and unconditional adhesion as younger brothers, and as conditions may admit, this country can be raised to the level of its aspirations, blessing the hand which strengthened it and kissing the hand, if it so deserves, that cut asunder the last cord of its dependence and thus converting it into its own equal.

Vassalli Verestchagin, the Russian painter of battle scenes, has reached the Philippines searching for new war pictures. He has called upon Gen. MacArthur. He is favorably impressed with the American soldiers, and has made many sketches of the battlefields near Manila.

Excitement over gold mining in the province of Lepanto, in northern Luzon, is increasing; a number of pockets have been discovered, but no well defined ledges have been found.

RAPID TRAVELING.

A Train Made 148 Miles in 130 Minutes, Including Two Slow-Downs and One Stop.

Waycross, Ga., March 2.—On the Plant system of railroads a train consisting of engine, mail car, baggage car and sleeper, with Engineer A. E. Lodge at the throttle, ran from Flemington, Ga., to Jacksonville, Fla., a distance of 148 miles in 130 minutes, which included two slow-downs and one stop, making the remarkable average of 74 miles an hour. Five miles of the distance was covered in two minutes and 40 seconds, or at the rate of 120 miles an hour. The train further startled railroaders by running from Waycross to Jacksonville, 75 miles, in 70 minutes. On this run two slow-downs and one stop were made.

THE CABINET.

All the Members Presented Their Resignations to President William McKinley.

Washington, March 2.—At the cabinet meeting Friday, the last under this presidential term, all of the members presented to the president their resignations, to take effect upon the qualification of their successors. Attorney General Griggs, who is the only member who has decided not to remain during the coming four years, was among the number, and his renomination will go to the senate with the others on Tuesday. He will not serve longer, however, than about April 1, when, it is now believed, Mr. Philander C. Knox, of Pittsburgh, will receive the appointment.

ADM. SCHLEY'S SUCCESSOR.

Rr. Adm. Cromwell Selected as Commander of the South Atlantic Station.

Washington, March 2.—Rr. Adm. Cromwell, commandant of the Portsmouth navy yard, has been selected to succeed Rr. Adm. Schley as commander of the South Atlantic station. Rr. Adm. Read, at present unattached, will succeed to the command of the Portsmouth yard.

Two Men Were Killed, One Probably Fatally Injured and Ten Others Seriously Hurt.

Rochester, N. Y., March 2.—In a fire which destroyed the Leary dye works, a five-story brick structure at the corner of Platt and Mill streets, two lives were lost, one man was probably fatally injured and ten other persons were more or less seriously hurt.

The upper floor of the building was occupied by the Seneca Camera Co., which employed a force of about 25 men and women.

The fire started in the third floor, and is supposed to have been caused by an explosion of chemicals stored on that floor.

HANNA IGNORING THE TRUSTS

The Ohio Party Owner in the Role of Disinterested Friend of the Ship Industry.

Since the distinguished gentleman from Ohio formulated his first plan for a national donation party to make things pleasant for certain established ocean lines, any surplus of contributions going largely to make things still pleasanter for these same lines, he has been gathering wisdom as a busy bee gathers honey in a white clover patch. He was at first so heated by the inspiration of his philanthropic scheme that he wanted the enforced charity of the people extended to the Standard Oil company, and it required a strong delegation of practical politicians to convince his philanthropic mind that this regular foundlings' home of infant industries was able to struggle along without being awarded a place on the pauper list.

This was as the light to St. Paul as he traveled between Antioch and some other terminus. It was not wildly improbable that concentrated capital, of which the oil barons are distinguished representatives, might, within the public career of the senator, move to acquire the government and its material possessions either by purchase or foreclosure. This would be an embarrassing reflection upon the statesmanship of the senator and cut off his brilliant career as a Warwick in the presidential field. Upon this realization the senator started out to establish the great and portentous truth that the ship subsidy bill would help every important interest outside of capital.

He seemed impressed with the idea that the shipyards from Maine clear down the coast has languished to a point where the sole reminder of their great industry was in the construction of tramp steamers and oyster boats. The kindly senator at once decided that the government must set them up in business again. They must build our ships. But stop. The lake shipyards must certainly need a government wet nurse. They could build ocean-going steamers, saw them in two, ship them to the seaboard in the knock-down, glue the sections together, have their tonnage stepped off and the fact ascertained by the Hanna system of equations as to how much water and how much government bounty they had better draw.

And the solid south! It must be benefited, sure. Otherwise the whole reconstructive scheme of republican politics would go wrong. And the farmers and planters all over the union must get dividends on the proposed nine millions a year. When the senator comes to think of it, they are his constituents. They are all assured of the blessed privilege of having their wheat, cotton and other products carried in American bottoms. Freights may be a little higher and the farmers and the planters will have to chip in liberally to build the bottoms as well as the upper works; but think of the pride and the patriotism thus gratified. None of these joys will Mr. Hanna now concede to aggregated capital. The most that it can hope for is the sordid satisfaction of taking the contributions.—Detroit Free Press.

REPUBLICANS ARE GLOOMY.

The Cuban Situation Is Making Lots of Trouble for Administration Organs.

Small wonder that Cuba is filling the minds of faithful republican organs with gloom. They are actually almost guilty of the sin of pessimism. The faithful and inspired Philadelphia Press points out that the omission of all mention of relations with the United States in the Cuban constitution cannot be mended by having the Cuban assembly take it up. "It must either be in the constitution or else the subject of a treaty, and with whom is the United States to make a treaty? Until the constitution is in operation there will be no government in Cuba to make a treaty with." We confess that we see no answer to this reasoning; but it is impossible not to be moved at the agony with which the Press laments the folly of congress in disclaiming all intention of exercising sovereignty over the island. There was not the slightest cause for such a declaration, it wails; it did not avert the war, and the United States is now in the humiliating position of being expected to act up to its generous professions. It is indeed hard on the land of the almighty dollar to have spent millions of money to set an oppressed people free and then to find that it is not going to make anything out of it. To be overreached in a bargain would be bad enough, but to overreach ourselves by hasty professions of unselfishness is intolerable. The Press, speaking with the authority of a newspaper edited from the cabinet, declares frankly that it is not to be supposed that this country will not change when it finds it has sworn to its own hurt, and the Cubans may as well understand that they will not be allowed to do as they please "regardless of the interests of the United States." Some people declared at the outset that the joint resolution of congress was nothing but hypocrisy; and republican newspapers are now loudly showing that this was true.—N. Y. Post.

——President McKinley has had a good deal to say about cutting down expenditures, but he is not likely to interpose his veto to prevent any of the extravagant measures from becoming laws. The president talks economy, but his action demonstrates that he does not intend to put the seal of disapproval upon any of the extravagant measures passed by congress.—Syracuse Telegram.

MILITARISM'S MENACE.

Dangerous Power Is Placed in the Hands of the President.

During the last campaign the democrats pointed out that republican success would encourage the party in power to increase the standing army. The republicans evaded the question for the most part and, when they were challenged to meet it, resorted to subterfuge and deception. They claimed that the army then in service was made necessary by the war in the Philippines and called attention to the fact that the increase expired by limitation in 1901. They pretended to believe that the army could be reduced before that time if the republicans won the election and the Filipinos were assured that there would be no change in the administration. These arguments ought not to have misled anyone because the president, two months before hostilities broke out at Manila, asked for authority to raise the army to 100,000.

A republican house of representatives passed a bill giving him the authority and the democrats and their populist and silver republican allies in the senate secured the limitation which the republicans were afterwards so anxious to hide behind. The election resulted in a republican victory even more pronounced than the leaders of that party had expected, but the war in the Philippines did not terminate, and then the imperialists came out from under cover and boldly demanded an increase in the military establishment. A bill was introduced, hurried through the house and senate and is now a law. The title is a confession of cowardice. It is not a bill to increase the size of the standing army, but a bill "To increase the efficiency of the permanent military establishment of the United States." It provides that the army of the United States shall consist of 15 regiments of cavalry, a corps of artillery, 30 regiments of infantry, one lieutenant general, six major generals, 15 brigadier generals, etc., etc., etc. Each regiment of cavalry and infantry has one colonel, one lieutenant colonel, three majors, 15 captains, 15 first lieutenants and 15 second lieutenants, besides sergeants, sergeant majors, corporals, etc.—the etc. including, among other persons, privates ranging from 43 to 76 in each cavalry troop, and from 48 to 127 in each infantry company. The president is given the dangerous powers to increase the army to the maximum. The number of enlisted men is limited to 100,000. The maximum of enlisted men may include 12,000 natives to be enlisted in the Philippine Islands if the president sees fit to enlist them.

If anyone will read the bill complete and count the number of generals, colonels, lieutenant colonels, majors, captains, first lieutenants, second lieutenants, adjutants, inspectors, quartermasters and other officers with life tenure, he can understand something of the force which militarism can command in any legislative contest with the taxpayers.

It is easier to increase an army, especially the official part, than reduce it, and the people have before them a difficult task, but the burdens and menace of militarism can be relied upon to arouse the people. When the awakening comes it will be found that the people who profit by a large military establishment, however powerful its present influence, are insignificant in numbers compared with those who are injured. —The Commoner.

POINTS AND OPINIONS.

——Mr. Hanna may not be much on sawing wood, but when it comes to greasing the saw he has few equals and no superiors.—Detroit Free Press.

——Hanna's blush of shame for the senator who spoke ill of his ship subsidy bill cannot be distinguished at long range from the glow of anger.—N. Y. World.

——The favorite phrase of the white house just now: "Leave everything, Filipino, Chinese or Cuban, to William McKinley. He will pull the country through."—Boston Globe.

——If Senator Hanna feels at all revengeful for the defeat of his subsidy measure and desires to get even by fighting some items in the river and harbor bill, the country will have no fault to find.—Indianapolis News (Ind.).

——Mr. Hanna will have a private stand from which to view the inaugural parade. It seems entirely proper that the man who owns the show should have the best seat at every performance.—Columbus (O.) Press-Post.

——A republican journal printed in St. Louis seriously declares that the purpose of democrats in congress in fighting the ship subsidy bill is to kill Mark Hanna politically. Their purpose is, if possible, to prevent the republicans in congress from allowing themselves, at the instigation of the person named to commit grand larceny.—Kansas City Times.

——Evidently we are in no imminent peril of military itaperialism if we judge from the slowness with which the army is being recruited up to the standard authorized by congress. With every recruiting station working its hardest and with all manner of seductive inducements to recruits the enlistments are averaging but 300 to 325 per week. The young American, it is pretty clear, is willing to enlist for the protection of his country or to maintain its honor and dignity, but when it comes to taking service for the purpose of assimilating Filipinos he respectfully declines. He fully realizes that there is no glory in such warfare, and it looks as though Mr. McKinley might be forced to ask for a conscription law in order to get his 100,000 men.—Chicago Chronicle.

STATE ODDS AND ENDS.

CRAP GAMES ENDED.

Edward Alvey, of Louisville, Gets Two Years in Jail and a Fine of $500.

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 27.—The reign of the king of the crap game in Louisville has ended. The man who has for years been the chief promoter of gambling of this kind has been convicted by a jury of his peers of a felony, and gambling in Louisville has received a blow from which it will not recover in twenty years. Edward Alvey was Tuesday afternoon convicted of setting up and operating crap games in this city, and his punishment fixed at a fine of $500 and imprisonment to the penitentiary for two years. Alvey for several years has been the chief operator of all crap, faro and roulette games in the city, it being claimed that he had immunity from molestation by his contributions to campaign funds. Heretofore, he could never be reached, as only his employes were seen in the joints. Frequently he has had a half dozen games running at once. The evidence Tuesday was conclusive, and the jury was not long in finding a verdict. Alvey would never have been convicted, but for the fact that four of the men who had been employed by him, and who were indicted on the same count with him, turned state's evidence.

This is the third conviction within two weeks, Frank Paul and Henry Cook having been given the same penalty. They were the employes of Alvey, and their conviction frightened the others. There are still about 25 more under indictment to be tried, but the chances are many of these will jump their bond. The gamblers are simply in a state of consternation.

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 28.—Gov. Beckham Wednesday pardoned Ed Alvey, the king of Louisville gamblers, convicted Tuesday and sentenced to the penitentiary for two years. He is also pardoned of three other indictments pending against him, charging him with running a gambling house.

Paddy Miles, Alvey's partner, is also pardoned before trial of the two indictments charging the same offense. The pardons are based on sensational affidavits filed by Alvey's counsel attacking the integrity of the Louisville criminal court and those engaged in the prosecution.

Frank Powell, convicted two weeks ago and also sentenced for two years, is not pardoned. Alvey's friends charge that Powell has a deal with the prosecution to secure a new trial, and that he was used to help convict Alvey. The cases are the outgrowth of the war on gambling in Louisville.

Gov. Beckham, in a statement of reasons for the pardon of Alvey and Miles, says he is convinced that they were prosecuted and convicted by persons also engaged in gambling, who are endeavoring to secure a monopoly on the gambling business in Louisville.

Louisville, Ky., March 2.—A call for a public mass meeting to protest against Gov. Beckham pardoning Alvey and Miles is being circulated. The meeting will be held at the Library hall Tuesday.

WILL PAY HIS DEBTS.

John J. Sechrest, of Grant County, Brought a Fortune With Him From the Klondike.

Williamstown, Ky., March 2.—Word has reached here that John J. Sechrest, the Grant county cattle dealer, who has been in the Klondike for four years, has returned, and has money enough to pay all his debts and have plenty left. He was a heavy buyer and always shipped to the Cincinnati markets. He sold some cattle in Cincinnati, and discovered that he was several thousand dollars behind, and his property at home would not enable him to near pay out.

He went to the Klondike, declaring that he would never return until he had amassed a fortune sufficient to enable him to pay all he owed. He was successful, and last fall sent word to his brother at Crittenden to come to Dawson City and take his place while he came home to pay his debts. He is said to have brought ready cash with him amounting to about $100,000, while his claims in the Klondike will probably make him a millionaire.

Refused to Pardon Wilson.

Frankfort, Ky., March 2.—Gov. Beckham declined to pardon Attorney E. K. Wilson, of London, Ky., who was given five years for killing Mary Cloyd in attempting criminal operation.

COURT OF APPEALS.

Three Republicans and One Democrat Were Appointed to Minor Offices.

Frankfort, Ky., March 1.—The long-expected shake-up in minor officers of the court of appeals, anticipated since the court was reorganized with a majority of republican judges on the bench, took place Thursday. In the new deal the republicans get three of the offices and the democrats one. James J. Smith, of Harrison county, democrat, is retained as assistant sergeant. James O'Connell, of Mt. Sterling, republican, succeeds S. B. Coil, democrat, as janitor, and R. L. Williams, republican, of Louisville, succeeds W. S. Check, of Taylor county, as sergeant. Leander Guffy, republican, son of Judge Guffy, is retained as tipstaff. The order formally making the appointments and removals will be filed in the courts Friday. The position of court reporter was filled about ten days ago by the election of T. L. Bleidel, of this city, and the selections made Thursday complete the reorganization of the new court.

FELL INTO A DEEP HOLE.

Charles Duncan Turned Gray From His Terrible Experience While Imprisoned.

Greenup, Ky., Feb. 28.—Chas. Duncan, while out hunting on Upper Tygart, crossed an old waste field and fell into a large hole 30 feet deep. There was no water in it and Duncan was compelled to stay in it for 36 hours until his parents became alarmed and started out to hunt him. When he stumbled he dropped his gun on the outside, which was the means of his discovery. Duncan was unhurt, but weakened from exhaustion, as he kept up almost a continuous exercise to keep from freezing during his confinement. He is only 19, but the scare given him has caused his hair to turn gray.

BOTH CLAIM JURISDICTION.

Joe Noel Taken From the State Authorities by a Deputy United States Marshal.

Lexington, Ky., March 1.—Joe Noel, charged with killing Mart Spence, the government lockkeeper at High Bridge, was brought here by a deputy United States marshal Thursday night, having been taken from the state authorities, who also claim jurisdiction, at Nicholasville. His trial was to have come up Friday, but the county attorney advised the sheriff to surrender him to the United States authorities without a contest.

His trial was set for March 15, and he was remanded to jail.

Two Flemings Meet in Jail.

Mayking, Ky., March 1.—In the county jail at Whitesburg Col. Fleming came in contact with his rival, Lige Fleming, both indicted for the murder of Mrs. Mima Hall and her son, at Boone's Fork, and a fierce fisticuff followed for more than ten minutes, when Jailer Adams separated them. He placed them in separate cells. Lige Fleming was badly "done up."

Given a Life Term.

Ola, Ky., March 2.—Sol Fleming, the first Kluklux ever sentenced in Letcher county, was given a life term in the penitentiary early Friday morning. The jury was out less than 10 minutes. Fleming, with 14 others, was accused of robbing and murdering Mrs. Mina Hall and her son, Sherwood Reynolds, at Boone's Fork last November. It was hard to suppress Judge Lynch for some time after.

Nursed Her Sweetheart.

WALTON.—The notice in last week's paper, about the good taste displayed by one of our young lady storekeepers, is having a good effect. The wife of one of our most prominent merchants, who has been holding the palm, as it were, for interior decorative arrangement, was observed to be making a critical examination of her spouse's stock on Thursday and Friday. She has, on several occasions, more than surprised her husband and d his customers by radical and sweeping changes in the arrangement of the store. She always introduces her improvements in her husband's absence.

On the evening of February 22nd, in an exciting contest among five of the best speakers of the Union Literary Society of the State College at Lexington, Fleming D. Hedges, a Walton boy, won the honors of the evening, and the $25 gold medal offered by the alumni of the institution. Rev. Baker P. Lee, Dr. Preston S. Blake and Capt. C. C. Callahan acted as judges. The program was as follows: Charles L. Dawson, Oakdale, Ky.—"Decline of Patriotism." Orville K. Dyer, Bekvin, Ky.—"Kentucky." Clyde Graddy, Smith Mills, Ky.—"Southern Genius." Robert T. Hardin, Bethlehem, Ky.—"Evolution of a Mighty Republic." Fleming D. Hedges, Walton, Ky.—"The Natiou's Revolving Relations."

When the decision of the judges was rendered, the usual Bedlam broke loose and Mr. Hedges was the hero of the hour. It is scarcely necessary to add here that Walton feels very proud of Mr. Hedges, and that much of his success is due to the careful training he had at Walton Academy, and that Mrs S. H. Myers and Prof. Charles Pryor, who conducted that school so ably, will feel no less gratification than we do at this dawn of success in a favorite pupil.

The enterprising (?) scribble, who writes for the Cincinnati Post, sent to his paper, the other day, what he, no doubt, intended for a dynamite bomb, headed, "Split in the Church," in large caps, and went on to relate how there had been a progressive euchre party a few nights before, in which the members of the church had participated, and that a big to do was made about it—the members were to be tried on the 9th inst. There was a progressive euchre party, and the names of those present were given correctly tho not one half of them were members of the Baptist church. The lady mentioned as the daughter of a former pastor, does not belong to this church, and Dr. Adams was never pastor here. No trial has been ordered, as there is no rule of the church forbidding the playing of cards. There will, however, be a church meeting on the third Saturday in this month, to consider whether the church will adopt one forbidding the playing of cards. As to who sent the article to the Post circumstances point directly to the Erlanger correspondent of that paper. Two ladies from Walton were on a train, one day last week, and were chatting with each other, when a stranger endeavored to join in conversation, by asking questions about the party. The manner of the ladies did not encourage him in his attempt to get into conversation with them, and he got off at Erlanger. The gentleman who sat behind the ladies, Mr. Hugh Watson, asked the railroad man who the fellow was, and was told that he was "that Erlanger fellow, who writes for the Post."

Of candidates we saw D. M. Snyder on the street, mixing with the voters, and electioneering with them in a very earnest tho gentlemanly manner. He appears to have many friends. His main argument is that Mr. Voshell has had the office eight years, and that he ought to give the others a chance, admitting his ability, and that he has made a most excellent superintendent. In fact Mr. Snyder has a very high opinion of his opponent, and says nothing to his disparagement.

Friend Blyth turned up again on Thursday, and could be seen hustling around as spry as a lark. He was in great spirits, and it was noticeable that he was much sought after, and appears to be more animated than when he was here the last time. It looks more favorable to him now than it did a few weeks ago, and so much so that he may as his friends claim, carry the precinct; his popularity has increased very greatly since his first visit. He had so many engagements that he had to remain over to Friday.

Another hustler, B. B. Ailphin, came upon the scene and the way he gets around among the people is astonishing. But then he has so many friends, and they are as anxious to help him as he is to be helped. The voters are not quite so close mouthed as they were a few weeks ago and are coming out boldly for their preferences. Ailphin will get a big vote here, and, it looks very encouraging for him at this time.

Ryland has an easy thing and will carry the precinct unless he does something after the manner of Admiral Sampson. There may be some change after Monday, and some are looking for a surprise, but you know more of that at Burlington than is known here.

John G. Adams seems to be afflicted with something like sound horse sense. While at work in Edward's hardware store, he was asked if he was employed there regularly. Yes, I obtained the situation as salesman, and am doing all I can to fill it. Don't say that I accepted a situation. I got it."

John is about right, and if he attends to his duties and doesn't contract a case of the big head, he may get broke into the class of good business men.

Dr. Jacob F. Cleek has moved his office a cross the street, and now occupies a handsome suit of rooms in Mr. Kipp's building.

Bruce Roberts has moved into the house built by the late Frank Smith, and Mr. Yarnell, the harness maker, has moved into the house vacated by Mr. Roberts.

Harry Jones will occupy the Brittenhelm house next to Mr. Kipp's as soon as the finishing touches are put on it. Charley Lermond moved to the old "Blue Goose Building."

The family had returned from church at Big Bone, and Mrs. Stephens had prepared dinner and the family was seated at the table when a spark from the kitchen flue lit on the roof and ignited it, and it was soon in a blaze. The strong wind that was blowing caused the flames to spread over a portion of the roof. Mrs G. L. Smith, was out in her yard, saw the fire and gave the alarm. They Withdraw.

To my Boone County Friends.—I feel it due you that I fully explain why I withdraw from the race for Sheriff.

First: When I announced that I would be a candidate, I had been sick for two months, but was improving nicely and felt sure that I would be able to make the canvass required by the race, but I was out only a few days when I was overtaken by a severe kidney and bladder trouble, which caused me to return to my bed, where I remained for two weeks. Then I was very weak, although I rode in my buggy several days, looking after my interest in the race. Then, very unexpectedly I was confronted by a tumor that caused me great pain, and with a fever, I was compelled to return to my bed again. Acting under the advice of Dr. H. C. Lassing, I came to Louisville February 15th, and have had a surgical operation performed, removing the tumor. These troubles have rendered me physically unable to be in the canvass. I am very sorry to have to give up the canvass, as I had my heart set on winning the race, which I firmly believe I would have done, had I been able to make the canvass. Under the circumstances I feel I would be doing my friends a great injustice to ask them to give me the office unless I could assure them that I would be able to attend to the duties thereof, if elected, and, at this time I cannot give that assurance. I must and will be true to my friends, who have labored unceasingly in my behalf. I want to say to my friends I have given them a true statement of my condition, and I thank them for the good work they have done for me, and I hope to get well and meet them again. I will remain under treatment for some time in Louisville.

Ever thankful to my friends, under the above circumstances, I now withdraw from the race for Sheriff, knowing that my friends and family believe that I am doing the right thing for my own, and, also, for my friends interest.
Respectfully Yours, M. C. CARROLL
Louisville, Ky., March 1, 1901.

To the Democratic voters of Boone county:—Owing to ill health I have not been able to make such a canvass of the county for assessor as is required and the time in which to make the canvass is now too short, I have, therefore, concluded to, and do now, withdraw from the race for the Democratic nomination for assessor of this county. I now desire to thank my numerous friends, at home and abroad, for the loyal support they were giving me and to assure them that I shall ever feel grateful to them for their efforts in my behalf.
Respectfully,
C. W. PORTER.

Caused by weak nerves or run-down condition of the nervous system, cannot be cured by the use of Pepsin, Mineral Waters, etc. If you have ever resorted to this treatment you must admit that the relief was temporary. Common sense teaches us that to cure Dyspepsia, a medicine must be used that will strengthen and build up the nervous system, and in so doing remove the cause of the digestive trouble.

CHURCH AND PRESS.

A Warm Friendship Should Exist Between Them.

Dr. Talmage Says That the Spoken Word and the Printed Word Should Go Side by Side—God and the Printing Press.

[Copyright, 1901, by Louis Klopsch.]

In this discourse Dr. Talmage calls for a warm friendship between those who preach the Gospel and those who make newspapers, the spoken word and the printed word to go side by side; text, Luke 16-8: "The children of this world are in their generation wiser than the children of light."

Sacred stupidity and solemn incompetency and sanctified laziness are here rebuked by Christ. He says worldlings are wider awake for opportunities than are Christians. Men of the world grab occasions, while Christian people let the most valuable occasions drift by unimproved. That is the meaning of our Lord when He says: "The children of this world are in their generation wiser than the children of light."

A marked illustration of the truth of that maxim is in the slowness of the Christian religion to take possession of the secular printing press. The opportunity is open and has been for some time open, but the ecclesiastical courts, and the churches, and the ministers of religion are for the most part allowing the golden opportunity to pass unimproved. That the opportunity is open I decline from the fact that all the secular newspapers are glad of any religious facts or statistics that you present them. Any animated and stirring article relating to religious themes they would gladly print. They thank you for any information in regard to churches. If a wrong has been done to any Christian church or Christian institution you could go into any newspaper office of the land and have the real truth stated. Dedication services, ministerial ordinations and pastoral installations, cornerstone laying of a church, anniversary of a charitable society, will have reasonable space in any secular journal if it have previous notice given. If I had some great injustice done me, there is not an editorial or a reportorial room in the United States into which I could not go and get myself set right, and that is true of any well-known Christian man. Why, then, does not our glorious Christianity embrace these magnificent opportunities? I have before me a subject of first and last importance: How shall we secure the secular press as a mighty reenforcement to religion and the pulpit?

The first thing toward this result is cessation of indiscriminate hostility against newspaperdom. You might as well denounce the legal profession because of the shysters, or the medical profession because of the quacks, or merchandise because of the swindling bargain makers, as to slambang newspapers because there are recreant editors and unfair reporters and unclean columns. Gutenberg, the inventor of the art of printing, was about to destroy his types and extinguish the art because it was suggested to him that printing might be suborned into the service of the devil, but afterward he bethought himself that the right use of the art might more than overcome the evil use of it, and so he spared the type and the intelligence of all following ages. But there are many to-day in the depressed mood of Gutenberg, with uplifted hammer, wanting to pound to pieces the type, who have not reached his better mood, in which he saw the art of printing to be the rising sun of the world's illumination.

If, instead of fighting newspapers, we spend the same length of time and the same vehemence in marshaling their help in religious directions we would be as much wiser as the man who gets consent of the railroad superintendent to fasten a car to the end of a rail train shows better sense than he who runs his wheelbarrow up the track to meet and drive back the Chicago limited express. The silliest thing that a man ever does is to fight a newspaper, for you may have the floor for utterance perhaps for one day in the week, while the newspaper has the floor every day in the week. Napoleon, though a mighty man, had many weaknesses, and one of the weakest things he ever did was to threaten that if the English newspapers did not stop their adverse criticism of himself he would, with 400,000 bayonets, cross the channel for their chastisement. Don't fight newspapers. Attack provokes attack. Better wait until the excitement blows over and then go in and get justice, for get it you will if you have patience and common sense and equipoise of disposition. It ought to be a mighty sedative that there is an enormous amount of common sense in the world, and you will eventually be taken for what you are really worth, and you cannot be puffed up, and you cannot be written down, and if you are the enemy of good society, that fact will come out, and if you are the friend of good society that fact will be established.

I know what I am talking about, for I can draw on my own experience. All the respectable newspapers, as far as I know, are my friends now. But many of you remember the time when I was the most confusedly and meanly attacked man in this country. God gave me grace not to answer back, and I kept silence for ten years, and much grace was required. What I said was perverted and twisted into just the opposite of what I did say. There were millions of people who believed that there was a large sofa in my pulpit, although we never had anything but a chair, and that during the singing by the congregation I was accustomed to lie down on that sofa and dangle my feet over the end. Lying New York correspondents for ten years misrepresented our church services; but we waited, and people from every neighborhood of Christendom came there to find the magnitude of the falsehoods concerning the church and concerning myself. A reaction set in, and soon we had justice, full justice, more than justice, and as much overpraise as once we had underappreciation, and no man that ever lived was so much indebted to the newspaper press for opportunity to preach the Gospel as I am. Young men in the ministry, young men in all professions and occupations, wait. You can afford to wait. Take rough misrepresentation as a Turkish towel to start up your languid circulation, or a system of massage or Swedish movement, whose pokes and pulls and twists and thrusts are salutary treatment. There is only one person you need to manage, and that is yourself. Keep your dispositions sweet by communion with Christ, who answered not again, get society of genial people and walk out in the sunshine with your hat off, and you will come out all right. And don't join the crowd of people in our day who spend much of their time damning newspapers.

Again, in this effort to secure the secular press as a mightier reenforcement of religion, let us make it the avenue of religious information. My advice, often given to friends who propose to start a new paper, is: "Don't! Don't! Employ the papers already started." The biggest financial hole ever dug in this American continent is the hole in which good people throw their money when they start a newspaper. It is almost as good and as quick a way of getting rid of money as buying stock in a gold mine. Not more printing presses, but the right use of those already established. All their cylinders, all their steam power, all their pens, all their types, all their editorial chairs and reportorial rooms are available if you would engage them in behalf of civilization and Christianity.

Again, if you would secure the secular press as a mightier reenforcement of religion and the pulpit, extend widest and highest Christian courtesies to the representatives of journalism. Give them easy-chairs and plenty of room when they come to report occasions. For the most part they are gentlemen of education and refinement, graduates of colleges, with families to support by their literary craft, many of them weary with the push of a business that is precarious and fluctuating, each one of them the avenue of information to thousands of readers, their impression of the services to be the impression adopted by multitudes. They are connecting links between a sermon, or a song, or a prayer, and this great population that tramp up and down the streets day by day and year by year with their sorrows uncomforted and their sins unpardoned. Oh, the hundreds of thousands of people in our cities who never attend churches! Our cities are not so much preached to by ministers of religion as by reporters. Put all journalists into our prayers and sermons. Of all the hundred thousand sermons preached today there will not be three preached to journalists and probably not one. Of all the prayers offered for classes of men innumerable the prayers offered for the most potential class will be so few and rare that they will be thought a preacher's idiosyncrasy. There are many journalists in our church memberships, but this world will never be brought to God until some revival of religion sweeps over the land and takes into the Kingdom of God all editors, reporters, compositors, pressmen and newsboys.

"But," some one might ask, "would you make Sunday newspapers also a reenforcement?" I have learned to take things as they are. I would like to see the much scoffed at old Puritan Sabbaths come back again. I do not think the modern Sunday will turn out any better men and women than were your grandfathers and grandmothers under the old-fashioned Sunday. To say nothing of other results, Sunday newspapers are killing editors, reporters, compositors and pressmen. Every man, woman and child is entitled to 24 hours of nothing to do. If the newspapers put on another set of hands, that does not relieve the editorial and reportorial room of its cares and responsibilities. Our literary medic fast enough without killing them with Sunday work.

All things are possible with God, and my faith is up until nothing in the way of religious victory would surprise me. All the newspaper printing presses of the earth are going to be the Lord's, and telegraph and telephone and type will yet announce nations born in a day. The first book ever printed was the Bible, by Faust and his son-in-law, Schoeffer, in 1460, and that consecration of type to the Holy Scriptures was a prophecy of the great mission of printing for the evangelization of all nations. The father of the American printing press was a clergyman, Rev. Jesse Glover, and that was a prophecy of the religious use that the Gospel ministry in this country were to make of the types.

Again, we shall see the secular press as a mightier reenforcement of religion and the pulpit by making our religious utterances more interesting and spirited, and then the press will reproduce them. On the way to church some 30 years ago a journalist said a thing that has kept me ever since thinking. "Are you going to give us any points to-day?" "What do you mean?" I asked. He said: "I mean by that anything that will be striking enough to be remembered." Then I said to myself: "What right have we in the pulpits and Sunday schools to take the time of the people if we have nothing to say that is memorable!" David did not have any difficulty in remembering Nathan's thrust, "Thou art the man," nor Felix in remembering Paul's point-blank utterance on righteousness, temperance and judgment to come, nor the English king any difficulty in remembering what the court preacher said when, during the sermon against sin, the preacher threw his handkerchief into the king's pew to indicate whom he meant.

That Providence intends the profession of reporters to have a mighty share in the world's redemption is suggested by the fact that Paul and Christ took a reporter along with them, and he reported their addresses and their acts. Luke was a reporter, and he wrote not only the book of Luke, but the Acts of the Apostles, and without that reporter's work we would have known nothing of the Pentecost and nothing of Stephen's martyrdom and nothing of Tabitha's resurrection, and nothing of the jailing and unjailing of Paul and Silas, and nothing of the shipwreck at Melita. Strike out the reporter's work from the Bible and you kill a large part of the New Testament. It makes me think that in the future of the kingdom of God the reporters are to bear a mighty part.

About 25 years ago a representative of an important New York newspaper took his seat in my Brooklyn church one Sunday night about five pews from the front of the pulpit. He took out pencil and reporter's pad, resolved to caricature the whole scene. When the music began, he began, and with his pencil he derided that and then derided the prayer and then derided the reading of the Scriptures and then began to deride the sermon. But, he says, for some reason his hand began to tremble, and he, rallying himself, sharpened his pencil and started again, but broke down again and then put pencil and paper in his pocket and his head down on the front of the pew and began to pray. At the close of the service he came up and asked for the prayers of others and gave his heart to God, and, though still engaged in newspaper work, he is an evangelist and hires a hall at his own expense and every Sunday afternoon preaches Jesus Christ to the people.

And the men of that profession are going to come in a body throughout the country. I know hundreds of them, and a more genial or highly educated class of men it would be hard to find, and, though the tendency of their profession may be toward skepticism, an organized, common sense gospel invitation would fetch them to the front of all Christian endeavor.

Men of the pencil and pen in all departments, you need the help of the Christian religion. In the day when people want to get their newspapers at two cents and are hoping for the time when they can get any of them at one cent and as a consequence the attaches of the printing press are by the thousand ground under the cylinders, you want God to take care of you and your families. Some of your best work is as much unappreciated as was Milton's "Paradise Lost," for which the author received $25, and the immortal poem "Hohenlinden" of Thomas Campbell when he first offered it for publication and in the column called "Notices to Correspondents" appeared the words: "To T. C.—The Lines commencing: 'On Linden when the sun was low,' are not up to our standard. Poetry is not T. C.'s forte."

O men of the pencil and pen, amid your unappreciated work you need encouragement, and you can have it. Printers of all Christendom, editors, reporters, compositors, pressmen, publishers and readers of that which is printed, resolve that you will not write, set up, edit, issue or read anything that debases body, mind or soul. In the name of God, by the laying on of the hands of faith and prayer, ordain the printing press for righteousness and liberty and salvation. All of us with some influence that will help in the right direction, let us put our hands to the work, imploring God to hasten the consummation. In a ship with hundreds of passengers approaching the South American coast the man on the lookout neglected his work, and in a few minutes the ship would have been dashed to ruin on the rocks. But a cricket on board the vessel, that had made no sound all the voyage, set up a shrill call at the smell of land, and, the captain knowing that habit of the insect, the vessel was stopped in time to avoid an awful wreck. And so insignificant means now may do wonders, and the scratch of a pen may save the shipwreck of a soul.

Are you all ready for the signing of the contract, the league, the solemn treaty proposed between journalism and evangelism? Let it be a Christian marriage of the pulpit and the printing press. The ordination of the former on my head, the pen of the latter in my hand, it is appropriate that I publish the banns of such a marriage. Let them from this day be one in the magnificent work of the world's redemption.

Let thrones and powers and kingdoms be Obedient, mighty God, to Thee.
And over land and stream and main
Now wave the scepter of Thy reign.

O, let that glorious anthem swell.
Let host to host the triumph tell.
Till not one rebel heart remains
But over all the Saviour reigns.

First Spring Campaign.

Mrs. Modus—Well, George, you promised me a new bonnet.

George—I? Promised you a new bonnet? Great Scot! When?

FIFTY-SIXTH CONGRESS.

Second Session.

Washington, Feb. 27.—Senate.—An important amendment to the Philippine amendment to the army appropriation bill was agreed to in the senate Tuesday. It was an amplification of the amendment previously offered by Mr. Hoar, laying restrictions upon the rate of public lands and the granting of franchises and concessions in the Philippines. It was accepted by the committee in charge of the measure, and is now a part of the committee amendment. During the afternoon Mr. Allen severely arraigned Rr. Adm. Sampson for some endorsements he is alleged to have made upon the application of Chief Gunner Charles Morgan, of the navy, for promotion to the grade of commissioned officer. Mr. Allen's denunciation of Adm. Sampson was sensational. In his speech he characterized the admiral as a "snob" and a "conceited ass," and said, "If I am rightly informed there was a time when Sampson was no better than Charles Morgan, the gunner."

Washington, Feb. 28.—Senate.—Wednesday the senate passed the Spooner amendment to the army reorganization bill. It is in regard to the government of the Philippine islands. The senate passed the army appropriation bill at 12:45 o'clock Thursday morning, containing the propositions of the republican majority for the temporary government of the Philippines and the future relations between the United States and Cuba. Many amendments were offered to both propositions, but were voted down. The original Spooner amendment was amended regarding franchises as proposed by Mr. Hoar, the latter propositions having been accepted by the majority.

House.—The house had a busy day of routine, agreeing to the conference reports on the fortification, District of Columbia and the military academy bills, the last-named containing the anti-hazing legislation. The naval appropriation bill was sent back to conference after the defeat of a motion to concur in the senate's provision for three more submarine torpedo boats.

Washington, March 1.—Senate.—An immense amount of business was disposed of and not a single point raised was sharply controverted. The river and harbor bill, carrying appropriations of more than $50,000,000, was passed, and the senate adopted the conference report on the war revenue reduction measure. Final conference reports were made and agreed to on the diplomatic and consular and the agricultural appropriation bills, and another conference on the post office bill was ordered. Conference reports on several other measures were agreed to, and several bills of a minor character were passed.

House.—The house cleared the decks Thursday of a number of important conference reports without much difficulty. The conference report on the war revenue reduction bills proved generally acceptable to both sides and was adopted without division. Final reports on the diplomatic and consular and agricultural appropriation bills were adopted. The major part of the day was devoted to the bill to promote the efficiency of the revenue cutter service.

Washington, March 2.—Senate.—During the greater part of a long, tiresome session of the senate, Friday, the sundry civil appropriation bill was under consideration. A night session was held and at 1:15 Saturday morning the measure was passed. The bills appropriating $500,000 for the Buffalo Pan-American exposition, $5,000,000 for the St. Louis Louisiana Purchase exposition and $250,000 for the Charleston Interstate and West Indian exposition was attached to the bill as riders.

House.—The house removed all possibility of an extra session by concurring in the senate amendments to the army appropriation bill. The vote stood 159 to 134. It was a strict party vote, with the exception of Mr. McCall (Mass.), Mr. Lamb (Col.), Mr. Driscoll (N. Y.), Mr. Mann (Ill.), who voted with the democrats. Mr. Cooper (Wis.) answered present and was not paired. The bill goes to the president. The final conference report upon the Indian appropriation bill was adopted and a number of conference bills were put through the final stages. The conference report on the St. Louis exposition bill (which agreed to Sunday closing) was agreed to and the bill was sent back to conference. A motion to concur in the Charleston exposition amendment was defeated, 81 to 152.

Washington, March 4.—Both houses of congress was in session Sunday and Sunday night. At 2 o'clock Monday morning all the appropriation bills had been finally acted upon by the house and senate except the sundry civil and river and harbor bills. The motion of Mr. Allison to recede on the exposition amendment was agreed to without division. On a yea and nay vote Mr. Vest's motion prevailed, 38 to 10, which passed the St. Louis exposition bill appropriating $5,000,000. The bill now goes to the president. The house met at 5 o'clock. Mr. Cannon (Ill.) presented the final conference report on the sundry civil bill and it was agreed to. This passed the bill and it goes to the president. The volume of work done by the congress just closing was shown Sunday in a supplement to the house calendar. The congress was in session 197 days, which is less than any congress for years. The following is given of bills, acts, etc.: Number of bills, 14,356; number of reports, 3,000; public acts, 345; private acts, 1,250; total acts, 1,595; number of joint resolutions, 395.

Adm. Dewey Improving.

Washington, March 1.—Lieut. Crawford, secretary to Adm Dewey, stated Thursday morning that the admiral was steadily improving from his attack of grip, and hoped to be able to participate in the inaugural ceremonies next Monday.

To Increase Congressmen's Salaries.

Washington, March 1.—Senator Butler Thursday gave notice of an amendment he will offer to the sundry civil bill increasing the salaries of senators and members of congress to $7,500 per year.

WONDERFUL CURE OF PSORIASIS.

"As a sufferer for thirty years from the worst form of Psoriasis, finally cured by Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment, I wish to tell you my experience, that others may benefit by it. I was so grievously afflicted that the matter that exuded from my pores after the scales had peeled off, would cause my underclothing to actually gum to my body. After remaining in one position, sitting or lying down, for an hour or two, the flesh on my elbows and knees would split, so thick and hard would the crusty scales become. The humiliation I experienced, to say nothing of physical agony, was something frightful. The detached scales would fairly rain from my coat sleeves. I have read none of your testimonials that appear to represent a case so bad as mine. But as to the cure. I commenced bathing in hot Cuticura Soap suds night and morning, applied the Cuticura Ointment, and then wrapped myself in a sheet. In two weeks my skin was almost blood red in color, but smooth and without scales. Patches of natural colored skin began to appear, and in less than a month I was cured. I am now passed forty years of age and have skin as soft and smooth as a baby's. Hoping that others may benefit by my experience, and regretting that sensitiveness forbids me from disclosing my name, I am yours gratefully,

J. H. M., Boston, Mass., Sept. 30, 1900.

LONG TUNNEL ON COAST.

The Southern Pacific Railway Is Digging One a Mile and a Half in Length.

The longest tunnel in California—and there are some pretty long ones—and one of the largest tunnels in America is now in course of construction by the Southern Pacific company, says the San Francisco Call. Although the work has been going on for several months the immensity of the undertaking has never before been brought to the attention of the public nor has there been anything more than a casual reference made to the costly piece of workmanship.

The tunnel is being dug in the Chatsworth park cut-off and when completed will be a part of the new coast division between this city and Los Angeles. The cut-off is really between the towns of Montalvo and Chatsworth Park. The Santa Susana range occupies a vast field of space between these two points and it is beneath this range that the tunnel is to pass.

The total length of the underground passage will be 7,400 feet, or nearly a mile and a half. The tunnel next largest to this is at San Fernando, the latter being 6,790 feet long. The building of this tunnel will involve the expenditure of more than $250,000. The work was started last fall and a large force of laborers is now being employed both day and night with a view to completing the structure this year.

Much blasting and dredging is necessary and machinery is being used wherever practicable. Electric lights are used to facilitate the work, which is being carried on from each end by two gangs of men and a double supply of implements. The big drills are run by electricity and a powerful blower is used to pump air into the tunnel for the men to breathe. The passage will be 17 feet wide and 21 feet four inches high above the rails.

An Unknown Combustible.

Near Rio Grande City, Tex., an immense deposit of an unknown gaseous substance has been discovered. Pieces of it ignite quickly and give out a strong flame, which lasts for a remarkably long period. It is said by scientists that the substance is either an unknown mineral or ordinary clay highly charged with natural gas. In either case the value of the deposit as fuel is immense, as it covers many thousands of acres and is of immense depth.

It Pays to Advertise.

A Chicago congern, advertising itself as a "private wire house," has been asked to fill an order for barbed wire fencing for a man further west. This, says the Chicago Tribune, proves that it more than pays to advertise.

republican party in the Hayes-Tilden contest. He was attorney general of the United States from July, 1868, to March, 1869; secretary of state during Hayes' term and United States senator from New York from 1885 to 1891.

Senator Evarts' end was peaceful. He became unconscious at 4 o'clock Thursday morning, and remained so until he passed away. His four sons and four daughters were at his bedside. Pneumonia, with which he was stricken last Monday, was the cause of death.

The funeral will take place at 10 o'clock Saturday morning from Calvery Protestant Episcopal church. After the services here the family will go with the remains to Windsor, Vt., where services will be held again. Interment will be in the family plot in the cemetery there. BIG DOMESTIC DEMAND.

The Price of Pig Iron Advanced 75 Cents a Ton Within the Past Few Days.

Birmingham, Ala., March 1.—Another advance of 25 cents per ton in the price of pig iron was announced Thursday, making a rise of 50 cents within the past three days and 75 cents within the past week and placing No. 2 foundry at $11.50 per ton. These advances are due to the enormous domestic demand, which is said to be just now greater than it has been at any time before for 13 months past. President Baxter, of the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railway Co., says that his company is now selling on an average of 8,000 tons of iron daily. Other producers report a like activity.

An Electric Car Collides With a Carriage in Which Emperor William Was Riding.

The brake of the car did not work effectively and the emperor's coachman barely succeeded in stopping the horses. As it was the car shook the carriage roughly and somewhat damaged it.

The emperor was thrown against the side of the carriage and slightly bruised, but almost immediately thrust his head out to ascertain the cause of the accident.

It Laid the Ghost.

During a confirmation tour in the diocese of Peterborough the late bishop of London put up for the evening at a certain manor house, and slept in a room supposed to be haunted. Next morning at breakfast the bishop was asked whether he had seen the ghost. "Yes," he replied with great solemnity, "but I have laid the spirit; it will never trouble you again." Being further questioned upon the subject, the bishop said: "The ghost immediately vanished when I asked for a subscription toward the restoration of Peterborough cathedral."—Argonaut.

Another Proof That It Pays.

What pays? Why, advertising in this paper. A letter from the makers of Cascarets calls attention to the fact that within five years the sales have grown from nothing to six million boxes last year. This goes to show if you have an article of real merit like Cascarets, advertise it properly and liberally and let all the people know about it; it is sure to bring big results. Readers who have never tried this famous remedy are urged to try it, because in this busy, every day life of ours, we all need something now and then to help nature and there is no better medicine in the world than Cascarets to stimulate the liver and bowels gently and naturally into healthy action.

Proposed Alliance with England.

If the United States and England should form an alliance, the combined strength would be so great that there would be little chance for enemies to overcome us. In a like manner, when men and women keep up their bodily strength with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, there is little chance of attacks from disease. The old time remedy enriches the blood, steadies the nerves, and increases the appetite. Try it for dyspepsia and indigestion.

As a Collar Only.

He had been trying all evening to make a good impression. He had told all his humorous stories and had given one impassioned speech from "Cyrano," but was still unconscious. Thick-skinned, he failed to perceive all her efforts to get rid of him. Finally there was a deep silence. Fidgeting, he grew nervous and cast about for something to say. "Do you wear that sort of a collar as a rule?" "No," the haughty maid replied frigidly; "as a collar." Then he fled.—N. Y. Times.

Ten Years Late.

Many people would not have waited so long before trying a good article, but when Mr. Francis Lee was doing business as a druggist at Clinton, Iowa, he wrote: "Your Lotion is doing wonderful things here. One small bottle has cured one party of Tetter, who had not been free of it for ten years." One would suppose that this wonderful remedy which had then been on the market nearly thirty years, would have been recommended sooner by some enterprising druggist. If your druggist doesn't have it, send to Solon Palmer, 374 Pearl Street, New York, for samples of Palmer's Lotion and Lotion Soap.

AFTER THE GRIP COMES CATARRH.

LIKE A TERRIBLE CYCLONE grip bacillus has passed over our country, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, leaving behind it a dark cloud of anguish and despair.

Catarrh follows grip as effect follows cause.

A multitude of catarrh victims will spring up in the trail of the awful epidemic of grip that has just passed over our fair country.

The hope to these people is Peruna.

Most people know this already.

Everyone who has had the least touch of grip, should not fail to take a course of treatment with Peruna.

Peruna eradicates every vestige of the disease and leaves the system in a normal condition.

Hon. Joseph B. Crowley, Congressman from Illinois, writes from the National Hotel, Washington, D. C., as follows:

"After giving Peruna a fair trial I can cheerfully recommend your remedy to anyone suffering with coughs, colds, la grippe and all catarrhal complaints.'"—J. B. Crowley.

Hon. George H. White, Congressman from North Carolina, writes:

"I am more than satisfied with Peruna, and find it to be an excellent remedy for the grip and catarrh. I have used it in my family, and they all join me in recommending it as an excellent remedy."—George H. White.

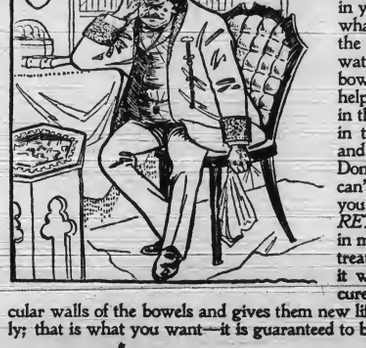
Hon. J. P. Megrew, Superintendent U. S. Capital Police Force, of Washington, D. C., says:

"Having suffered from the grip, I was advised by a friend to use your Peruna. I also used it for my catarrh, and I can now cheerfully recommend your remedy to anyone who is suffering from the grip and catarrh."—J. P. Megrew.

Miss Anna Russell, Past Worthy Counselor, Loyal Mystic Legion, 263 Endicott Building, St. Paul, Minn., writes:

"For years I have unfortunately found my system in a peculiarly receptive condition for catarrh when I was exposed in any way to inclement weather. At those times I would be severely afflicted with la grippe and its unpleasant consequences.

"Now for the past year and a half I have used Peruna in such cases and have found that it not only cures me quickly, but it also cleanses my blood and renders me less liable to catch cold. It is the finest preventive of colds that I know of and a very superior tonic."—Anna Russell.



Miss Alice Dressler, 1313 North Bryant avenue, Minneapolis, Minn., writes:

"Last spring I suffered from la grippe and was partially cured, but the bad aftereffects remained through the summer, and somehow I did not get strong as I was before. In the fall I caught a cold after getting my feet wet and attending a lecture in a cold hall, and I suffered a relapse. An unpleasant catarrh of the head and throat followed, and as I was in a weak condition physically previous to this, it took but little to break me down completely.

"One of my college friends who was visiting me, asked me to try Peruna, and I did so and found it all and more than I had expected. It not only cured me of the catarrh, but restored me to perfect health, built up the entire system, and brought a happy feeling of buoyancy which I had not known for years."—Miss Alice Dressler.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, O.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

After the 1st day of March, 1901, I will build buggies for $50 up. The vehicle will have first-class wheels, B grade, with celebrated Gotierssteel tire, drilled and bolted between spokes. The axle will be the celebrated Winchester 1000 mile axle, something neat and strong. The gearing will be of my own make and pattern, which I claim has no equal. The body will be good, seasoned yellow poplar; sills and rises good seasoned ash and hickory—not Cottonwood as the factories are now using. Notice the corners of a factory body and you find them bursting out, something I guarantee my work not to do

Trimming.

TRIMMINGS—Bows of second growth ash, steel socket of the improved Cleveland pattern; top to have leather sides quarters buffed, not split, roof and curtains 30 ounces rubber; lining, 14 ounce cloth any color you wish; back and cushion, leather or cloth as you wish; storm apron large enough to cover two people and turu water; rug carpet will be something neat, full length, well bound, as will also the toe pad. I also build a two-seated, three spring

Pleasure Wagon for $67.

In fact Carriages, Phaetons, Surreys or any kind of a vehicle as cheap as any factory work, and I know a great deal better. I build this work on orders only. I carry no stock, so you can order what you want.

Carriage Repairs.

You ask me if I can shoe a horse. I answer, yes If you give me time enough I can make the shoe as good as anyone, but when it comes to paring the foot and driving the nails, I would leek the judgment—I could not level the foot and would prick your horse, and then how quick you would remove the shoe and do what you could for him, and all I could say would be too late. The same way with an axle or any other parts of a carriage. If they are on a strain, or a wheel that is dished out of shape I will fix it for you. No cure, no pay. Notice some

Prices on Wheels.

I will cut your wheels down, put on new XXX beveled rims and heavy steel tires for $6 69, and everything else in proportion.

Painting.

There are a great many ways to repaint a job. My prices are in reach of all. Following are my prices for 1901: $5, $8, $10 and $12. On my $10 and $12 jobs I give a written guarantee. If you can buy the paint and varnish and stripe your job and do the work for $5, I have nothing more to say on a $5 job. Come and see, learn and be convinced I mean just what I say.

The man who gets the first one of my buggies will sell more for me. Now come on. My place of business is one-fourth of a mile west of T. J. Childress' toll-gate.

The chandeliers were gracefuli draped with ropes of smilax, while white roses and hyacinths were to be seen at every turn. The spacious hall was banked with quantities of palms and other potted plants. Promptly at six o'clock the Lohengrin wedding march was heard, and as there were no attendants Miss Bonnie and Mr. Castle entered the parlor together, where, under a canopy of green, the ceremony was performed by the Rev. Charles R. Hemphill. The bride wore an exquisite creation of white crepe de chine trimmed in rose point and duchesse lace, and her tulle veil was caught with a dainty bunch of hyacinths. She carried a large shower boquet of white roses and hyacinths tied with a large bow of white satin ribbon. The bride, who made her debut several season since, has always been noted for her popularity and brightness, and her beauty was never so marked as in her wedding gown. Following the marriage a large reception was held, at which several hundred guests were present. The dining room was artistically arranged with American beauty roses, and the bride's table in green and white. In the center was a pretty design of roses and hyacinths surrounded by ferns, on either end stood silver candlebra filled with white candles. Mr. and Mrs. Castle left that night for Chicago where they will spend several days before going to St. Louis, and after May 1st, will be at home, 33 Evergreen Place, East Orange, N. J.

Among the out of town guests present at the nuptials were Mrs. Cornelia Castle and daughter, Miss Sarah, and Mr. Jennings, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Burtiss, and Miss Hallie Calvert, of Cincinnati, Mrs. John Gibson, of Boone county.

A Horrible Outbreak.

"Of large sores on my little daughter's head developed into a case of scald head" writes C. D. Isbill, of Morgantown, Tenn., but Bucklen's Arnica Salve completely cured her. It's a guaranteed cure for Eczema, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Pimples, Sores, Ulcers and Piles. Only 25 cents at Union Drug Store, Union; J. G. Oelsner's, Florence; H. L. Eskew's, Walton; O. N. Grant's, Grant.

Smallpox in Greenup county is now almost a thing of the past and there are not to exceed a dozen cases in the entire county. The Springville schools, which have been closed for a month or more on account of smallpox, reopened and there are now in that neighborhood but two cases under quarantine. The other cases are scattered over the county in various neighborhoods, but all are under a vigilant quarantine. It is now believed that two weeks will see an end to the smallpox epidemic here.

NOTICE.—Notice is hereby given that on one month from this date I will move the County Court to alter the precinct line between Big Bone and Rabbit Hash precincts so that the farm on which I now reside will be a part of Rabbit Hash precinct.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXVI. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 13, 1901. NO. 21.

INDIANA editors are giving considerable space to editorials on lynching bees.

IT begins to look like the Pugh-Elliston war in Kenton county is about to subside.

IN the last two years the amount necessary to pay pensions has increased over $8,000,000.

THE Boers seem to be about as far from the last ditch as they were this time last year.

THE President renominated and the Senate readily confirmed the entire old cabinet, which is said to be unusual.

THE Hon. Campbell Cantrill, of Georgetown, has been declared the Democratic nominee for State Senator in his district.

THE Pendletonian is trying to work up an agricultural association for Pendleton county. It seems to be making progress.

If reports are true some few outsiders as well as some of the candidates will soon require an elongation of their trouser legs.

EX-SENATOR LINDSAY has gone to New York to engage in the practice of his profession. He is after larger game than the Kentucky reserve affords.

THE reasoning and ruling of Judge Tarvin on the combine indictments in his court, did not exactly harmonized according to the reading of some people.

THE time of year has arrived when the farmers desire to begin pushing their work. Plows will be started as soon as the ground is in condition, and no time will be lost until the crops are planted.

THAT Hay-Poncefote treaty found a quiet resting place on a shelf in the Senate, among several bills that could not reach. The Senate cemetery was considerably enlarged just previous to March 4th.

IT will take the candidates all of the next three weeks to round up their voters for the primary on April 6th, and no matter with what care the round-up is made a great many votes will escape on the day of the election.

The Oracle is the name of a new paper in Aurora, published by R. E. Russell, who is said to be a hustler, which he will have to be to make his paper a financial success where there are three papers in a one paper town. Here is hoping you success all along the line, Bro. Russell.

THE Carrollton Republican denies that its employe who collected all the Republican's outstanding accounts and forged a few checks on its editor was the paper's business manager. Be that as it may it seems he managed to get about all out of the business that was worth anything. The Republican was evidently born under an unlucky star.

THE primary election held in Pendleton county, a few days ago, was free from the demoralizing effects that have accompanied all the other primary elections held in this part of the State for the last several months. Pendleton has proven to her neighbors that it is possible to conduct a primary election in a decent manner, and it is hoped and believed this county will behave on April 6th in as becoming a manner as Pendleton did. This matter is largely in the hands of the candidates, who should in nowise contribute to the encouragement of any unbecoming conduct on election day.

THE Democratic press of Kentucky has not hesitated to express itself adversely to Gov. Beckham's uncalled for haste in pardoning Alvey, the leading gambler of Louisville, who was fined $500 and given a term of two years in the penitentiary. Had a Republican Governor issued that pardon those Republican papers that are now roasting Gov. Beckham would be as silent as the tomb. That is the difference between Democrats and Republicans, the latter submitting meekly to every act of their officials, while, on the other hand, the Democrats speak out in meeting when one of their party is guilty of a wrongful act.

SKAGUAY JIM

Gives His Views of the Political Fight Now On

Some are Running Neck and Neck Others Fighting to Keep from Being Tailenders.

Blufe Does Not Aspire to be the G. B. Cox of Boone County.

To the Editor of the Recorder:

Will you allow space for a few comments on the very interesting primary contest now in progress in this county, and which is the principal topic at all wood-sawings, stores and blacksmith shops in the county? Believing that you will, I offer the following:

The first race to be noticed is that for Representative. In the matter of upright, moral citizenship neither candidate has the advantage of his opponent, but each has an element of strength peculiar to himself. On several occasions in the past Mr. Kennedy has been turned down by his party, but in no instance did he ever sulk in his tent, but, on the contrary, did his duty at the regular election in behalf of his successful opponent. This becoming acquiescence in party action is one element of Mr. K.'s strength in this canvass, and will be worth many votes to him. Mr. Byland is a new comer in county politics, although he has been a magistrate for several years. He is a good mixer, and his ability to represent the county is conceded, but neither he nor his opponent has the nomination nailed down. In fact, as yet, the race is decidedly a two-sided affair.

The race for County Judge is a very pretty triangular fight. Mr. Cason, the attorney, was the first entry, and for several days it looked very much like he would have things his own way, and some of his thoughtless friends began shouting he had the race won, but Esq. Bannister, a veteran of many political battles, could not see it that way, and he shied his castor in the ring, and began at once to create complications that were to the liking of the old red fox, Judge Stephens, who has given and taken in many hot political battles in times agone, and he, too, concluded to take a hand in the contest for the nomination for the judgehip, and the canvass is now in such a mixed condition there is no telling which of the three gentlemen will capture the ermine.

The race for County Clerk was won before the primary election was called. In accomplishing that feat Blufe Adams demonstrated his astuteness as a politician. A close investigation was made months ago to ascertain the condition of Blufe's political fences, and they were found horse-high, bull-strong and pigtight, every stake well set and every rider in its place. Later on another investigation was made but it was discovered that he had constructed political trochas so perfectly that his position was invulnerable, and at last he was given a free pass to four more years' feasting at the public crib. Blufe clearly outwitted several who are distinguished as sleek politicians, whom he could give cards and spades and then beat them out; but with all his success he will not attempt to set himself up as a political boss. A little thing like political success will not make him believe that the earth and the fullness thereof, politically, belongs to him. He is too broad minded for that.

The canvass for County Attorney is growing quite interesting, and what else could be expected when the material from which the candidate is to be chosen is composed of the ablest two attorneys at the county seat, men whose eloquence flowed from the summit of every stump in the county, and made the woods ring in the campaign of 1899 and again in 1900, contributing largely to the solid Democratic front old Boone presented at each of these elections? Each of the candidates for this office has a positive following of considerable magnitude, and no matter which wins the nomination the other and his supporters will be greatly surprised at his defeat.

The fight for the Sheriffalty is a hummer. Ben and Fill are letting no grass grow under their No. 10's, in an active canvass that they will not allow to degenerate into a political mud-slinging. One being a northender and the other a southender relieves the canvass of local features that cluster about and contribute to the uncertainty of results in some of the other contests. These two candidates are coming down the stretch neck and neck, and the one that is fortunate enough to get the most friends to attend the election will be the next Sheriff. In this race again each candidate thinks he has the nomination about spiked down.

For Assessor are ten worthy gentlemen asking to be nominated, and after April 6th the woods will be full of "also-rans," victims of misplaced confidence in this race. There are about four of the ten candidates in the fight, while each of the other six has a hard canvass on his hands to keep from being the "tailender." Each candidate has strength in one or more localities, and taking his strongest locality as a basis from which to figure, he concludes he is invincible, and goes forth from early Monday morning until dewey Saturday evening proclaiming, "I'm strictly in it, and the others are nowhere." Now, give each of the strong candidates an average of 300 votes and there will not be to exceed 1,100 votes to divide among the other six aspirants, which is conclusive proof that there are several whose names will be on the ballots, who will not round up 100 votes at the primary; yet, singular to say, every mother's son of them is confident of success. From a carefully kept tab it is evident that the extravagant claims being made in this race are not reliable. Keep your eyes on the two W's.

The race for County Superintendent of Schools is not overburdening the voters with interest, and the nomination is liable to fall in the lap of either candidate. The educational interests will not suffer in the hands of either of the aspirants for this office, so think the people.

For Jailer the voters are confronted with Whitson, the wit, and Adams, T. J., the silent. The former is getting more sport out of each square inch of the canvass than all of the other candidates combined, and has a good following. The latter is making no fuss about the matter, but very few voters there be whose hand he does not shake when he enters a neighborhood. The result in this race will be known when the ballots are counted on the afternoon of April 6th, and exclamations, "I knowed it!" will be heard from every direction.

Dr. Murat, of Constance, and our own Dr. Haley, each want to be Coroner for four years from and after January 1, 1902. This is an office in which so little interest is taken nobody has wasted time to form an opinion as to who will win, and care less.

And last, but not least, comes the race for Surveyor. This is also a triangular fight with Mannin and Terrill pursuing Vest, (old-hard-to beat), so that he will at least know that he had foes worthy his steal.

The foregoing deductions are made after taking a careful survey of the political field as viewed from this part of the county, but probably some of the political wise men of Burlington could give a more correct prognostication of affairs political. SKAGUAY JIM.

IT turns out that W. C. P. Breckinridge would not engage to defend Capt Garnett Ripley, of Henry county, who is under indictment, charged with being implicated in the Goebel assassination. It is said Ripley has declared that he will tell all he knows, when put on trial, let it hurt whom it may. May be that has something to do with Col. Breckinridge's refusal to defend him, although his kinsman.

The city of Louisville should be carried by the Republicans next November. Every one of the nine members of the next Legislature from Jefferson county and the city of Louisville should go with a Republican commission.—Louisville Evening Post.

ONLY such declarations as that eminate from the heart of a Republican, and brand as utterly false the editor's claims that he is a Democrat. "Get thee behind me, Satan."

THE GRANGE.

To the Editor of the Recorder:

I am glad to note the marked interest in this noble Order being made manifest throughout our county. Thirty-four years ago the National Grange convened in Washington, D. C., and effected an organization. Its great purpose was to develop a better and higher manhood and womanhood among the agricultural classes. Its unprecedented growth throughout the United States excited the wonder and admiration of the civilized world. Its influence has extended to the halls of our State and National legislatures. Through its influence the Department of Agriculture was established and a representation of the interests of the farmers is admitted to the councils of the nation. This grand achievement of the Grange has exhalted agriculture to that dignified position that God designated it should occupy. It devolves upon the farmers throughout this great and prosperous nation, by a mutual understanding and cooperation, to maintain the dignity of the high position it has attained.

The Grange is what its members make it, its success depends upon their individual efforts. If they lend heart, mind and energy to the work laid out for them to do, they need have no fear of its becoming a thing of the past. There never has been an hour in my life that I doubted the ultimate success of this grand enterprise, one that stands in the very van of the noble conceptions of the human mind.

No school exists that affords more ample means of educating the agricultural classes to a true knowledge of the vocation they have adopted, than the Grange. The farmer should not be content with simply knowing how to plant, cultivate and reap his crops; he should seek all knowledge pertaining to his pursuits, the various forms and methods of business, be the master of scientific agriculture, and be thoroughly conversant with the laws that govern commerce. A knowledge of these laws is indispensable to successful farming, to know just when and how to sell; to be posted as to the probable wants of foreign markets; to have a knowledge of the demand for home consumption; to have an accurate estimate of the supply on hand, and to be able to compute the actual cost of transportation. These facts can all be gathered in the Grange, and, through Grange mediums. By interchanging of thought and unity of action, farmers may become educated and have their influence felt in the government. For this the Grange was organized, and, for the same purpose all other vocations have their organizations.

The great railroad kings have their syndicates; the doctors and lawyers their medical and law societies; the millers their conventions; the wheat merchants, the cotton merchants and the tobacco merchants their exchanges, in fact, every branch of trade has its organizations for interchange of thought and unity of action. Then why should not agriculture, the parent and precursor of all these, have its organization for the mutual instruction and protection of its followers. It governs the prosperity of every nation, and, is the foundation of all wealth. Yet, how few farmers there are that realize the important position agriculture occupies among the industries of the world, and the utter lack of interest they manifest in its only organization, is a fact that cannot be accounted for.

Knowledge, we are told, is the foundation of human happiness, then it behooves every man and woman to avail themselves of every opportunity of acquiring it. No richer harvest can be offered the young American farmers than that to be found in the Grange. Their minds are active and susceptible, and they of all others, should avail themselves of all advantages to be derived through this medium. One of the grandest objects is to place the farmer in the front ranks of society. But, in order to place him there, he should be fitted for the position, and I can see no better way of accomplishing this than through the plans of discussions adopted in all properly conducted Granges. Subjects of general policy are mixed up with farm subjects, and discussed without the bitterness of partisan politics. By this men are brought closer together, and those who have voted all their lives opposed to each other, will be surprised to find how close they are in actual sentiment.

There are young farmers in every community who, should they become members of the Grange, enter zealously upon the work laid out for them and determine to overcome their embarrassment and awkardness, might make themselves bright and shining lights in the future history of our country. I look around me and see many young farmers who, ere they will be aware of it, will be called upon to take the places and assume the responsibilities of their aged parents. They will be called upon to uphold the principles and practices underlying their vocation, and expected to enforce their just claims upon their government. In order to be prepared for this work, they should take time by the forelock, and begin at once to educate themselves for so important an undertaking. They will find no school that will afford them a better opportunity for the accomplishment of this than that of the Grange.

The most attractive and admirable feature of the organization is the admission of ladies to membership and office. Not only is this association refining and elevating in itself, but it is the surest guarantee that can be given that its objects are wholesome and honorable. They exert a great influence in the order. Their presence is calculated to keep down the rougher impulses of man's nature. Their smiles cheer and encourage not only the young men, but the old gray haired father. It is self evident that so long as you can keep man under the influence and in the presence of the refinement and purity of woman (the highest type of God's creation) his thoughts, his purposes and his actions will be pure. Hence the trickery and scheming and unscrupulous politicians can find no encouragement in the Grange.

Then, farmers, let me entreat you to rally to the support of the Grange —either carry your wives, your daughters and your sons into its ranks and form a united phalanx in the great battle against trusts and monopolies or cease hurling invectives against them.

G. C. GRADDY.

Farm, Stock and Crop.

A large acreage of cow peas will be sown in Woodford county.

Grant county's tobacco crop is one of best for many years amounting to near 8,000,000 pounds.

The high price prevailing undoubtedly causes the marketing of many unfinished hogs, and future receipts will be lighter in consequence.

Judge George B. Nelson, of Clark county, raised 106,011 pounds of hemp on 68 acres of land, an average of 1,560 pounds to the acre. On twelve of the sixty-eight acres the average was 2,000 pounds. The ordinary yield is 1,000.

The weight of hogs received last month at the principal Western markets averaged just about the same as at the same time in February last year—226 pounds, the range in weight being 200 to 250 pounds. The quality has been very good.

A Stockman who has realized large profits from shipments he has made of cattle to the Klondike miners is about to stock a ranch on one of the Aleutian Islands. If this experiment is a success he will probably accumulate more gold than the majority of miners.

Long tails on horses promise to become the fashion. New York dealers say there is more inquiry for longtailed horses than there has been for two years and that some of the highest-priced horses sold this winter have rejoiced in long tails. It is to be hoped that the sentiment will grow among the "smart set" as docking is a cruel institution.

The farmers of Western Kentucky are to put out a heavier crop of tobacco this year than for many years previous. The mild weather of January has given them this opportunity of preparing plant beds, and the ground has been in splendid condition for seeding. The satisfactory prices of last year's tobacco crop has been the incentive for the preparation for a large crop.

GRANT COUNTY.

From Williamstown Courier.

John J. Sechrest, who was once one of the largest stock buyers in Grant county, and who, in the fall of 1897 made a large purchase of lambs, shipped them to Cincinnati and gave checks in payment for them which were protested, arrived home last Thursday night from the Klondike.

Many stories have been told of the wealth of Sechrest, how he had grown to be a Croesus in the frozen regions of Alaska, and of how he was coming home to settle up all his liabilities. So a reporter of the Courier called at the Sechrest home just out of curiosity to see how a sure enough Millioniare looked. We were disappointed, however, for Sechrest was not at home, having gone to Cincinnati for the day.

We called at the home of his father, and that was all that we could glean from him was that John was home and would return to the Klondike in a few days. He expects to come back next fall and settle for everything. Nearly all his wealth is invested in mines in the arid regions of Dawson, and he expects to realize many thousands of dollars when he makes his spring "clean up." According to the story that Sechrest tells he has thousands of dollars worth of machinery operating in his mines. He is a partner in two of the richest claims in Alaska, and if he has anything like good luck will clean up a hundred thousand or more in gold dust in the early spring for his share of the profits. The price of provisions in Dawson have fallen considerably, and are now quite reasonable and in the reach of all, as will be seen by some of the following prices which Sechrest quotes: Eggs have fallen from fifty cents apiece to twenty-five cents each, potatoes are six dollars a barrel; whisky is fifty cents per drink and six dollars per quart; a tenderloin stake costs two dollars and a half, etc. The temperature of Dawson City was quite cold during the winter just passed. The thermometers registered sventy-five below zero, and then struck, or stuck, we don't care which, at any rate they refused to work any longer till the weather moderated.

Sechrest started home last fall but got quarantined in Dawson City where the smallpox was raging and remained there several months. He came out over the Youka river, travelling two hundred miles on the ice by way of Skaguay. On the account of snow blockades he chose to some by water to San Francisco and from there over the Southern Pacific Route home. This long journey required many weeks and he was nearly worn out when he reached here Thursday night. At San Francisco his ship was quarantined for bubonic plague. He says that Will Sechrest and Fred McGuire are both looking well and are well satisfied in the Klondike. As for himself he says he will not spend another winter in the Klondike but will return home next fall. It is necessary for him to return at once if he would go before the ice breaks up, otherwise he will be unable to reach Dawson before the first or middle of May.

BY reversing a long line of rulings it is believed the Appellate Court has paved the way for reversal of the case of Jim Howard, under sentence to be hung for the assassination of Senator Goebel. The court, in an opinion written by Judge Guffy in a Henry-county case holds that in cross-examination of a witness he can not be required to answer any question the answers to which would show that he had been guilty of any misdemeanor or accused or convicted of any crime; and that such facts can not be proved by other witnesses. Judge Hobson, in his dissenting opinion scores Judge Guffy for going outside of the record, and says that the majority opinion overrules a long line of decisions of Kentucky courts and courts of other States.

According to the Washington Post's score the North is one point ahead of the South in the matter of burning negroes. Where is that Boston woman who was going to lead an army against the negro-burning South?—C. J.

MINISTRY OF TEARS.

Dr. Talmage Puts Misfortunes of Life in a Cheerful Light.

Shows That If They Were Borne in the Right Spirit They Might Prove to Be Advantages—Sympathy of Jesus.

(Copyright, 1901, by Louis Klopsch, N. Y.)

A vast audience crowded the Academy of Music in this city to-day to hear Dr. Talmage. Discoursing on "The Ministry of Tears," he put the misfortunes of life in a cheerful light, showing that if they were borne in the right spirit they might prove to be advantages. His text was Rev. vii., 17: "And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes."

What a spectacle a few weeks ago when the nations were in tears! Queen Victoria ascended from the highest throne on earth to a throne in Heaven. The prayer more often offered than any prayer for the last 64 years had been answered, and God did save the queen. All round the world the bells were tolling, and the minute guns were booming at the obsequies of the most honored woman of many centuries. As near four years ago the English and American nations shook hands in congratulation at the queen's jubilee, so in these times two nations shook hands in mournful sympathy at the queen's departure. No people outside Great Britain so deeply felt that mighty grief as our people. The cradles of many of our ancestors were rocked in Great Britain. Those ancestors played in childhood on the banks of the Tweed or the Thames or the Shannon. Take from our veins the English blood or the Welsh blood or the Irish blood or the Scotch blood and the stream of our life would be a mere shallow. They are over there bone of our bone and flesh of our flesh. It is our Wilberforce, our Coleridge, our De Quincey, our Robert Burns, our John Wesley, our John Knox, our Thomas Chalmers, our Walter Scott, our Bishop Charnock, our Latimer, our Ridley, our Robert Emmett, our Daniel O'Connell, our Havelock, our Ruskin, our Gladstone, our good and great and glorious Victoria.

The language in which we offered the English nation our condolence is the same language in which John Runyan dreamed and Milton sang and Shakespeare dramatized and Richard Baxter prayed and George Whitefield thundered. The prince of Wales, nodding, paid reverential visit to Washington's tomb at Mount Veruon, and Longfellow's statue adorns Westminster abbey, and Abraham Lincoln in bronze looks down upon Scotland's capital. It was natural that these two nations be in tears. But I am not going to speak of national tears, but of individual tears and Bible tears.

Riding across a western prairie, wild flowers up to the hub of the carriage wheel, and while a long distance from any shelter, there came a sudden shower, and, while the rain was falling in torrents, the sun was shining as brightly as I ever saw it shine, and I thought: What a beautiful spectacle is this! So the tears of the Bible are not midnight storm, but rain on pansied prairies in God's sweet and golden sunlight.

You remember that bottle which David labeled as containing tears, and Mary's tears and Paul's tears and Christ's tears, and the harvest of joy that is to spring from the sowing of tears. God mixes them; God rounds them; God shows them where to fall; God exhales them. A census is taken of them, and there is a record as to the moment when they were born and as to the place of their grave. Tears of bad men are not kept. Alexander in his sorrow had the hair clipped from his horses and mules and made a great ado about his grief, but in all the vases of Heaven there is not one of Alexander's tears. I speak of the tears of God's children. Alas, me! they are falling all the time! In summer you sometimes hear the growling thunder, and you see there is a storm miles away, but you know from the drift of the clouds that it will not come anywhere near you. So, though it be all bright around about you, there is a shower of trouble somewhere all the time. Tears, tears!

What is the use of them, anyhow? Why not substitute laughter? Why not make this a world where all the people are well and eternal strangers to pains and aches? What is the use of an eastern storm when we might have a perpetual nor'wester? Why, when a family is put together, not have them all stay, or, if they must be transplanted to make other homes, then have them all live, the family record telling a story of marriages and births, but of no deaths? Why not have the harvests chase each other without fatiguing toil? Why the hard pillow, the hard crust, the hard struggle? Is it easy enough to explain a smile or a success or a congratulation, but come now and bring oil your dictionaries and all your philosophies and all your religions and help me explain a tear. A chemist will tell you that it is made up of salt and lime and other component parts, but he misses the chief ingredients—the acid of a soured life, the viperine sting of a bitter memory, the fragments of a broken heart. I will tell you what a tear is. It is agony in solution. Hear, then, while I discourse of the ministry of tears or the practical use of sorrow.

First, it is the design of trouble to keep this world from being too attractive. Something must be done to make us willing to quit this existence. If it were not for trouble, this would be a good enough Heaven for us. You and I would be willing to take a lease of this life for a hundred million years if there were no trouble. The earth, cushioned and upholstered and pillared and chandeliered at such expense, no story of other worlds could enchant us. We would say: "Let well enough alone. If you want to die and have your body disintegrated in the dust and your soul go out on a celestial adventure, then you can go, but this world is good enough for me." You might as well go to a man who has just entered the Louvre at Paris and tell him to hasten off to the picture galleries of Venice or Florence. "Why," he would say, "what is the use of my going there? There are Rembrandts and Rubenses and Titians here that I have not looked at yet." No man wants to go out of this world or out of any house until he has a better house.

To cure this wish to stay here God must somehow create a disgust for our surroundings. How shall He do it? He cannot afford to efface His horizon or to tear off a fiery panel from the sunset or to subtract an anther from the water lily or to banish the pungent aroma from the mignonette or to drag the robes of the morning in mire. You cannot expect a Christopher Wren to mar his own St. Paul's cathedral or a Michael Angelo to dash out his own "Last Judgment" or a Handel to discord his "Israel in Egypt," and you cannot expect God to spoil the architecture and music of His own world. How, then, are we to be made willing to leave? Here is where trouble comes in.

After a man has had a good deal of trouble he says: "Well, I am ready to go. If there is a house somewhere whose roof does not leak, I would like to live there. If there is an atmosphere somewhere that does not distress the lungs, I would like to breathe it. If there is a society somewhere where there is no tittle tattle, I would like to live there. If there is a home circle somewhere where I can find my lost friends, I would like to go there." He used to read the first part of the Bible chiefly; now he reads the last part of the Bible chiefly. Why has he changed Genesis for Revelation? Ah, he used to be anxious chiefly to know how this world was made and all about its geological construction. Now he is chiefly anxious to know how the next world was made and how it looks and who live there and how they dress. He reads Revelation ten times now where he reads Genesis once. The old story, "In the beginning God created the heavens and the earth," does not thrill him half as much as the other story, "I saw a new Heaven and a new earth." The old man's hand trembles as he turns over this apocalyptical leaf, and he has to take out his handkerchief to wipe his spectacles. That book of Revelation is a prospectus now of the country into which he is soon to immigrate; the country in which he has lots already laid out and avenues opened and mansions built.

It is trouble, my friends, that makes us feel our dependence upon God. We do not know our own weakness or God's strength until the last plank breaks. It is contemptible in us that only when there is nothing else to take hold of we catch hold of God. Why, do you know who the Lord is? He is not an autocrat, seated far up in a palace, from which He emerges once a year, preceded by heralds swinging swords to clear the way. No. He is a father, willing at our call to stand by us in every sickness and predicament of life. I tell you what some of you business men make me think of. A man is unfortunate in his business. He has to raise a good deal of money, and raise it quickly. He borrows on word and note all he can borrow. After awhile he puts a mortgage on his house. After awhile he puts a second mortgage on his house. Then he makes over his life insurance. Then he assigns all his property. Then he goes to his father-in-law and asks for help. Well, having failed everywhere, completely failed, he gets down on his knees and says: "Oh, Lord, I have tried everybody and everything; now help me out of this financial trouble." He makes God the last resort instead of the first resort.

Again, it is the use of trouble to capacitate us for the office of sympathy. The priests, under the old dispensation, were set apart by having water sprinkled upon their hands, feet and head, and by the sprinkling of tears people are now set apart to the office of sympathy. When we are in prosperity, we like to have a great many young people around us, and we laugh when they laugh, and we romp when they romp, and we sing when they sing, but when we have trouble we like plenty of old folks around. Why? They know how to talk. Take an aged mother, 75 years of age, and she is almost omnipotent in comfort. Why? She has been through it all. At seven o'clock in the morning she goes over to comfort a young mother who has just lost her babe. Grandmother knows all about that trouble. Fifty years ago she felt it. At 12 o'clock of that day she goes over to comfort a widowed soul. She knows all about that. She has been walking in that dark valley 20 years. At four o'clock in the afternoon some one knocks at the door, wanting bread. She knows all about that. Two or three times in her life she came to her last loaf. At ten o'clock at night she goes over to sit up with some one severely sick. She knows all about it. She knows all about fevers and pleurisies and broken bones. She has been doctoring all her life, spreading plasters and pouring out bitter drops and shaking up hot pillows and contriving things to tempt a poor appetite. Drs. Abernethy and Rush and Hosack and Harvey were great doctors, but the greatest doctor the world ever saw is an old Christian woman. Dear me! Do we not remember her about the room when we were sick in our boyhood? Was there anyone who could ever so touch a sore without hurting it? And when she put her spectacles against her wrinkled forehead so she could look closer at the wound it was three-fourths healed. And when the Lord took her home, although you may have been men and women 30, 40, 50 years of age, you lay on the coffin lid and sobbed as though you were only five or ten years of age.

Where did Paul get the ink with which to write his comforting epistles? Where did David get the ink to write his comforting psalms? Where did John get the ink to write his comforting Revelation? They got it out of their own tears. When a man has gone through the curriculum and has taken a course of dungeons and imprisonments, he is qualified for the work of sympathy.

Jesus had enough trial to make him sympathetic with all trial. The shortest verse in the Bible tells the story, "Jesus wept." The scar on the back of his either hand, the scar on the arch of either foot, the row of scars along the line of the hair, will keep all Heaven thinking. Oh, that Great Weeper is just the one to silence all earthly trouble, wipe out all stains of earthly grief! Gentle! Why, His step is softer than the step of the dew. It will not be a tyrant bidding you hush your crying. It will be a Father who will take you on His left arm, His face beaming into yours, while with the soft tips of the fingers of the right hand He shall wipe away all tears from your eyes.

You have noticed when the children get hurt and their mother is away from home they always come to you, the father, for comfort and sympathy, but you have noticed when the children get hurt and their mother is at home they go right past you and to her, and you are of no account. So, when the soul comes up into Heaven out of the wounds of this life, it will not stop to look for Paul or Moses or David or John. These did very well once, but now the soul shall rush past, crying: "Where is Jesus? Where is Jesus?"

Have you any appreciation of the good and glorious times your friends are having in Heaven? How different it is when they get news there of a Christian's death from what it is here! It is the difference between embarkation and coming into port. Everything depends upon which side of the river you stand when you hear of a Christian's death. If you stand on this side of the river you mourn that they go. If you stand on the other side of the river, you rejoice that they come. Oh, the difference between a funeral on earth and a jubilee in Heaven—between requiem here and triumph there; parting here and union there! Together! Hnve you ever thonght of it? They are together. Not one of your departed friends in one land and another in another, but together in different rooms of the same house—the house of many mansions! Together!

Take this good cheer home with you. These tears of bereavement that course your cheek and of persecution and of trial are not always to be there. The motherly hand of God will wipe them all away. What is the use on the way to such a consummation—what is the use of fretting about anything? Oh, what an exhilaration it ought to be in Christian work! See you the pinnacles against the sky? It is the city of our God, and we are approaching it. Oh, let us be busy in the days that remain for us!

The Saxons and the Britons went out to battle. The Saxons were all armed. The Britons had no weapons at all, and yet history tells us that the Britons got the victory. Why? They went into battle shouting three times, "Hallelujah!" and at the third shout of "Hallelujah!" their enemies fled panic struck, and so the Britons got the victory. And, my friends, if we could only appreciate the glories that are to come we would be so filled with enthusiasm that no power on earth or hell could stand before thes such volleys of halleluiah.

I put this balsam on the wounds of your heart: Rejoice at the thought of what your departed friends have got rid of and that you have a prospect of so soon making your own escape. Bear cheerfully the ministry of tears and exult at the thought that soon it is to be ended.

Do you not this moment catch a glimpse of the towers? Do you not hear a note of the eternal harmony? Some of you may remember the old Crystal palace in this city of New York. I came in from my country home a verdant lad and heard in that Crystal palace the first great music I had ever heard. Jullen gave a concert there, and there were 3,000 voices and 3,000 players upon instruments, and I was mightily impressed with the fact that Jullen controlled the harmony with the motion of his hand and foot, beating time with the one and emphasizing with the other. To me it was overwhelming. But all that was tame compared with the scene and the sound when the ransomed shall come from the east and the west and the north and the south and sit down in the kingdom of God, myriads above myriads, galleries nbove galleries, and Christ will rise, and all Heaven will rise with Him, and with His wounded hand and wounded foot He will conduct that harmony, "Like the voice of many waters, like the voice of mighty thunderings, worthy is the Lamb that was slain to receive riches and honor and glory and power, world without end."

Not a Priceless Relic.

"I married you for your money!" she cried, bitterly.

Then, by a visible effort controlling her sobs, she went on, hoarsely:

"And that is why you look like 30 cents to me now."—Baltimore American.
